HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

The little cock on the maple night table rang quietly at first and when the slim figure in the single maple bed did not stir, it began to ring with shrill impatience. Her eyes still losed, Lyle reached out and moved the switch from "alarm" to "silent." Then she sat up with a start, breathed deeply, and looked out the window, grateful that this, a very important day, was clear and cool.

It was the second Monday in October and it was quite the most important day of her life thus far. Because in something less than two hours from now she would be sitting before a drawingboard in the advertising department of one of New York's largest department stores. It would be her first day there. Today, though she had had other jobs, her career as a fashion artist would begin. But now there was no time to think of all things that had gone before to make this day possible. In a moment she was out of bed....

She was slim and rather tall and the severity of the black wool dress she wore today was relieved only by a green pin at the collar. Her hair was auburn, her eyes blue. There was strength in the body. Always people had said that her hands were artistic. She had a way of looking at people so directly that at times it took them off guard. Her laughing was sudden and warm and seemed to come from deep within her.

Since July she had lived with Bonnie and Michael Hill and their two-year-old son Mike. Bonnie she had known since they had gone to art school together in Baltimore. That was before Bonnie had decided that being Michael's wife and the mother of little Mike was more important than sketching fashions.

Coming out of her room, Lyle crossed the living-room to the kitchen where Bonnie was standing over the stove and where curly-haired little Mike was sitting in his high-chair, his chubby hands holding a cup of milk to his mouth. Seeing Lyle, he stopped drinking and made a merry little noise with his moist mouth. She kissed the top of his curly head and looked at his mother.

She loved petite, brown-haired, pretty Bonnie. Of her Lyle had written her own mother, "Bonnie is the perfect wife. She makes all of hers and Mike's clothes, cooks, cleans and markets. The apartment is lovely because Bonnie made it so. She does wonders with little money. She and Michael are very happy and still terribly in love with each other."

Bonnie said, "Good morning, darling. Michael left early but he told me to wish you luck. Aren't you excited? I'm excited for you. You must eat a good breakfast. Oh, I know you'll make good and a few years from now you'll be making lots of money. Then you'll be awfuly glad you stuck it out, won't you? All summer when you were looking for work and getting little jobs here and there, temporary jobs. I knew you'd get something good finally. Because you're good. In art school we all admitted you had something we didn't have.'

Lyle looked at little Mike who always made her smile.

"Yes, but look at him. You have Michael and him."

"I'm not a career girl and you are," Bonnie said, nodding her brown head. "Definitely you are, Lyle. You're going places, darling, and today you're beginning. But—but do you mind if I say something personal, something I really haven't any right to say?"

Lyle smiled. "You may always tell me anything. You and Michael have been the dearest friends I've ever had. Taking me in, refusing board when I wasn't working because you knew I had to send money to my mother."

Bonnie regarded her thoughtfully.

"You're lovely looking, darling. Now you're thinking about your new job and making good at it. But there's something else you should think about, too. The men you'll meet, the men who'll be in love with you because you are lovely looking and .....the man you'll be in love with. Career versus marriage. It's an old story but in every case different."

Lyle smiled after a moment's serious reflection. "I can't think of getting married for a long time yet. The money I owe my uncle in Baltimore, who paid my way through art school, has to be paid back first. I wouldn't begin marriage with a debt." Then she laughed suddenly. "But I'm not in love with anybody!"

"You will be," Bonnie persisted, taking little Mike from his high-chair and wiping his wet chin. "And it won't be one of those nice, sweet, uneventful little romances. You're too vital. You'll touch the stars when you fall in love."

"I want to," said Lyle.

The store was within walking distance from the apartment. Lyle walked briskly, her eyes excited, her hands not quite so steady as usual. It mattered so much, the impression she made the first day.

Her childhood had been spent in a small Virginia town. An uneventful childhood filled with school life and play time. For as long as she could remember she had liked to draw and even her first awkward efforts had shown a gift. But the death of her father and the decline of her mother's health had shaken her solid, small-town world. Mrs. Marsh, her mother, had gone to Miami to live with relatives and Lyle had gone to Baltimore to live with her father's relatives and to attend art school. Even then, with years of learning ahead, she had known that one day she would go to New York and that her life really would not begin until that day..

At the store Lyle went directly to the advertising department and waited in the office of Miss Gibson, head of the department, to come in.

She came in after a few moments, a slim, chic, dark-haired, dark-eyed woman wearing a tailored suit with furs. Seeing Lyle, so young looking even in the severe black wool dress and small black hat, Suzanne Gibson thought, "She's such a child. But with experience added to her talent she'll be valuable."

She talked with Lyle quite some time, explaining the work, and then took her into the large room where the other artists were working and introduced her to them.

At noon a girl named Kay asked her to luncheon. Then, later, in the early twilight Lyle walked back to the Hills' apartment to kiss little Mike good night and to talk excitedly all through dinner, looking first from Bonnie's bright face to Michael, Bonnie's handsome young husband.

That was her first day.

Four days later Stephen Tennant, the young vice-president, asked his secretary to call Suzanne Gibson to his office.

He was tall and lean and blond. Somewhere, not very long ago, you, knew, those gray tweed-clad shoulders had worn pads on a football jersey. His eyes were blue and keen—eyes that missed nothing. His mouth was stern and firm until he smiled and then it was a handsome mouth with a charming smile.

The door opened and Suzanne Gibson came into his large, luxurious office. They had known each other for a long time and were friends. Often Stephen Tennant asked her to dinner and there was never a party at his country place to which she was not invited.

Suzanne sat opposite him and smiled, seeing a newspaper with the store's advertisement spread over his large, polished desk.

"Good news?" she asked, coming to the point at once.

He smiled. "New news, I'd say." And pointed to a sketch. "Who did this? She's new, isn't she?"

"What do you think of it?"

"I think it's swell?"

She let out her breath and laughed. "Thanks. That makes me feel much better. A week ago a lovely, auburn-haired child came in with a portfolio under her arm and showed me her work. She's had almost no experience and she's such a child. But I took a chance with her because I believed in her and she was so very much in earnest. Her name is Lyle Marsh."

"She's got something. I'm not much of a judge of these things and I don't look at the advertisements most of the time. But I've been following her work and it's good. It's different." Then he asked, "How about dinner tomorrow night?"

"Of course, Stephen. And thank you."

They talked awhile about his recent motor trip through France and her holiday at a northern lake. They talked about mutual friends and then he said he was having a weekend party two weeks later and wanted her there.

Rising, she said, "And so you approve of my protegee? She's not only a gifted artist but a darling person, Stephen. The first time I saw her I thought she had—you'll probably laugh at this—a kind of purity in her face that not many young girls have these days. She's fresh and so — so brand-new."

Stephen Tennant grinned. "And auburn-haired. I'll look in at her when I have the time. I'm so clumsy with a pencil that it seems incredible anybody could draw like that. Don't forget tomorrow night."

"As if I could!" From the door she looked back and laughed. "As if I dare to!"

A few minutes later, several floors below, Suzanne stood at the entrance of the advertising department, her hands thrust into the pockets of her tailored suit, and looked at the back of Lyle's bent head. When Stephen saw her ....He would see her and eventually meet her and because he would be attracted as much by her talent as by her loveliness, he would take her dining and dancing and perhaps invite her to one or two of his parties. All very discreetly, of course. But that would be all. That was all that ever happened with the innumerable girls and women who had come into his life since Suzanne had known him.

And although she had heard much talk about him from the employees as well as from his friends outside the store, she had never asked him why he, young and handsome and successful, had never married. They said that the girl he had loved had died, that he had been jilted, and even that he had a wife in France. But Suzanne knew that none of the gossip was true. It was simply that Sephen had never met any one he wanted to marry. He had never met a girl he could not successfully live without.

That night Lyle worked late and worked alone in the deserted office. The figure wasn't "right" and it had to be "right." And at last when she lifted her tired head, satisfied with her work, she realized it was late, that she was very hungry, and that rain was pecking against the windows.

Walking down five flights of steps, glancing at the various departments between flights, she wondered where the people who all day stood and sold and heard complaints and made out sales checks went at night.

12 Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Four persons were killed in two head-on collisions in suburban Montreal, bringing to 12 the fatality toll reported in Eastern Canada during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey revealed today.

A train-auto accident took the life of an Ontario hockey fan, a three-year-old Montreal girl died when a small film projector exploded, setting fire to an apartment, and a Richmond Hill, Ont., man was the victim of a hit-run driver.

A motor-scooter and a toboggan figured in two other Ontario deaths. At Owen Sound a man bled to death after suffering a knife thrust in his throat, and a permanent army non-commissioned officer was found shot through the head at Sudbury armories. Carbon monoxide fumes caused one death at Sarnia.

In the first head-on collision near Montreal Saturday three women were killed and two men hurt in an auto-truck collision.

Dead are:

Mrs. Ubald Brien, 45, of Montreal; Miss Fernande Henri, 26, and Miss Rosalyn Gervaus, 40, both of suburban Ville St. Laurent.

In the second near Ste. Rose, 20 miles from Montreal on Sunday William Semegan, 32, was killed and his wife injured.

Three-year-old Judith Gordon was burned to death when flames trapped her in a Montreal apartment. The fire was believed caused by a small film projector which exploded while a group of neighborhood children were being entertained.

Scooter Hit By Car

William Allison, 21, formerly of Montreal, died at Sudbury a few hours after a motor scooter he was riding Sunday was in collision with an automobile.

Walter Deadman, 63, of Richmond Hill, north of Toronto, was fatally injured Saturday night when he was knocked down by an automobile and then run over by a truck, the driver of which did not stop.

Visiting Sarnia, Jack Barrie, 48, of Dearborn, Mich., was found dead in his parent's garage Sunday, apparently asphyxiated by carbon monoxide fumes.

When an automobile plowed into a moving freight train Saturday at Omemee, 10 miles west of Lindsay, Sidney Trowbridge, 41, died before medical aid could be given. Five other passengers returning from a hockey game at Peterborough were injured, two seriously.

Carol Elizabeth Easton, 11, of Hornpayne, Northern Ontario, died Saturday of injuries she received Friday when struck by a truck while tobogganing.

Allan Crowe, 22, died early Saturday shortly after he was found in a pool of blood at the front steps of an Owen Sound house. Arthur Hooey was later arrested and charged with murder. Police said the dead man was stabbed in the neck with a knife.

Sgt.-Maj. B. R. Bignell of Toronto, a member of the permanent army since 1935, was found shot through the head at Sudbury armories Saturday and died 20 hours later. Police said the wound was suffered during a target practice.

Legislation May Affect 60-Odd Projects in Ont.

Toronto, March 8 — (CP)—D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said yesterday that proposed legislation in the Provincial House might affect the 60-odd wartime housing developments in Ontario.

Commenting on legislation indicated in the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Mansur was concerned that the measure would give the provincial government the power to designate any wartime housing project as the sole responsibility of the Dominion government.

He said the wartime projects in Ontario includes 13,608 houses, including many at Windsor, Hamilton, Brantford, St. Catharines, the Toronto area, Ajax, Peterborough and Ottawa.

A federal official and head of the housing agency, Mr. Mansur said "We are very interested in this proposed legislation but we are not quite sure of the implications. As soon as the bill appears we will have some idea of what it is about."

FOX HUNTERS MODERN NOW USE AIRPLANES

Ligonier, Pa., March 8 (AP)—The Century old Ligonier Valley fox hunt has gone modern —the hunters now use airplanes.

Sportsmen said their 103rd anniversary hunt yesterday was a great success, thanks to low-flying plane which guided hunters to a clearing where six foxes were killed. Some 400 hunters and dogs converged on the clearing from a 13 1-2 mile circle.

In last year's "old-fashioned" hunt no airplanes were used. And only one fox was killed.

DAIRY STATE CONGRESSMEN ROUSED BY OLEO EXHIBIT

Washington, March 8 — (AP)—Dairy state congressmen threatened today to move a cow, her calf, and a farmer's daughter into the House office building.

These law-makers from the cow country hit the roof when an exhibit proclaiming the virtues of oleomargarine was installed in the building on Capitol Hill. Republican August Andresen (Rep. Minn.), who threatened the counter-exhibit, called the oleo show "lobbying of the most supreme order."

It was preliminary to today's opening of the public hearings on 18 bills proposing that the special federal taxes on oleo be replaced. The exhibit was arranged by members of the House favoring repeal.

16-Foot Tender With Three Aboard Missing in Fla.

Miami, Fla., March 8 —(AP)—The Coast Guard reported Saturday night that a 16-foot tender with three men aboard was missing. It was last seen late Friday drifting westward near Sand Key off Cape Sable, Fla.

One of the missing men was Al Snider, formerly of Calgary, contract rider for the Calumet Farms. The others were identified as Don Fraser of Toronto and C. H. Trotter of Miami.

Meanwhile the cruiser Tonga with movie star Gregory Peck, mystery story writer Leslie Charteris, and their wives aboard, was found in safe anchorage near Craig, in the Florida Keyes, after riding out a storm.

The men and tender were from the yacht Evelyn K and were out fishing when the storm broke. Planes have searched the area off the southeastern tip of Everglades National Park Saturday and the search continued yesterday.

A second small boat also carrying three men was the object of another Coast Guard search. A third boat with two men and a boy aboard is safe.

Snider, veteran of several years in the saddle, rode in the Chicago area and on Eastern tracks as well as in Florida.

He is a brother of Alvin Snider, a former jockey now in business in Toronto.

Fraser, proprietor of Peerless Engineering Company which manufactures dies and gauges, left Toronto six weeks ago with his wife and an employee, George Raymer, who drove their automobile. They had planned to remain in Florida until April 15. Mrs. Raymer said last night her husband planned to go fishing with his employer but she had no word whether he made the fishing trip.

Spring steps from a Romantic Portrait

Spring fashions echo, in accents of today, the flowing lines of a portrait by Sargent; the archly emphasized figure of the Gibson Girl; the delicate detail and colour of Renoir.

Spring fashions repeat, in modern terms, a gentled shoulder, a hand-span waist, a voluminous or clinging skirt, a shapely head and slender foot.

So, in the manner of the romantics, we show you this Spring's fashions... invariably feminine, infinitely becoming.

Barbara Given Tumultuous Welcome

Most Impressive Homecoming In Capital's History

Queen of Skating World Presented With Key of City

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 9. (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott, world, Olympic and European figure skating champion, surged into her home town today on a tidal wave of wild enthusiasm.

Politicians, school children, civil servants and businessmen alike dropped everything in one mad, concerted effort to make the blue-eyed skater's homecoming the most impressive accorded anyone by this flag-draped capital.

They jammed the mile-long parade route and long before the arrival made movement in the vicinity of the Union Station practically impossible.

The private car carrying the 19-year-old sweetheart rolled in on schedule at 12.40 p.m. E.S.T.

Hours before her arrival, the crowds gathered. There was a gay and festive air as school children, given a special reprieve from lessons, trooped into the area and stomped their feet in time to the martial music.

Hugs Prime Minister, Mayor

"My, it's good to be back in Ottawa" Barbara Ann exclaimed as she hugged first Prime Minister Mackenzie King and then Mayor Stanley Lewis.

A huge bunch of roses were the first gift, as Mrs. Lewis stepped forward to make the presentation. Mayor Lewis, wearing his chains of office, presented the skater with a key to the city and an illuminated scroll.

The hugging scene had to be repeated again and again for photographers who missed it the first time.

A moment later, however, the Prime Minister was the forgotten man as Barbara Ann was swept away by the crowd.

Mrs. Scott added to the levity a few minutes later by leading Mr. King along and shouting:

"Make way for the Prime Minister".

The blue-eyed skater wore a black dress for the occasion, white gloves and a white, off-the-face hat. She also wore a triple strand of pearls.

Outside the station, the red-coated band of the Ottawa Technical school was joined by bands from the R.C.A.F. and R.C.M.P.

Car Smothered in Daffodils

As the parade moved off, Miss Scott took up her position in a gleaming black open car — not the canary-colored automobile she rode in at her last big homecoming. The vehicle was smothered with brilliant daffodils.

PREMIER PEKKALA HEADS DELEGATION IN SOVIET TALKS

Majority of Political Parties Disapprove of Any Military Alliance

Helsinki, March 9 (AP)— The Finnish government has named Premier Mauno Pekkala and other delegates to negotiate with Russia over a proposed new treaty, a member of the government said today.

The negotiations will be held in Moscow.

The Finnish cabinet session decided upon the make-up of the delegation at a meeting this afternoon. Finland's Foreign Minister, Carl J. A. Enckell, a non-party man, is vice-chairman of the delegation.

Pekkala is a member of the Socialist Union Party, which is affiliated with the Communists in Finland's "Democratic Union."

The Russians suggested a friendship and military pact. A majority of the Finnish political parties approved negotiations but disapproved the idea of a military alliance.

President Juho K. Paasikivi, in accepting Prime Minister Stalin's suggestion to work out such a treaty, proposed yesterday that the negotiations take place in Moscow. Stalin's earlier letter said either Helsinki or Moscow would be all right.

Govt. Announcement

The President's decision climaxed two weeks of conferences with government officials and party leaders. His final action was taken after a 90-minute conference with the cabinet.

A government announcement said:

"The President of the Republic has today in the State Council decided to reply in the affirmative to the Soviet government's proposal of entering upon negotiations towards the conclusion of a friendship and assistance agreement and to propose that the said negotiations take place in Moscow."

A Foreign Office spokesman said Paasikivi's reply might be sent to Moscow today. Its contents have been kept secret.

Finns agree that acceptance of the negotiation offer constitutes a "dangerous first step." They do not feel, however, that Finland has been placed in the position of Czechoslovakia, where the Communists grabbed power in a recent coup.

AMMUNITIONDUMP EXPLOSION LEVELS BLOCK, 100 KILLED

Fires Leave Mass Of Blackened Ruins

Shanghai, March 9 — (AP) — A Chinese ammunition dump exploded at Tsingtao today, levelling a city block and causing 250 casualties. An estimated 100 were killed.

United States navy sources here said the explosion occurred just before noon, within half a mile of docks where the U. S. S. Estes, flagship of the American Western Pacific Fleet, and the navy hospital ship, Repose, are tied up.

Tsingtao is the Chinese base of the U. S. Navy's Far Western fleet.

There were no immediate reports of casualties among American personnel.

The explosion, set off by an undetermined cause, swept an area east of the docks.

Resulting fires left a mass of blackened ruins in a wide sector.

The Repose and all available United States Navy medical facilities afloat and ashore immediately gave assistance.

The fires raged for two hours.

Big Change Noted In Conditions Says Anglican Dean

Edmonton, March 9 —(CP)— "It's almost the difference between heaven and hell."

Very Rev. A. M. Trendell, Anglican dean of Edmonton and juvenile court judge between 1941 and 1946, made the forthright statement yesterday to Alberta's royal commission investigating welfare conditions in the province.

His comment was directed to Edmonton's accommodation for juvenile delinquents before and after publication of the Whitton report.

The report, prepared for the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire by Dr. Charlotte Whitton, caused the commission to be set up and, under Chief Justice W. R. Howson of the Supreme Court of Alberta, to investigate conditions it described.

The report allegedly was used by New Liberty magazine as basis for an article entitled "Babies for Export," published in last December's issue. As a result, Dr. Whitton, publisher Jack Kent Cooke and writer Harold Dingman have been committed for trial, charged with conspiracy to commit defamatory libel. Their trial begins in the Supreme Court of Alberta April 5.

Saturday Dean Trendell said Dr. Whitton's comment about Edmonton's home for juvenile delinquents — "I have never seen worse anywhere" — was "fair in the main."

Mass R.A.F. Flights to Polar Regions Now Matter of Routine

London, March 9 (Reuters) — Royal Air Force navigational experts today issued their verdict on a 5,500-mile Arctic flight by seven Royal Air Force Lancasters which ended a fortnight ago, They said that flights to polar regions now are routine and present no abnormal hazards.

The Lancasters, acting as flying classrooms for 18 expert air navigators taking a post-graduate specialist course at the Royal Air Force's Empire Air Navigation School at Shawbury, Shropshire, flew from Shawbury to Gibraltar and then in a giant circle northwards into the Arctic and back to Scotland.

Among the navigators on the flight were Flt. Lt. Robert Baynes of Ottawa, veteran navigator of a Canadian Pathfinder Squadron during the war, and Flt. Lt. Bruce Cameron, of Toronto.

Between Gibraltar and Reykjavik, their only landing places, they tried out a new system of air navigation called pressure pattern navigation.

Used occasionally, pressure pattern flying is a way of "chasing tailwinds" by varying the altitude to fly at a constant pressure. The aircraft thus ensures a continually favorable wind, lengthening the distance covered over the ground but reducing the air-miles and time in the air.

Success of the system was proved when the Gibraltar-Reykjavik flight, which should have taken 11½ hours, was completed in 10½ hours.

From Reykjavik, the Lancasters flew to Jan Mayen Island, Bear Island, and then back to Scotland in a 14½-hour flight sufficiently far into the Arctic Circle to try out polar methods of navigation evolved on North Pole flights by the Lancaster research plane Aries in May, 1945.

A new system of plotting called grid navigation was perfected during the flight, and now will become standard practice for the R.A.F. in high latitudes.

Survey Dashes Britons' Hopes for Easier Times

London, March 9 (CP) —British hopes of easier times in 1948 were shattered today by a government economic survey which said that even with Marshall Plan aid, living standards will be reduced to compared with those in 1947.

Without Marshall Plan help Britain faces wholesale unemployment the report said, along with distress, dislocation of industry and NP project of a decent living standard for years.

Even with help from the United States under the European Recovery Plan, the number of British unemployed would rise from 300,000 to 450,000.

The document, reflecting the stern realism of Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's economic chief contained these details.

1. Because important foreign markets are becoming saturated with goods, the 1948 export target has been reduced from 60 per cent above the 1938 volume to 50 per cent.

2. Hopes of assistance from the United States has indicated in almost every paragraph, but even if it comes there will be a "somewhat reduced" standard of living with an appreciable reduction in food and clothing consumption.

3. The over-all deficit in the balance of payments in 1948 should drop from £675,000,000 in 1947 to £250,000,000. But the last reserves of gold and dollars which amounted to £680,000,000 when the year began, likely will be cut by £222,000,000 by June 30. If the drain continues, the remaining amount will be exhausted in 1949, a condition which "clearly could not be contemplated."

4. The strategy must be to reach an over-all balance of payments and "achieve as quickly as possible a satisfactory means of paying Western Hemisphere countries for purchase of them."

5. Cotton and wool can do more than any other industries to bridge the dollar gap in 1948. Unless textile production rises the home clothing ration of four coupons monthly will be out.

It was estimated that the reduction of food imports from the Western Hemisphere will force down the average daily intake of calories for each person to 2,681 compared with the 1947 average of 2,880 and the pre-war average of 3,000.

Baking Industry Finances Will be Investigated

Ottawa, March 9 (CP) —Commons price committee investigators will dig quietly into baking industry finances after the public phase of its inquiry shifts to butter this week, it was indicated today.

The committee was expected to end the first stage of its public inquiry into higher bread prices on Wednesday, but Health Minister Martin, Committee chairman, declared yesterday that would not bring the bread investigation to a stop.

The committee's steering subcommittee was considering sending acocuntants into the baking industry, he said, and it appeared likely that would be done. Also in prospect was an accountants' investigation of milling company operations, with the likelihood that this branch of the trade would be in the spotlight when the committee got back to bread some time later.

Since its bread inquiry opened, the committee has heard considerable about milling company control extending into the bakery business.

Latest evidence of this came yesterday, when the committee heard of directorial connections between the Maple Leaf Milling Company and Canada Bread Company, operating in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba; Eastern Bakeries, in the Maritimes; and Canadian Bakeries, in Western Canada.

Evidence of this came from A. V. Loftus of Toronto, President of Canada Bread, who said the Maple Leaf firm controlled his company's stock.

However, Mr. Loftus declared Maple Leaf did not direct operations of the bread firm.

Indication that the committee would send accountants into at least one chain store — the A. and P. Company — was given yesterday by chairman Martin when the Ontario Bakers' Association accused that company of selling its 10-cent loaf of bread at a loss.

C. M. Ruttan of Toronto, Association secretary - treasurer, claimed the A. and P. — which makes its own bread — was using it as a "loss leader" to attract customers.

The two are Howard H. Russell, chief of the administrtive dimember of the I. G. Farben prosecution staff.

They visited the Leipzig Fair together with their wives in the last week. They were overdue i Nuernberg by several days and inquiries were made.

The group returned late this afternoon, weary and nervous but unharmed.

Mufti Stripped Of Political Power

Jerusalem, March 9 —(AP)— The Arab League has stripped the Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin El Husseini, of virtually all his power.

The sveen-state league, with headquarters in Cairo, has taken over full military and political control in the affairs of Palestine's 1,250,000 Arabs.

The Arab higher executive in Palestine, headed by the Mufti, now deals only with such internal affairs as collection of taxes, export of citrus fruit and settlement of tribal feuds. The fight against Zionism and partitions is directed from Cairo.

Four Children Die When Homes Burn

Thornbury, Ont., March 9. (CP) —Six-year-old Marilyn Boyle and her four-year-old sister, Brenda, were suffocated today in a fire which swept their six-room frame house, while their mother and neighbors made frantic attempts to save them.

The mother, Mrs. Carman Boyle, was in the kitchen when the fire started but was prevented from reaching her children by flames and heavy smoke. Mrs. Jean Conklin, a neighbor, tried to climb the short flight of stairs to the children's room but was also driven back.

Tommy Goldsmith, a mail and express carrier, hoisted a ladder to a second storey window but was unable to enter the room.

A third child, eight-months-old Lyall, was saved by Mrs. Conklin shortly after the fire broke out.

Poice are investigating the cause of the blaze. Damage was estimated at $4,000.

Burn to Death

Valleyfield, Que., (CP)— Two young children were burned to death early today in a fire which caused serious injuries to their father, Steven Allen, and his baby son.

The fire of unknown origin destroyed a one-storey wooden bungalow on Fabre Street in Billette village 25 miles southwest of Montreal on Lake St. Francis.

The dead children were Guy, four and his sister Gaetane, three.

The father and the four-months-old baby were admitted to the hospital with "serious" body burns.

VETS' PROBLEMS WILL BE PROBED BY COMMITTEE

Merchant Seamen Not Members of Forces

Ottawa, March 9. (CP)—A 35-man Veterans' Committee was established by the Commons yesterday during a day-long debate marked by unsuccessful opposition efforts to have wartime merchant seamen recognized as members of the Armed Forces.

Lt.-Col. A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal) moved an amendment to the committee resolution that would have recognized the seamen as members of the Armed Forces as far as veterans benefits are concerned.

The amendment was ruled out of order after External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said the committee would have the power to investigate the complaints of all services closely associated with the war. He felt it would be "false" to state that the seamen were members of His Majesty's Forces.

Labor Minister Mitchell said there was no comparison between the seamen and members of the forces. The seamen belonged to trade unions and during the war had received civilian rates of pay.

In moving the resolution, Veterans Minister Cregg said increased allowances for married student veterans will be reflected in cheques mailed at the end of March. He also disclosed that recently-announced increases for disabled pensioners, war widows and dependents could be sent to recipients in early April if the House approved enabling legislation before Easter.

He said the legislation would be placed before the committee within the next day or two then he would obtain first reading of the enabling bill.

Resume Debate

Before the adjournment, the Chamber resumed the Throne Speech debate and heard E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) call on the government to open a full-dress debate on international affairs particularly in the light of Communistic encroachments in eastern Europe.

Britain Draws on Canadian Loan

London, March 9 —(Reuters)— Britain last week drew $6,000,000 from her Canadian loan, in addition to drawing the last $100,000,000 of the United States loan, it was learned today.

This leaves $9,000,000 still to be drawn from the Canadian loan this month, to complete the agreed drawings of $45,000,000 this quarter.

In each of the two previous months Britain drew $15,000,000 from the Canadian loan, as against $40,000,000 a month in the last quarter of 1947.

Powerful Drug Which Cures Boy May Conquer Bubonic Plague

Baltimore, March 9 (AP)— A nine-year-old boy lay critically ill in Sydenham Hospital here. He suffered from a skin eruption wit a secondary infection that ordinarily would lead to death.

Doctors administered huge doses of streptomycin and penicillin. They did not help.

Then they called John Hopkins hospital physicians who have been experimenting with a new, powerful germ-killer, called polymyxin.

The Hopkins scientists injected the drug, in the form of a white powder, underneath his skin. Three days later, the eruption began to clear. He was well after eight days.

The un-named boy was the first human to be treated with polymyxin. In the last several months, similar speedy cures have been efected by the drug in cases of undulant fever, whooping cough, certain types of blood poisoning and meningitis.

The Hopkins doctors, Perrin H. Long, Professor of Preventive Medicine, and Morton S. Bryer, Eleanor A. Bliss and Emanuel Schoenbach—told of the first cure last night.

They reported the drug may lead to a final triumph over bubonic plague. It will be sent to India soon to find how it works against that ancient curse on mankind.

Typhoid fever, various urinary tract infections, tuleremia (rabbit fever) and certain deadly infections are among the ailments against which the doctors said they found the new drug "uniquely effective."

One big advantage polymyxin has over the other recent "wonder drugs" is that the germs it attacks do not develop a resistance to it, the doctors reported.

Polymyxin comes from the bacillis polymyxa. This is a minute organism commonly found in soil, water, sewage and such.

The drug is not yet available for general clinical use.

N.Y. Ranger Player Expelled, Boston Man Suspended

N.H.L. President Makes Announcement in Michigan

Lansing, March 9 — (AP)—National Hockey League President Clarence S. Campbell today expelled Billy Taylor, New York Ranger hockey player and suspended Don Gallinger of the Boston Bruins on charges of being associated with gamblers.

Campbell reported the punitive action to Michigan's Governor Kim Sigler.

Campbell had returned to Michigan to announce his decision because Detroit police officials had given the league president information pointing to a link between gamblers and professional hockey players.

The Hockey League president expelled Taylor for conduct "prejudicial to and against the welfare of hockey."

He charged that he had sufficient evidence to know that Taylor had "knowingly associated with and communicated with James Tamer a criminal and known gambler."

Interested in Wager

Taylor, Campbell reported in a formal statement to Sigler, "was interested with Tamer in a wager on the outcome of a National Hockey League championship game played in Chicago on Feb. 18 between the Boston Bruins and the Chicago Black Hawks. Taylor's interest in this wager was that he authorized Tamer to place for him a bet of $500 on the Chicago Black Hawks."

Boston, however, won the game in question 4-2.

In his investigation, Campbell made trips to Chicago, Boston and New York. He also visited Southern Michigan prison where he talked with Tamer, a known gambler and convicted bank robber who was returned to the institution two weeks ago as a parole violator.

Campbell said he was suspending Gallinger indefinitely pending further investigation of his associations with James Tamer, the Detroit gambler.

The hockey president said his investigations had "established to my complete satisfaction that no other player in the National Hockey League was involved in any gambling."

Rangers Will Not Make Appeal

New York, March 9—(CP)—Brig.-Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, today issued the following statement in connection with the expulsion from hockey of Billy Taylor, New York Rangers' forward, and suspension of Don Gallinger of Boston Bruins for alleged gambling practices.

We are naturally shocked that Taylor has been expelled from organized hockey for complicity in gambling on hockey games. The Ranger organization had no knowledge whatsoever of the fact when the trade was consummated on Feb. 6 that brought Taylor to our club.

We have not received the details of the evidence upon which President Campbell based his decision of expulsion. We are confident, however, that he would not have taken this drastic action without a thorough and unbiased investigation and we have no intention of appealing from his ruling.

REFORM REPORT URGES CHANGES IN TREATMENT

Efforts to Curb Juvenile Delinquency Beginning to Show Results

Toronto, March 9 (CP)— Shortcomings in the criminal code in regard to mental sex offenders and alcoholics are pointed up in the report of the Department of Reform Institutions in Ontario.

One of 13 reports tabled before the Provincial Legislature yesterday, it suggests a study of the two classes of offenders with a view to developing legislation for providing special treatment.

The report noted that the Parole Board is not in position to advocate treatment for such offenders although they may be mentally ill.

The report further showed that efforts to curb juvenile delinquency in the province are beginning to show results. It said it can prove that parents were chiefly to blame for such delinquency as does exist.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, March 9— (CP)—Synopsis: Mild cloudy weather with scattered light snowflurries prevails in most sections of Southern Ontario this morning. It is colder in Northern Ontario and light snow is falling in most sections due to a weak disturbance which is passing through that part of the province. A very extensive body of cold air over the prairie provinces is moving southward behind the Northern Ontario disturbance. This situation is expected to bring generally clear and considerable colder weather to all sections of Ontario tonight and Wednesday.

BRIDGE CLUB HOLDS DUPLICATE TOURNEY

Members of the Belleville Bridge Club enjoyed a duplicate bridge tournament last evening in the Knights of Columbus rooms. The tournament was under the direction of Frank Domenico and Jack Lawrence with A. H. Ketcheson, who has had considerable experience in this type of bridge, acting as instructor as many players had never played duplicate bridge. Ten boards were in play and passed from table to table with the teams trying to make the best score possible in the hands presented. Ralph Ketcheson and Clive Ryan were the winners of North-South pair while Frank Domenico and George O'Brien won the East-West prize. Johnny Hibbard and Morley Ward won the consolation.

Frank Domenico, in thanking all for their part in making the tournament a success, stated that history probably was made in the city as this was the first to be held and judging from the enthusiasm the Bridge Club would hold many more. Jack Lawrence thanked all for their attendance and Ted Hughes, president of the club, sincerely thanked Frank and Jack for the work that was expended and also Mr. Ketcheson for his valuable help. Delightful refreshments were served and the players remained to enjoy a few hands of this popular pastime.

Man's Curly Hair Arouses Envy Of Woman Customer

Perhaps it's just spring in the air, but already some consideration is being given to the possibilities of transplanting. This time, however, the transplanting in question is the curly locks of the human head.

It all happened in one of the local tonsorial emporiums this morning. A woman came in to have her straight feather-cut trimmed. Shortly after a man entered, hung up his coat and removed his hat. This was probably his semi-annual trim, but anyway he was sporting a head of curly locks that would turn some of our local belles green with envy.

The woman with the straight hair viewed the locks being shorn and asked of the attendant, "Think they could be transplanted?"

Public Works Department Will Complete Work on Sidewalk Building in Downtown Area

Replacement of sidewalks in the downtown area which had been tendered for several years ago but with the contracts still not completed, will be done through the public works department, it was decided Monday evening at the regular meeting of city council.

Council members voted to rescind the contracts which had been let some years ago and to complete the work through the department of public works and under the direction of the city engineer. Shortage of materials was given as the reason the contracts had not been completed by the firms successfully tendering for the job.

"A good idea," commented Alderman Harold Armstrong as the recommendation was passed. "It will save the city money."

Ratification of a Thursday evening recommendation calling for the sale of two lots on Coleman Street which had been repossessed from Mr. Jack Both of the Diamond Construction Company, saw a bit of discussion before the recommendation was passed.

Asks for Extension

Mr. Both appeared before council asking for an extension of building covenant on lots 5 and 6 on the east side of Coleman St. He said he had purchased the lots several years ago and had put in several feet of fill in preparation for construction of a warehouse.

Alderman Clarke pointed out, however, that the building covenant had expired in 1946 and that the lots had accordingly been repossessed by the city and had now been resold to two veterans.

"I think that under the circumstances some consideration should be given to Mr. Both," stated Alderman Duffy. "By improving the lots Mr. Both certainly indicated that he intended to build on the property."

Voted to Sell Lots

"I don't understand Alderman Duffy," returned Alderman Allin. "Formerly Alderman Duffy always fought for the veteran. I am afraid if we again let down the bars there will be heavy trafficking in city owned lots."

Alderman Armstrong pointed out that Mr. Both had not carried out his covenant because of shortage of building materials. "It was not Mr. Both's intention to dispose of the lots at a profit but to build on them. I think he should be given some consideration."

When the recommendation of Thursday evening came up for ratification council members voted to sell the lots to the two recent applicants, both veterans of the last war.

A part time fire inspector to be appointed from the personnel of the local fire department, was approved by council. The appointment of the fire inspector had been recommended both by the local fire chief and by the Ontario Fire Marshal's department.

Replacement Discussed

Replacement of the Campbell Street wall adjacent to the Carver property came up for discussion when Alderman Tice warned if the wall was not soon repaired, the city was leaving itself open to an accident which might cost considerably more than the repair of the wall. He said that according to the city engineer the wall was on city property and therefore was the city's responsibility. Council, however, passed a recommendation calling on the city solicitor to report to council as to who was responsible for the wall repairs.

The city solicitor was authorized to prepare a private bill in connection with the application for annexation of Thurlow township property to the east of the city, while Mayor D.L. Storey and City Clerk Wilfred Holmes were authorized to sign any necessary papers. Approval of the Ontario Municipal Board has already been granted for annexation of the property but the private bill will be prepared in case there is further opposition.

Some Oppose Motion

A recommendation calling for the Mayor, the city comptroller and with chairman of the council committee concerned to open all tenders and make recommendation for awarding some, saw opposition on the part of several councillors who declared that tenders should be considered by the entire council.

"I am certainly opposed to the recommendation", stated Alderman Armstrong. "Tenders should be opened in council and discussed in council. The council should know all competitors who have tendered for any specific job."

Alderman Duffy declared that such matters should be discussed in committee before they come up for ratification in open council. The matter was referred to committee for further consideration.

As a guide to future chairmen of the fire department the city fire chief will be instructed to keep a permanent ledger showing the quantity, type, and cost of all equipment and supplies purchased by the department. It was felt that if such a record were kept future fire chairmen would be enabled to make a fairer distribution of purchases among Belleville merchants.

Purchase New Level

Council approved of a new engineer's level to be purchased at a cost of $340, an amount which had been provided for in the year's estimates. It was noted that the level formerly used by the city engineer's department had been stolen from outside the city hall.

At the request of the Canadian Legion who are establishing a bus terminal on Dundas Street, this organization was given exclusive bus terminal rights for the city of Belleville.

Council concurred in a recommendation from the City of Windsor calling for old age pensions to be raised from $30 to $40 per month. The recommendation called for the Ontario Government to be petitioned to this effect.

Concur in Resolution

Council also concurred in a recommendation of The War Amputations of Canada for an increase in the basic rate of pensions to $100 per month for 100 per cent disability. Total disability pension was now stated to be $75 per month.

Under inquiry from Alderman Allin as to who the trustees of the Community Swimming Pool Fund were, Alderman Lloyd stated that the Inter-Service Club Council had charge of this fund.

Alderman Lattimer wanted to know if the city street scraper could not be used to cut down the snow and ice on hills in the city and thus get rid of deep ruts that are a great inconvenience to motorists. The city engineer stated this would be done on the next mild day. Alderman Lazenby wanted to know the disposition of the Jack Grills' case. He was informed that Mr. Grills had re-appeared before the Compensation Board, but that no further action had been taken. As a member of the local fire department Mr. Grills was injured during a water demonstration during Old Home Week and early this year was discharged from the fire department after being declared fit to return to work.

Synchronization of the various traffic lights in the city came up for discussion when the matter was brought up by Alderman Duffy, who asked if there was any provision enabling the fire department to be assured of a green light when answering alarms. Alderman Lattimer as member of the traffic committee stated this had not been mentioned to him.

Gore and Storrie Report Accepted By Commission

At the regular meeting of the Public Utilities Commission held on Monday afternoon at the Hydro office, the members unanimously approved the report of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers for the Commission with respect to work to be done in the immediate future and which will entail an expenditure of more than $300,000. The Commission accepted the first 17 items in the report and will request the council to issue the necessary debentures to carry out the work. It is understood that the first construction will be the sewer and water on Sidney Street in order to assist the Northern Electric Company to get into full production.

A letter was received from Mr. McDonald of the consulting firm along with the report and the members were loud in their praise of the excellent material in the report and the clear annunciation of the needs of this expanding city. The money will be raised by debenture and these debentures will be paid out of water rates. The letter from Mr. McDonald and the work to be constructed is herewith given:

O. H. Scott, Esq.,
General Manger,
Belleville Utilities Commission,

Dear Mr. Scott:

We hand you herewith seven copies of our report on the water works system as requested in your letter of September 25th, 1947. You will note that the report recommends the construction of nineteen items amounting in all to $443,000.00. Of these items the first seventeen are absolutely essential to serve the City and the areas annexed or proposed to be annexed thereto. The elevated tank and connecting main, Items 18 and 19, are desirable but their construction can be deferred until all the other work has been completed. This will reduce the total work to be constructed immediately by $123,000.00, leaving a net amount of $320,000.00 to cover the construction of work which will have to be carried out.

We have given the matter a very thorough study and because of the large expenditure involved we have not included anything which could be omitted. For example we have recommended the installation of filters but have left out the coagulating and settling tanks because, under the circumstances, taking in the peculiar qualities of the Bay of Quinte water, we believe that the plant can be operated with the existing settling tanks.

If there is anything further we can do for you in connection with this report please let us know.

Mr. Storrie will be in Belleville on March 4th, in connection with the Municipal Board's hearing on Annexation.

Yours very truly,
Gore & Storrie
Sgd. N. G. McDonald

It was reported by the manager, O. H. Scott, that consumption of water was up 12 million gallons in February over a year ago and residents will be requested to conserve the water, the same as they have co-operated in the saving of electricity. The Parks Board were granted a rebate on their water rate from last year. Before adjournment the accounts were passed.

Council Approves Establishment Of Juvenile Court

At the request of a group of interested citizens, members of city council at their regular meeting Monday evening voted to make application for the establishment of a family and juvenile court in this city.

A group of approximately ten local citizens interested in the establishment of a family court in Belleville waited on council with the request and when the recommendation was tabled aldermen wasted no time in approving the application.

Alderman Charles Hyde as chairman for the Children's Aid Society told his fellow councillors that the C.A.S. had been considering the matter of a family court for some time but warned that such a court could not be put into operation immediately. The project would cost money and certain legal matters had to be ironed out before the court could be established.

Superintendent of the C.A.S., Captain Thomas Ruston pointed out the advantages of a family and juvenile court as compared with the regular police court. Under police court regulations the hands of the investigator or probation officer were tied in giving evidence whereas with the family court they could discuss frankly with the judge the particular problem at hand. The juvenile court thus gave greater freedom in handling delinquent parents and delinquent children.

Recommends Court

Mr. Ruston also warned that the establishment of a juvenile court would not save the city any money, but in view of the advantages he strongly recommended that such a court be set up in Belleville.

Dr. Bert Howard also spoke briefly to council on the matter, pointing out that the recommendation before them was the recommendation called for by the provincial department.

Council appointed a committee of Aldermen Mark Vanner and George Brown to consider the motion and bring in a report to council.

The recommendation also called for petitioning of the Lieutenant Governor to establish a family court under the Juvenile and Family Courts Act, R.S.O. 1937, Chapter 316, in and for the city of Belleville; also to appoint a judge for the said family court and to take all the necessary steps to have the Juvenile Delinquents Act proclaimed in the city of Belleville.

Fined on Charge Careless Driving

Convicted on a charge of careless driving, Mr. Hugh Mills, South John Street, was assessed a fine of $10 and $10 costs when he appeared in city police court this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The charge against Mills arose as result of a motor accident which occurred last February 7th when an auto driven by the accused skidded on West Bridge Street hill and struck Miss Catherine Mills, Trent Road, as she was walking on the sidewalk. The Mills girl suffered injury to her leg as result of the accident.

Four witnesses were called by the Crown, including Miss Mills, two girl companions who were with her at the time of the accident, and Police Constable Harold Reid who investigated the accident. Defence Counsel Alan B. Sprague called three witnesses, including Mr. Mills, his wife, and city engineer Charles Mott who testified as to the condition of city streets on the night of the accident.

In finding the accused guilty Magistrate Wills took into consideration the slippery condition of the street at the time of the accident, but stated he could not believe entirely the evidence of Mr. Mills.

Housewives Oust Men in Election

Grass Lake, Mich., March 9—(CP)—The last three male officials were swept out in yesterday's election and today the housewives' revolt was complete in this village of 800.

Women captured seven of the 10 village posts last year, but three men remained as trustees

This year a group of young men undertook a spirited campaign against "petticoat rule."

"They promised to lower taxes and pave the streets," said village President Helen McCall. "Apparently the two didn't go together."

How did the woman succeed?

"By keeping silent," said Miss McCall.

Out of 175 ballots, 96 were marked for the women's ticket, 41 for the men and 38 split.

The re-elected president, a lumber company bookkeeper, described herself as being "between the ages of 40 and 50."

Where's Mike Buydos? Bill Long Since Paid

Ebensburg, Pa., March 9 (AP)—Clerk of court Joseph Wess wishes he could locate Mike Buydos and get him to stop sending in those one-dollar payments every week.

Wess said yesterday that in 1937 Buydos was ordered by the court to pay a $128.37 doctor bill. Since then, Buydos has been mailing in a dollar every week from various addresses—and now the total amounts to $570.

The last payment was postmarked Newton Falls, O., but as usual the letter returning the dollar was sent back marked "address unknown.'

Gen. MacArthur Bids for Place On Republican Ticket

Washington, March 9 —(AP)— Gen. MacArthur bid openly for top place on the Republican ticket today, even as President Truman foreclosed his mortgage on the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

The two announcements, only hours apart in Tokyo and Washington, far overshadowed today's New Hampshire primary, the first actual voting for delegates to the national party conventions in Philadelphia.

MacArthur's message saying he is available but will not actively seek the presidency put the 68-year-old general in the positive candidate class, along with Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and Governor Earl Warren of California.

The Supreme Allied Commander in Japan named no party in his announcement that he would accept "any public duty to which I might be called by the American people."

But only 10 days ago he sent a message to Republican headquarters in which he said: "The Republican party has never deviated from the proposition that all political power resides in the people."

Truman's decision to run drove a new wedge into the Democratic party, split over his civil rights program. His action killed any practical hope of southern party members for a compromise candidate.

Politicians generally agree that now the President has spoken the nomination cannot be denied him.

His decision to go after his first full four-year term touched off even greater controversy within his own party.

Menaced by Henry Wallace's independent bid for the presidency, that party has shown signs of falling apart at the seams because of southern anger over Truman's civil rights proposals.

With all of this in mind, Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.-Okla.) told a reporter: "There isn't a chance in the world" for Truman to win in November.

headed the parade as it proceeded past the National War Memorial on Confederation Square.

Along the route were flags and huge streamers which read "We love you Barbara Ann," "Ottawa is proud of you," and "Welcome home."

Every store window sported its own welcome signs. A whirling life-size model of the little skater was in on department store window which also boasted the costumes Miss Scott wore when winning the world and Olympic championships.

Guest at Luncheon

Despite police barriers, crowds four and five deep surged ahead of the car, separating it from the 16 mounties on horseback that headed the procession. Shouting "Barbara Ann — Barbara Ann"— the people fought their way toward the automobile in which the little skater stool smiling and waving.

So many people pressed into the streets along the parade route that it took a full hour for the procession to work through the mile-long way to the reviewing stand.

Following the parade and official welcome by Mayor Lewis, Barbara Ann once more had to fight her way back through the crowds to the Chateau Laurier where she was guest of honor at a luncheon.

Prime Minister King, who had slipped away in the crowds after meeting Barbara at the train, attended the luncheon.

Value of Sea Cadet Training Stressed At Annual Meeting of Quinte Corps

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Navy League of Canada, held in the Ward Room of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Ship Quinte" the officers of last year were re-elected. Mayor D. L. Storey was added as Honorary Vice-President.

Chairman A. G. Stackhouse remarked that the Sea Cadet Corps had been moved around considerably last year and it was by extremely good fortune that circumstances improved to prevent its folding up entirely.

The treasurer's report showed an approximate $5,600 was expended in the renovation of the building. It is proposed to make further changes and improvements during the year which are estimated to cost about $5,000.

Chairman R. R. Stiver explained the proposed plans for a new heating system, docks and landscaping to be attended to this year. He also cited as an urgent requisite of the corps four or five fourteen-foot sailing dinghies, a motor-launch and other necessities for the improvement of the "Ship."

Workers Thanked

A vote of thanks was expressed by the Chairman to those who have assisted the corp in obtaining and furnishing the "Ship." Among those mentioned were: Mrs. E. J. Neate, chairman of the Ladies Auxiliary and her aides for the supervision of the Tag Day. Cameron and Sprague, barristers, were commended for their legal and financial assistance in the transference of the deed. The actual work on the "Ship" was largely due to Commanding Officer A. Lloyd and his subordinates and cadets. For a splendid effort in carrying out a successful financial drive, gratitude was expressed to Mr. H. N. Becker whose efforts raised the largest sum since the inception of the corps in Belleville. Mr. Ross Stiver, Chairman of "Ship Quinte" was thanked for his loyal support and efforts. Sincere thanks also went out to treasurer T. G. Wrightmeyer, and secretary Wilbur Fox for their valuable assistance. Col. P. H. Wills was extended thanks for his excellent financial guidance and generous support.

Gives History of Corps

Mr. Maurice Callaghan gave a brief history of the "Ship" in relation to the old Belleville Athletic and Yacht Club. He explained that the club was originally formed in 1932 for the purpose of uplifting and encouraging the youth of the southern section of the city. The club progressed favorably until the outbreak of the war and then hit a slump. It was kept up in the expectation that the returning boys would go back again to sailing. This was not so, however, and it was decided to dispose of the club. Many attractive offers were made for the site, but when the Sea Cadets asked for it, many of the bidders called 'hands off.' Subjected to "an ewful bunch of punishment" Mr. Callaghan stolidly backed the Corps' bid and won out for them.

Praises Corps For Success

Mr. A. R. Scoble, Secretary of the Ontario Division of the Sea Cadets and guest speaker of the evening, gave a brief talk to the group on the satisfaction he and many others felt on the success and prospects of the corps and its new home. He cited instances where he had been told of Sea Cadet training had stood the test in many ways by elevating the boys to a higher moral, responsible and social plane. Mr. Scoble related that he was a firm believer in teaching youth the art of self-defence and swimming. He said that the assistance of service clubs to a corps was invaluable.

The training of a corps depends mainly on the officers responsible for the instruction of the cadets, said the speaker. "Quinte Corps is fortunate in having officers of the highest calibre. A sea Cadet receives an excellent training which makes him stand out above his fellow men. His training makes him eligible for special concessions and priorities in the Navy, R.C.M.P. and in business," said Mr. Scoble in conclusion.

In the course of the evening's business it was moved that an appeal for similar concessions for civil service also be requested from the Ontario division.

Training Free

The R.C.S.C. "Quinte" now offers, in better form than before, excellent training for boys. This training is free and includes practical naval instructions, recreation and a two-week session at an excellent training camp in the summer, plus many other excellent advantages.

It was stressed by the members that there is a regrettable lack of public interest shown to this junior branch of the senior service of the armed forces. There are few finer organizations for youth training to be found in Canada. Visitors are welcome any Monday and Thursday evening to Watch the regular drill. Boys are invited to go down and participate in the activities which will prove definitely advantageous to them in every way.

Among those present were Chairman, A. G. Stackhouse; Sea Cadet Chairman, R. R. Stiver; Col. P. H. Wills, H. N. Becker, N. Evans, Hamilton, Maurice Callaghan, Mr. Sutherland, Miss M. Gothard, Trenton, Commanding Officer Addison Lloyd, Lt. J. Howe, Capt. J. Watson and a number of other officers and executives of the League.

LAND FOR FARMING

There are about 350,000,000 acres of land suitable for farming purposes in Canada.

13,000 Income Taxpayers of District Will Receive Savings Refunds Cheques

On March 15, or shortly afterwards, over 13,000 taxpayers of the city, and the area under the jurisdiction of the Belleville district of the Income Tax Division of the Department of National Revenue, will be $650,000 richer.

For on that date, cheques for various amounts constituting compulsory savings refunds of their 1942 income tax, will be sent to the taxpayers by registered mail.

With interest, the average value of the cheques in this area will be $50, but District Inspector of Income Tax, Ken Reid said today. the amounts will vary from a few cents to amounts in three and four figures. No matter what the amount, a cheque will be forwarded to those who filed returns in 1942, and are entitled to the refund.

Deduct Amounts Owing

But, those who have been remiss in their income tax payments, may find that their compulsory savings cheques will differ from their own figures. For the Government, has deducted any amounts owing it for income tax, from the compulsory savings cheques of the delinquents.

And furthermore, upwards of five hundred taxpayers of the area will not receive their cheques despite the fact they are entitled to the refund. The reason is they neglected to file a verified address with the Income Tax office here. and until verified addresses are received, the cheques will be held in abeyance.

Postcards, requesting addresses, and changes in address were sent out by the government some time ago, and those who did not conform with the request will be minus their savings refund until such time that they comply with the order.

The cheques for 1942 are being made out in Ottawa but will be distributed through the 19 regional income tax offices. Although dated March 31, arrangements have been made with the banks so they can be cashed any-time.

By DOUGLAS HOW

Ottawa, March 9 —(CP)— In cheques ranging from one cent to hundreds of dollars, the federal Treasury is going to rid itself of more than $93,000,000 within the last two weeks of March.

Revenue Department officials, computing the totals that emerged from weeks of mountainous toil, said today that between March 15 and 31 individual Canadians would receive $57,347,425 as the compulsory savings refunds of their 1942 income tax. They would receive, too, another $5,162,524 in interest, or a total of $62,509,949.

In the same period, corporations will have $31,200,000 refunded.

The department has prepared hundreds of thousands of cheques for a mass distribution through the mails. All letters will be registered. They will go out as fast as the post offices across the country can handle them.

1,178,256 Cheques

In Montreal, that will mean 30,000 a day; in Toronto, 25,000. And when the last of the 1,178,256 cheques for individuals has vanished, there will still be another 100,000 Canadians who won't get their money because the department doesn't know where they are.

The total of 1,178,256 will be spread out this way:

Charlottetown, 2,131; Halifax, 46,724; Saint John, 22,579; Quebec, 39,907; Montreal, 231,605.

Ottawa, 90,210; Kingston, 8,140; Belleville, 13,754; Toronto, 230,323; Hamilton, 111,260; London, 72,829; Fort William, 18,325.

Winnipeg, 55,512; Regina, 20,194; Saskatoon, 13,173; Calgary, 32,114; Edmonton, 26,463; Vancouver, 142,043; Dawson City, 970.

Hobbycraft Classes Attract Large Group Young People

Since early in February the local Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street has been a busy spot on two evenings of the week with approximately 210 boys and girls from the city taking advantage of the hobbycraft classes being conducted by members of the local Kiwanis Club.

The classes will run until the first of May when they will conclude with the staging of a hobbycraft fair when members of the various classes will display their handiwork at the Kiwanis Centre.

Establishment of the hobbycraft classes is the answer to the Kiwanis Club to the growing problem of juvenile delinquency, the courses being inaugurated with the dual purpose of keeping the teen-agers off the streets and at the same time to teach them useful handicrafts and hobbies. The courses are in charge of Kiwanian Dorland Houston as chairman of the hobbycraft committee.

Many Crafts Taught

Classes being taught under the schedule include woodworking, leather working, model aircraft building; photography, motor mechanics, radio and sewing.

Wherever possible members of the local Kiwanis Club who have trade skills are volunteering their services to act as instructors for the various classes. In some instances, however, outsiders have been brought in to act in this capacity.

Head of the woodworking classes is Frank Garret, manual training teacher at Queen Victoria School, who is assisted by Len Fozard and B. Quincey. Other Kiwanis members assist in this class wherever possible. The leather working department is in charge of Mrs. Norma (Smith) McKinnon and Mrs. Russell Smith, Kiwanis Queens; while Kiwanian Jack Sills is showing the "know how" in model aircraft building.

Two Outside Classes

Kiwanian Bill Riley of Riley and Thompson, photographers, acts as instructor for the photography class while club members Jack Bonn is instructor in motor mechanics. These two classes are being conducted at the instructors' places of business.

The radio class is in charge of Harold Carruthers, local Kiwanis member and amateur shortwave enthusiast, while the sewing class is headed by Mrs. M. Button, Mrs. George Wallbridge and Mrs. E. Finkle.

The woodworking class has proven to be the most popular with 70 boys and girls ranging in age from eight to 16 years taking this course. The leather working class is next in line with 40 class members. Model aircraft building, photography and sewing has attracted 20 members each, while motor mechanics is being studied by 25 and radio by 15 class members. Classes are held on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Starvation Killing Deer in Algoma

Batchawana, March 9 — Starvation is killing off the deer population in this Algoma area, and bushmen have reported seeing the animals collapse before their eyes.

So desperate have the deer become in their search for food that several have been reported in the yards of houses. Frozen carcasses dot the countryside. An effort is being made to prevent dogs from preying on the weakened and helpless animals.

"They are so hungry that they actually feed on the brush of a fallen tree while workmen are still engaged on the job," one resident said. "Trees felled before quitting time at night are bare of foliage and bark by the time the men return in the morning."

Officers of the fish and wild life division say food for the deer exists but the deer have formed the habit of congregating near the highway where there is little upon which to feed.

Blood Transfusion Service

The blood transfusion service which is part of the many-sided work of the Canadian Red Cross is already responsible for the saving of many lives and for the relief of untold suffering. It is one of the signs of advanced progress in the outlook upon humanitarian service which can be rendered all human beings. Science has presented mankind with many gifts and not the least of these is the transfusion of blood.

The Canadian Red Cross in its peacetime work is bending every effort this year to extend this free national blood transfusion service across the Dominion. No undertaking is more worthy than this to help preserve life and to alleviate pain and suffering and the Red Cross plans to provide every Canadian with this free service and to make it the finest service of the kind in the world.

The Red Cross Society with its many ramifications is the one organization to undertake this service of the greatest magnitude. It is and will be a service of which the people of Canada will be proud and vast numbers will be forever grateful for what is has done and will do for them in time of accident or illness.

Donations to the $3,000,000 drive underway at this time in Canada will make possible the attainment of the high ideal the Society has for this humanitarian service.

Increased Coal Exports

Ten million tons more of coal will be exported in 1948 from the United Kingdom than in 1947, so that a total of fifteen to sixteen million tons will be sent overseas. This increase means that much in addition to six million tons for export and seven million tons for bunkers which Britain has promised under the European Recovery Program, there will be two to three million tons available for countries outside Europe including Canada and the Argentine.

There has been increased production along with lower consumption to bring about the rise in stock levels which has now reached the point of enabling Britain to step up the shipments of coal abroad.

Largest Signalling System

Of interest to railwaymen is the United Kingdom Information News that the new signalling system being installed at York, England, will be able to deal with over 800 different train routes. It will be completed by 1950 and be the largest of its kind in the world.

All trains within a distance of four miles to the south and one mile to the north of this important junction on the London to Edinburgh line will be controlled from a central point.

New features will be power-operated points and color-light signals. So intricate is the equipment that testing after completion will occupy several months. The cost of construction is estimated at $560,000.

Towards Spring

Sunday's light touch of rain drops during the snowfall gives a hint of a not distant day, when rain drops will be more plentiful and snowflakes a memory. At this season they are heralds of a break-up. But even raindrops are not necessary in March to prove that the sun is crescent in its strength. A look at the snowbanks facing south reveals the deep inroads of the power of the sun's rays which make the climate. Just now the recent so white snow looks soiled when once the rays have had the chance to bore through and honeycomb the snowpiles.

During the approach of the end of winter in some years the melted ice takes on a granular form, but this year there has been little of this because the weather was too cold. But now the sun's urge is so strong, it eats deeply into the snow.

The sun is winning the inevitable victory over winter.

A writer in the New York Times who has written much on nature says that "for the most certain readings as to the break in winter's defences, one should go to the south side of the woodlot where the sun's rays make their first investigation. In the grove of mixed evergreens and hardwoods the granular crust is ice hard over deep snow. In the cool damp shadows of pines, hemlocks and spruces, ice whiteness will linger for weeks. But along the south side is a different zone; the wood blocks off the wind; it is warm and relaxing in the sun.

"In the beginning there are small bare spots at the bases of tree trunks. There is a scientific reason why dark objects attract heat rays, but the countryman likes to think it is the first awakening life in the humus, the vanguard of the stiring miracle soon to be enacted. After a long, deep-snow winter there is heart lift in the sight of faded moist leaves and brown pine needles. Here among the gray birches and poplars that fringe the woodlot are the wiry tendrils of trailing arbutus, the crowns of pink lady's-slippers and the roots of painted trilliums. There is no sign of green on the fields; more snows will come and toss temporary white quilts over the countryside. But for a pleasant interlude there is a message along the south edge of the grove. The green of meadow, pasture and field is not too far distant."

Winter's lease is running out. In eleven days the surge of spring will be felt for the sun has just about caught up with the darkness as another equinox is at hand, however March may bluster.

Bluebirds in March

No sign of spring's return could be more thrilling than a glimpse of the first bluebird. It is not hard, then, to think of these birds as symbols of happiness. Radiant blue and chestnut red, and with a song sweet and low, they are altogether attractive, says Royal Ontario Museum News.

They have been seen in March year after year by observers of the Royal Ontario Museum and scores of bird watchers elsewhere. On rural and suburban roadways a careful scrutiny of trees, telephone poles and wires usually brings one or more of them in view.

Not only bluebirds, but horned larks, the vanguard of the robin invasion, song sparrows, purple finches, and other harbingers of spring are not uncommon thrills encountered in March—especially the latter half of the month.

ERP? Rrrrp!

"Not long ago it was announced that the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was launching its own Marshall Plan for British dogs and cats. Purrs of satisfaction and sharp yelps of delight could be heard all the way across the Atlantic. Pets on short rations took heart from the fact that animal-lovers in a land flowing with milk and money had not forgotten their plight," says Christian Science Monitor.

"Across the Pacific comes a story of what one morsel of American aid has already done. A blind Japanese woman, who has made a splendid record in carrying on a school for the blind in Tokyo, has a Seeing Eye dog which is essential to her work. But on semistarvation rations it was impossible for her to feed the dog properly. Just when catastrophe threatened, American help arrived, the weakened dog revived, and the work goes forward.

"How far that little biscuit throws its weight!"

SHORT, SHORT STORY

The birthday of Abraham Lincoln, recently observed in the United States, brought out a short list of important events in the life of the famous man, which in themselves tell a powerful story, says Fort William Times-Journal. Here they are:

1831—Failed in business.
1832—Defeated for Legislature.
1833—Failed in business again.
1835—Sweetheart died.
1836—Nervous breakdown.
1838—Defeated for elector.
1840—Defeated for land office.
1843—Defeated for Congress.
1848—Defeated for Senate.
1855—Defeated for vice-president.
1860—Elected president of United States.

FAITH

Frost is an assassin grim.
  Dead his victims seem to fall—
Plant and vine and bush and tree
  Broken, lifeless, one and all.

Gone from every twig the leaf;
  Gone the strength from stalk and stem.
In a furious frenzy brief
  Frost, the killer, fell on them.

But when come the sun and rain,
  Steadfastly the faith I hold:
That the rose will bloom again.
  And the phlox and marigold.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Did General Sherman turn down the Presidency?

When the Democratic National Convention met at Chicago on August 29, 1864, to nominate a candidate to oppose President Lincoln the name of General William T. Sherman was mentioned as a possibility. General Georgia heard, Sherman, then campaigning in Georgia, heard about it and wrote to General Henry W. Halleck, chief of staff in Washington:

"Some fool seems to have used my name. If forced to choose between the penitentiary and the White House for four years, I would say the penitentiary, thank you."

In 1884 Sherman, who had retired in 1883 as the General of the Army and who was living in St. Louis, was boomed for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. The leading candidates were James G. Blaine, President Chester A. Arthur and the General's brother, John Sherman. On May 25, 1884, General Sherman wrote to Blaine:

"I will not in any event entertain or accept the nomination as candidate for President by the Chicago convention or any other convention . . . I would account myself a fool, a madman, an ass, to embark now, at sixty-four years of age, in a career that may at any moment become tempestuous by the perfidy, the defalcation, the dishonesty or neglect of a hundred thousand subordinates utterly unknown to the President of the United States, not to say the eternal worriment of a vast host of impecunious friends and old military subordinates." Apparently when he wrote this letter he had in mind the unhappy experience of President Grant, who was a victim of his "friends."

But the movement for General Sherman as a compromise candidate persisted until after the meeting of the convention. John B. Henderson of Missouri, chairman of the convention, was strong for his St. Louis neighbor and friend. On June 5 Henderson wired General Sherman:

"Your name is the only one we can agree upon. You will have to put aside your prejudice and accept the Presidency."

General Sherman immediately wired Henderson an emphatic refusal. The original message has been lost and its exact wording is not known. Sherman's son Thomas Sherman, who was at the convention and who saw the telegram, said afterwards that the exact words, as he recollected them, were:

"I will not accept if nominated, and will not serve if elected." The message, however, is generally quoted: "If nominated I will not accept, if elected I will not serve."

Despite his emphatic message, General Sherman received votes in the convention. So did John Sherman. That has probably been the only instance of brothers receiving votes for President in the same national convention.

Blaine was nominated on the first ballot and was defeated by Cleveland. General Sherman might have suffered the same fate.

NEW HOMES HAVE SHOWERS

Heavy Taxation Stops Incentive

Excerpt from address of Robt. P. Jellett at annual meeting of Royal Trust Company.

A great deal is being said at the present time about "austerity." It is being said in this country, as elsewhere, that we must learn to accept restrictions and to "do without." Austerity, in short is generally conceived and presented as a form of self-denial.

Yet however necessary some degree of "doing without" may be, it would still seem that austerity should also find other and more constructive forms. Lord Woolton has very wisely said that austerity "is demoralizing to all except the saints." And it was of the austerity of "doing without" that Lord Woolton was speaking.

The more constructive form of austerity is the readiness to put in more hours of work and to work harder in those hours. The advantage of this kind of austerity—the austerity of greater production—is that it is free of the cramping and negative feeling of the austerity of simply doing without. After all, if we are ever to get out of our inflationary troubles, we shall have to work our way out. We cannot sit our way out. Our ultimate deliverance will not come about by "doing without" so much as by "doing more."

But the question then arises as to how we can best induce people to do more. Here we arrive at the matter of incentives. And it is a very important matter.

Some economists in this country, as in other lands, have recommended that inflation be counteracted by high taxes. Some indeed, even go so far as to suggest that taxes should be increased until inflation is mastered.

Surely this is a fundamentally mistaken approach. For high taxes, more perhaps than anything else, depress incentives; and if production is to be stimulated, the extra effort must receive the extra reward. To expect people to work harder, and to be practically penalized for doing so, is not to deal in the realities of human nature in a free society.

For this reason, it would seem more realistic, and therefore more effective, if taxation upon earnings were lowered, so that the greater impetus might be given to the added effort. Since we are dealing with human nature in a free society, it must be remembered that extra effort is not easy "Overtime" in the widest sense of the word, and in all types of work, is not the line of least resistance but of greater resistance. If high taxation diminishes to negligible proportions the reward for each degree of extra effort, the pleasures of idleness and of recreation and of "taking it easy" will be found to complete very effectively with the will to work. It was the old saying that it was well to scorn delights and live laborious days. But a policy of high taxation lends its encouragement to seeking delights and scorning laborious days.

Saving Discouraged

One of the incentives for earning extra income is not only to have money to spend but to have money to save. But the incentive to save is also being discouraged in several ways.

In the first place, the rates of interest have been so lowered by the government's easy money policy that the possibility of providing a sizeable income from savings (which was quite feasible some years ago) is now beyond the power of most people. It would appear from the action taken on 5th January, 1948, in allowing Dominion Government bonds to fall somewhat in market price, that the Government is pursuing less rigorously its low interest policy. I sincerely hope that this is so and will be continued.

The value of savings, and therefore the incentive to save, is still more seriously lowered by succession duties. The theory advanced to justify succession duties is questionable. It holds that a certain person or persons, as legatees or an estate, are about to come, by a fortuitous event, into possession of the principal or income of assets which they did no create. Consequently, it is argued that it is no great hardship for them if the government claims part of the estate by the imposition of succession duties.

But it is often hard for the family of a man which was dependent upon him for support, and which because of age, health, educational needs or other reasons is dependent upon his estate after his death, to regard themselves as merely inheriting a windfall, of which the government may fittingly claim a large portion. More often than not when a man dies and can no longer support his dependants, his wife and children have to change their way of living and usually have a more or less hard time getting along on such investments and life insurance as may have been left to them. There is reason to believe that this form of taxation is favored by governments, not because it is particularly just, but because it happens to be particularly easy to collect.

Double Taxation

In considering succession duties there are important considerations for further questioning their fairness. For actually they are a form of double taxation. Estates created during the last 30 years are in most cases the result of savings from part of the income left after income taxes have been paid. That is to say, estates are built up out of tax-paid money. In claiming succession duties, the government is not entering a new field of taxation, but is i nfact taxing the same money twice.

Now that the Dominion Government has introduced a bill to rewrite the Income Tax Act, it is opportune to suggest that the effect of heavy taxation upon all extra effort and productiveness should be seriously reconsidered. As for succession duties, the most obvious means of reducing this burden is for the Dominion Government to retire from this field of taxation. The Dominion Government inaugurated its tax on estates only some seven years ago (in 1941), many years after the provinces had enacted succession duty legislation. In the year ending March 31, 1946, the Dominion Government collected twenty-one and a half million dollars in succession duties. Though this is a large sum to be taken from heirs in addition to what has already been paid in income taxes and in provincial succession duties, it is a comparatively small sum in total revenue of over three billion dollars raised by the Dominion Government in the same year. If the Dominion Government were to retire from the field of succession duties, it would not suffer a serious loss of revenue, but the relief that would be granted thereby would give new incentive to the earning citizen and a new security to those dependent upon him.

Encourage Prosperity

What I have said illustrates the need to tax in the most intelligent way, with a view to giving personal effort and thrift and the accompanying productiveness, every reasonable encouragement. It must always be remembered that the wealth of any nation is not something lying about in its possession or in that of its citizens. A nation's wealth is in its production. The accumulated capital of the wealthiest nations in the world is equal only to about four times their annual output.

The only way to increase national wealth or to control inflation is by increasing the industry of the citizens. The only true prosperity is in production, and the best ensouragement of production is the rewards won by the citizens in freedom.

DOCTORS HAD RATHER NOT THINK

In a personal communication from a physician of high professional repute concerning the formation of sugar (dextrose) from protein in normal human metabolism. I find this, incidental to a recommendation of mine which the good doctor evidently questions, although he does not tell me I am wrong:

"I have never used electro-coagulation for tonsils. I have been afraid to. To burn out all tonsillar tissue would run the danger that subsequent sloughing of tissue may involve one of the large deep seated arteries. The resulting hemorrhage would be difficult if not impossible to control. Anyway, that's my idea about it. I don't know of any specialist in otolaryngology who removes tonsils by electro-coagulation."

In the first place, Doctor—and the rest of the profession may listen and stop me if I'm wrong—you would not like it if some physician spoke of your method of removing tonsils (I assume you prefer tonsillectomy) as hacking out all tonsillar tissue would you? I know that thousands of physicians resent it when I speak here of that procedure as an atrocity—but in my opinion it is atrocious and, except in rare cases of malignancy, actinomycosis or other disease apparently limited as yet to the tonsil, there is no sound reason for inflicting the atrocity on child or adult. This is my idea about it, and if there is anything wrong with it let the doctors who think so point out just where it is wrong and I'll publish their side of it as widely as possible. Only for goodness sakes, fellows, don't waste time or space telling what recognized authorities think about it. There are none that know any more than you or I know about it.

In the next place, Doctor, unless you are dealing with cancer or other malignant disease, why try to remove, destroy or "burn" all tonsilar tissue. Healthy people have tonsilar tissue—do you advise everybody to get rid of all tonsilar tissue?

That notion is a crude one handed down by the wholesale operators of 40 years ago. The "specialists" of that era had to cook up some argument to keep the "ordinary" practitioners from getting any of the business.

Much of the damage done by the atrocity is due to the attempt of the perpetrator to "get all tonsilar tissue." I have published here several times the facts about that, taken from reports published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Be polite, fellows, be polite.

In the third place, Doctor, you have a good deal of temerity to sound off like that, even in a personal communication, upon a method of treatment of which you are woefully ignorant. Like so many physicians, both general practitioners and nose and throat specialists, you are unwilling to acknowledge that one of your attainments and ability should so far humble himself as to seek technical instruction in tonsil diathermy (electro-coagulation) by a master of the method, especially if you think the master is just a plain practitioner like yourself. This pettiness has kept a good many practitioners who purport to be "specialists" from learning how to use the modern method.

What is the object of treatment in any case of enlarged, hypertrophied, infected or diseased (Webster sanctions it) tonsils?

Well, the answer to that is too important to give today — I'm afraid space or other limitations may cut it off. So we'll answer it in the talk to be printed day after tomorrow—I hope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Corn Collodion

You gave the recipe for a corn and callus remover but the druggist says it isn't right. As I have it, you said to paint corn or callus once a day for a week or so, with a solution of thirty grains of salicylic acid in 1¼ ounces. (D. W.)

Answer—The druggist is right. The corn and callus softener I suggest is a solution of thirty grains of salicylic acid in one-half of a fluid ounce of flexible collodion. Paint corn or callus with this once daily for a week or so, and the corn or callus will soften so you can wipe it off. It is not a "cure"—the corn or callus will form again if the pressure or friction that causes it continues. Send twenty cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet Care of the Feet.

Epilepsy

Is epilepsy inherited? In this instance the mother has it but none of her children has. Does every generation have it? (J. C.)

Answer—No. It is comparable with neurasthenia, migraine (periodic sick headache), alcoholism, in that respect—more likely to occur in some families than in others. Send to National Association to Control Epilepsy, 22 E. 67th St., New York 21, N. Y., for the instructive pamphlet The Green Light.

VETS' PROBLEMS

Speakers in the Veterans debate included Capt. Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern) Parliamentary assistant to Brig. Gregg; Howard Green (PC-Vancouver South); Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia); Capt George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley); E. B. McKay (CCF-Weyburn); Clare Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South); H. W. Herridge (People's CCF-Kootenay West); Lt.-Col. Arthur Ross (PC-Souris); T. L. Church (PC-Broadview); Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC-Nanaimo); Capt. John Probe (CCF-Regina City); Maj. Fulton; Wing Cmdr. Lawrence Skey (PC-Toronto Trinity); and Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East).

At the House opening Prime Minister Mackenzie King advised that the government would move to meet opposition requests that the resolution seeking approval of the Geneva Trade agreement be split into two parts to permit a separate study on British preferential traiffs.

Finance Minister Abbott said the $50,000,000 which Canada has withdrawn from the $300,000,000 credit obtained from the United States was the first of a number of installments which the Dominion will take at "fairly regular" intervals during the next four or five months.

Claims Unfairness

Before the Progressive Conservative amendments to the Veterans' Committee resolution was ruled out of order, Capt. Tucker said he could see no objection to it if the aim was simply to have the committee study the question of whether or not merchant seamen should be entitled to the same benefits as members of the armed forces.

Mr. Green said any member who voted against the amendment would be doing a great injustice to the seamen. There had been "great unfairness" to these men through the government's failure to grant them benefits.

Several of the opposition members urged that there be a permanent committee of veterans affairs.

Mr. McKay said there were many things a permanent Veterans' Committee could do. It could, for instance revise the whole scale of allowances and pensions, and study the expenditure estimates of the Veterans Department and take that work away from the Commons.

Mr. Gillis said the committee's work would be limited by the amount of money which the treasury board made available. While urging the payment of benefits to merchant seamen, he criticized the government for withholding the benefits from members of the forces who are dishonorably discharged.

Capt. Cruickshank suggested that members not take up too much time on the resolution establishing the committee. He believed it would be better to set up the committee immediately so a start could be made on Nov. 29, 1946.

Churchill Charges Labor Govt. Has Weakened Britain

London, March 9 — (AP) — Winston Churchill charged the Labor government had wasted men and money by reducing the Royal Navy.

"India has gone down one drain and the Admiralty proclaim that the Home Fleet has gone down another," the Conservative leader said yesterday during a debate on navy estimates in the House of Commons.

"Can you wonder that you are checked by Chile, abused by the Argentine and goaded by Guatemala?."

John Dugdale, Admiralty financial secretary, said the navy still is a formidable fighting force "second only in size to that of the United States."

By the end of the year, Dugdale said, ships in fighting trim will include four battleships, 3 fleet carriers, five light fleet carriers, 17 cruisers, 34 submarines, 52 destroyers and 43 frigates.

"The Admiralty never gave us so little fighting value for so much money and so many men," Churchill said. "There has been no policy, no control and no guidance. It has just been drift and mental inertia .. our strength was wasted and consumed when we were strong and safe and our weakness is now shown when we are hard pressed and in danger in many parts of the world."

REFORM REPORT

Other reports tabled at yesterday's brief sitting included the Northland Transportation Commission, Labor, Highways, Drainage, Niagara Parks Commission, Workmen's Compensation Board, University of Toronto Board of Governors and the Ontario Research Department.

Four government bills were given first reading. One introduced by Mines Minister Frost will consolidate all the changes and improvements of the last 10 years in an amendment to the Mining Act.

A bill amending the Real Estate Act provides for commissions being collected on rentals as well as sales of property.

The Public Hospitals and Sanatoria for Consumptive Acts will be amended to permit a municipality to pay $40 instead of $30 for borial of indigent persons.

Pass Without Amendment

Bills amending the Industrial Farms Act, Reform Institutions Act, Hotel Act and Ticket Speculation Act passed committee without amendment although several were suggested by the opposition.

The report of the Provincial Research Commission strongly advocated continuation of the system of research scholarships in the province, instituted last year. The report said $44,275 was spent on scholarships of the $50-000 set aside. It intimated that more money should be spent on agriculture research, noting that expenditure had been $300,000 when the industry produced more than $400,000,000 annually. The report pointed out that the United States spends one per cent of its annual income on agricultural research.

Final reading was given to a bill amending the Companies Act The bill will give the government power to change the act to conform with uniform companies code which is expected to be drawn up in the Dominion this year. The uniform code would eliminate the present need for duplicate filing of audit reports to the various provinces as well as the Dominion.

Profit in Commission

The busiest year in history of Niagara Parks was reported for the year ending Oct. 31, 1947 in the Parks Commission's report. Operating profit for the year was $184,106.

The Ontario Northland Transportation Commission said it expects gross revenues this year to exceed all previous records, although as was the case last year, operating expenses are expected to be higher too.

Accidents and compensation rose to an all-time high in 1947 the Workmen's Compensation Board report showed.

The number of accidents jumped from 138,570 in 1946 to 168,767 in 1947, an increase of 21.7 per cent. Cost of benefits totalled $17,760,743 compared with $16,502,023 the previous year. This was an increase of 7.63 per cent.

Before going into committee yesterday Walter B. Reynolds (PC-Leeds) was chosen chairman of the House Committee.

The report of the University of Toronto Board of Governors emphasized that operating costs are continuing to increase. It listed revenue during 1946-47 as $4,878,102 from general sources, a legislative grant of $1,100,000 and $478,549 from a special grant of $750,000. NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Here is an interesting study of Pope Pius XII, as he celebrated the ninth anniversary of his pontificate at Vatican City, Rome, amid a world threatened once more by strife. The pontiff has thrown all his weight into the scales against Communism in an appeal to Catholics all over the world to combat it.

Finley Vincent Quietly Marks 91st Birthday

Picton, (Special.)— Still hale and hearty and able to do many chores around the farm, W. Finley Vincent yesterday marked his 91st birthday This was the first birthday that he had spent away from the farm on which he was born, and on which his father before him spent all his life, and which was cleared by the pioneer Jonathan Vincent. About a year ago ,he moved from the Hallowell township farm to one near Bloomfield where he resides with his son, Clifford Vincent, who was the fifth generation of the family to occupy the homestead. For 130 years the land had been tilled by the family.

Mr. Vincent is in excellent health and is active daily about the farm. He is out sawing or splitting wood almost every day. He retains the use of all his faculties and reads the newspapers without the aid of glasses.

C.P.R. President, Resigns Post Due To Ill Health

Montreal, March 9 (CP)—The resignation of W. M. Neal, 61-year-old chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was announced yesterday by the company and is effective immediately.

Mr. Neal's resignation, brought about by his continued ill health, came only a year after he took over as head of the C.P.R.

George A. Walker of the legal department and senior vice-president in Montreal becomes chairman and W. A. Mather of Winnipeg, a railroader since his 'teens, becomes president.

Mr. Neal succeeded D. C. Coleman as chairman and president on Feb. 1, 1947. Prior to that he was vice-president for five years.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Neal joined the company there when only 16 years old. His rise was steady and in 1922 he became superintendent of the Algoma district with headquarters at North Bay.

In 1924 he was made assistant to the vice-president at Montreal. Between then and the time of his appointment as vice-president in 1942, he served as general manager and then as vice-president of western lines at Winnipeg.

Mr. Walker, also a native of Toronto, entered the company's legal department there. He was appointed director of the company in 1947 and elected to the executive committee a month later.

Mr. Mather, a graduate in engingeering from McGill University, was born in Oshawa, entering the C.P.R. when he was 19.

He takes over the presidency after serving as vice-president of the prairie region since May, 1942

REFUSED USE OF AUDITORIUM

Toronto, March 9 — (CP) — The National Federation of Labor Youth yesterday was refused use of Bloor Collegiate auditorium for what the group described as a mock trial to determine who is responsible for high prices. C. H. R. Fuller, business administrator for the board of education, said the applicant for the permit to hold the meeting in the school identified herself as a Communist and for that reason the organization was refused use of the auditorium.

Russian Planes Fire Machine Guns At U.S. Airliner

Shanghai, March 9 — (AP) — Two P-39 fighter planes marked with the red star of Russia made five passes at a commercial airliner yesterday, firing their machine-guns but apparently not trying to hit it, airline officials said today.

The transport, one of the planes owned by Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault's commercial airline, was carrying 32 refugees from Mukden, Manchuria. It was crossing the Gulf of Chihli south of Russian-occupied Port Arthur and Airen, the airline reported, but was giving those cities "a wide berth," as all Chennault planes do.

Whiting Willauer of the airline staff reported the incident and said the transport was not within 40 miles of the Port Arthur-Dairen peninsula. He said the pilot, L. B. Buol, took photographs which confirmed the red - star markings on the fighters.

The pictures were turned over to authorities in Tsingtao, North China, where United States Marines are based. Willauer did not say what authorities he meant.

Chennault's airline, which is evacuating 7,000 persons from communist-encircled Mukden, temporarily suspended flights after the incident but later resumed operations over a different route.

Hospitals Forced to Advertise In Other Countries For Nurses

London, March 9 (Reuters) — are attracted to the nursing profession that some hospitals, particularly mental homes, are forced to advertise in France, Belgium and Holland for pupil nurses.

The Middlesex county council has inserted newspaper advertisements in these three countries for pupil nurses on the continent to So few women in Britain today apply for posts at Schenley Mental Hospital which comes under the council's jurisdiction.

A Middlesex county official said: "We are desperate for mental nurses. Schenley hospital alone is designed to accommodate 2,000 patients but the shortage today is so acute that not only beds are closed but entire wings.

"One of the main reasons for this is the poor pay for mental nurses. A staff nurse starts at £5 4 shillings (about $21) a week rising to a maximum salary of £6 5 shillings," he said.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan and his staff faced today with a depressing picture of the nursing profession.

"We need 0,000 women for all sorts of nursing jobs, from staff nurses to matrons, as there are 60,000 beds closed down throughout England and Wales," a health ministry official said.

"Although there are more student nurses than before the war —3,879 in training today—there is a great wastage problem. About 50 per cent of the profession leave either duing their training or afterwards."

The number of trained nurses working in hospitals in England and Wales totals 40,163, including 1,000 midwives. The number of beds in all types of hospitals, voluntary and local county council institutions, in England and Wales totals just over 50,000 for a population of about 40,000,000.

N.Y. RANGER

"There not," Campbell's statement said, "been any charge of 'fixing' or attempting to fix' a hockey game, although that expression has been erroneously employed several times in recent publicity and the evidence completely negatives that suggestion."

Has Right to Punish

Campbell said the hockey league by-laws permitted the president "on such information and reports as he may deem sufficient" or on any act or conduct of an official or player who has been "dishonest, prejudicial to or against the welfare of the game or the league to hand out fines or suspensions."

"A player has violated the rules of hockey by betting or being interested in any pool or wager whether or not be has any connection with the game involved," Campbell said.

The investigation in the case of Gallinger, Campbell said, "will be vigorously pressed," but said he could not estimate how long it would require.

Campbell said "The National Hockey League will not tolerate gambling on hockey games by any of its personnel nor will 'it tolerate their knowingly associating with gamblers or other undesirable characters."

The 29-year-old Taylor, a resident of Oshawa, played one season with a farm club in Pittsburgh and then with the Toronto Maple Leafs until the summer of 1946 when he was traded to Detroit Red Wings. He played for Detroit in 1946 and 1947 and one day before the current season opened was traded to the Boston Bruins.

A month ago he was traded again to the New York Rangers but played only briefly and since has been under treatment by the club physician.

Gallinger, 23, a resident of Port Colborne, Ont., and reportedly a friend of Taylor's, served in the Canadian Air Force and had played with the Boston Bruins since 1942.

Can Sign Amateurs

Campbell said that no special arrangements would be made to permit the Bruins and the Rangers to replace the two suspended players. He said that the clubs however could sign new amateurs or call up players who are on loan.

Campbell said in his formal statement that "the law enforcement authorities of the State of Michigan have been very co-operative in supplying valuable evidence upon which this investigation has been largely based."

He asked Sigler for continued assistance from the state in the investigation of Gallinger's case.

"I like the way you do things," said Sigler. "There is no compromise with crookedness. You can rest assured that all the facilities of Michigan will be available to help you clean up this situation."

Sigler and Campbell went into a private conference to discuss the continuation of the investigation.

Refuses to Elaborate

Refusing to elaborate on the written statement, Campbell said. "To go beyond my statement would harm my inquiry. It might take me months to complete it."

Campbell said that he had discussed the charges with Taylor personally but that Taylor would not admit the bet although he admitted having telephone talks with Tamer.

Campbell came to Lansing after a trip that took him to Chicago, Boston, New York and Montreal.

The original evidence uncovered by Detroit police was turned over to Campbell last week on orders of Governor Sigler.

That evidence, Campbell said, was corroborated by his personal investigation.

The charge of betting by hockey players came to life with the arrest of James (Occo) Tamer, convicted gambler and bank robber who was recently returned to prison as a parole violator.

Campbell said that following his conference with the governor he would return immediately to Montreal. He planned to meet Thursday in New York with the governors of the league for a previously scheduled meeting.

In Boston, Weston Adams, President of the Bruins, said he would withhold comment until officially notified by Campbell of Gallinger's suspension.

Oshawa, March 9 (CP)— Billy Taylor said today he was "surprised" at the news from Lansing that President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League had expelled him on a charge of having associated with gamblers.

The 28-year-old centre of New York Rangers, at his home here said he had known some persons active in gambling but that "cannot be helped" because gamblers frequent sports events and make themselves known to players.

However, "I never have been asked to bet on the outcome of a game."

So far he had received no official word from President Campbell and any future action on the matter would depend on that.

Taylor said earlier that he had asked and received permission from the Rangers to come here to attend to some business.

At Toronto, Conny Smythe, one of the National Hockey League Governors commented that "It is a very regrettable incident as far as I am concerned."

It was with Smythe's Maple Leafs that Billy (The Kid) Taylor first broke into the N.H.L. in the 1939-40 season after a brilliant career with the Oshawa Juniors in the Ontario Hockey Association. Except for a break for active service, Taylor remained with the Leafs until the start of the 1946-47 season when he was traded to Detroit Red Wings.

He had one of his best seasons of his career with the Red Wings, finishing third among league scorers last season with 17 goals and 46 assists. The Red Wings traded him to Boston Bruins at the start of this season and a month ago the Bruins sent him to the New York Rangers for right wing Grant Warwick.

Born in Winnipeg, his parents moved to Oshawa when he was an infant and he grew up in the Motor City where he now is in business.

Best known as a slick playmaker and stickhandler, he was a member of one of the most potent forward lines in years when he centred Lorne Carr and Sweeney Schriner, since retired, before his war service broke up the combination.

Don Gallinger, born at Port Colborne, Ont., near Welland in 1925, played with St. Catharines Juniors before he entered the N. H. L. with Boston Bruins in the 1942-43 season. One of the league's most promising rookies in his first season, like Taylor he had a break in his hockey career for army service.

Ten-Year Term For Manslaughter In Wife's Death

St. Thomas, March 9 (CP) — Joseph Vernon Welch, 24, today, in assize court here was sentenced to ten years in penitentiary on a reduced charge of manslaughter.

Last Friday Welch was found guilty of manslaughter after the original murder charge had been changed. The murder charge arose out of the strychnine poisoning death of Welch's wife Florence last August.

Only representation on Welch's behalf was made by his counsel, George A. McNabb, who said he looked upon the finding of the jury as meaning Welch's crime was only one of momentary negligence, a negligence "through which he had lost the affection and companionship of his wife." He said he hopped the judge would take a similar view.

Mr. Justice W. R. Treleaven did not agree. He said the fact remained that the purpose of Welch's purchase of strychnine was unlawful. It was for the purpose of committing suicide. It was criminal right through."

"I look upon his act," said the judge, "as a matter very different from a normal case of criminal negligence. The jury's verdict, however, has ruled that it was not a case of murder nor a case of suicide. I have given matter of sentence much thought over the weekend and I think that 10 years in the penitetniary will be a punishment that will fit the crime."

Eldorado— The Eldorado and Union W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Fred Chambers. The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, in charge. Mrs. Blackburn read "I Know Something Good About You", and "Helping Children Grow Up". Mrs. Albert Empey gave a reading on "Communistic Pressure Against the Korean Church".

Mrs. Elgin Post was appointed as delegate to the W.M.S. Presbyterial convention to be held at the Tabernacle Church in Belleville in April.

Mrs. C. D. McCann was in charge of the Worship Service and the study book, after which Mrs. Blackburn presented an interesting program of readings and music.

At the close of the meeting proper, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants. Later, a sale of several articles was held, with the proceeds amounting to $7.

AIKENS' W.M.S.

3rd Sidney.—The Aikens' Woman's Missionary Society held the March meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stanley Spafford with nineteen members present.

The President, Mrs. Selburn Westover, was in the chair and the meeting was opened by quiet music by the pianist, Mrs. Lee Grills.

The Worship service was in charge of Mrs. Sam Marshall, convener of the program committee. The theme for this service was "The Bible for All the World" which is the aim of the British and Foreign Bible Society in an effort to make God's Word the common possession of all mankind. Its colporteurs carry the Bible into the most remote areas of every land. Seldom is the seed sown in vain. It is said there is enough money in the hands of the church members to sow every acre of the earth with the seeds of truth.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Fred Moon.

During the business period, Mrs. Cyril McMullen, Mrs. S. Spafford, Mrs. George Denike and Mrs. E. Hubble were appointed delegates to attend the W.M.S. Presbyterial in the Tabernacle Church in April. The president asked the Aikens' ladies to assist in accommodating delegates on the night of the convention as it had been difficult to secure sufficient accommodation in Belleville. Plans were made for the Thank-offering service to be held at the regular meeting on April first.

At this time greetings were extended to Mrs. Harley Hubble in honor of her approaching birthday and in appreciation of her fifty-three years' service in the Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Hubble acknowledged the greetings and in reminiscent mood, reviewed the work of the Aikens' Society, stating she was the only charter member now residing in the community.

The society was organized in 1910 by the late Mrs. Levi Massey. Until that time missionary work had been carried on as a circuit project of which Mrs. Hubble had been a member.

A temperance reading was given by Mrs. Orliff Pearson.

Mrs. Sam Marshall was in charge of the study book and was assisted in presenting the last three chapters by Mrs. Gordon Wilman, Mrs. Chas. Smith and Mrs. Cyril McMullen. These concluding chapters of the study translating and printing the Bible into different languages for Africa and South America. In the early days of missionary work both book depict the problems of translating and printing were done on the mission fields under very difficult conditions. Now the British and Foreign Bible Society in London and the American Bible Society in New York care for the printing. The Bible, in whole, or in part, has been translated into 1,070 languages, and dialects

Prayers were offered for those who "publish the word", for the missionaries who translate and who teach the Bible, and for the colporteurs who distribute the Bible.

The benediction was pronounced by the President, Mrs. Westover.

During the social hour refreshments were served. Honors were again in store for Mrs. Hubble when "Happy Birthday" was sung, and a cake, lighted with candles, which had been made for the occasion was presented by Mrs. Hubble's niece, Mrs. Selburn Westover.

Memories

Just as in days long past, when you were here,
The winter wind is sobbing
'round the eaves,
The trees uplift their arms as if to plead
For the return of crimson Autumn leaves,
The lake is locked in Winter's cold embrace,
The tree-tops sway, scarce seen
'mid whirling white,
And by the fire your arm-chair
is in place,
A vacant chair, as drops the gloom of night.

The velvet sky is sown with silver stars,
Across the night the neighbors'
lamp-lights bloom;
These friendly lights gleaming
now faint and far Piercing the blackness of the gathering gloom.
We never thought the winter
wind too rough,
We never longed to visit tropic
clime,
The joy of hearth and home was quite enough
To satisfy your longing heart and mine.
Strange now that winter days are dark and drear
When once they glowed with light and love and cheer.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Should She Send You a Wedding Present?

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. have received an invitation to a church wedding, but no invitation to the reception. Some of my friends are trying to persuade me that this invitation does not require a present. I say that it does! Who is right about this?

2. I would also like to know how to note a word of regret, because I don't intend to go to this wedding.

D.F.

1. Whether or not you send a wedding present to the bride-to-be really depends on your own wish. If you are devoted to the bride, are a relative or intimate friend of hers or of either family, or if you can afford to send a wedding gift, then doubtless you would like to send a gift. On the other hand, if you know there is to be a reception of some size and your invitation did not include a card of invitation to this, apparently, the bride and her parents regard you as an acquaintance rather than an intimate friend . . . then, as your friends say, there is no reason for you to send a gift.

2. A formal invitation to the church cermony only . . . . the invitation that "requests the honor of your presencet" . . . requires no reply.

Seating Arrangements When There Is An Woman Guest At Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct seating procedure when, at the last minute one of the men invited to a formal dinner telephones that, because of a sudden illness, he is unable to come to the dinner? Unless the hostess can "lasso" a kind, last-minute replacement, this means an extra woman guest. Wouldn't it then be necessary for the hotess to place two women guests next to each other?

Hostess

Yes . . . but the hostess should be one of the women. That is, she must re-arrange her table so that the place of the man on her left is moved along and the extra woman guest is seated at her (the hostess') left.

Processional with Only One Bridesmaid

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in a few weeks, and I was planning to have a maid of honor and two bridesmaids. Recently the mother of one of the bridesmaids died, and so that bridesmaid has withdrawn, leaving me with only one bridesmaid. Now my problem is: How should the one bridesmaid walk in the processional?

A. M.

This would be the order of the processional: first the ushers, two by two; next, the bridesmaid, alone; next, the maid of honor, alone; and last you and your father or whoever is to escort you to the altar.

Engaged Girl's Mother Shouldn't Give Shower for Her

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married the last of May. Would it be proper for me to give a shower for her? She has no special girl friends, but she has been to many showers, and now I'd like to have one for her. I would appreciate your advice.

M. M.

I realize how disappointed you must be that none of your daughter's friends are planning a shower for her, although she herself has given so many shower gifts to them. However, there is still lots of time; so don't give up hope. But for you to give a shower for her is in very poor taste, since a shower really shouldn't be given by a close relative of the bride or the groom . . . looks as obviously - planned - for - gifts as it actually is. And, in most cases — as it would in your case — it emphasises the fact that the bride-to-be hasn't any girl friends sufficiently interested in hostessing a shower.

U. K. STEEL OUTPUT ZOOMS

London —(CP)— United Kingdom steel production increased in January to a record 1,215,750 tons. The previous best was 1,193,000 tons in October, 1947. If the present rate is maintained, Britain's steel target of 14,000,000 tons for 1948 will be well exceeded.

Gray Gown

By ALICE ALDEN

GRAY CONTINUES to shed its beauty over the resort and Spring fashion scene. Foxbrownie does a beautiful evening dress of oyster gray silk chiffon over matching taffeta. The long-sleeved, sleek bodice is embroidered with iridescent sequins. The gracefully full skirt is softly pleated. This type of dinner dress is just as right for New York as for Nassau.

Customs Women Like Their Job

Emerson, Manitoba — (CP) — Four Winnipeg women, working as customs inspectors at the United States—Canada border town of Emerson, believe they have one of the most congenial jobs on record. They say the majority of people crossing the border do not try to smuggle articles across to the other side.

"We've had no unpleasant experiences," says Mrs. Hazel Pringle, one of the four women. "I have never had to search anyone, though the law says we may."

Travellers are told of the regulations before they cross over, so they know before they come back, she explained. "Most of them are patriotic and co-operative."

And as for the Canadians bringing back American liquor, Mrs. Pringle says most Canadians believe Canadian liquor is better.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Alcolism Can't be Cured With A Beating

It is always interesting to hear from readers who disagree with me, more or less violently.

One such letter, from a male correspondent, takes me to task severly for my viewpoint on alcoholism. Most of his letter is concerned with this subject, although he takes time out now and then to tell me that I lack "a sense of good moral understanding" and that I certainly do take a loose view of marriage and divorce."

Some times perhaps, this correspondent will amplify these latter opinions so that I may have something concrete on which to base a defense. But since he is primarily concerned with his feeling that I "go all out for alcoholism as a disease." I will confine myself at the moment to what he says on this subject.

Here it is:

"About twenty years ago, it was a fad not to discipline children lest we detract from their self-expression. The result is that we have an age of delinquency which has become a major problem of the twentieth century. Grandad's shingle in the woodshed was much more effective as a crime preventive than the self-expression of a generation of spoiled brats. Alcoholism may be a disease. Such a statement, however, does not detract from the cure I saw demonstrated for this "disease" when a boy. Fortunately, in this home the wife was more muscular than her alcoholic-diseased husband. He had a few attacks of the "disease" at the beginning of their marriage. These attacks were invariably followed by a sound beating from the muscular wife. The cure for the "disease" was thoroughly effective.

"What we need for all of these indulgences against right in our shockingly sinful age is a moral and spiritual conviction about sin and a willpower which becomes people. We get nowwhere patting people on their backs and telling them that they are not so bad, when we know that they are downright rotten."

I think the difficulty here is that my correspondent fails to understand the fact—and perhaps in my writing on this subject I have myself failed in making it clear—that one must discriminate between the hard drinker who can stop if he wants to, and the true alcoholic. For there is a definite difference between them. And when I have discussed the problem of alcoholism, I have referred to the latter type—not the former.

It is quite obvious to anyone who knows anything at all about this problem that the man who stopped his drinking because his wife beat him up was not a true alcoholic. He didn't suffer from the disease of alcoholism. If he did, no amount of beating up would have had any effect whatever

There is a difference, also, between "patting people on their backs and telling them that they are not so bad when they are downright rotten," and explaining to people that they are victims of an insidious and demoralizing disease, but that the chances are they can be cured if they are willing to take advantage of available help

It is just as silly to believe that you can cure alcoholism by either physical or mental abuse as it would be to believe you can cure a person of diabetes by beating the life out of him

I agree with my correspondent that all of us human beings in this distracted age could do with a little jacking up on moral principles But he, like many other people, is simply ignorant of the facts when he makes a moral issue instead of a medical one out of alcoholism. He doesn't know it, and would undoubtedly refuse to believe it, but an attitude such as his toward this dreadful social problem is one of the major obstacles in dealing with it,

Fashion Flashes

HARDLY a Spring coat is without the sloping shoulder line. It certainly gives a different look and makes the average coat really old-fashioned.' A modified sheath wraparound in blue woollen has its sloping shoulder accented by a deep shoulder yoke that is embroidered here and there in gold thread.

BIGGEST SEASON in many a long year for lace. The lace blouse is becoming a big favorite, as is the late afternoon lace frock. The lace evening frock gets better all the time. Fine black Chantilly-type lace makes a handsome ankle-length evening frock, very wide of skirt, with an applique of the lace forming a festoon on the skirt front. Strapless bodice.

DELIGHTFUL for gals afternoon wear is a cocktail - hour dress of pale pink crepe, with fitted bodice, long slim sleeves and a full, pleated, ankle-swirling skirt.

WE HEAR TELL that both mole and civet cat, with its beautiful black and white markings, are due for a revival next Winter. Whether the furs will catch on remains to be seen, although shops report that coats lined with these furs found ready acceptance in smart shops during the Winter.

PRETTY AS A GARDEN of flowers is a ballroom filled with pretty young women. White is a favorite color for the important debutante evening frock. White taffeta is used for a dress with a boned, strapless bodice. The slim silhouette is broken by a wide polonaise drape and huge bustle bow of filmy white tulle.

ALL TO THE GOOD is the idea of matching and mixing clothes, a practice that has extended to beach and resort things. A pretty beach suit of navy and white polka-dotted cotton, with a deep bra top and bloomers, can be had with matching skirt, bodice top and jacket.

IT'S A BIG HIT for terry cloth resort clothes. Spanking white terry towelling makes a handsome shortie coat, round of collar and yoked in back with much back flare.

HERE AGAIN is the silk town coat—urbane, smart. Black taffeta is used for a handsome wraparound model, very slim, with a cape lined in bright green that dips below the waist in back. Green faces the big black taffeta bow scarf tied to the side of the chin.

FINE FABRICS mark some of the elegantly quiet blouses so liked by the fashion-wise woman. Handkerchief linen in various pastels or white is used for a nice suit blouse. The wide triangular yoke is very finely tucked below a small Peter Pan collar which has scalloped corners.

True reports on the work of the Red Cross by leading Canadian writers

by Jack Scott

A pretty clerk in the Vancouver offices of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service was making a routine check of volunteer blood donors in British Columbia. Name, age, type of blood . . . it was dull work. The drama behind that roll-call of life-givers was an old one to the Red Cross worker.

What? Babies Giving Blood?

But, suddenly, her eyebrows shot up. Half-way down the list, were the names of twelve donors . . . none of them over 6 months old.

She hurried to the supervisor. No, there'd been no mistake. "You see", the supervisor explained, smiling, "we don't expect these particular donors to show up until around 1970."

The Red Cross worker's discovery unfolds one of the most heart-warming stories in the story-crammed annals of the Red Cross Blood Service. It concerns twelve babies born late in 1947, and with small hope of survival. They were weak, trembling, jaundice-yellow—tragic victims of a malady that once meant death or, at least, the life of a helpless invalid.

This mysterious ailment is caused by a rare combination of blood types in the parents. It involves the so-called 'RH' factor. The bloodstreams of the infants contain 'antibodies', which destroy the red cells. Often the result is uraemia, jaundice, or death.

It took a modern miracle, made possible by the Red Cross Transfusion Service, to save the lives of these newborn babies. The cure is known as a 'replacement transfusion'—a delicate arduous operation, yet holding a remarkable record of success.

Old Blood For New

In these operations the blood is literally drained from the bodies of the infants, to be replaced by normal blood of Red Cross donors. 'Old blood for new', was the descriptive phrase used by one doctor.

And the twelve names? They were those of twelve now-healthy babies who owe their recovery to a miracle of science, the Red Cross, and the anonymous strangers whose blood gave them life. In gratitude, each of the parents had volunteered to donate a pint of blood—and had pledged the infants as donors 'somewhere around 1970'.

Already in operation in some Provinces—your Red Cross is speeding the extension of Blood Transfusion Services throughout Canada.

But money, as well as blood, is needed: Remember, every phase of Red Cross work is solely dependent on voluntary donations for its support. Will you, by a generous contribution, help the Red Cross in its constant war against pain, illness and death.

Red Cross Services include: Blood Transfusion, Outpost Hospitals, Aid to Sick and Disabled Veterans, Treatment for Crippled Children, Disaster Relief, Nutrition Services, Home Nursing Courses, Swimming and Water Safety, etc.

The work of mercy never ends . . . Give generously to the CANADIAN RED CROSS

Trenton Club Defeats Flyers 8-2 In Third-Game Thriller To Narrow Gap in "A" Finals

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Fourteen hundred yelling fans parked themselves on the first two inches of their seats in Memorial Arena last night and howled themselves hoarse as a rejuvenated Trenton Hockey Club squad roared back into the Intermediate "A" group finals picture with a sparkling 8-2 victory over Trenton Flyers. The teams go back at each other again on Wednesday night in the fourth game of this thriller-diller series, and if the town squad again gets the nod, the fifth and final game is scheduled for Friday evening. Flyers now lead the series 2-1.

The game was another action-packed hockey drama, with both teams travelling at top-speed throughout the three periods. For two periods it was a goalkeepers duel, with both Robertson for the Flyers and Bridgman for Trenton turning in sensational performances.

The Trenton team turned on the power in the third session and their desperate ganging attacks and line forays on the Flyers nets started to click. They surged to the attack with a two-period 3-1 lead, and fired home five goals, three of them coming within three minutes of each other, with but a single return from the Flyers.

Defence Solid

Last night it appeared that the town team had gotten rid of the long layoff kink in their legs. Their defence and checking, both ways, was the best performance they have turned in so far, while they were far more effective in enemy territory than they were in the two previous gams.

Flyers, on the other hand, also flew at top speed all night, but their passing plays were not clicking with the precision-like manner that marked their two previous performances. Then, too, there was Bridgman in the Trenton nets. And he, like Robertson, kicked out plenty of pucks. In fact, Bill Green, our statistician, reported that for the second time shots on goal were even, with both goalies having forty-one discs fired at them.

The first period went scoreless for eighteen minutes with play surging from end to end in the same razzle-dazzle style of hockey that has featured the series thus far. Then Mac "Hat Trick" Watson, came into his own and fired home the opening goal of the game, and the first of three that the right-winger scored during the pastime.

Midway through the second period, Watson notched his second goal in a brilliant rush after taking a pass from Bob Johnson and thirty seconds later he fashioned his hat tick on a neat three-man foray with the Johnson brothers in assisting roles.

Flyers Take Bit

Stung by the sudden setback, Flyers took the offensive and finally clicked after a series of ganging attacks when Nicky Sargent fired the puck from twenty feet out that struck a Trenton player and was deflected into the net Cowick and Brackenbuty drew assists on the play.

Bob Johnson rammed home the fourth Trenton goal a minute after play resumed in the third period, and Beale clinched the pastime eight minutes later when he scored with Johnson and Watson getting assists.

Penalties started a parade to the sin bin as tempers began to fray and both squads were short-handed at times. Sherman got the Flyers second and last goal from Brackenbury's pass, and then the Trenton team took matters in their own hands.

Organized Attacks

They surged up the ice in a series of organized attacks, and C. Johnson flung home the disc at the fourteen-minute mark. Bert Bastedo scored another seconds later and Vic Burtt fired home the third successive goal in three minutes before the shouting had died down. And that's how it ended.

Watson paced the winners attack with his three goals and an assist. B. Johnson got one goal and two assists with C. Johnson accounting for one and one. Vic Burtt scored one goal and assisted in another.

Bert Bastedo with brother Doug also turned in fine efforts with the former scoring once and getting credit for a helper. Bridgman was the actual hero of the piece with his fine performance in the nets.

Robertson, Middleton, Brackenbury, Ault and Miller stood out for Flyers with Sherman spoiling an otherwise good effort with three trips to the hoosegow.

Thirteen Penalties

Referee Maurice Walsh, Newmarket, handled the game and dished out thirteen penalties, none of them of a serious nature, but sufficient to convince both teams that he was the "boss."

"Mid" Middleton, backbone of the Flyer defence, and a consistently good hockey player, had double worries last night. "Mid" was an expectant papa, and expected to hear any minute from the hospital where the little 'Mid' was due to arrive at any minute. That long flash which whirled out of the arena a few minutes after the game ended was the lanky defenceman hospital bound with a session in the "Agony Room" awaiting him.

The Teams

Flyers — Goal, Robertson; defence, Cowick, Middleton; centre Ault; wings, Dennie, Miller; subs, Sargent, Edwards, Brackenbury, Omeara, Provost, Prot, Sherman.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Here's how the Midget "B" finalists will line up in tonight' first game of the championship series.

Coach Barriage may switch his lines from the above lineups and start his first string line of Brown, Strahan and Gilmour. According to reports from outside sources, the Waterloo team is big, powerful and packs plenty of beef. Their most effective players as evidenced in other games are Hass Bolduc and Operele, with the goalie Piatatowski (You sneeze that one) rated as one of the best youthful net guardians in the western part of the province. He apparently doesn't stand for any high jinks around his doorstep for he drew a penalty during a game with the Collingwood kids.

Unofficial sources have it that the second game of the series will be played in Waterloo next Saturday night, following the Senior OHA playoff game between the Hamilton tigers and the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen. This means, if true that our laddies will not take to the ice until nearly eleven o'clock. However they'll get the opportunity of seeing Ontario's two best senior teams in action.

The above information should not be taken as final. It was given to us in good faith and in all probability is true. It came from an official of the Waterloo Arena, and he should know whereof he speaks. However much can happen between now and Saturday, and nothing will be considered definite until it comes from Secretary Jack Christie of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

And if you see any strange-appearing gentlemen clad in opera cloaks and black felt hats pulled down over their eyes, picking their way through the crowd, don't be alarmed. They won't be modern versions of the Shadow, merely professional scouts doing their nightly chores. Championship affairs, especially during the last year os so, have attracted the talent-seeking gentry of the big time like a new chorine does the stage-door johnnies.

And here's a tip to the bottle-throwing fraternity. When you are through with the glass container, no matter whether it held gin, coke, javel water, jungle-juice, malt 'n hops, hair tonic, anti-freeze, tonsilar nitro-glycerine, essence of canned heat, kerosene cleaning fluid, or whatever your favorite hockey game beverage is, park it where it won't tempt you. when you disagree with the officials' decision. If you heave it icewards you're liable to cause severe injury to your target, if you can hit it, and even if you miss, you can be expelled from the rink with the not-so-loving arms of the law about you, and taken to the local hoosegow.

And it doesn't end there. An example occurred in Western Ontario over the weekend. A bottle-throwing nitwit was identified by fellow spectators after he had hurled the jug at the official. He was yanked to police court where he parted with $150. So don't say you weren't warned.

Trenton Financiers basketball team under the sponsorship of Art Black et al, dusted off the Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers in the Intermediate "B" group finals last week, winning the points-to-count series by the narrow margin of nine. The Financiers, 'tis reported, now meet a Kingston team, which to a quite recent date was classified as an Intermediate "A" squad. Now, through some misunderstandable workings of the Ontario Basketball Association, which after ordering the Dominion finals to be played in Maple Leaf Gargens, with not a Toronto team concerned, is liable to do anything, the Kingston team has been "demoted" to a "B" rating.

The two teams clash this week in the first round of the O.B.A. Intermediate "B" playdowns, dates as yet to be announced.

There were high jinks at the second game of the Flyers-Financier clash which the Flyers won, but lost the round on points. Seems as though some of the air laddies got out of hand and heartily disagreed with referee Burrill Morris' decisions. In fact one went so far as to let go a right hook at the official puss, and the owner of said puss not only returned the compliment but banished the Flyers' "Jersey Joe" from the scene of activities. 'Twas a fast and furious court battle, with the Financiers showing enough form to eke out the finals win.

An inspired Trenton Hockey Club, with their backs to the elimination wall, roared back into the Intermediate "A" playoff picture in Memorial Arena last night, when they set the fast-travelling RCAF Flyers, their conquerors of the first two games of the best-of-five series, back on their hockey haunches and sent them home on the short end of an 8-2 score.

It was another razzle-dazzle display, especially in the first two periods, when both goalkeepers. Robertson of Flyers and Bridgman, of Trenton, stood out like a New Look at a bachelors' convention. The teams flew at each other in nip-and-tuck display in these sessions, and it was not until halfway through the third period that the goal-hungry Trenton squad let their hockey hair-do's down and rammed home five goals, three of them coming in three minutes of play.

The town squad deserved their win on the night's play. They checked the Flyer lines dizzy at times; played fine defensive work in front of Bridgman who was a star in his own right, and in their third period offensive took advantage of every opportunity that came their way. It was their night to howl.

Flyers' plays, on the other hand, did not click with the same precision as they did in the first two games, and a highly improved Trenton defence saw to it that they did not get too dangerous. But they were in on top of Bridgman several times for what appeared to be sure goals, but the "Masked Marvel" kicked out everything they had to offer but two, and one of these was a deflected shot off the body of a Trenton player.

Fourteen hundred fans saw the third thriller of the series, and Wednesday night, when the teams meet for the fourth game of the series, another large crowd will likely take in the festivities. The Trenton team is "hot" after their victory last night, and it wouldn't surprise this corner to see the series forced into a fifth and deciding game. If this is the case the issue will be settled here on Friday night.

Tomorrow night, a nifty junior brawl should attract hockey fandom when the starry Gananoque and Lindsay juniors meet in their sudden-death playoff game in Memorial Arena. Rated as two of the smartest junior clubs in Eastern Ontario, the teams have a victory each. and tomorrow night tells the tale.

Kingston Vics meet the Toronto Byers, conquerors of Peterborough, in the next Junior "B" round. First game is in Whitby on Wednesday, with the second slated for Kingston Saturday night.

Spitfires, Tigers Defeat Barrie, Flying Dutchmen

(By The Canadian Press)

It's one down and three to go for Windsor Spitfires and Hamilton Tigers in their hunt for the junior and senior Ontario Hockey Association championships. Last night Windsor took a 4-3 decision from Barrie Flyers in the first tilt of their best of seven junior finals and Hamilton defeated Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen by the same score to win their first game of the best of seven senior finals.

The two senior finalists were decided in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association as McIntyre Macmen defeated North Bay Black Hawks 8-6 for their third straight win in the best of five semi-finals after dropping the first two. The Macmen now meet Sault Greyhounds for the senior title.

Windsor was lucky in taking that victory over the Flyers as the Barrie crew outplayed them for two periods and outshot them over the route 44-32. Two goals in the middle session by speedy Gord Haidy, one a fluke and the other on a breakaway, gave Windsor the winning edge.

Barrie opened the scoring midway through the 1st period when Whit Mousseau slapped in a rebound. Five minutes later Jim Hay tied the count for Windsor to end that period at 1-1. Jerry Reid put the Flyers one up again early in the second but Haidy matched that again as his shot slanted off the goalie's stick in an attempt to clear. Haidy hit for his second a bit later on a breakaway to put Windsor in the lead for the first time.

Larry Wilson scored the only third period goal as Windsor had an edge over the Flyers for the first time in the game.

Hamilton Tigers had to come from behind a one-goal deficit in the first period when Kitchener led 2-1. The Tigers sniped the lone two middle-period goals and added another in the third.

Held Distinct Edge

Hamilton hadn't been on ice for a week before the game because of lack of ice and this affected them in the initial session as they were outskated by the Dutchmen. From that period on the Tigers took over and had a distinct edge in play, although three of their markers were scored while the Dutchmen were shorthanded. Clare Shillington, playing with his neck heavily bandaged because of the cut he received in their last game with Marlboros, was Hamilton's top scorer with two, Johnny Conick and Tommy Smelle getting the others. Art Hurst and Dick Behling were the two Kitchener marksmen.

The fighting North Bay Hawks staged a third-period rally that saw them hold the play and come within one goal of tying the score with McIntyre Macmen. But Jack Hepworth sewed up the tilt for Macmen on a breakaway in the final minute. Hepworth was one of the players the North Bay team protested about earlier in the day, claiming he and Vic Haneberry were not on the original list given them by the McIntyre officials. President Max Silverman disallowed the protest just before game time.

Dusty Baker was top man for the winners with three goals while Bill Walker, Bummer Doran, Vic Haneberry, Jack Ladds and Jack Hepworth each had one. Mulvihill counted twice for North Bay and Doug McDonald, Pete Palangio, Gene Labonne and Hal Halpin each scored one.

Wednesday sees the second game of both the junior and senior final series being played with Barrie still at Windsor and Hamilton invading Kitchener-Waterloo.

Buddy O'Connor Still Leading Scoring Race

Montreal, March 9. (CP)—With the National hockey league's four playoff spots all but settled, the hottest race in years for the scoring title has taken over the spotlight.

Lightweight Buddy O'Connor, New York Rangers playmaker de luxe, still heads the list with 55 points but gunning for the lead two points back is Norman (Bud) Poile of Chicago, and three points back of the pace-setter are Elmer Lach of Montreal and Chicago's Gaye Stewart.

Official statistics released today show O'Connor with 23 goals and 32 assists, while Poile has 24 and 29. Lach and Stewart have identical records of 26 counters and 26 assists.

Not out of the battle for the scoring crown and the $1,000 bonus that goes with it are the Bentley brothers, Max of Leafs and Doug of Black Hawks, who boast 50 points apiece.

O'Connor, Poile and Stewart each have six games left to play in the run to the wire, while Lach has only five contests. But, in any case, picking the eventual winner looks like a toss-up.

Sharpshooting Ted Lindsay of Detroit has a wide edge of the circuit's goal-getters with 31 counters to his credit, while O'Connor and Doug Bentley share the assists leadership with 32 apiece.

Young Harry Lumley of the Wings appears a solid bet to walk off with the Vezina trophy which goes to the netminder who has played the most games for the team having the fewest goals scores against it. In the Vezina race, Lumley holds a six-goal edge on veteran Turk Broda, of Toronto, and also has the best goals- against average. Having allowed 126 goals in 54 games for a 2.33 per game average.

Bouncing Bill Barilko of Leafs still tops the penalty list with 141 minutes spent in the cooler. Rushing Kenny Reardon of Canadiens is next with 125 minutes.

Kell Considered Best Third Sacker In American Loop

Lakeland, Fla., March 9 (AP)—In one breath experts tell you that the biggest 1948 headache of Detroit Tigers will be their subpar infield. In the next, they agree that in George Kell, the Bengals possess the best third baseman in the Major leagues.

Tiger Chief Steve O'Neill goes even further on the capabilities of his 25-year-old hot corner guardian.

"Kell is the best third baseman I have ever seen," stout Steve insisted, "and mind you, I have seen some real good ones in my 38 years in baseball.

O'Neill thinks Kell has a good chance to cop the American League batting championship this season. The 170-pound youngster, now in his fifth big league season, batted .320 last year, fourth highest in the circuit. He swatted .322 in 1946, his first year with the Tigers.

Winnipeg Flyers Having Difficult Time in Playoffs

Winnipeg, March 9. (CP)—The hockey Houdinis are finding the going a bit rough in the Manitoba and Thunder Bay Senior and Junior playoff series. The games aren't turning out quite as expected.

Particularly is this true in the Thunder Bay Senior finals, where Fort Frances Canadians, almost unheard of until last week, have taken a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series with Fort William Legion.

Winnipeg Flyers are having almost as difficult a time as Fort William in the Manitoba Senior hockey finals. Highly favored to sweep the set in four straight games, the best they've been able to do so far is break even in their two games with Winnipeg plowmen. Third game in the best-of-seven series is scheduled for tonight.

Port Arthur West End Bruins, considered the team most likely to capture the Western Junior Crown held by Moose Jaw Canucks for the last two years, appear to be living up to expectations. They lead Fort William Columbus Club 2-0 in their best-of-seven Thunder Bay Junior finals.

But it took them an overtime session to win one game and the other was awarded to them last night, with the score tide 5-5, when Fort William skated off the ice in protest against officiating. Third game in the series ended in an overtime 7-7 draw.

The Winnipeg Monarchs-Winnipeg Canadiens Manitoba Junior final promises to be the most closely-contested of them all. Each club has won one game in the best-of-seven series, with both games extended to overtime.

Dave Castilloux Meets Youngster In Simeon Waithe

Toronto, March 9. (CP)—Big Boxing guns from Montreal will be lined up in fearsome array in Maple Leaf Gardens tomorrow night as three of that city's boxing sons figure in the upper half of the six-bout card.

Ol' Davy Castilloux, at 31 still a formidable fighter will meet 20-year-old Simeon Waithe, in the eight-round lightweight feature.

This is Waithe's first main bout, and he hopes a crack at Arthur King, Dominion lightweight champion, ultimately will result. Meanwhile, Casty figures Waithe an easy match, a springboard in his cameback bid.

But the Frenchman's slight regard for Waithe loses punch when he admits to similar feelings towards King, Webb and Greco. All have beaten the veteran Castilloux.

The 126-round semi-final promises to move at a fast pace, with two of the fastest little ringmen known locally entered for the eight-rounder. Vic Eisen, reported in line for a non-title bout with World Bantam Champ Manuel Ortiz, will come up against Jean Richard of Montreal.

Hamilton Tigers Little Younger, Still Powerful

By WALLY IZSAK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, March 9 — (CP) — That old refrain of "You're an old Smoothie" once again may be applied to the veteran Hamilton Tigers whose smooth passing and team play may take the senior 'A' Ontario Hockey Association championship crown for the 4th straight season. This year's edition of the jungle tribe is a little younger, much cleaner and still powerful.

The much - used term "old men of the mountain" still can be applied to them but with a little less accuracy as a few new younger faces have turned up in that familiar and once-grubby yellow-and-black upholstery, and a few older players have either retired or transferred allegiance.

The Tigers, who gained nation-wide fame two years ago by not washing their underwear for luck, are seeking the O. H. A. title. Having disposed of the youthful Toronto Marlboros they now are locked in a duel with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen for the league crown.

At the close of the 1946-47 campaign after being ousted from the Allan Cup hunt by Montreal Royals, most of the old-timers on the squad announced their retirement. But when training was called, they came running as veterans like Art Childs, Clare Shillington, Swat Mason, Bert Peer, Frankie Liscombe, Bill Dinning and the Conick Brothers — Ab and Johnny — couldn't resist the puck lure.

Other veterans like Dougie Runions and Dillon Brady transferred to other clubs or retired.

The best newcomers were spindly-legged pivot man Tommy Tindal and Tom Smelle from Hamilton Pats, and Carl Smelle who applied for his amateur standing after a fling in the United States League.

The Tigers, veterans as they were, proved their worth as a smooth, picture-passing crew by ending the regular season in first place, nine points ahead of Marlboros.

In individual efforts the Tigers, who average more than 30 years in age, again came close to the top. Clare Shillington finished one point behind Johnny McCormack of the Marlies in the scoring race with 76 points, and goalie Art Childs finished in a tie with Howie Harvey, also of the Marlies, with an 86-goals-against average.

Montreal, March 9 — (CP) — Remember when people used to argue about Maurice Richard's place among hockey's immortals? . . . Some said he was the greatest forward ever to flash down the ice . . . Others said: "Sure he's good — but there's a war on; he's strictly a war star" . . . Part of the latter was true, of course . . . When the stars came back, Richard wasn't as spectacular — but he was good enough to make everybody agree he was at least among the top half dozen right wings.

Greatest

This year the Rocket hasn't been doing too well . . . but Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien says "Maurice . . . is still the greatest hockey player in the world for my money." . . . He adds: "He's been having a stinko season, he's been out of action for seven games and hobbled around for at least seven more on an uncertain knee. Yet where does he now stand in league scoring? Tied for 10th spot, my hearties, with 20 goals and 20 assists." . . .

Attack!

While on the subject of statistics, guess what team has scored most goals in the National Hockey League to date . . . give up? Well, it's Chicago Black Hawks — still in last place . . . as of Monday, the Hawks had 179 goals — six more than Detroit at the head of the parade . . . Toronto, tied for first with Detroit, has only 163 . . . but the gimmick is that Chicago also leads the teams in goals scored against — with 199 . . . New York has been next porous, letting in 174 while Detroit, naturally, has permited least opposition markers — 127.

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll recently interviewed Don Gallinger of Boston Bruins . . . Dink says he wanted to see the 22-year-old centre about his stand on the alleged hockey scandal . . . "I don't know anything about it," Gallinger said, according to Dink . . . the reported adds that Gallinger was so surprised that he thought Dink was interviewing him about whether he would take a major baseball league contract.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To plan a squeeze in bridge, look for five distinct elements. First, the squeezer must own and lead a 13er as the squeeze card. Second, the squeeze card must force the squeezee to unguard one of two suits he is protecting. Third, the squeezee must have an entry into partner's hand.

Study these three in the remainder of this deal:

NORTH
♠ K
♥ None
♦ None
♣ A J

WEST
♥ None
♦ None
♣ K Q

EAST
♦ None

♥ None

Ten tricks were taken. Three cards are left in each hand. South leads the 13er diamond as a squeeze card. West must unguard one of the two suits he is protecting. North has club ace for an entry.

What is the fourth of the five elements needed for a squeeze? Two promotion cards. A promotion card means a seeming loser that may be developed into a winner; a lower than opponent card that may be promoted.

How can a seeming loser be promoted into a winner? By forcing the squeezee out of a higher card in that suit. The seeming loser is then promoted to become the highest remaining card in that suit.

Why are two promotion cards needed? Because the squeezee is trying to protect two suits. There must be a promotion card in each suit that the squeezee is trying to protect.

When the squeezee unguards one of his controlling suits, notice what happens. The promotion card in that suit develops into a winner, So, the other promotion card can then be thrown away.

North has two prominent cards. They are spade king and jack of clubs. Whichever suit west unguards on the squeeze card, north throws away the promotion card from the other suit.

If west throws the spade ace, north drops club jack and spade king is a winner. If west fires club queen, north chucks spade king and club jack is a winner.

You can sit back and gloat with cards you promote.

The Movie Column

Hollywood, March 9 (AP)—This is a report on how Hollywood's economy drive is coming along.

I can't show you how much the studios are saving, not having access to and not being an expert in that kind of figures. But, by touring the studios every day, I can see what changes, if any, are being made.

Directors are the keynote to much money-saving, because if they keep their companies moving fast, economies are made. Many of them are in demand now, not because they are good, but because they are fast. This can also backfire.

A director of a recent tropical film endeared himself to the bosses by shooting an "A" picture in 24 days. But the picture was so bad that a couple of weeks of costly retakes were needed. That ain't saving money, brother.

Straws in the Wind

R.K.O. is shooting "The Boy With Green Hair" for $800,000, a record for a color picture. M.G.M. is romping along with "The Three Musketeers," figuring speed will keep the cost down to $3,500,000. At least one major studio is reported to be dropping all players except its stars. Nearly all free-lance actors are working for less.

There are more unemployed writers than ever before Several films are being made with a week or so of rehearsals before shooting begins.

But even the most amateur observer can see evidence of non-economy. One studio seems to have no qualms about a two-hour lunch period. Another just started a big-budget musical with half a script.

Some think that the solution to the industry's problems is a return to the swiftly-shot films of the B category. True, the B hive may help to pay a studio's overhead. But that's about all. As John Huston says, the only solution to Hollywood's ills is good pictures.

Maureen O'Hara was complaining to me on "The Long Denial" set, that in some quarters she is reputed to be aloof and cold.

"This is a legend that has stuck to me, the same way legends have grown up around Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford and others," she declared. "It probably grew out of some of the stand-offish roles I played in my earlier days. But was I cold in 'The Spanish Main?' Was I cold in 'The Foxes of Harrow??' "

I assured her she wasn't.

"Maybe it's because I don't make a big show of everything like some people here," she continued. "There was a time when I used to worry and fuss about everything, but I learned to take things calmly.

"Cold, hugh? Ask my hairdresser if I'm cold." I did. "Ask Will Price," Maureen suggested. She was referring to her director-husband, an ex-marine, and I think I'll skip the suggestion.

Herb McKenley Clips 1.68 Seconds Off Canadian Mark

Montreal, March 9 — (CP) — Tall, tan and terrific Herb McKenley sent an estimated 7,500 Montreal track enthusiasts home last night convinced that the Jamaican will be a mighty tough man to beat in the coming summer Olympic Games in London.

McKenley, who holds the world 440-mark, clipped 1:68 seconds off the Canadian indoor record for 500 yards to win the special invitation event for that distance in the Canadian Legion's second annual track meet.

In the mile, one of the feature attractions, Bill Mack of Michigan State University was in front all the way, finishing a few yards ahead of Warren Druetzler, also of Michigan State.

Mack's time was 4:16.6, bettering by two seconds the Legion mile mark set by Gill Dodds of Boston at last year's meet.

In the 500-yard invitation McKenley, running true to form, was never pressed and finished with a 15-yard lead over runner-up Ed Patmieri of Tufts College, Mass. Bob McFarlane, husky University of Western Ontario football and track star, threatened the West Indian at the start but weakened and finished third.

McKenley's time was 58.4 seconds, against the previous mark of 1:08.

Wins Open Dash

Don Pettie, a Calgary boy attending Drake University at Des Moines, Iowa, won the 50-yard open dash, turning back Ted Haggis of London, Ont.

Pettie then placed third behind Jim O'Brien of Toronto and Haggis in the 40-yard invitation dash. O'Brien set a mark of 4.5 seconds, bettering the Canadian indoor open and native record of 4.6.

George Lynch, 16-year-old Toronto boy, Ontario interscholastic distance runner, was given an ovation equalling that handed McKenley, when he took the one-mile run for boys under 19.

Gordon Haight, outstanding Canadian junior athlete from Hamilton won the 500-yard event for boys under 19, with Art Cowie of Toronto second.

Haight, anchor man on the Ontario Interscholastic Intermediate team, was presented with the 1947 Governor - General's Trophy by Viscount Alexander by being selected Canada's outstanding junior athlete.

AT THE CAPITOL — Hugh Beaumont, in the role of a detective, is threatened by John Ireland, as a gangster, while Sheila Ryan tries to help, in this dramatic scene from the sensational film, "Railroaded." Training Camp Notes

New York, March 9 (AP)—Chicago Cubs, who finished next to last in the National League home run derbs in 1947, are leading the major baseball leagues in this specialty in the Grapefruit League.

In three games, all against Chicago White Sox, the Cubs have slapped six homers.

Washington Senators have a rookie second base candidate who was a manger last year.

He's Calvin Collidge Ermer, who was named boss of the Class B. Charlotte club—a Washington farm team—in the middle of the 1947 season. Ermer, who was 21 at the time, batted .297, and led the Tri-State League in doubles with 27.

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, Philadelphia Phillies' veteran knuckle ball expert, will pitch the opening game of the National League season against Boston Braves at Philadelphia April 20, manager Ben Chapman announced. Leonard won 17 and lost 12 last year.

Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletic manager, is eyeing rookie shortstop William Demars for a berth with the A's when they leave Florida April 2.

With first sacker George McQuinn in the fold, only pitcher Charley Wensloff remains on New York Yankee's holdout list. McQuinn came to terms yesterday.

Eddie Stanky, newly purchased Boston Braves' second baseman who has been confined to a hospital in the Dominican Republic, will be discharged today and join his new club Saturday. The fiery second sacker suffered a virus infection.

Legion Defeats Petes to Win Group Title

Peterborough Legion won the Senior "B" group title in Omemee last night defeating the Peterborough Hockey Club 4-2 in a close-fought battle.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Legionnaires. They dropped the first one to the Petes and went on to win the group championship in the next four games to cop the best-of-seven series.

8 STOLEN CARS RECOVERED

Toronto, March 9 — (CP)—Police said that eight cars "stolen on order" by a syndicate of thieves operating in Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, have been recovered in recent weeks.

They said the stolen car ring was smashed last week with the arrest of a man in Ottawa driving a taxi stolen in Montreal. Cars were repainted and given new licence and serial numbers before being resold.

Pt. Anne Hoop Team Enters Y House League

A change in the schedule has taken place in basketball at the Y.M.C.A. This is because of a new entry, Point Anne, who have indicated they wish to participate in the league. Although some of the teams have already played two or three games it is not felt that too much confusion will be caused by this late entry, and as it is the policy of the Y.M.C.A. to have as many participants as possible in the various phases of the physical program a new schedule has been drawn up and is to take effect tonight when only one game will be played. At 7.30, Point Anne will play the bullets for their initial start.

Games in the future may have to be changed to Friday evenings because of the exams coming up. However for the time being the schedule calls for Tuesdays nights. The schedule for the rest of the month appears below.

March 9, 7.30 p.m.— Point Anne vs Bullets.
March 16 8.00 p.m. — Pappas' Billiards vs Judeans 9.00 p.m.—Hi-Y vs Point Anne.
March 23 8.00 p.m. — Hi-Y vs Bullets
9.00 p.m. — Knickerbockers vs Point Anne
March 30 8.00 p.m.—Point Anne vs Judeans.
9.00 p.m. —Pappas' Billiards vs Knickbockers.

'Raintree County' Author Dies

Bloomington Ind., March 9 (AP)—Funeral services will be held this afternoon for Ross Lockridge, Jr. 33, author of the prize-winning novel "Raintree County," who died Saturday night of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage at his home here.

Dr. Robert E. Lyons, Jr., county coroner, reported in his finding that Lockbridge committed suicide.

The young author left no explanation of his action, which came as he was on the crest of success. "Raintree County," his first novel, was a book-of-the month club selection. It has been high on best-seller lists since publication. It won Metro Goldwyn-Mayer's $125,000 novel award and is to be made into motion picture.

Lockridge's father, Ross Lockridge Sr., said his son's seven years of work on the novel had resulted in a "complete breakdown."

"He put his whole heart into his book," the elder Lockridge said. "He was utterly exhausted."

Lockridge's body was found in his automobile in the lighted garage by his widow, Vernice. The coroner said Mrs. Lockridge told him her husband had left the house earlier in the evening, saying he was going to mail some letters but would return to listen to a broadcast of a basketball game.

A statement from Hougton Mifflin Company, publishers of "Raintree County," said recent correspondence from the young author was cheerful in tone and gave no hint of the tragedy.

A spokesman for the publishers said Lockridge had started a 2nd novel about 6 months ago and had seemed to be "earmarked on a long brilliant literary career."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking the ferst half of his 2nd cigar, and ma said, When anyone mentions the high cost of living. William, what does it make you think of?

Astromomy, pop said, and ma said, It makes me think of the dreem house we were on the verge of bilding for ourselves about 10 years ago when bilding contractors and plasterers and plummers were ordnerry peeple on the same plane with everybody elts. Oh dear, there's no use crying over spilt milk after the horse has left the stable forever, but when I think of those round corners and those big closits and those washable walls that were so near and yet so far, it makes me sigh.

You sigh very gracefilly, my dear, pop said, and ma said, Of course I dont say it was your fawlt that we didn't take the plunge when we could afford it but still, you're supposed to be the financial genius of the famlly, William.

I see what you mean, it's not my fawlt and yet there's nobody but me to blame, pop said. Thank you, my dear, that makes my conscience feel as cleer as a cristal bell, and yet, purely out of the nobility of my nature, I'll make a gesture of appeasement. How would you like me to fix that leeky faucet in the kitchin for you? he said.

That depends on whether you meen rite now or whether you're still alluding to the distant future, ma said, and pop said, I meen —rite now.

William, if that gassly kitchin faucet stops leeking, it will seem like heaven, ma said. I'll reely think this is my dreem house, she said, and pop said, That settles it, I'll get rite at it. I wont even wait to finish reeding my paper, he said.

Which he didn't, just waiting till he finished his cigar.

Pleas for Better Understanding Canada's Problems

Detroit, March 9 (CP) — In a plea for better understanding by United States citizens of Canada's temporary shortage of U. S. dollars, Douglas B. Greig, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada yesterday said the Dominion's problem is to get customers of Canada and the United States "back on their feet." He spoke at the Economic Club's weekly luncheon meeting.

There is no "austerity" in Canada, he said. There has been a "drying up" of established pipelines of trade.

"The problem is not poverty. The Canadian economy basically is sound. Canada is economically 'in the pink.' But, so far as United States dollars is concerned, we are 'in the red.'

"I would urge that all of you choose this particular time to visit Canada on business or pleasure..."

"The cold hard fact is that we in Canada need a great many more United States dollars to do business with you that we can get from you.

"Canada, despite her comparatively small population, is the best customer the United States has. Our 12,000,000 people bought about $2,000,000,000 worth of goods from the United States and if travel and other services are included, this amounts to about $200 per capita.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

And while she was thinking that it was too late to go home to dinner and that this was the night Bonnie and Michael played bridge, she hear footsteps, heavy, hurrying footsteps, coming down behind her.

Always Jeff Conway, one of the young executives, remembered the first time he saw Lyle Marsh. She was wearing a black dress and small black hat and high-heeled black suede pumps. Hearing him, she had stopped on the landing between the first and second floors, and had looked around, a little startled. And in the faint light Jeff Conway saw that her hair was auburn. He knew he had never seen her before.

Lyle saw him, saw a tall, loose-jointed young man wearing dark clothes and a brown felt hat over dark hair. His thin face still had its summer tan. Turning away, she continued down the last flight went out into the steady rain and walked hurriedly down the dark street.

Jeff, who could never resist a new and pretty face, followed the slim dark silhouette two blocks to a cafeteria and arranged to get next to her with a tray.

Then he smiled and spoke. "I'm Jeff Conway. I don't believe I've met you. And," smiling that likeable smile what was to be so well known ot her, "I know of scores of other places where we could have dinner together. Soft lights and soft music and wine.."

Lyle liked his deep voice and the warmth and gayety of his dark eyes.

"I'm Lyle Marsh."

"Then what about..Then some other night?Tomorrow night?"

She did not have itme to answer because the line was moving and she had to move with it. And then the waitress, carrying her tray, was depositing the various dishes on the table, Jeff Conway paused and asked, "If we can't do any better than this tonight, Miss Marsh, then may I...."

Lyle said, smiling, "Yes, of course. I'm delighted."

Jeff thought, "So am I—delighted with you."

He was persistent and curious and amusing. Before long she was answering his questions about her, where she lived, what kind of work she did in the store, and to what goal she was working. About him she learned that he was from Boston where his family still lived, that he had his own apartment, and that there were few night places in New York with which he was not acquainted.

"You haven't answered about tomorrow night," he said. And remembered that he had called Troy Fallon about tomorrow night Oh, well he could tell her he was working....

Lyle hesitated. Then, "All right" knowing that Bonnie would disapprove, would probably ask, "But is it a good idea to be seen with men from the store?" It probably wasn't but then it would be fun and she was lonely..Excuses? She wanted to go because it was Jeff Conway who had asked her, Jeff who had a gift for laughter, and warm black eyes.

And Jeff, lighting a cigarette after Lyle had refused one, was seeing them together tomorrow night and for many nights thereafter. He saw them looking at each other across many restaurant tables and dancing on many polished floors. He saw them together at Stephen's house in Connecticut two weekends hence. He knew he was going to be in love with her and he hoped that this love would not pass as quickly as his other loves, his many other loves....

They came out in the rain together and Jeff hailed a taxi.

In the lobby of the apartment house at the elevator Lyle turned to him and held out her hand. He took it and held it closely and looked at her soberly.

"If I hadn't decided to clear up that work tonight, this wouldn't have....But it would have sooner or later, Lyle. I'm sure of that. Say you're glad.

"I'm glad." And meant it, had never meant anything more!

"Say, I'm glad Jeff." She said softly. "Tomorrow night I'll call for you at seven-thirty. I hope Bonnie and Michael are in. I'd like to meet them. They sound great. Good night."

"Good night, Jeff." Her voice was soft again, not her own voice at all. Yet it was and there was something in it that had never been in it before....

Turning the key, she opened the door expecting to see Bonnie and Michael at the bridge table with Paul and Jane Harvey. But the living room was dim and Bonnie was curled up on the green divan with a book.

"No bridge tonight?" Lyle asked.

"No. Michael had to work. You, too, I suppose. Had dinner?"

Lyle nodded and pulled off her hat. "I had dinner with one of the executives of the store, one of the young and not very important executives."

Bonnie laughed. "So soon?"

Lyle made a wry face. "But it was at a cafeteria and I paid for it. I insisted on paying." She sat apposite Bonnie and took a deep breath and told her how she had come to meet Jeff Conway.

"His black eyes are so gay, Bonnie! I know I talked too much about myself but he made me. He seemed to want to know. He isn't married."

"And you're glad he isn't married? I mean—very glad?"

Lyle looked at her directly. She had never kept anything from Bonnie. With most people, you held back a part of yourself but you could tell Bonnie anything and always her response was the one you needed.

"Yes, I am. But it's too soon and too sudden to...."

"To dream too much," Bonnie supplied, smiling.

Hours later Lyle lay awake, remembering Jeff's swift smile. She had never been in love and wondered often whether it was because she had never had the time with so much to learn about drawing or because she had never met a man who could be important to her. She thought, "Jeff Conway could be." And suddenly she was afraid, more afraid than she had ever been inh er life. How arrogant and independent you were when no one man mattered! Free, you were complete unto yourself. But when one man was important and beloved, you were divided and helpless before the fear of being hurt and the fear of having the gift of yourself, so long held aloof, lightly taken or rejected. She thought, "Yes, it is too soon and too sudden to dream too much."

The next day passed quickly. When Suzanne Gibson smiled at her on the elevator, Lyle's heart was warm with gratitude. Suzanne thought, "I wonder if Stephan has seen her yet."

Michael was home that night. Lyle stood on the threshold of the room and laughed at small Bonnie and big Michael on their knees on the floor with little Mike between them. Theirs was such a completely happy marriage and theirs had been sudden. Three weeks after they met in Baltimore, they had eloped to Elkton and Bonnie had forever put aside all thought of a career. And had not regretted it. Lyle thought, "If anything should happen to either Michael or Mike, Bonnie couldn't live. She lives for them."

Michael, big, brown-haired, blue-eyed Michael, grinned at her.

"Bonnie tells me you're mixing business with pleasure tonight. Watch your step. That's the quickest way to lose your job."

"Don't be tiresome, darling," Bonnie said, picking up Mike. "Lyle deserves some fun. She's never had any. Pick up the newspapers and Mike's toys and put on a coat. Because Jeff Conway is coming here for Lyle." Mike began to yell. Bonnie laughed. "He doesn't care who's coming. He wants his supper."

Lyle went to her room and took a blue dress and blue turban from the closest. Then a quick, cold shower, her hair brushed until it shone, her mouth vivid. She could hear Michael and Bonnie laughing in the living-room, laughing no doubt over something their son had done or something he had tried to say.

After she had dressed, she did not join them. She needed time alone before Jeff came. And again she was afraid at the new confusion in her heart. "But I mustn't be afraid," she thought, standing by the window looking down at the chaotic traffic below. "Bonnie wasn't afraid. But this is so important to me, the way tonight begins—and especially the way it ends. Because I'm going to be in love with Jeff. Love isn't all fun and all play. People in love go through a great deal together and you wonder if one or both will be big enough to see it through. You wonder.... Falling in love is taking a step in the dark."

The bell rang and she went out. Bonnie's brown eyes said, "You look nice," as Lyle crossed the room and opened the door. And saw Jeff with a white box in his hand—flowers for her, of course. Seeing him, seeing that his eyes were as black and as warm and as gay as they had been last night, she was too happy and excited to be afraid any more. Falling in love wasn't taking a step in the dark! Falling in love was touching the stars....

Lyle introduced Jeff to Michael and Bonnie and pinned his gardenias to the shoulder of her blue dress while Jeff and Michael chatted. Bonnie thought, "Already they're mad about each other. He's talking to Michael but he can't keep his eyes away from Lyle. She's radiant tonight. Oh, I hope it's happy for her."

On the elevator they looked at each other and smiled. Lyle thought, "Was it just last night that I met him, less than twenty-four hours ago? You live years from the time of not being in love to being in love though it may be only minutes."

A shining new gray coupe waited at the curb.

Lyle asked, "New? It's beautiful." Everything was beautiful tonight....

"Delivered today," Jeff said. Opening the door, he helped her in. "I hope you're comfortable because—because I think you and it are going to be very good friends."

It did not matter where he was taking her. It did not matter if he didn't take her any place. It was enough to sit beside him, riding down an avenue of lights brighter than they had ever been before.

He took her to a place where the lights were dim and the music soft and sweet. And after the waiter had gone away with their order, Jeff asked, "Shall we dance?" because he wanted to hold her in his arms. Holding her close, not knowing the name of perfume on her hair but knowing he would never forget that particular scent, he said, "I'm very crazy about you, Lyle. Haven't been able to think of anything else all day."

She couldn't say anything. It was too soon to say, "I love you, Jeff," but she would say it before very long and give him her heart, eagerly and passionately..

They were far too engrossed in each other to see Suzanne Gibson and Stephen Tennant come in and sit at a nearby table.

Suzanne took a cigarette from the silver case Stephen extended, then looked about her and saw them. She looked incredulous at first. Lyle Marsh and Jeff Conway? She couldn't be mistaken.. but when—how..

"Jeff over there and.."

Just then Lyle turned her head. And Stephen thought she was the loveliest girl he had ever seen.

"Who's the girl?" he asked almost sharply.

Suzanne smiled. "That's Lyle Marsh, our new artist. The one I was telling you about yesterday." She laughed. "With Jeff, of course. Wouldn't you know. it? But I don't know if I like it."

He did not answer at once for looking so intently at the bright blue turban over the shining auburn curls and then at Jeff's face, lighted and happy. But it wasn't the first time he had seen Jeff look at a girl as if she were the only girl in the world. He remembered names—June Armor, the little college girl; Betty Healy, the beautiful hat-check girl; and of late Troy Fallon, rich and popular....

Thoughtfully he said, "You said something about purity in her face, Suzanne."

She nodded. "Yes, But let's talk about Jeff, Stephen. He's handsome and charming. I admit that. He even has a way of getting around me. Jeff turns on his charm and you melt and forgive him and spoil him. But you know and I know that he drinks too much, neglects his work, hasn't much ambition, and that his love affairs never last very long. You've kept him at his job. You've covered up his mistakes and lied for him. I like Lyle Marsh. I don't want her to get mixed up with Jeff. Besides, she has a future."

He chuckled. "What do you expect me to do about it?"

"You might try taking her away from Jeff and falling in love with her yourself."

He laughed at her seriousness. Then, "But have you considered that she might be just the person to bring Jeff around? Good influence, you know." He gave her the menu. "Here, order your dinner."

"Don't you think she's beautiful?"

"Yes. And sweet. But what are you going to eat?"

She laughed. "Indifferent man—about everything except business and good food. I'll bet Jeff is wondering whether or not to invite her up to your weekend party. He may decide to keep her all to himself."

Stephen said, "He's pretty sure of his women. He's the one who tires first. But if he does ask her and Troy comes with Ray Hardy, there'll be fireworks and it won't be the Fourth of July."

"I don't care so long as the sparks don't get on Lyle. But they're bound to, aren't they? In fact, she'll probably get most of them, poor child."

Jeff was saying, "If you'll turn your head a little, you'll see your boss. And my boss, Stephen Tennant. But there's no romance there. Just good friends. He's the vice-president, by the way."

She glanced swiftly, seeing Suzanne's sleek dark head beneath a small black hat inclined toward a tall blond man. She could not distinguish him very well but she did see that his strong features were as if carved and that the hand holding a cigarette was a vital, brown hand.

She looked back at Jeff. "The vice-president? But he's so young...."

"But smart."

A small frown drew her brows together. "But should we...."

He understood. "Be seen together." Not in the store. But after working hours. Should he ask her to Stephen's house party? All evening he had been debating, wanting to yet dreading and fearing that Troy would be there. At last he sail, "I hope you haven't any plans for the last weekend of the month. You can't have any because I'm making them for you now. Steve, Stephen Tennant, is having a weekend party at his Connecticut place and I want you to go with me. Suzanne will be there." Let Troy come She'd have to know sooner or later. He'd try to see her in the meantime.....he smiled. "Please say you will. It'll be fun and you'll like the people. Steve has only likable people around him."

"It sounds wonderful." Her voice rang. A weekend with Jeff in Connecticut....Would Bonnie disapprove? But Suzanne Gibson would be there....

Jeff saw delight in her eyes. "Then you will? Swell! Let's dance some more."

When they passed Suzanne and Stephen, Lyle smiled and Jeff said, "Hello." This time Lyle saw Stephen Tennant clearly and thought, "He has humor, understanding, and experience," and forgot about him instantly because Jeff was saying close to her hair, "I love you, Lyle. Love you. Why must I wait to say it when I know?"

Later, outside the door of the apartment, he took her close and kissed her and said, "Tomorrow night. Same time. Good night, sweet."

There were tears in her eyes when she closed the door of her room and stood against it, trembling.

Bonnie was preparing an egg for Mike when Lyle went into the kitchen in the morning.

Knowing she was curious, Lyle said, "Suzanne Gibson and Stephen Tennant were at the same place where Jeff and I went last night. Stephen Tennant is the vice-president. And I'm going to his country place with Jeff the last weekend this month."

Bonnie's eyes were round. "Aren't you something? We liked Jeff, darling. And he's—he's terribly in love with you." She laughed. "What else can I say? I didn't know when I began to save dimes that they'd buy your wedding present."

Jeff came that night and every night thereafter. He arranged to have his lunch hour the same time she had hers and their meeting place was a secluded corner in a certain hotel lobby not far from the store. Sometimes they remembered to eat and sometimes they didn't and on the afternoons when they didn't Lyle worked light-headed. She knew where he parked his car and usually he was waiting for her, standing beside it, smoking impatiently.

He had become her world. Later she wondered how she had managed to turn out creditable work with the memory of the past night sharp and sweet and the anticipation of the night to come when they would have dinner in some small quiet place and dance a little and ride for hours out beyond the bright lights and snarling traffic.

Bonnie had said one morning, "Don't look too far ahead, Lyle. Enjoy these days because they'll never come again, the first days of being in love." And again, laughing, "I never see you any more, darling. When you do come in, you look so occupied I haven't the heart to intrude on your thoughts. And you eat almost nothing!"

Michael kidded her a good bit these days, saying to little Mike when he held out his fat arms for Lyle to take him, "She's jilted you, old man. She's kissing somebody else now."

Carefully Lyle weighed the words she wrote to her mother about Jeff. But wise Mrs. Marsh wrote back, "He sounds charming, this Jeff. But then your Aunt Leila has always insisted that after all the years and money spent on your art education, you'd get married and never draw again. I don't want to be pessimistic, my dear, but I must remind you of your bargain with your Uncle John."

Her bargain with Uncle John from whom she had borrowed the money to attend art school....It was a debt that had to be paid. Frugal Uncle John with whom she had lived in Baltimore had said, "I'm not a rich man, Lyle, and I'm getting old. I can't give you this money because I'll need it. I haven't many more working years. But you're young and they said you're talented. When you're working, you can pay me back so much a week."

And so every week out of her pay a substantial portion went to her mother in Florida and to yet....

It was five-thirty. Lyle put down her pencil and reached for her bag and gloves. Looking in at Suzanne's office, she smiled at her, thinking, "She knows I'm going to meet Jeff." In the dressing-room she pulled the blue turban he liked over her hair and hurried to the elevator.

Henri Rochon, Tennis Player, Seeded Fifth

By The Canadian Press

Henri Rochon of Montreal yesterday was seeded fifth among non-American stars in preparations for the United States Indoor tennis championships which start Thursday at New York. Elaine Fields, also of Montreal, was seeded second among non-Americans in the women's singles.

Rochon, a Davis Cup player and Ontario and Quebec singles champion, will be among 64 men trying to succeed Jack Kramer as champion. Heading the foreign list is Marcel Bernard, left-handed Frenchman who is the top-ranking player in his country.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission yesterday deferred action on its threat to suspend the managerial licence of Mike Spinelli, New York, in connection with the ring death of Sam Baroudi, Akron, O., Feb. 21. The Commission met a few hours after ranking lightweight fighter Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati was cleared in court of an involuntary manslaughter charge stemming from his fatal bout with Baroudi.

The coroner's jury recommended that Spinelli and Baroudi's trainer, Al Warner, be barred for life from professional boxing.

With only five games to plcy, Carl Liscombe of Providence Reds appears a cinch to take individual scoring honors in the American Hockey League. According to statistics released yesterday. Liscombe tallied 104 points in 44 goals and 60 assists. Cliff Simpson of Indianapolis is second with 94 points and also has five games to play.

Liscombe is the first player in the league's history to top 100 points in a season.

Toronto Bell AC jumped into a 9-2 lead over Hamilton last night in the first game of the O. M. H. A. Midget group home and home playoffs at Toronto. Winner of the total-goal series meet Barrie or Oshawa in the semi-finals to decide who plays Stratford or Kitchener in the finals.

The rigid duck hunting regulations of 1947 may be relaxed this year, Director Albert M. Day of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, said at St. Louis yesterday. Initial reports from a federal waterfowl census made in January indicate that a three-year decline in the duck population has been halted, he said.

George Agar of Houston, with 90 points continued to top the United States Hockey League scoring leaders last week for the 14th consecutive week. Twelve notches below him was Ray Powell of Kansas City, with Gino Rozzini's 77 points for St. Paul giving him third position.

Joe Louis went to London to box exhibitions but he is just as popular as a golfer, a sport he is currently spurning because it slows his punching. The world heavyweight champion is declining three to four invitations daily to tour the links, including bids from pros.

St. Catharines Lions, defending Ontario Juvenile A O.M.H.A. champions, defeated Toronto Beaches-Lions 5-0 in the first game of a total-goal home-and-home-group playoffs at Toronto last night. Harmon, who hadn't been knocked down, was escorted by the referee to his corner where he collapsed.

Police Arrest Unfrocked Roman Catholic Priest

Rome, March 9 (AP)—Italian police announced the arrest today of Eduardo Prettner Cippico, 42, an unfrocked Roman Catholic priest.

The police said last Friday they were investigating the disappearance of $450,000 worth of jewels inconnection with his flight from house arrest in the vatican the previous day.

Today's announcement said mobile squads found Prettner, former keeper of the archives for the vatican secretariat of state, in the home of two women in a Rome suburb. It said "important documents" also were seized. The women were identified as the wife and daughter of a former general of the Fascist militia.

The Holy See unfrocked the priest after his flight in order that Italian police might arrest him without violating the lateran treaty. The vatican announcement said he had confessed many "swindles and falsehoods."

A warrant for his arrest was sworn out Saturday on complaint of counsel for the wealthy and prominent Cippico family of trieste, to which he is related through his mother. The warrant charged him with dishposing improperly of jewels confided to his care during the German occupation.

Tampa, Fla., March 9 (AP)—Johnny Neun, Cincinnati Reds' pilot, thinks that Pittsburgh will be an improved ball club this year...and in the next breath he adds: "I may be the only one who thinks so"...Some other members of the Reds official family believe Dixie Walker won't be as effective in Pittsburgh as he was in Ebbets Field, where the fans were all on his side..Word from Clearwater is that Jim Tabor is hollering for his unconditional release from the Phillies so he can join a semi-pro club..And on the first bounce from Hollywood comes the word that Jimmy Dykes has been told he'll have to produce in the Pacific Coast League this season or take himself and his big cigar elsewhere.

Indirect Approach

One thing the Reds miss since the departure of Bill McKechnie is Bill's polished way of insulting umpires, something Johnny Neun hasn't yet been able to match.. A few years ago, for instance four umpires turned up for one game. All went well until there was a decision at third which Bill didn't like...McKechnie merely wandered down to the coaching box, studiously ignored the arbiter, and remarked to the opposing third-baseman.."The tipoff of you guys is that you have to have wour umpires to get a decision."

Old Country Letter:

Britain's Art Galleries Now Appealing to "Mob"

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Britain's art galleries, dignified, quiet and almost empty a few years ago, now are appealing to the "mob." The ordinary man and his wife are beginning to recognize great paintings.

Galleries in many parts of the country report a box office boom with attendances much higher than in pre-war years. Figures take a sharp rise when there is a "featured" exhibition of words by such notables as Van Gogh, Picasso and others.

An example of the upward trend was the daily block - long queue outside London's Tate Gallery early this year when Van Gogh paintings were on view. More than 100,000 persons trooped into the gallery during the two-week showing and other galleries in other parts of the country reported Van Gogh a "big drawing card."

Other Centres

At Birmingham, 104,000 persons crowded the gallery to see the work of a man who could paint sunlight. In Glasgow, art gallery attendance as a whole is reported up 70 per cent over pre-war figures.

The works of Picasso and Matisse drew almost 75,000 persons at the city gallery in Manchester in a two-week showing. Another 25,000 went to see the Cezanne water colors.

Women Interested

The National Gallery in London reports a monthly attendance of more than double that for any pre-war month. Officials say that the crowds are a complete cross-section of the community and include a "high proportion" of women.

Art authorities are agreed that there is a genuine interest in paintings and pictures and that interest has risen steadily since the early 30s when taste for the visual arts was encouraged thru art education schools.

One authority says that the public has been reaching more than ever for the fine things in art since the first air raids of the Second World War reduced life "to its fundamental realities." People want to see color, compared with the drabness of everyday life in the country.

Agood report from Inspector Norman Davies showed satisfactory work is being done by both teachers and pupils at the Stirling High School.

Chairman Hatton reported on the steps taken to purchase a new saw for use in the shop and referred the matter to the Board for discussion as to the type of saw to muy. On motion of Messrs. Tompkins and Patterson the purchase of a Delta 10-inch saw was authorized. Mr. J. B. Belshaw chairman of the property committee reported on a number of needed repairs at the schools, also his success in procuring the services of Mr. Arthur Morrison as caretaker during the absence of Mr. Irish who sustained a fractured leg in a fall on an icy walk while proceeding from the high to the public schools in the course of his duties.

Try to Secure Damages

In the ensuing discussion chairman Hatton was authorized to lay claim for damages with the insurance company, carrying the risk on the Board of Education employees owing to Mr. Irish's accident.

The matter of an increase in the salaries paid supply teachers was discussed and on motion of Mr. Tompkins and Dr. E. A. Carleton the rate of pay was set at $8.00 per day for public school and $10.00 per day for high school supply teachers.

Accounts Paid

Chairman R. A. Patterson of the finance committee presented his following accounts for payment.

Public School: J. B. Belshaw $1.00; Stapley's Grocery .20; J. S. Whitehead 3.44; R. Hermiston 6.22; James Text 13.10.

High School: Kilgour's $55.10; J. C. McGee 22.35; J. S. Whitehead 6.5; J. L. Good exp. etc. 9.84; Dom Stores 4.30; Lamb's Electric 47.50; Hermeston's 1.35; Singer Sewing Machine 138.10; Central Scientific Co. 14.72.

Letters of thanks were tabled from Eva Ann Bastedo on behalf of Grade IX pupils thanking the Board for the new sewing machine recently purchased for use in the Home Economics Department and from the teachers of the public and high schools thanking the Board for the increase of salaries.

A recommendation by Inspector Davies that the Board install a program clock in the high school was discussed and on motion of Messrs. Fox and Black the secretary was instructed to write International Business Machines concerning purchase of same.

xFollowing a discussion of several minor items, the Board adjourned.

11 Killed, 89 Injured When Arab Bomb Shatters Building

Explosive Placed in Car Flying American Flag

By JAMES M. LONG

Jerusalem, March 11 (AP) —An explosion severely damaged the Jewish Agency building today soon after an automobile flying the United States flag was parked in its heavily guarded courtyard.

The Jewish Agency, the official organization for Palestine Jewry, said 11 persons were killed and 89 injured. Up to 500 persons were in the building and 50 or 60 were in the right wing, which was the worst shattered.

Canadian Woman Injured

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch listed among the injured a Canadian woman, Mrs. Esther Adler, wife of John Adler of Liverpool, business manager of the English language Zionist newspaper Palestine Post.

(Edwin Samuel, son of Viscount Samuel and director of the Palestine Broadcasting Service also was listed among the injured along with Isaac Ben Svi, president of the Jewish National Council and Gershon Hirsch, the agency's official press spokesman.)

Hagana, the Jewish militia, took charge. Its preliminary inquiry indicated the explosive had been under the automobile's floor. The government said the Jews were barring all police from the scene.

A Hagana informant said wreckage of the automobile indicated it was that of United States Consul General Robert B. Macatee, which was stolen yesterday.

Chairman of Fund Killed

Leib Jaffe, chairman of Keren Hayessod, the Jewish National Colonization Fund, was reported to have been one of those killed. He was a widely-known Zionist leader of Russian birth.

Three minor officials of the agency was reported injured slightly.

A spokesman for the Jewish Agency told a press conference that the driver of the car "was said by guards to be well known to them as one of the consulate drivers."

Only the driver was known to have been in the car. A second man had been reported previously to have accompanied him.

Jews in the building at the time said the automobile with the American flag entered the courtyard through the guarded gate with two men inside. The men parked the car, walked out past the guard and drove away in a waiting taxicab, the witnesses said. The building caught fire after the blast.

Used Stolen Car

Witnesses speculated that the car may have been one of the automobiles stolen in the last two weeks from the United States Consulate.

The right wing, said persons on the scene, was an utter ruin. It still was burning an hour after the blast. All the rest of the structure was badly damaged. Windows were shattered walls cracked and the roof blown off.

The building, finished in the late 1920s, housed all archives of the Agency and the most important records of Zionism. First reports indicated many of these escaped destruction.

The explosion sounded almost as heavy as the disastrous Ben Yehuda Street blast on Feb. 22,

MASARYK WILL BE GIVEN A STATE FUNERAL

Communist Premier Gottwald Will Deliver Oration at the Services

By A. I. GOLDBERG

Prague, March 11 —(AP)— Czechoslovakia's Communist government obtained a unanimous vote of confidence in parliament today as it prepared a state funeral for Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk.

Thus, in two weeks and two days after the seizure of power, Communist Premier Klement Gottwald has tied up parliamentary approval for the program for which he had battled since last summer.

Ahead of the deputies is the adoption of legislation to legalize activities of the action committees which Gottwald set up as the Czech crisis developed. The committees took control of the government for him and quickly began to guide every phase of public and private life.

President Eduard Benes still is in office, although resting at his country home.

Jan Masaryk's state funeral will be Saturday. He will be buried beside his father, founder and first president of the Czechoslovak republic.

The 61-year-old non-party Foreign Minister was found dead yesterday, two weeks after the new cabinet came to power, in a stone courtyard more than 50 feet below his bathroom window at the Foreign Office. The government said he jumped.

9 Women Patients Burned in Mental Hospital Fire

Asheville, N.C., March 11.—(AP)—Nine women patients died here early today in the blazing inferno of a mental hospital fire

Seven of the victims were trapped helplessly on upper floors of the four-storey central building of the Highland hospital for nervous diseases, Dr. B. T. Bennett, medical director, reported.

Two others were evacuated by firemen who dashed into the fiery structure but the two died soon afterward.

The fire, discovered about midnight, started in the kitchen of the hospital's central building. It quickly spread to an elevator shaft and was licking the building's roof when firemen arrived.

Screams of trapped women rang out above the roaring conflagration as doctors, nurses, firemen and police ran through the blazing structure, risking their lives in an effort to save the 20 patients in the building.

They quickly huddled the rescued patients into another building where some sat silently and others yelled hysterically.

The death toll was announced by Dr. Bennett after he and hospital authorities checked the list of patients in the building.

Police Captain Harold Enloe was the first man to reach the building.

"I could hear screaming on the third floor," he related. "Flames by then were leaping through the roof of the building."

About 1,000 spectators, many of them dressed in pajamas, milled helplessly around, unable to assist the trapped women.

NFLD. TO VOTE ON FEDERATION WITH DOMINION

Official Ballot Will Offer Three Choices

St. John's, Nfld., March 11 (CP) —The choice of confederation with Canada was offered the people of Newfoundland today when the contents were disclosed of the official ballot for a national referendum which will decide the old colony's political future.

Announced simultaneously in London and here, the ballot will offer the following choices:

1. Retention of the present government by commission.
2. Return of responsible self-government.
3. Confederation with Canada.

The national convention, elected in June, 1946, to recommend possible future forms of government and dissolved last Jan. 31, suggested to the Commonwealth Relations Office in London that the ballot offer a choice of retention of commission government or the return of responsible self-government.

By a 29-16 vote the convention turned down a resolution that confederation with Canada also be included on the ballot. The minority vote, however, was noted in the report to the British government.

Since then the pro-confederation bloc in the convention, led by Joseph Smallwood, has waged a vigorous campaign to have union with Canada included.

He has announced that petitions, signed by more than 50,000 of the island's 330,000 population, had been received asking that confederation be included in the referendum. These had been forwarded to London.

The 45-member national convention had power only to make recommendations to the British government.

Russia Wants No Arabs, Jews At Conference

New York, March 11 —(AP)— Russia threatened today to walk out of the big power Palestine talks if the Jews and Arabs were invited to take part in the discussions.

Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko rebuffed a new American attempt to call the Arabs of Palestine and the Jewish agency before the big power conferees.

Gromyko said he could not participate if the Jewish and Arab representatives or the U. N. Palestine Commission were brought in for consultation. He said Jewish - Arab conciliation efforts in the past had failed.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, Britain's representative, reiterated his government's intention to terminate the mandate May 15 and to leave Palestine.

Cadogan also said he personally felt no modification of the U. N. Assembly's 1947 partition plan would be accepted either by the Jewish agency of the Arab Higher Committee for Palestine.

The United States delegation was not yet ready to concede failure, but top Arab leaders indicated there was little likelihood that the Arab Higher Committee for Palestine would accept the American bid to take part in the big power consultations.

Seven Causes Given by Lord Wavell For Defeat in Burma in 1942

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 11 — (CP) — Viscount Wavell, over-all commander of the ill-fated Burma campaign; in a war office dispatch published tonight attributed the defeat of his outnumbered forces in 1942 to seven main causes:

1. Unpreparedness of Burma for a war in which a contributing factor was the "cardinal mistake" of authorities in London in putting Burma under the Far East Command instead of under India.

2. The terrain made attack the best form of defence but "unfortunately the means were not available."

3. "Misconceptions" in assessment of the Burma defence problem and the form the main Japanese attack would take.

4. An inadequate system of military intelligence.

5. Insufficient naval force to give any effective support to the army.

6. Inadequate air support for the army which was the "chief requirement of forces in Burma at this time."

7. The moral effect on the soldiers of the knowledge that part of the population was "potentially hostile and treacherous."

Wavell acknowledged in the dispatch his own "error of judgment in minimizing the danger to Burma." He said he overestimated the natural difficulties of wooded hills on the Burmese frontier and failed to realize the "unreliable quality" of Burmese units and the lack of training of British and Indian troops.

Military Development Reflects "Very Serious" Situation Says Marshall

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Military developments in the United States reflect the "very, very serious" world situation noted yesterday by State Secretary Marshall.

High command conferences . . . new weapons . . . quests for military manpower . . . congressional warnings against cutting defence funds.

All these coincide with Marshall's grave summation of the trend of global affairs.

He made it plain at a press conference he was referring both to Communist expansion in Europe, including Czechoslovakia, and to including Czechoslovakia, and to passion" aroused in the United States by European develooments.

He cited the death of Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk in Czechoslovakia as evidence that the Communist rule of that country is "a reign of terror."

Marshall spoke after being asked to give his "assessment of the situation" which, he was told, includes widely-felt fears ranging from the possibility that Italy might fall to the Communists in the April 18 elections, to talk of war.

He replied:

"I think you correctly described the situation in your question—that there are great fears as to the developments.

Called Reign of Terror

". . . the situation is very, very serious. It is regrettable that passions are aroused to the degree which has occurred . . ".

Speaking of Czechoslovakia, he said: "It is a reign of terror . . . and not an ordinary due process of government by the people."

Authoritative sources said that in referring to "passion," Marshall had in mind a passionate desire on the part of many people to do something quickly—and not necessarily something that cold reason —would approve.

But as he voiced an implied plea to the American people to keep cool, other top officials in both the diplomatic and military branches of the government took pains to stress this:

All efforts to build up the United States' armed might are aimed solely at guarding against aggressive attack.

These officials shun the idea of a "preventive" war to beat any would-be attacker to the draw. Defence Secretary Forrestal told a press conference yesterday that it is not the nature of democracies "particularly this democracy," to plan a war deliberately.

Putting House in Order

Here are some of the latest efforts:

High command: Forrestal has ordered the joint chiefs of staff to meet with him and tell where they disagree about what service should do what in a war.

If these military commanders of the army, navy and air force and the chief of staff to the President still can't agree, Forrestal will make his own decisions.

Weapons: While making ready for further tests of atomic weapons in the Pacific, the military has begun experiments in California with the world's biggest standard explosive bomb—a 21-ton missile.

The navy, stressing more and more the role of carrier-borne aviation in its fleet, proposes to build a giant 80,000-ton flat-top. Such a carrier could make possible new and even harder-striking task forces.

Manpower: A new effort to push universal military training through Congress is underway.

Princess Elizabeth to 'Rule' During Absence of King, Queen In Australia, N. Zealand in '49

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

London March 11 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth will get her first big chance to "rule" the British Commonwealth when her parents visit Australia and New Zealand early next year.

She will head a Council of State, comprising four or five members, chosen to act for the King while he, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret tour the "down under" Dominions.

The British family round the world view the Royal visit as a further move to strengthen Commonwealth ties in tremulous times.

At the same time it regards as significant the King's wish that Princess Elizabeth remain in London as his chief deputy.

It will be her most important and extended experience in practical affairs of state.

As heiress presumptive to the throne, Elizabeth will serve as senior member of the council. She sat on such a royal panel once before, but only briefly, in the summer of 1944 when the King made a wartime visit to Italy. She was then only a few months past her 18th birthday, legal age for royal heirs.

Her husband, Prince Philip, cannot be a counsellor. Under the law only the wife or husband of a sovereign, the heir presumptive and others of legal age next in direct succession may form the regency.

Counsellors are armed with most of the King's powers. They are forbidden, however, to dissolve parliament, to create new peers, to appoint bishops, and to change the uniform of the armed services. The signatures of all members of a council are required on state papers.

A counsellor's daily round is much the same as the King's

By law at least two regents must agree on any state decision. Although prohibited from acting on matters needing the King's special approval, the council is authorized to sign parliamentary bills.

Of the Australasian tour itself, Buckingham Palace had "not the slightest detail."

Presumably the voyage will be made in H.M.S. Vanguard, Britain's great new battleship.

SWEDISH KING ALIVE

Paris, March 11 — (AP)—King Gustaf V of Sweden arrived in Paris by train late today on his way to the Riviera.

Twelve Killed When Airliner Crashes, Explodes

Chicago, March 11.— (AP)— A Delta Airlines DC-4 plane crashed and burned explosively late last night a few seconds after it took off from Chicago's Municipal Airport. Twelve of the 13 aboard were killed.

The only survivor was a 33-year-old mother whose seven-year-old son perished in the fiery wreckage. She screamed hysterically for her child as she was pulled from the flames.

The woman, Mrs. Tripolino Meo, of suburban Oak Lawn, Ill., suffered severe burns. Both of her legs and both her arms were broken. All four members of the crew were killed.

The plane, bound for Miami, splashed into an orange-colored, flaming mass on a nearby prairie at 10.58 p.m. from a height of between 500 and 1,000 feet during a snow flurry, witnesses said.

It was Delta's first accident in scheduled operations since 1934. Last year the airlines received a special citation from the National Safety Council.

"Something went wrong" and the huge craft caught fire when only a few feet above the runway, Delta's district traffic manager said. There was no further explanation.

Among the identified dead were two Chicago brothers on their way to the bedside of their father, near death in Miami Beach, Fla. They were Harold Levy, 47, and Ralph Raymond Levy, 41.

Pat Smith, an airport cargo handler, said the plane "came straight down in a vertical dive and splattered and exploded on the ground."

Flames shot up 50 feet as the plane flopped to earth "like a pancake", said another witness, C. K. Firth, a gasoline dealer who helped rescue Mrs. Meo.

An inquest was scheduled for Friday.

EXPORT SURPLUS MUST BE CREATED SAYS MINISTER

Abbott Says Production Nearly at Full Capacity

Ottawa, March 11 (CP) —Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons yesterday that Canada must re-create a surplus of exports over imports if she wishes to continue assistance to Europe and also if she wishes to solve the economic problems arising out of the shortage of American dollars.

Mr. Abbott said this surplus could be brought about either through increased production or reduced domestic consumption. Perhaps production could be increased, but generally speaking it now was "pretty nearly" at full capacity.

He was speaking during continued debate on a resolution that would give legislative effect to the 25 per cent excise taxes which the government announced Nov. 17 would form part of the dollar-saving program.

Taxes Work Hardship

Opposition speakers have charged the taxes are unconstitutional because they were not first authorized by parliament. They have argued that the taxes, though applying to a long list of non-essential articles, work hardship on the people.

Mr. Abbott said one of the primary aims of the taxes was to reduce domestic consumption and enable Canada to play a larger part in the reconstruction of Europe. He reiterated that Canada could not continue to live "in an era of prosperity in the midst of a starving world," and added that Canadians were living beyond their customary needs.

He told Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) that rationing of imports would not have been sufficient action to solve present problems. Because a reduction in the domestic consumption of domestic products was needed as well.

Drawings in Irish Sweepstakes Begin

Dublin, March 11 — (AP) — Drawings in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, based on the Grand National Steeplechase to be run March 20 at Aintree, England, started here today.

Officials announced total subscriptions were £1,790,176 ($7,160,704), a drop of £284,028 from the drawing of last October.

The prize fund totals £843,400. There are 16 first prizes of £25,000, 16 second prizes of £10,000, 16 third prizes of £5,000, 1,008 horse prizes (on horses which fail to place) of £126,640 cash prizes of £50, and 50 residual prizes of £868.

The Irish Hospital Trusts, which conducts the sweepstakes, declines to make public the names and addresses of successful ticket holders, except those living in Eire. A list of bare numbers is issued to cover tickets drawn which are held in other parts of the world.

Abbott Says Canada Must Begin Building More Independent Economy

Toronto, March 11. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today that Canada has reached the stage where she must begin building a more independent economy.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Empire Club of Toronto, Mr. Abbott, said Canada's shortage of American exchange has demonstrated once again "how vulnerable our economic position is in its exaggerated dependence upon the United States for materials and equipment and upon Western Europe for markets."

"We have reached a stage in our national development when we must reduce this dependence and begin the building of a more virile and independent economy of our own."

The war, he said had brought unprecedented industrial expansion and industry's plans for expansion in 1948 were greater than they were in 1947.

"From the point of view of our dollar position and because of its general inflationary effect," said Mr. Abbott, "it would be better for everyone concerned if the program of capital expansion and improvement were spread over a longer period, and I am hopeful that this will be one of the results of the dollar-saving plan. . . . .

"I verily believe that we are on the threshold of really great developments—on the verge of a new dynamic era in our country's history which should lead to a further tremendous expansion in our production and economic power."

5 Secret British Documents Still Under Lock, Key

Words of Evidence, Exhibits Of Royal Commission Tabled

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 11 (CP)— Complete story of the dispatch of the Canadian force to Hong Kong in October, 1941, probably will never be known, because five secret British documents still remain under lock and key.

The 1,000,000 words of evidence and exhibits of the 1942 Royal Commission inquiry into Hong Kong where two Canadian battalions were lost in the Japanese onslaught of December, 1941, proved to be somewhat of a dud when they were tabled yesterday in the Commons.

This hitherto undisclosed material answered some of the questions about Hong Kong but failed to clear all doubtful points in the lengthy controversy.

Point Not Settled

One of the main points at issue —whether the Canadian government was warned prior to the sailing of the expedition on Oct. 27, 1941, that war with Japan was an early possibility—probably cannot be settled unless the British documents are produced.

They were dispatches from London to Ottawa on the general political situation in the Far East and although Britain allowed the Royal Commissioner, Sir Lyman P. Duff, then Chief Justice of Canada, to see them during the inquiry, London laid down the proviso that they not be disclosed.

Col. George A. Drew, now Premier of Ontario who, in 1941, acted as opposition counsel in the inquiry, set off the six-year-old dispute by charging, among other things, that the Canadian government was explicitly warned three days before the force sailed that war was expected.

No Evidence of Warning

The tabled evidence and exhibits lacked a clear-cut warning to Ottawa and the Duff report maintains no such information was received.

The locked-up British documents likely would give the final answer.

C.C.L. Boots Out Red Organizers

Ottawa, March 11 (CP)—Targets of the government's drive against the entry of alien Communists—suspect United States labor organizers operating in the Northern Ontario gold-mining field—have been thrown overboard by the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The C.C.L. has rejected a request from one of its affiliates, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter workers, that it take steps to halt the ejection of five smelter union organizers from the U.S.—regarded as fellow-travellers.

In disclosing this action yesterday, the Congress administered a stern boot to the hopes of any Communist suspects seeking help against the government ban on non-Canadian Communists entering the country.

This ban was disclosed last week, though it has not yet been officially announced by the Dominion government.

The Congress—in a joint statement by President A. R. Mosher and Secretary-Treasurer Pat Conroy—declared it had turned down a Smelters' Union request for help on behalf of five men "alleged to be membes of, or closely affiliated with, the Communist party of the United States."

Imported Organizers

"It added that the Smelters' Union had been importing organizers, "all under suspicion with regard to their political affiliations," and had thereby "supplied reactionary employers with ammunition they would otherwise not possess."

The Smelters' Union group was believed to be the chief object of the new government ban against Communists or Communist suspects.

None are to be deported, according to information here. But, as their entry permits expire, the plan is that they will not be renewed. That, apparently, is what has affected Horowitz.

Trial by Jury For Belleville Man

Ottawa, March 11. (CP) — Richard Rogers, 37, of Belleville, Ont., elected trial by judge and jury when he appeared in county court today charged with possession of safe-breaking equipment. Preliminary hearing was set for next Thursday.

Rogers was arrested following an accident last Feb. 21 when an automobile in which he was passenger crashed into the side of a moving freight train. The tools allegedly were found in the car.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, March 11 —(CP)— Synopsis: Snow, this morning, is falling over a relatively narrow band extending from Texas to the eastern end of Lake Ontario. Only the most southern part of the province will be affected by this snow today. It will clear this evening, with the snow retreating south of the lakes. Throughout the province clear cold weather is indicated for Friday with temperatures in the north moderating slowly as winds become southwesterly.

Celebrated Promotion A Little too Well

That it doesn't pay to imbibe too well in celebration of a business promotion it was learned yesterday by the employee of a local industrial concern.

Informed yesterday that he had been given a promotion in his particular phase of factory operation, the company employee last night proceeded to celebrate the occasion and in the process must have taken just one too many.

At any rate local police officers noted a car being driven on Dundas Street in a rather erratic manner and in the course of investigation noted that the driver was intoxicated. He was brought back to the police station and accordingly charged.

County Police Court

Pleading guilty to a charge of indecent exposure, Richard Cotterell, Deseronto, was sentenced to six months in the county jail when he appeared this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county police court.

It was the third time within recent months that the accused had appeared before Magistrate Wills on similar offences and the Magistrate awarded the maximum sentence under the act.

"This is the third time which you have been before me for a similar offence," stated the magistrate as he awarded sentence. "You have been examined by a psychiatrist and have been given every opportunity. Under the circumstances I am giving you the maximum penalty of six months in jail."

A juvenile pleaded guilty to the theft of a travelling bag and several shirts and other wearing apparel from Roy Callaghan, Tyendinaga township, and was remanded for one week to permit his parents to appear in court.

Adrian T. Bailey was convicted on a charge of dangerous driving and was assessed $13 and costs or ten days in jail and was sentenced to seven days in jail on a charge of being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle.

Governor of Moose Lodge Visits Trenton

Governor Vincent Freeman, of Belleville Lodge 1002, Loyal Order of Moose and Grand Committeeman of the Ontario Moose Association, paid an official visit to Trenton Lodge No. 1163 last night where special guests were members of the Belleville and Port Hope Lodges.

In his address to the gathering Governor Freeman pointed out the splendid advance made by the Belleville lodge during the past year and expounded many ideas as to how lodges of the order could be brought to a greater degree of functioning.

He emphasized the need for greater community activity in centres where the lodge is situated, and pointed out the fine work being done by the Moose at Mooseheart, Indiana, and at Moosehaven, Florida, where the lodge maintains a home for elderly members who have suffered financially, and need help.

The governor pointed out the need for greater advertising to bring to the general public what the lodge is doing. He spoke of the successful methods recently developed by the Belleville Lodge.

Governor Freeman was accompanied on his visit by Gerald Vance, assistant fire chief of the city, and who was awarded the "25 Club" pin.

Mr. Vance recently returned from a visit to Florida, accompanied by Bill Claire and during the function last night, he described the activities at the Moosehaven Home.

Police Blotter

With the return of milder weather and water puddles in the streets motor splashers came into being again yesterday with a Colborne Street resident complaining to police that his clothes had been splashed with muddy water by a passing motorist. The name of the offending motorist was ascertained and he readily agreed to pay for a dry cleaning job.

A Charles Street resident complained of a window peeker in that particular district and from the description given, police later picked up a soldier who had been given a ride to the city from Kingston. He stated he had been let out at Charles Street and had been unable to find his way downtown.

Jamieson Bone reported the theft of a swivel chair from the boiler room of the Chamber of Commerce building which six weeks ago was gutted by fire. The chair had been salvaged from the building and placed in the boiler room for safety.

J. Huffman Heads Junior Farmers

John Huffman, Thurlow township, was named president of the Hastings County Junior Farmers at their annual meeting held in Stirling recently. Vice President is Edelene McCoy, Madoc; secretary Carl Bateman, Hungerford, and treasurer, A. O. Dalrymple, Stirling.

Executive officers include Douglas Harry, Sidney; Bob Cosby, Rawdon and Barbara Chapman, Madoc.

Guest speaker for the occasion was D. A. Taylor, assistant agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington who gave an interesting talk on program planning.

Highlights of the meeting included discussions of the various Junior Farmer events for the 1948 season. The secretary was authorized to send a vote of thanks to radio stations, county newspapers and to H. McIntyre Hood, for the splendid support given during the past year in the form of publicity.

Events Planned

Tentative plans were made to hold a county field day at Stirling, a get-together at Tweed, a public speaking contest at Ivanhoe and the 1949 skating party at Madoc and the county livestock judging competition in Stirling.

At the forthcoming field day there will be no township boys' and girls' softball teams. Juniors from each Junior Farmer Club only will be eligible to play and these must have attended at least 50 per cent of the meetings. There must be a minimum of four girls on each team. It was felt that this change would do much to encourage Junior Farmer activities and would be much more representative of the Junior Farmers that have teams in the past.

Hastings Junior Farmers Enjoy Skating Party

The Tweed arena and Township Hall were settings Friday evening for an enjoyable evening of skating and recreation for the Hastings Juniors.

Arrangements for the occasion were under the direction of Carl Bateman, Past President, and Don Martin, President, of the Hungerford Junior Farmers. The highlight of the evening at the rink was the Broom Ball game between the Madoc Terrors and the Thurlow Mudcats, which resulted in a one-all tie. Mr. D. H. Miles, the genial acting representative from Prince Edward, was referee, while A. O. Dalrymple acted as linesman.

In the hall, after a lunch of doughnuts and coffee, the entire group danced to the records supplied by the Tweed Teen-Agers' Club. The evening concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

Three Justices Hearing Appeal In Custody Issue

Toronto, March 11 — (CP) — As the divorced parents of seven-year-old Terry McKee continued their six-year legal battle over the child's custody, Chief Justice R. S. Robertson of Ontario commented yesterday in Ontario Court of Appeal that a judgment of a foreign court may be sustained in Ontario but it need not be "slavishly enforced."

Counsel for Mrs. Evelyn McKee, socially-prominent Los Angeles resident, argued that she should have custody of the child. He said a California court gave the mother custody in 1945 but the father, Mark T. McKee of Mount Clements, Mich., brought the boy to Ontario.

R. I. Ferguson, Mrs. McKee's lawyer, said the father, who is a wealthy United States airline executive, should be required to show why Ontario courts should not enforce a California order.

"I don't think our cases will uphold you on that point," said Mr. Justice F. D. Hogg, one of the three justices hearing the appeal.

Chief Justice Robertson said that while the interests of the child must predominate, still the application for custody was by two other individuals asserting their rights.

Mr. Ferguson criticized conditions on the 350-acre McKee estate at Linwood, near Kitchener, where the boy now lives. He said Terry had to go 2½ miles to school "through snowdrifts."

"Well, what of that?" inquired the Chief Justice.

"I don't like to remember doing it myself," Mr. Ferguson replied.

"Perhaps none of us do," remarked Mr. Justice Hogg. "But it still may not have done us any harm."

The hearing is continuing.

EQUALS WORLD RECORD

Belfast — (CP) — A Frisian heifer from Britain, Craigbet Rosan, has equalled the world production record — 1,492 pounds of butter fat in one year. The cow, owned by a farmer here, gave 31,339 pounds of milk in 365 days at 4.76 per cent butter fat.

Anglers' Assoc. Hears Talk On Fish Research

A meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association was held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. About 75 ardent sportsmen, anglers and hunters, were present from the city and the two counties. The officers in attendance were: E. Sandercock, president, J. Shortt, secretary, and F. Croft, treasurer.

First on the evening's program was a film, "Heritage We Guard", which illustrated the freedom of nature and animal wildlife before the coming of the white man. With his coming and consequent populating of the land, it was shown how the animal life was reduced to small numbers and some kinds forced into extinction. With the consequent tilling of the soil, it was shown how erosion and land wastage ruined large areas. The picture concluded showing efforts made toward restoring the land by soil conservation and restocking of the wild game.

Booth at Sportsmen's Show

Sportsmen's Show which opens in Toronto on Saturday, was discussed, and the prospect of getting a sufficient number of members interested to charter a bus to take them to Toronto. Later in the evening a vote disclosed that the number interested was insufficient to consider chartering the bus. The members were informed that Belleville and Hastings will be represented at the Show by a booth for distributing tourist publicity pamphlets.

Arrangements for the annual banquet were discussed. This is to be held on March 31. The guest speaker will be Mr. H. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests or, in the event that legislative duties prevent his appearing, a suitable representative. This dinner is open to members and junior members.

A film, "On the Wing" illustrated the methods employed in geese and duck shooting, from the blind or stalking the quarry. The advantage of dogs for retrieving was stressed.

Speaks on Fish Research

Guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Frank Maher, Toronto, biologist of the staff of Ontario Fisheries Research Laboratory, was introduced by J. Shortt.

Mr. Maher spoke about the work of the research departments in the "South Bay Experiment". He pointed out that he hoped to be able to clear up any misconception of this experiment as it has met with some bad publicity at times.

The object of the experiment, he explained, was to determine the effect of fishing pressure on commercial and game fish. It was found that an excessive population of one type of fish tended to be detrimental to the others. Fish were removed from South Bay, adjoining Lake Huron, with nets or angled. When caught they went through an assembly - line process of inspection.

The fish were photographed for future measurements, measured for length, weighed, scaled to determine their age by the ring on the scales, and their stomach content examined to determine the food they ate. A census of the number of fish removed from the area was taken. Creeks were tested for their flow, temperature, and chemical contents. Fish were tagged, or their dorsal fin clipped, and released. Much of the work was in the experimental stage yet, and Mr. Maher could not disclose results of the work.

Following his address, Mr. Maher invited the questions of the audience and cleared up some of the points concerning fish that were not quite clear to them. Col. Wm. Dayern, Wellington moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and suggested that he be awarded an honorary membership in the Association.

A film, "Speckled Trout Across Canada" was shown next. This film showed angling methods expertly displayed in beautiful technicolor.

Another film, "Sports and Seasons", was shown which depicted various sports of the country in their respective seasons. Following the film, Joe E. Shortt adjourned the meeting with a reminder to those who had not renewed their memberships during the evening to do so before the first of the month.

Christies Bread Under Fire By Price Committee

Ottawa, March 11 —(CP)— Under fire for a January bread-price hoist, Christies Bread, Ltd., of Toronto went before the Commons Price Committee today for further explanation on its operations and profits.

The company had been castigated by Liberal committee members for jacking up its price when a single commodity showed a loss and failing to pass on benefits to the public when it showed a good general profit position.

Focus of criticism of the company at yesterday's session was a one-cent increase in the price of the company's standard loaf in late January — at a time when overall bread operations were showing one of the best profit months in the company's seven-year history.

A succession of Liberal members — spearheaded by Health Minister Martin, committee chairman, and R. H. Winter (L-Queens - Lunenburg) — called the United States-owned company to task for putting on a price increase in what was described as its "best month."

Two company executives — President Daniel F. Wilson and Vice-President Lloyd I. Stormer, of Toronto — were under fire for most of yesterday's session.

At the end, Mr. Winters declared their explanations on the price jump were not good enough to "allay public suspicion" on the January price move. The health minister agreed with this.

The company officials admitted Christies had been enjoying a good profit month generally in January, when the increase was ordered, but they had believed the company was losing money on the standard loaf.

M.P.P. Forced to Leave Chamber For Calling Douglas 'Stinking Skunk'

Regina, March 11. (CP)—A. T. Proctor (L. Moosomin) was "named" in the Saskatchewan Legislature yesterday and ordered from the chamber for the balance of the sitting when he called Premier T. C. Douglas a "stinking skunk" and refused to withdraw the remark.

He was ordered from the chamber by Speaker Tom Johnston after the House voted, 43-4, to expel him for the rest of yesterday's sitting.

Mr. Proctor had risen before the orders of the day to deny charges made in the legislature yesterday by Premier Douglas, who said the Liberal Party established a dummy corporation in 1942 which "deprived" the provincial treasury of nearly $70,000 on sales of supplies to the government of former Liberal Premier W. J. Patterson.

"It is smears like this that have kept honest men out of politics," Mr. Proctor said. "The Premier of this province is a stinking skunk."

After Mr. Procter twice refused to withdraw the remark, Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines, Acting Government leader, again asked Mr. Procter to withdraw.

He said the government was willing to appoint a royal commission to investigate the charges or refer the charges to a special committee of the legislature or the public accounts committee.

"I won't withdraw," Mr. Procter said. "My honor has been impugned in this House and I'm the judge of that."

"I'm afraid I'll have to name you," warned Mr. Johnston.

"That's quite all right with me, Mr. Speaker," replied Mr. Procter.

The Premier's charges centred around activities of Acme Dye & Chemicals, Ltd., which he said sold 20,000 pounds of dye to the government between 1940 and 1942 at $5.80 a pound—$3.44 a pound more than the government now was paying.

"This is just one of ways in which the Liberal campaign funds were maintained during the years when the machine needed a lot of grease," Mr. Douglas had said.

Mr. Procter said "any statement or inference of wrongdoing made against me by Premier Douglas is not only false but it is a malicious lie told only for the purpose of obtaining some political advantage for himself."

Mr. Procter was Minister of Highways and in charge of the provincial tax commission which made the purchases of dye from the company.

Hog Producers Asked to Support Bacon Contract

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—J. G. Taggart, Director of Agricultural services for the Federal Department of Agriculture, yesterday told the Ontario Hog Producers' Association that 80 per cent of grain used as stock feed on Ontario farms is fed on the farms that produce it.

"If you increase the price of grain that goes into commerce, you increase the price of pork—and on all things grown on the farm—by the same amount."

He asked the 500 delegates claiming t represent 60,000 hog breeders if they preferred to continue with present export contracts or to revert to the prewar marketing system in which there was no assured of staple market for bacon supplied to the United Kingdom.

He said that when farmers accepted what he termed the "advantages" of the contract system, he wondered whether farmers also would accept its responsibilities. Last year Canadian bacon producers fell 10,000,000 pounds short.

Charles W. McInnis of Iroquois, Association President, earlier charged that the Federal government, by ending payment of grain subsidies last year, left hog producers "at the mercy of the speculative market."

RATE HIGHEST IN HISTORY

Kitchener, March 11 — (CP)—City council last night approved a 1948 tax rate of 45 mills, the highest in the city's history. It represents an increase of 2.5 mills over last year. The new rate was set to meet a budget of $1,693.196.

MASARYK WILL BE

Funeral services will be held in the Pantheon of the Prague Museum in the capital's Central Square. Communist Premier Klement Gottwald will speak.

Czechslovakia mourned the Minister today in shocked melancholy. Half-staffed tricolors and black banners did not begin to tell the story of the loss felt by the "little people."

To thousands the loss was personal, because Masaryk numbered his personal friends in the thousands.

"I am glad to be home," he said in his last public press conference, the last time western correspondents saw him in any number.

No Explanation Given

During and after the political crisis that saw Czechoslovakia go under Communist control, western reporters got no farther than his secretaries, who said Masaryk would not see them. He was being quoted by Polish journalists and other correspondents from eastern Europe in interviews, and no explanation was given.

What politics, what policies lay behind his moves and his statements while he remained a nonparty member of the Communist-controlled government may never be known.

His government said officially that he was ill, suffered from insomnia, was overwrought from reading reproachful messages from friends in Britain and the United States, and in a nervous crisis ended his life.

This, on its own testimony, was a transition that came within eight hours after he was described as ending a cheerful day on a cheerful note of farewell to two old servants.

No suicide note has been mentioned.

His closest friends expressed no doubt that Masaryk had ended his own life.

However, the urgency of his reason was a big question, because Masaryk had shown himself desirous of remaining alive to fight for peace.

Men More Likely To Have Crashes Than Women

Toronto, March 11 (CP)—It's safer to ride in a horse-drawn buggy than pump a bicycle on Ontario roads. Men are more likely, by far, to have highway accidents than women. And the more experienced you are behind the wheel, greater is the chance you'll be involved in traffic mishaps — and fatalities.

All this — and many more incongruities — are revealed today in a breakdown of statistics on 1947 motor vehicle accidents issued by the Ontario Highway Department.

For example:

More mishaps occur on clear days than in foggy weather—1,507 bringing death to 495 persons in 1947.

Daylight hour accidents far exceed those at night — 12,428 bringing death to 329 citizens. There were 8,777 and 309 deaths during dark hours.

Collisions with bicycles totalled 669 with 31 fatalities, but collisions involving horse-drawn vehicles were only 120 with four deaths.

The dangerous driving age seems to be between 25 and 40. In that group 15,362 Ontario motorists were involved in mishaps — almost twice the figure of those in the 18-24 year docket.

Motorists with at least five years' experience had 27,829 accidents. Only 194 with six to 12 months' practice were reported to the department.

Only 327 drivers were classified as intoxicated. Condition of 35,026 was called normal. The former were involved in 10 fatalities, the latter in 823.

Speeding still remains the No. 1 cause of most highway pile-ups and deaths. Drivers who take to the wrong side of the road come next with 1,571 reported by police.

omen drivers were involved in 1,532 accidents, 23 of which were fatal.

But 34,122 men motorists had accidents. Of these, 823 caused fatalities.

when more than 50 persons were killed in the Jewish district of the Holy City.

Workers in the building were on duty at the time of the explosion.

Quick Rescue Work

oRescue workers fought their way into the smoke and debris. Within a few minutes of the blast, the first of the casualties were being carried out to stretchers and ambulances which had rushed to the scene.

First reports from police at the scene said an explosive-laden truck — possibly two trucks — apparently had been driven into the court-yard and set off there.

The agency building is one of the most tightly-guarded spots in all Jerusalem. It is circled by high barbed wire and guarded by concrete pillboxes and by sandbagged gun posts on the roofs of nearby buildings.

The Jewish agency is official adviser to the British government of Palestine on behalf of the Holy Land's Jews.

42,000 PENSIONERS

About 42,000 persons, one per cent of the population of Denmark, receive disability pensions exclusive of military pensions.

TRUCK PRODUCTION UP

Production of trucks in Great Britain in the first eight months of 1947 was 36 per cent above that for the corresponding period of 1938.

The Cross of Mercy

Nearly a century ago Red Cross was an ideal one man's mind. As a visitor from Switzerland, he stood on a battleground in Italy and saw the wounded, dying and the dead left untended, like refuse on a playing field.

His idea was Mercy — a mercy which would know no enemies, no national barriers, no racial or religious differences, a mercy which would work on behalf of suffering men, regardless of the uniform they wore.

Today Henri Dunant's idea embraces 65 nations of the world, bringing comfort and help to the suffering in war and peace alike and uniting men on a common ground of brotherhood, sympathy and kindness.

In Canada it would be difficult to find many persons today who do not know the Red Cross symbol and what it means. The Society's work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the relief of suffering reaches out to citizens, old and new, into the largest cities and farthest frontier settlements, from Halifax to Victoria, from the 49th parallel to the North West Territories.

The Red Cross in all its aspects of national service has advanced a long way since the day of Henri Dunant. As each of the 65 Societies advance, so advances the Red Cross of the world. As they are strong, it is strong. And here at a time when uncertainty, discord in international affairs is mounting to perilous proportions, thinking men of every party and belief can meet in agreement, share in constructive good, in this great, humane and urgent mission.

Today we ask you — Support the Red Cross. Make it strong. Canada — the world —has need of it.

Her Triumph

Barbara Ann Scott, whose career has been of the kind that inspires boyhood, girlhood and youth and their elders, has come home from the scene o fher triumphs to win the acclaim of Canada's capital, her home town. In a world of hurry and worry she picked out worlds to conquer and it is her happy fortune to reign supreme in that realm to which she has so thoroughly devoted herself. Wherever she goes the welcomes which will greet her will be like Ottawa's, spontaneous from the heart and her appreciations will be likewise from the heart.

Her rise to fame has been rapid; naturally to attain the honors she has carried off means a swift rise to the primal position. That swiftness was made possible by her tireless striving for perfection in the are she has adorned and will adorn with her grace of style and disposition.

This age fortunately is able to take part in the prominence and fame which have come to this young Canadian girl and by newspaper, film and radio every citizen has had the opportunity to meet in spirit at least this young "ambassadress" of Canada to the world at large. The news stories of her progress to the undisputed championship of the world, the motion pictures and the radio presentations have brought Barbara Ann Scott very close to the Canadian people and to the world. This interest no doubt helped her in the long practice work which was the only way by which she could reach such prominence.

Romance of Tea

Tea, next to water, has become the world's principal, as well as its cheapest beverage, and the story of this commodity is a romantic one. According to Chinese legend, the virtues of tea were discovered by the Emperor Chinung in 2737 B.C. One day while boiling his drinking water, a few leaves from the branches that were crackling beneath the pot fell into the water, imparting to it a delicate and exquisite aroma. Investigation revealed that the branches were those of the wild tea plant. It is an established fact that the habit of tea-drinking first evolved among the Chinese, and from China a knowledge of tea was carried into Japan. Strangely enough, although many of China's products were known and used in Europe much earlier, no reference to tea has yet been traced in European literature prior to 1588.

Early in the 17th century Dutch adventurers, on their return from the East, introduced tea-drinking into Europe but not till the middle of that century did the English begin to use tea, and for many years it was a luxury possible only for the wealthy. As its use increased the British experimented with tea cultivation in India, using seed brought from China, but the discovery by Major Robert Bruce in 1823 of tea plants growing wild in Assam really marks the birth of the Indian tea industry.

Early in the 19th centur yhte "China Clipper," a type of vessel specially designed for the rapid carrying of tea from China to England via the Cape of Good Hope was introduced. Competition was keen as to which ship should make the most rapid passage. The most celebrated of all tea races, and one of the last, was that of 1866 when three of nine ships that sailed from Foochow almost simultaneously, made the long voyage of 16,000 miles in ninety-one days, all docking in London on the same day, wtihin two hours of each other. The opening of the Suez Canal in 1869 soon changed the course of all trade with the East, and in a few years this method of transporting tea round the Cape of Good Hope was a thing of the past. Romance was no more. The emigrants from the British Isles who peopled the Dominions took their taste for tea with them and it flourished as strongly across the ocean as it did at home.

In Canada, tea was included in the early shipments, in the 18th century, made by the Hudson's Bay Company to their forts and posts. Tea became, as it remained, the favorite beverage in Canadian homes, as well as the standby of the trappers and hunters in the Far North, from whom the Eskimos derived a taste for tea which makes them amongst the world's greatest tea-drinkers.

Dominions at Lake Success

One of the best mirrors for seeing the British Commonwealth of Nations as it stands today, new in concept, individual in national sovereignty, united on the gravest world political issues, is the United Nations. Here, in the councils of the fifty-seven-government association for peace, seven of the eight dominions of the British Commonwealth play their self-determined political roles with greater freedom and greater individuality than ever before.

The very fact that such intra-British disputes as that over Kashmir and the South African-Indian racial case are brought before the United Nations, instead of allowed to remain solely within the diplomatic purview of the British Commonwealth, and the fact that the United Kingdom continues to restrict itself to such an objective role in the United Nations on these issues emphasize the intellectual independence, continually increasing, of each member nation of the Commonwealth. On the other hand, en such fundamental issues as the international control of atomic energy and the terms of the German and Japanese peace treaties all the Dominions of the Commonwealth are substantially in full agreement. The development of the old British Empire into the new British Commonwealth of Nations is a dynamic political phenomenon that reaffirms the historian's faith in the slow but just processes of Anglo-Saxon democracy. — New York Times.

SLAVES IN ONTARIO

The first Legislature of Upper Canada was organized in 1792 and the following year the Legislature, largely at the instance of Governor John Graves Simcoe, passed a bill forbidding slavery after that date, says London Free Press.

There were never many slaves in this province. The few here were brought in by some of the pioneer U. E. Loyalist families. As a concession to them they were permitted to retain their salves until death, but the children of these slaves were to be free on reaching maturity.

So that Upper Canada was the first part of the British Empire actually to abolish slavery.

KILLDEER TRICK

The kildeer, of the plover clan,
It seems was once betrayed by man.
A mother bird, long years ago,
Found man to be a treacherous foe
And being a groundling, small and weak,
Defensive means was forced to seek.

The mother knew that man, the best,
Unwittingly might crush her nest;
That kind of heart though he may be
Its hiding place he'd fail to see.
And so, against the harm she feared
She tried a trick when humans neared.

Upon man's path she'd spread her wing,
As if it were a broken thing,
Arousing in his mind the thought
That easily she could be caught;
Thus, luring him to follow her
Away from where her babies were.

It worked! and to this very day
This trick all mother killdeers play.

Some of Canada's newly arrived settlers may have occasion in the future to look back to the winter now almost over as an exceedingly unpleasant time of trials and tribulations. Their experience serves to recall, among the oldest inhabitants, traditions of the "hungry year" in this district handed down from past generations. In 1788, only a few years after a number of United Empire Loyalists families had settled in the Bay of Quinte District, the crops failed entirely around Bath, Adolphustown and Prince Edward and the winter which followed was most severe. The snow was unusually deep and the deer, upon which the settlers depended for meat, became an easy prey to their rapacious enemies the wolves, while men were perishing with hunger. The late Henry Ruttan, who for years was prominently known throughout the Bay of Quinte district, in an address delivered at Kingston in 1849, referred as follows to this trying time: "A great scarcity of provisions prevailed for two or three years consecutively owing to the failure of crops and what brought on the famine or scarce year was the almost entire destruction of the deer by wolves. The snow laid upon the ground from December to April at a depth from four to five feet. In the month of February in the last of these years, a man sent to Albany in the State of New York, a distance of more than 200 miles, for four bushels of Indian corn and this was brough men on snowshoes. It took them a considerable time to accomplish the journey and a part of the corn was of necessity consumed by the men on the return trip. The residue of this precious cargo was pounded into meal in the hollow stump of a tree and formed a staple article of food for the family. Many Bay of Quinte people were United Empire Loyalists and readily recall stories of privation on the Prince Edward shores during the scarce times. to bed hungry. This had continued for so long a time that the girl was finally tempted to dig raw potatoes that her father had placed as seed. She repeated this trick until discovered by her father who administered the necessary punishment. This incident shows forcibly the straits to which the pioneer settlers were reduced."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Which Presidents were Governors?

Thirteen of the 32 men who have been President served as Governors of their States.

They were: Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe, Martin Van Buren, John Tyler, James K. Polk, Andrew Johnson, Rutherford B. Hayes, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In addition three Presidents served as Governors by appointment. Andrew Jackson was Governor of Florida Territory and William Howard Taft was Governor-General of the Philippines.

Five — Hayes, Cleveland, McKinley, Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt — were Governors when elected President.

Two—Theodore Roosevelt and Coolidge—were Governors when elected Vice President, from which they succeeded to the President. In addition John was Military Governor of Tennessee when elected Vice President.

Four presidents were unsuccessfull candidates for Governor —John Quincy Adams (after he was President), Millard Fillmore, Benjamin Harrison and Warren G. Harding.

Harding was the only President who was Lieutenant Governor of his State.

Twelve Presidents were never State or Territorial Governors nor candidates for Governor — George Washington, John Adams, James Madison, Zachary Taylor, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan, Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, James A. Garfield, Chester A. Arthur, Herbert Hoover and Harry S. Truman.

In every presidential election from 1884 to 1944 inclusive, with one exception, a State Governor or former Governor has won or lost the Presidency. Neither Taft nor William Jennings Bryan, the nominees in 1908, was the Governor or former Governor of a State. In many cases both major party nominees were Governors or former Governors.

5 SECRET BRITISH

The voluminous documents tabled also did not include counsels' argument to the Commission, including Col. Drew's lengthy summing up.

On Col. Drew's additional charge that both battalions were "hopelessly untrained for war," the documents and evidence showed that Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, then Chief of the General Staff, had picked them personally and considered them "certainly fit to meet an attacking force, even in superior numbers." The Duff report referred to them as "well-trained."

Recommendation Overruled

The General overruled a recommendation of Col. W. H. S. Macklin, then director of staff duties at defence headquarters, who submitted a list of units in Canada that were trained enough to go. The Grenadiers and Rifles were not listed because a report to Col. Macklin had indicated that they lacked sufficient training. They were graded in the lowest group of a three-category training report.

However, the Colonel testified that he had come to the conclusion that Gen. Crerar's view was "sound."

Several British dispatches leave the same general impression, although there is one naval message of Oct. 24, 1941, referring to "altered circumstances" in the Orient which is only vaguely explained.

Information in Both States

Testifying regarding information received from the United States government at that time, Maj.-Gen. Maurice Pope, assistant Chief of the General Staff, said there was no interchange "of what I would call military intelligence dealing beyond the shores of Canada" between members of the joint U. S.-Canada Defence Board.

However, there was no information in Ottawa that was not in Washington "and probably no good purpose would be served in furthering the information from Washington to Ottawa, most of which, if not all, the British War Office would have."

Col. Drew asked him: "So you would say equally that there is no information of importance in Washington that is not in Ottawa?"

"So far as Canadian interests are concerned, I think that is correct," replied the general.

On the subject of training, Gen. Crerar testified that he considered the Grenadiers and Rifles "generally adequately trained to undertake defensive responsibilities such as those in prospect at Hong Kong." His information was that hostilities were not imminent and that they would have ample time to carry out further training there.

The report to Col. Macklin on which he based his memo to the general came from Lt.-Col. H. A. Sparling who prepared it in September. He was under Brig. J.K. Lawson, then director of military training and shortly after named Hong Kong chief.

His report listed both battalions as category "C" which meant that he could not recommend them for "operational consideration at present" because they lacked training. He listed 17 other units which would be preferable.

Considered Units Adequate

Col. Macklin had ignored the Grenadiers and Rifles in his recommendation to Gen. Crerar but had named the other units. However, after the general had enumerated the other considerations, he had considered their choice sound. He would have spoken an objection if he had felt it.

On this point, Gen. Pope said he considered the two units "eminently suitable;" Brig. Lawson expressed no objection; Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, then overseas army chief, said he had taken the 1st Division to England "and not one of them had had that training."

Brig. Lawson had reported back from Hong Kong, however, that neither battalion had completed its tests of elementary training for infantry weapons on arrival, "since many of these have not previously been available to them." He said, too, that of 697 men in one unit, 118 had less than 16 weeks training, of whom two had one week.

Lt.-Col. J. L. R. Sutcliffe, Grenadiers commander, reported that in Jamaica duties prevented collective training on any scale but that "far more extensive training" than his repbrt would indicate had been obtained from their "many and varied duties."

Evidence showed that 212 vehicles slated for the Canadians' use were sidetracked to Manila by United States Navy orders in the freighter San Jose that was carrying them. They never got to Hong Kong.

Launches Inquiry

Defence Minister Ralston launched an inquiry at defence headquarters after learning, some time in December, that 20 vehicles scheduled to go aboard the troopship Awatea had not arrived in Vancouver until the day after she sailed.

The crux seemed to be that Transport Controller T. C. Lockwood had been informed Oct. 16 by the shipping concern that there was not room for them, that four days later these were started on their way when information came to the army directorate of mechanization that space was available. The railways, Mr. Lockwood said, reported that all haste was made.

However, the Awatea's captain told the embarkation officer at Vancouver that he had to take on extra fuel and there would not be enough room anyway.

The commissioner found no evidence that the troops suffered through lack of their transport.

Brig. Lawson reported back from Hong Kong that 40 men had not entrained for Vancouver, that four had skipped en route, that others had vanished during loading operations and that 30 to 40 had had to be restrained to prevent them leaving the Awatea before she sailed.

He attributed these difficulties to the late addition of new men, some of them joining their units en route. In the Grenadiers, 15 new officers were added to buttress the officer complement that normally is around 32.

THE TONSIL QUESTION

What is the object of treatment in any case of enlarged, hypertrophied, infected or diseased (sanctioned by Webster) tonsils or tonsils and adenoids or just adenoids?

The object of treatment, be it radical surgery, conservative surgery, X-ray, radium emanation (radon), diathermy (electro-coagulation), medical topical (local application of medicine) or hygienic is to prevent or relieve obstruction of breathing or obstruction of drainage and ventilation of tympanum (middle ear cavity housing the famous hammer, anvil and stirrup bones) or to prevent, check or eradicate focal infection where there is reason to believe tonsil or adenoid tissue harbors a septic focus where disease-producing germs grow or multiply—the germs responsible for some secondary systemic condition such as arthritis.

By radical surgery I mean tonsillectomy—the attempt to remove the entire tonsil.

By conservative surgery I mean tonsillotomy—the instantaneous slicing off of the obstructing portion with the gadget called tonsillotome.

In everyday practice whenever the enlarged or hypertrophied tonsils and/o adenoids obstruct breathing or affects hearing enough to warrant surgery rather than the slower X-ray or radium emanation (radon) treatment, there should be no hesitation, in my ujdgment, in choosing the conservative method, instantaneous tonsillotomy. I contend, and I hope physicians of standing who believe I am wrong will tell me where or how—I promise to publish as widely as possible any sincere (and I must say courteous) contrary view a physician of standing may care to offer—I never reveal the identity of a correspondent without the correspondent's written consent—I contend there is no sound medical or surgical reason for even attempting to remove the entire tonsil (tonsillectomy) of child or grown-up who has merely enlarged or hypertrophied tonsils and/or adenoids.

urther, the object of treatment of infected tonsils is of course to remove, destroy, sterilize, pasteurize or drain the infection.

The infection is usually confined to a small area of the tonsil, though sometimes there may be more than one infected area, eseptic focus, abscess or nidus in the tonsil. The tonsil tissue surrounding the septic focus is not only not infected and not harmful to the patient, but it serves a good purpose—it helps to prevent spread of the infection through the system.

Instead of plumping for tonsillectomy, that major operation with a high mortality rate in itself, the physician who can think for himself will investigate the merits of diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment with a view to discovering whether this modern method does not offer a happy alternative at least for the handicapped patient, who cannot stand general anesthesia or the risks of a major operation.

The physician skilled in the technic of electro-coagulation — and the method requires more skill than tonsillectomy does — can usually pasteurize, sterilize or drain the septic focus in the course of three or four seances, without anesthetic and without detaining the patient from ordinary activities. By thus disinfecting or cleaning up the source of the trouble in this way without greatly damaging normal tissues or jeopardizing the patient's general health and life, diathermy becomes at least the alternative if not the method of choice in most cases of focal infection where the septic focus is in the tonsil.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

On With the Dance

Do you think it is safe to indulge in square dancing during pregnancy? We are enthusiastic about this indoor sport and hate to give it up, but I will do so upon your recommendation.
(Mrs. S. J. T.)

Answer—Well, no, that would be too much of a Marathon, but in your place if I were fond of square dancing I'd continue to enjoy the fun just as always. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet Preparing for Maternity. May I have the next polka? The polka may not be a square dance, but in my opinion, it is most fun of all dances.

Horse Meat

Is horse meat, purchased from stores catering to canines, suitable food for humans, if well cooked?
(R. M.)

Answer—Horse meat is perfectly suitable for your table or mine. It is merely a matter of custom or fancy whether one choose to eat horse meat.

The Tired Heart

Is there anything like a tired heart, and if so, is it serious?
(Mrs. W. A.)

Answer—The heart is mainly muscle, involuntary muscle, to be sure, but, like the involuntary muscle that makes up the stomach and intestine, it is either healthy, vigorous, elastic or of good "tone" or else flabby, weak, sluggish, of poor "tone"—it, as we might say, if heart or stomach and intestine had sensation, tired. For such a heart or such a stomach or such on intestine an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex is always beneficial—today, next week, next year. If yours is heart trouble, send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (not a clipping) for booklet C V D.

Other speakers in the debate included Hughes Cleaver (L — Halton); John R. MacNichol (PC-Toronto Davenport) and Hon. Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin-Simcoe.)

Could Increase Production

Mr. Rowe argued that the government could increase production by reducing the tax load that now was discouraging business, iniative and enterprise.

At the House opening, Defence Minister Claxton met an earlier Progressive Conservative request by tabling the 1,000,000 words of evidence, including 300 exhibits, of the 1942 Royal Commission inquiry into the dispatch of Canadian Force to Hong Kong in October 1941.

Members voted 146 to 61 against a Progressive Conservative motion for the production of correspondence exchanged between the Canadian and British governments in connection of the Hong Kong force. Most C.C.F. and Social Credit members supported the government. Another Progressive Conservative motion calling for production of correspondence with the Maltby report on Hong Kong was dropped without a formal division.

To Hold Debate

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the government plans shortly to call the External Affairs Department estimates for study and then open a formal debate on international affairs.

Mr. King obtained approval of a resolution to meet opposition requests that legislation seeking ratification of the Geneva trade agreement be divided into two parts to permit a separate debate on British preferential tariffs.

In the excise tax debate, Mr. Abbott said Canada has been exporting at a high level on credit. Up to the end of 1946 she was able to do this because the production was above domestic requirements, but in 1947 this position changed with the development of a greater domestic demand which found the country consuming about the same amount of goods it was producing.

If Canada was going to continue to maintain its overseas exports, the country would have to reduce its consumption.

Mr. Cleaver touched on the constitutionality question and said that in announcing the exchange-conservation program Mr. Abbott simply had stated parliament would be asked to impose the excise taxes. No one could say it was unconstitutional for a minister to announce to the people what he planned to do.

No one could say it was unconstitutional for parliament to impose retroactive taxes. This was done all the time in the budget.

It would have been a "dereliction of duty" if Mr. Abbott had not taken the steps he had in a time of emergency.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Lyn Fair, who gave an account of her trip to Chicago with the "Four Club". The party from Ontario was royally entertained, and met other members from Poland, Uruguay and China. Mr. and Mrs. Fair, Miss Irwin, ten girls and fourteen boys travelled by special coach, all wearing maple leaves, name badges and the Four H. emblem during their stay in Chicago. They were the recipients of a large number of gifts, i.e., books, pictures, pencils, scrap books, autograph albums, etc., from the firms who sponsored the various events and catered for numerous freemeals. They viewed the horse show at the Coliseum, enjoyed a ride on the elevated train, were treated to several special programs, and on the last day the International Harvester Co., entertained the group from Canada and they "listened in" to the bidding on the grain market.

During the trip Mr. and Mrs. Fair celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary, and the group from Ontario staged a special party in their honor.

To close a pleasant afternoon the hostess and her assistants served appetizing refreshments. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Philp and her group for hospitality, and to Mrs. Fair for her interesting address with thanks to program committee.

Mrs. Chard presented the theme "publicity" saying—

"If we advertise our work, that's publicity,
Do your best and never shirk, that's publicity,
So let's talk, 'phone and put in press,
Broadcast all the phrases of true helpfulness,
Our organization helps civilization,
So boost and advertise."

SHIP CAPTAIN GETS MEDAL

Stockholm — (CP). — Captain John Nordlander, master of the S.S. Drottningholm of the Swedish - American Line has received the Swedish Red Cross medal for transporting hundreds of foreign nationals on exchange trips during the Second World War.

Historic Fort Will be Opened A Second Time

Kingston, Ont., —(CP)— Historic Fort Henry, used during the war as a prisoner-of-war camp, will be re-opened to the public, May 24. At least, that's the hope of Ronald Way, fort historian, who is supervising work of repair and reconstruction now going on at full speed.

A few days after the department of national defence turned the Fort over to the highways department last December, a crew of some 50 repairmen, carpenters and metal-workers swung into action. The job that faced them was not easy.

Temporary buildings were clustered in the huge inner rampart and other walls and stairways had to be removed. Damage to installations was widespread. Doors were smashed in, every pane of glass was broken, electric fixtures had been ripped apart and nearly all the bulbs were broken.

Meanwhile, refurbishing and rehabilitation of the curios, antiques and period pieces that graced the ancient structure before they were stored away for the war years, is also going forward. To accomplish this, a workshop has been set up in an old storeroom. In this cavernous room sounds the alien hum of electric saws, burnishers and drills. Some eight men, employees of the department of highways, are working on the old equipment as well as building new articles to replace those destroyed or damaged beyond repair.

Built originally to keep Americans off Canadian soil, following the war of 1812, the Fort was restored in 1938—and is being restored now—with exactly the opposite purpose in view.

The first restoration took two years to complete, at an expenditure of about $875,000. In the years since the Fort held a regular garrison—forty years before—the walls had caved in and the ditches were filled with rubble and rock.

Restoration was first begun in July, 1936, under the direction of Mr. Way and the sponsorship of the department of highways. Guns were reassembled (though not to operating efficiency); walls were repaired; electric lighting was installed; collections of musketry, swords, uniforms, naval goods retrieved from English warships sunk at nearby Cedar Island and other mementos, were set up in various rooms.

Whole idea behind the restoration was to achieve an illusion of walking directly into the world as it was 100 years ago. To this end, a fortress guard establishment was set up. Clad in resplendent scarlet uniforms of the period, the guards stood watch at the gates and guided visitors. In the 13 months the Fort was open before the outbreak of the Second World War it was visited by 93,000 persons.

Of great interest to visitors is its significant position—guarding Naval Bay and Point Frederick, where vital naval yards had been established. The Fort was to be one of a system of six redoubts that would make the ship-building establishment secure from American attack. The other forts were never erected—the British taxpayers, who were footing the bill, decided they had paid enough for construction of Fort Henry.

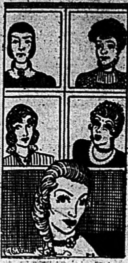
Fashions in Faces

Old time photograph albums—some families still have them—together with treasured snapshots of the past, form a history of fashions in faces.

Look at a picture of your great-grandmother when, at the age of seventeen, she was a bride. Her hair is parted in the middle, looped over her ears. She wears a plain little bonnet with strings. Her bodice has no more fit than a flour sack. She carries an expression of serious responsibility.

In later years she acquired a grim, determined look as befitted the period when gaiety was not quite respectable. Everything that made one happy and light-hearted was more or less wicked. An inheritance from our Puritan foremothers.



Faces Have Changed

Now let us take her daughter, your grandmother. At the age of eighteen she crimped her hair on a curling iron, wore a wasp waist corset, dresses that touched the sidewalks. Ten years later she was in a straight-front corset. Her huge pompadour was upholstered with demountable hair, and a coronet braid topped off the hirsute tower. Her Merry Widow hat was the size of a tire. She had thick eyebrows, and paint never touched her fair countenance. But her face had softened. It was not like her austere mother's dour map. Life was getting better for women.

Then came the period of the hound-dog hair-do. Waved side locks were dragged downward, resembling dog's ears. This little whimsy changed the contour of a girls face, making it look longer. The hair was pulled forward over onto the cheeks, down over the forehead. It was a case of all hair and almost no face.

The greatest change came at the end of World War 1, when corsets were chucked into furnaces and make-up became respectable. Lipstick and rouge defied conventions and the protests of old-fashioned parents. The feminine face became vivid, sometimes lithographic, sometimes softly lighted, according to the methods used.

It was at this time that the once-beautiful and luxuriant eyebrows took a terrific beating. Tweezing started with the removal of a few strays. When the frenzy was at its wildest, the growth was entirely annihilated and a thin crayon lines substituted.

Now observe the photographs of beautiful models who pose for fashion magazines. A new face, yes, indeed! Bones have become fashionable. High cheek bones, and a gaunt and hungry look. Hair slicked back, plain as plain, never a sign of an undulation. A low-slung chignon at the back.

It is all more or less exciting. Faces, as well as figures, have changed. But, after all, it is always the same old girl, n'est pas?

How will you feel tomorrow?

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There is nothing more irritating to have around the house than a miserly husband.

Sometimes, indeed, it goes far beyond mere irritation and becomes a major problem. There are undoubtedly many wives who are finding it so these days when their husbands refuse to recognize the high cost of living and expect them to run the home today on the same amount of money given them five years ago, or even ten or fifteen.

It would be bad enough if this were all a wife had to contend with from a financial standpoint, but when insult is added to injury and the husband finances his own whims and hobbies, sometimes even using money of hers to do it, while refusing to provide adequately for his home, the grievance can take on staggering proportions.

One wife, who has reached the point where she says she "can't stand much more" and signs her letter "Desperate", writes me that she has five people in the house to feed, counting her husband's mother who has lived with them for the entire 19 years of their marriage; that the amount of money she is allowed for food, for clothing and other household bills, "used to do, but in the last few years it hasn't. I don't ask him for any more," she adds, "because I did it once and he nearly took my head off."

At her mother's death, this wife inherited a little money, some of which she used to finish paying money owed on furnishings for their house. With the rest, at her husband's request, she bought him a pair of hunting dogs and a car.

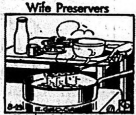
"When I bought the car," she writes, "he said that whenever I wanted to use it I could. But whenever I asked for it, after he got through with his questions about why I wanted it and where I was going, and all the rest, I was too disgusted to go. Three times he has promised to buy me a small car, but whenever I say anything about it he always says we can't afford it. Yet he keeps ten hunting dogs that cost anywhere from $85 to $125 apiece." She adds that, in spite of not being able to "afford" a car for her, he has just bought a new car, part of which is being paid for with money which she earned working during the war. Moreover, the new car is so busy transporting hunting parties and being being used by him for other purposes that she has no chance at it.

In addition to his selfishness about money, this husband also makes his wife's life miserable by reserving the right to flirt with other women while putting on a scene if she ever speaks to any other man. It is hardly to be wondered at that this wife has reached the point where, as she says, "she can't stand it any more."

The wonder is that she has stood it all for these 19 years, and if it goes on for another 19 it is her own fault. Some wives, unable to earn money themselver, might be forced to accept such a situation, but this woman has already demonstrated her ability to earn, and she can do it again. She says she has two daughters, but if these daughters are not old enough to look out for themselves, what about letting that mother-in-law takes a little responsibility for them while the wife goes out and takes some sort of job? If the husband's mother were the one to manage the marketing and meals for awhile on the sum doled out by son, it might be an excellent thing. It could be that Mother might be able to get more out of her son's pocket than his own wife could.

My recommendation to her is that she do just this—work outside her home for awhile, let her mother-in-law earn her keep by taking household responsibility, and keep what she earns to spend as she pleases.

Wife Preservers



If picnic or lunch sandwiches are left over, beat up a couple of eggs with about two-thirds cup of milk, dip the entire sandwich in this mixture and fry in deep fat to a golden brown. This is good for meat, cheese or jelly sandwiches.

Sweet Sixteen Party Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a party on my sixteenth birthday, and since we live in such a small apartment we are going to rent a hall for the party. (1) I would like to have the service buffet style, unless you have another suggestion. What is your advice? And we had thought of serving cold cuts and salad, then sweets and cake, or do you think it should be all sweet items? (2) On my list I have forty guests, twenty boys and twenty girls. The girls are between fifteen and eighteen, and most of the boys are between seventeen and eighteen. I don't think any of the boys are going steady, but should I ask them to bring a girl? (3) Since most of the boys are about seventeen, should I have only dancing on the program, or also games? I have a boy friend who would help me plan some games, and since he's been to many parties with the other 17-year-old boys he would know what they would like to do. (4) At a big party like this should the birthday-er open the presents during the party or afterwards?

D. K.

(1) By all means plan to have buffet service . . . it's perfect for this kind of party. Cold cuts might in these days, be too-ambitious (and too expensive) . . . you'll have forty hunghy guests . . . and I suggest you have a heartily-generous supply of sandwiches of assorted fillings made with bread of various kinds — white, whole wheat, rye, pumpernickel, date-and-nut, and raisined brown bread. With these a cola drink, or perhaps a punch to be served during the evening for the thirsty dancers. And, for dessert, the birthday cake and, if possible for the budget, ice cream. For nibbling: popcorn, nuts, candies. (2) Since you now have an even number of girls and boys, no reason to ask any of the boys to bring a girl. But if you discover later that some of the boys would like to have their "steady" girl friends invited, ask the boys to invite them giving you their names so that you can write to them to second the boy's invitations. Then, to balance the number, invite some more boys or ask some of the girls to ask boys. (3) Do enlist that boy friend as your adviser, and follow his ideas. I hope he'll suggest dancing, with perhaps a seasoning of games. Use one game as an ice-breaker, perhaps for choosing partners for the first dance. (4) To show your vivid appreciation and enthusiasm, open each birthday gift as it is presented to you . . . and thank for it with gusto. And as you say good-by to each guest mention his or her gift and say "thank you" again . . . "You were so nice to bring me that book . . . thank you, and I'm sure I'm going to have a wonderful time reading it!"

Important Advice to the Groom's Mother

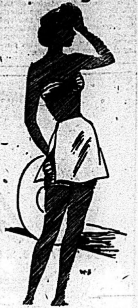
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married in June, and I am entirely in doubt as to what I should wear. Would you advise me to wear a dress (either floor-length or street-length) or a suit?

Janet

The one who will guide you about what type of costume you are expected to wear at your son's wedding is the mother of his bride-to-be. So do get in touch with her at once, either by letter or telephone or through your son or his fiancee. What you wear will depend on what type of wedding it is to be, and, most particularly, what the bride's mother is to wear. Remember that you, the groom's mother, will be the woman guest of honor at the wedding, and so your costume should be of a type similar to the hostess' costume . . . floor-length if her dress is floor-length, street-length if hers is street-length . . . and of a color to harmonize with the color of the hostess' dress.

Beach Togs



Suit of black and white jersey.

By VERA WINSTON

BEACH WEAR is either voluminous or decidedly skimpy although not quite as scant as the Bikis that dotted the sands along the Riviera last Summer. This suit is made of black and white striped jersey. It has a strapless bra and the underpants are draped to tiny buttons at the side. The overskirt is of white sharkskin and is zipped at one side, with both sides slit.

Hello Folks!

"An important part of my diet ever since my first bottle has been Crown Brand Corn Syrup. Now, that may be all right for a little character like myself, but let me tell you, these grown-ups sure are lucky what with Mom serving them Crown Brand Corn Syrup with so many of their dishes. And she uses it in her baking, too, as a sweetener. I can hardly wait until I'm old enough to have some hot waffles or pancakes smothered with delicious Crown Brand. If it's as good as it is in my cereal—mmmmm!"

For years doctors have recommended the use of Crown Brand Corn Syrup as a satisfactory carbohydrate acting as a milk modifier for bottle-fed infants.

Fashion Flashes

A FIELD DAY this year for women who love really beautiful prints. Fine rayons, rich pure silk crepes, satins and taffetas — in luscious colors with exquisite flower-cluster prints or delicate line abstraction designs — are available in yardage departments and have been made up into really exquisite dresses and suits.

NOT TO BE NEGLECTED, when it comes to coats, is the very new-looking thigh-hugging wrapped shortie. Covert in various colors — edged in contrasting shades, blazer style — is used for a good series of this type of coat, which has curved pockets and button trim.

COLOR RISES to the head via the new hats. A little, head-hugging, off-the-face hat is of canary yellow straw trimmed with green velvet ribbon in back. A half wheel in front has little olive green wings between which are tiny blue cornflowers, yellow cowslips, red poppies and white daisies. The flower spray extends almost to the shoulder at one side.

COMING ALONG for late Spring and Summer wear are handbags of washable white calf. One bag is accented with a deep, gold-washed metal frame that extends down either side, and has two wide bracelet handles.

LOTS OF LACE in the evening picture. Navy blue lace over matching taffeta is used for a neat dinner dress with deep, scooped neckline, snug bodice and flared, ankle-length skirt.

STILL AROUND, and very much in the picture, is the suit of silk. Moire, in a sort of brownish-purple eggplant shade, is used for a handsome frock and matching jacket. The fitted, waist-length jacket, with high rolled collar, is worn over a dress with a very scooped neckline and a modified polonaise hip drape — very young and beguiling for the slim of figure.

COLORFUL GLOVES are shown for Spring, such as the long glove in soft gray doeskin with full-length trimming of scrolls and arabesques in wine-colored pearl beads.

Discarded Duds Of Movie Stars Go as Bargains

By RALPH DIGHTON

Hollywood, (AP) — Back in 1931 a pert little Irish girl named Patsy Brogan was faced with the program of stretching her secretary salary to cover the requirements of a secretary's wardrobe.

Patsy figured and figured. Finally she came up with the idea that has made her an international institution and a unique figure in the clothing business.

It started when Patsy began wondering what became of movie stars' old clothes. She investigated and found that stars either gave them away or sold them to peddlers. Patsy cornered the market by offering the stars a better deal. Patsy would sell the clothes on consignment, for as much as she could get, and charge only a commission.

Her first client was Joan Bennett. She got the account simply by contacting a friend who was Miss Bennett's secretary. Patsy sold the clothes in a hurry, and Miss Bennett received more money for them than she had ever received before. Patsy was in business.

First thing Patsy learned about her strange business was that most customers didn't look at the label or feel the material. All they wanted to know was who wore it first. Patsy could prove that such and such a dress came from a certain star because she kept detailed records, so pretty soon her prices went up.

A dress worn by Hedy Lamar, for instance, will bring twice as much as the same dress worn by an unknown. As a result Patsy's fashionable shop in fashionable Beverley Hills looks like any of the other "exclusive" stores on the street. She gets just about the same prices. You can pay $125 for a dress in Patsy Brogan's, and up to $3,500 for a fur coat.

Big Selection

Patsy handles a complete line, from lingeries to costume belts, and from hats to shoes.

Patsy will take you around her shop and pull out typical items.

"Here's something from Lady Menol," she says. "It's a Paris gown, by Mainbocher, of multi-colored lame. It cost her $1,500. I'm selling it for $150.

"This is a beautiful eggshell satin gown of Ginger Rogers. She paid $450 for it and I'm selling it for $95. We also have a pair of Ginger's shoes—solid plastic with red ribbon ties. She bought them for $19.95, never wore them and now we're letting them go for $8.

Patsy does a lot of business by mail. She even receives requests from abroad. The latest

ROYAL ORCHID FOR FLOWER SHOW

Admiring a white orchid from Princess Elizabeth's wedding bouquet is Jacqueline Babor, 3, of East Islip, L.I., New York. The orchid is on display at the International Flower Show in New York's Grand Central Palace. Flown to the U. S. on Nov. 24, the orchid has been preserved and has a life expectancy of five additional years.

54-Carat Pink Diamomd Gift To Elizabeth by Canadian

London, March 11. (CP)—Princess Elizabeth today examined a rare 54-carat pink diamond given her as a wedding gift and was so impressed that she remarked: "It's so lovely it seems almost a pity to cut it."

A bespectacled Belgian craftsman looked up shyly from his diamond-cutting bench and replied: "But it will be a beautiful stone when it is finished your highness."

The scene took place in the diamond-cutting factory of Briefel and Lemer, where work on the stone is about one-third completed and will be finished in mid-April.

Princess Elizabeth, accompanied by Queen Mother Mary, spent nearly an hour touring the high-windowed workrooms of the factory.

The princess smiled delightedly when she saw the diamond, a gift from Dr. H. T. Williamson, formerly of Montreal, who owns rich diamond mines in Tanganyika.

True to form, the Queen Mother asked numerous questions of a technical nature. Wearing her traditional toque and light blue coat, she was given an extra cheer by factory girls who gathered at the building entrance to welcome the royal party.

Fingering his tie nervously, S. Briefel, a partner in the firm, led the party through the workrooms.

He told the princess that when the diamond is finished it would be "one of the world's most famous stones."

"It certainly is a wonderful gift," answered the princess, who wore a brown flowered hat and a plain green coat.

A factory official said that expert diamond merchants had been unable to assess the value of the stone, but he was sure "it would run into the five figures."

They viewed the horse show at the Coliseum, enjoyed a ride on the elevated train, were treated to several special programs, and on the last day the International Harvester Co., entertained the group from Canada and they "listened in" to the bidding on the grain market.

During the trip Mr. and Mrs. Fair celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary, and the group from Ontario staged a special party in their honor.

Do your best and never shirk, that's publicity,
So let's talk, 'phone and put in press,
Broadcast all the phrases of true helpfulness,
Our organization helps civilization,
So boost and advertise."

Scallop Sweet Morsel From Sea Provides Lucrative Business

(By Paul F. Whitten in Christian Science Monitor)

The scallop is one of the finer delicacies among sea food. It is rather surprising the number of people that enjoy this sweet morsel from the sea who do not know just what a scallop is. There are two scallops commonly known to fishermen: the common scallop and the larger northern scallop. The common scallop is found along the Atlantic seaboard. Probably the sweetest and best scallops are those from the waters of New England.

The scallop I am going to describe is the Nantucket scallop. There is nearly always a great demand for these choice morsels from the harbor waters of the famous whaling port.

Nantucket is about 30 miles from Cape Cod off the Massachusetts coast. The island is 15 miles long by 3 1-2 miles wide. During the whaling days this island was world renowned. Today it is one of those fascinating summer resorts of New England. Nantucket is much as the whalers left it. About the only things to mar its antiquity are the electric light and telephone wires.

The greatest catch of scallops is in the main harbor of Nantucket. There are some in Madaket Harbor, also a few along the inner shores of near-by Muskeget Island.

The only part of the scallop that is used for food is the muscle, the rest of the soft body being discarded with the shell. The shell, as the name "scallop" implies, is truly scalloped. The hinge of the scallop is flattened. Radiating from the hinge are about 19 ridges. The color of the shell is usually a blackish-brown with alternating dark and light zones. Some of the shells when dry appear with shadings of orange, red, blue, and purple.

The young scallops (sometimes termed "spats") attach themselves to eelgrass, or other smooth, sunken objects. At one time it seemed that the eelgrass was on the verge of being destroyed by some unknown bacteria. Of course, this caused a great deal of consternation among the fishermen, for without eelgrass the supply of scallops would be greatly diminished.

The young scallop firmly attaches itself to the eelgrass and thereby is prevented from being washed by the tides into deep water. The tidewater brings in abundant supply of food to the scallop beds, which lie thick among the growth of eelgrass.

When the scallop reaches about 1 to 1 1-2 inches in diameter, it frees itself from whatever it has been attached to. From that time forth it swims freely about by means of jet propulsion. (So you see, jet propulsion was long in use before the modern jet-propelled airplane.)

During the month of August, one may see the young scallops swimming on the surface of the water. To get about, water is sucked in and then forced out between the valves or shells. The scallop seems capable of forcing the water in any direction but whether the mollusk has the ability to choose its direction of travel is rather doubtful.

The scallop grows from three to five inches being uncommonly large. The life span is probably 22 to 26 months. If the scallop is not killed off by natural enemies it may live to be five years old.

Growth may be determined by "growth marks" on the shell, shown as slight ridges. The "growth marks" may depend upon the feeding grounds.

After reaching the completed "spat" growth, the scallop returns to the ocean bed. The home of this Little Pilgrim is on a sandy bed or a place where there is eelgrass. It is capable of moving about by means of a finger-shaped foot. Scallops can readily be seen on the ocean bottom, in a slight depression, if the water is clear.

The scallop can rise to the surface by rapidly closing and opening its shell and move about at a fair rate of speed.

The inside of the scallop appears to be a mass of white, yellow, and black organs. Along the base of the shell are a number of iridescent blue specks, not unlike miniature blue beads. These specks are known as eyes" but it is doubtful if they are capable of receiving images.

On the upper part of the inside shell, near the hinge is a large white muscle which holds the two shells together. This muscle known as the scallop "eye" is the only edible part. About two thirds of the innards is useless, but can be used as bait.

The scallop season usually begins in November and lasts until the latter part of March or first of April, depending upon local regulations.

Small power boats are used. These run from 18 to 22 feet long with a beam from 8 to 10 feet. These boats are powered by a powerful one or two-cylinder, two cycle motor. There is a small cabin on most of the boats and a few have a stove for warmth.

The lone scalloper will probably have about six dredges out and the two-man crew about 8. The dredges are dragged along the ocean bottom at different rope lengths and from different parts of the boat. The dredging is done in comparatively shallow water, usually between 6 to 10 feet.

The framework of the dredge is iron. The lower bar drags along the bottom, while the upper bar holds the baglike structure open. Nearly all scallopers have slightly different arrangements on their dredges, each scallopers claiming that his device is the best "rig."

The opening of the scallop is a laborious task for the amateur. A good opener can open as many as two gallons in an hour. The average holder opens about one gallon an hour.

Quoting from an article in the Vineyard Gazette of Nov. 30, 1929: "In opening the scallop, it is held in the left hand with the flattest side uppermost, if you can determine which is the flattest side, the hinge away from the operator. The blunt-end scallop knife is inserted at the side near the hinge, where a slight gap between the shells allows an easy entrance, Scraping upward, the eye is separated from the upper shell, which opens widely, often falling clear. One motion with a skilled shucker removes the gills and other innards that completely surround the eye, and another scrape with the knife takes the eye from the under shell and drops it into a container."

The scallop industry, on a commercial basis, began in Nantucket about 1882.

In the latter part of 1926 some of the Nantucket fishermen were earning as much as $150 a week. Today, it would not be surprising if the scalloper was doing even better.

The Canadian Legion launched its "Operation Fitness" when members of its National Sports and Recreation Committee held their first meeting in Ottawa recently. It is the Legion's aim to see that every boy and girl in Canada gets an opportunity to play sports of some kind.

The committee are, sitting left: J. H. Henderson, Truro, N.S.; J. M. Rothermel, Regina; G. C. Machum, chairman, Montreal; A. Wakelyn, Calgary; T. A. M. Hulse, Aurora, Ont.; Standing: K. Softley, St. James, Man.; C. W. Tahamont, Verdun, Que.; G. M. Greer, Kamloops, B.C.; G. W. Mosher, Moncton, N.B.

Westerners Buy Scottish Cattle

Edinburgh, March 11—(CP)—Western Canadian cattle-buyers figured prominently in the recent Scottish Shorthorn breeders annual cattle sale.

Thirty - seven per cent — 155 bulls — sold on the first day of the sale were destined for overseas markets. Argentine led the parade of overseas purchasers with 44 while of 22 heifers taken for export, 10 were destined for Canada.

Supreme champion of the show, red Crieffoechter Empire from Douglas Dron, Perthshire, was sold to the Richardson Stock farms of Winnipeg for 3,000 guineas. J. Cross of Nanton Farms, Calgary, gave 1,600 guineas for the third prize Calrossie Problem.

Of the 306 bulls sold on the second and last day of the sale, the average was £365 ($1,460) or £50 less than the 1947 average.

Charles Yule of Calgary judged singlehanded the 12 bull classes and championships and said that he had "never judged a better show of bulls in all my life."

Yule, manager of the Calgary Stampede, came here at the invitation of the Shorthorn breeders association.

The Dunmore cup, given for the best heifer in the show, went to J. E. Bennion and Sons, Stackpole, Wales, with a 20-month-old Eliza heifer.

Clean up Mystery Of Lone Overshoe

Saint John, N.B., (CP)—The mystery of the solitary, unclaimed overshoe has been cleared up after more than 18 months of shrouded conjecture.

After a busy day, a new overshoe was found in a shoe store here. Apparently a pair overshoes had been sold but the customer had taken only one from the store. The storekeeper decided to keep the "orphan" in a handy spot.

Recently a British merchant seaman walked into the store and claimed the overshoe.

He explained that he had purchased a pair for his wife in England and had carried his package almost around the world before he took them home and discovered he had only one overshoe.

SHINE SHOES BY WASHING

An elastic shoe has been invented which, it is claimed, is scuffless and will remain shiny after washing with soap and water.

RECIPE FOR B.I.G. AMBASSADOR CHOCOLATE CAKE

½ cup Cocoa; 1½ teaspoons Baking Soda; ⅓ cup Cold Water, ⅔ cup Butter; 1 teaspoon Vanilla Extract; 1¾ cups Granulated Sugar; 2 Eggs; 2½ cups Sifted Flour; ½ teaspoon Salt; ¾ cup Sour Milk or Buttermilk.

Mix cocoa, baking soda and cold water to a smooth paste and set aside. Cream butter until it is soft and creamy and add vanilla while creaming. Gradually add sugar and beat until mixture is light and fluffy. Beat eggs with rotary beater until foamy and add gradually to fat-sugar mixture, beating thoroughly. Mix flour and salt and sift two or three times. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk, making 3 or 4 additions, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Stir gently and quickly until batter is well blended and add cocoa paste. Mix quickly, but do not over-mix, and then spread carefully into well-greased 9-inch square cake pan. Bake in moderate oven (350-375F.) for 50-55 minutes. Allow baking cake to "set" for 15-20 minutes before removing from pan. Cool and spread with any desired icing.

Child Survives Rare Operation

Edmonton,—(CP)— Little Ronnie Onufru of Lac la Biche, Alta., 136 miles northeast of Edmonton, will play and laugh again as a normal youngester because of a rare operation performed here.

Ronnie is 3 1/2 years old. But he was born a victim of a deadly disease—patent ductus arteriousus—and had to be carried everywhere before his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Onufruw, consulted a specialist in thoracic surgery.

The specialist operated—and now, unless unlooked—for complications arise—the boy will enjoy a healthy, happy childhood.

Patent ductus is a post-birth abnormality of the circulatory system. It produces a condition opposite to that prevailing in the case of a "blue baby."

In it, a large artery which carries blood from the heart to the lungs before birth fails to atrophy, or cease to function, as it should do after the child is born.

As a result, the circulation of the blood remains the same after birth as it did in the period of gestation.

"Too much blood is carried from the heart to the lungs in the baby. The heart becomes greatly enlarged and the baby's growth is retarded," the surgeon explained.

Fortunately, the condition is uncommon. But statistics show that 86 per cent of babies suffering from it die before reaching 10 years of age—simply of heart disease. The heart wears out.

Ronnie was under observation for three weeks before the operation was performed. In the operation the unatrophied artery is sealed off with silk ligatures so no blood can pass between the heart and the lungs by this channel.

Children die from the ailment really because of the terrific blood pressure on the muscles of the heart, the surgeon said.

In 1938 a Boston surgeon, Dr. Robert Gross, first operated successfully to relieve patent ductus arteriosus. Until Ronnie's operation, however, no similar surgical step has been attempted in Western Canada.

NATIVE TOPS IN LAW EXAM

Umtata, Cape Province, South Africa, (CP)—Morris Toni, a native, articled to Senator Campbell in Umtata, passed first in the Cape Province attorney's law examination and has received notification from the law society that he has been awarded the society's prize. This is the first time that a native has won this distinction.

Toni, a graduate of Fort Hare Native College, was a teacher before taking up law.

Lying to Child About Operation Causes Neurosis

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, —(AP)— Tonsil operations, wrongly handled, often make a child neurotic or emotionally sick, Dr. Lester L. Coleman warns.

The wrong handling, he says, is in failure by doctors or parents to prepare the child emotionally for the operation or in fibbing to him about it. Terror and fright from the unexpected can bring on serious emotional troubles.

Dr. Coleman, an ear, nose and throat specialist, told a meeting at the New York Academy of Medicine that some of these troubles appear soon, while others may be delayed for years.

The immediate effect, he said, may be queer changes in behavior, night terrors, distrust of parents, disobedience, hostility or obsessions. A child may be afraid to go to sleep, remembering the anaesthetic and that something bad happened while he was "asleep" in the hospital.

Psychologists have traced some neurotic behavior in adults to the emotional wound suffered in childhood tonsil operations. Also, children may develop lifelong fear and distrust of doctors, hospitals and anaesthesia. The danger of emotional wounds is greatest in very young children, under four years of age, he said.

Give Honest Explanation

To avoid the bad emotional after-affects, he suggests:

Give the child an honest explanation of why the operation has to be done. Try to avoid surprise and confusion at the hospital. Tell him to expect to see people in white gowns, with masks and why. Describe a recognizable picture of the operating room. Explain that the anaesthetic is to help save him from pain, and that sleep will be short.

A vast number of patients, said Dr. Coleman in discussing other phases of his work, have no physical causes for troubles with their nose, ears, or throat. In others, the emotional problems may make real physical ailments worse.

One woman was actually allergic to her husband's personality, he continued. She had a badly congested nose, as in a constant cold. But this disappeared when her husband broke his leg and was taken to the hospital. It returned when he returned. Investigation showed the husband was an alcoholic, and physically cruel to her when intoxicated. Her nose trouble stopped after her husband began treatment to find the cause of his drinking and bring it under control.

Loss of voice or ringing in the ears are sometimes due only to emotional conflicts, Dr. Coleman added, and the treatment must recognize this.

On the other hand, some persons labelled as psychiatric cases may really have a physical or organic cause for their actions or symptoms, he cautioned.

"The physican or surgeon should be alert to both the physical and emotional causes of symtons, and when indicated, he should use the psychotherapist as he would any specialist in medicine to diagnose the trouble and overcome it."

Small Rent Loss In Vets' Hostel

Vancouver, —(CP)— The veteran hostel in the old Hotel Vancouver here has lost only $432 in bad rents during the two years of operation, Hon. H.H. Stevens, president of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council, informed the annual meeting.

"We have handled collections totalling $250,000," he said, "and there is not a business in the city operating at such a small loss. "These young fellows and their wives are doing a grand job. Five thousand persons have been sheltered in the last two years."

He reported, however, a $153,000 loss on operation of the huge hostel. Of this $105,036 went to wages; $53,000 to fuel; and $27,000 for maintenance. Taxes were $65,000.

Mr. Stevens said that $500,000 would be necessary to put the old building in safe condition if permanent occupancy were to be considered. It is expected, however, that a low-rental housing project will be completed soon and that the hotel will be closed.

The hotel is expected to be torn down this summer and a large departmental store built on the site.

Five West Powers Would Open Door To Other States

Brussels, Belgium, March 10. (AP)—Five western European countries negotiating a military alliance agreed in principle today that their union will be open to other countries of the continent.

France and Britain have pushed for a five-power pact open to other powers, and British officials said the Benelux countries—Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—had accepted this as a basis for discussion.

The provision to leave the door open was believed to be designed primarily for Italy.

Such a clause could, however, accommodate any of the Marshall plan countries which might want to join in the future.

Diplomats of the five countries have completed nearly all the other articles of the treaty. Economic and military clauses were sent this morning to the drafting committee, and officials predicted this conference may end tomorrow or Friday.

Earlier Pierre Elvinger, of Luxembourg, said the drafting committee already has prepared texts of eight articles and is working on the preamble. He said four articles are to be completed.

It was understood the articles drafted today included provisions for mutual assistance, machinery for settlement of disagreements arising among the five powers, and economic questions.

Trainer Prefers Dogs and Horses

Edmonton (CP)—The residents of South Edmonton know that Alfred Nanson is fond of animals—but, of course, that isn't unusual. However, few of them know that before settling down here he travelled with a vaudeville act, trained wild animals and won championships with his entries in dog trials.

Mr. Nanson made the news again recently when he exhibited what he believes is the only Siberian shepherd dog in Canada. The dog is a five-months-old pup that resembles a bear cub with fluffy, jet-black hair, but he already is as well-trained as the average sporting dog is at a year.

It took Mr. Nanson ten minutes to hide a glove. When he released the pup, it was back in less than two minutes—with the glove dangling in his mouth.

Nanson never uses a stick or a whip on his dogs—he merely says "hurry" when he wants them to start. If they don't obey as quickly as they should, he says in his broken English, "What did you done? I tell you."

The pride and joy of the Nanson household at the moment is not an unusually smart pup or a show dog—but six two-weeks-old puppies that have been cross bred so they will not lose their hair. The mother of the puppies was brought from Siberia.

Nanson has trained several kinds of animals, including lions, leopards, horses, elephants and even a cat. He finds the easiest animals to train are dogs, horses and elephants.

Once rated as one of the best animal trainers in the world, Mr. Nanson now lives in a log house on the outskirts of Edmonton. He finds life peaceful here and is engaged in horse-training at present. Someday he hopes to re-enter the show world with another famous dog.

Women's Fight For Equality 100 Years Old

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York, (AP)—Millions of American women voting for president this year will mark the 100th anniversary of the first organized battle to give them the franchise right.

The battle began July 19, 1848, when the world's first women's rights convention met in the village of Seneca Falls, N.Y. But the spark that started the smouldering fire was lit eight years before that.

Early in the 19th century, some American women, who hitherto had taken no part in public affairs, began to work and speak for the abolition of slavery. Eight went as accredited delegates to the world anti-slavery convention in London in the summer of 1840.

Among them was the Philadelphia Quaker, Lucretia Mott. Also among those attending was Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who, as a child, had cut from her father's law books laws unfavorable to women. She was the bride of a convention delegate, Henry Stanton.

Women delegates to a world convention were unheard of in Europe. The meeting had scarcely convened when it split on the question of whether women delegates should be admitted. When the question was put to a vote the women lost, and the accredited women delegates, who had come 3,000 miles, were shown to seats behind a curtained bar, separating them from the rest.

Mrs. Mott and Mrs. Stanton, meeting after the slavery convention, resolved to hold another for women's rights. Eight years passed before they could meet and crystallize their plans.

Successful Convention

Then they called the women's rights convention July 19 and 20 in the Wesleyan chapel at Seneca Falls, where Mrs. Stanton lived. Before the meeting the women worked feverishly to draw up a declaration of sentiments.

The convention was a big success. The declaration of sentiments with attached grievances was read, discussed and adopted: "We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men and women are created equal. . ."

Seventy-two years later, on Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th amendment giving women the vote went into effect. The century of 1848—1948 also saw the women win the right to hold office, own and control property, collect wages, make a will, practise a profession, share the guardianship of their children, and be a witness after marriage.

They gained the right to freedom of speech, freedom to organize, freedom to petition, freedom to follow conscience in the matter of religion, greater economic opportunities, higher wages, equal education with men, equal representation, equality in marriage rights, equality in the social state.

In this election year national women's organizations urge women to consider these words of Carrie Chapman Catt in "Victory", (the National American Women Suffrage Association history of the battle for women's rights):

"What now, women of America? . . . Another century calls you. Side by side with men citizens it is for you to rejuvenate, the republic, revivify its faith and replenish the fires of human freedom. . . . The next century must disclose what liberty really means, how it may be preserved in order that it may benefit the entire human race. . Will you, free women of America, lead on to that ideal democracy never yet attained, but which alone can salvage threatened civilization?"

WILL TRAVEL VIA PANAMA CANAL

London, March 9 (Reuters) — The outward voyage of the King and Queen to New Zealand and Australia early next year will be via the Panama Canal, it was learned today.

This rules out speculation that the Royal party will visit the New Dominions of India and Parkistan on the way to the Antipodes.

The route chosen is taken to mean that they will first visit New Zealand.

Buckingham Palace officials denied American News Agency reports that Malaya and Ceylon, as well as India and Pakistan, might be visited during the tour.

Stirling Midgets Blast Sundridge By 15-6 Score

Stirling, March 11 (Special)—Spearheaded by the flashing offensive play of Doug Wannamaker and R. Mason, who scored eleven goals between them, and Jack McCrory who accounted for three more, the Stirling Midget "C" squad decisively defeated the Sundridge team here last night by a 15-6 score to take a nine-goal lead into the second game of the O. M. H. A. semi-finals series. The second tilt of the goals-to-count series will be played in Sundridge on Saturday.

One thousand fans crammed the local arena to see Ross Hermiston's youngsters go on a scoring spree, and maintain their seasonal undefeated record. They scored five goals in row after Sundridge drew first blood in the initial period, rammed home three more in the second against a single return from the visitors, and in the third ripped eight pucks behind an amazed Sundridge goalie while his mates were potting four.

No Match For Winners

The classy Sundridge team were no match for their smaller, speedier opponents. Wannamaker and Mason were in their scoring glory and the two starry youngsters, with McCrory, whose picture goal in the last seconds of play, ended the scoring, a close second, turned in a brilliant performance.

Wannamaker fired the rubber home on no less than six occasions with Mason accounting for five markers. McCrory helped himself to three with Robson getting the remaining tally.

Doug MacDonald, Sundridge forward was the star of the husky visitors, potting the rubber for three of his team's goals. McCreary also shone on the offensive for Sundridge netting the rubber twice with Wood getting the sixth goal.

The game was fast, and clean with Referee J. Dunbar, of Sundridge having a somewhat easy time. No penalties were incurred by either team.

The teams:

Sundridge—Goal, C. Putman; defence, C. Kunkel, M. Wood; centre, R. Steele; right wing, C. Mosseau; left wing, C. Ibbiston; alternates, G. Stack, W. McCreary W. Christie, C. McCreary, D. Wittick, J. Webber, D. McDonald.

Referee — J. Dunbar, Sundridge, Ralph Utman for Stirling.

THREE RUSS BOOTLEGGERS CAUGHT AT MOSCOW

Moscow, March 11 — (AP)—Three Russian bootleggers have been apprehended in the Moscow area and will be brought to justice, the trade union newspaper Trud reported today.

The paper said one man was taken into custody in Noginsk for using sugar from state stores to make "samogon" — which comes out "moonshine' in a loose translation.

Two others were arrested at Volokolansk for distilling samogon from bread.

Training Camp Notes

New York, March 11 (AP) —Dan Bankhead, Brooklyn pitcher from the Memphis Negro League, is getting a chance to show how he can play outfield.

Bankhead's single helped the Dodgers score four runs in the second inning of an exhibition game in the Dominican Republic yesterday with Montreal Royals of the International League. Brooklyn won 8-2.

"Maybe he's a great outfielder," said manager Leo Durocher. "I'll never know unless I try him. One thing I do know—he's a great all-round athlete. The first time he came to bat last year he hit a home run."

A real battle looms for the Boston Braves second base job between ex-Dodger Eddie Stanky and Connie Ryan, Tribe veteran. Ryan punched a single, double and triple in five trips yesterday as Boston trounced Cincinnati Reds 14-3. Stanky is expected in camp Saturday.

The Phillie's pitching is beginning to worry manager Ben Chapman. In two straight games with Cincinnati and Detroit, they have been touched for 28 runs. In contrast, the Phils have been able to score only eight times. Detroit blasted Philadelphia yesterday 14-5.

Hitting, Detroit Tigers' most needed weapon for the 1948 campaign, has come easy for regulars and rookies alike in the early exhibition games. In their first two contests, the Bengals banged out 29 hits for 20 runs, with almost everybody getting in on the fun.

FIVE DAY WEEK FOR POLICE

Toronto, March 11 (CP) —The Toronto Police Department will start on a five-day week next November.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11 (AP)—When the announcer giving the Yankee line-ups yesterday said: "Centrefield, Cliff Mapes," a venerable fan stood up and shouted, "where's Joe?" then stomped out and got his money back.... This writer can sympathize with the fan, for one thing he has picked up during a couple of weeks in Florida is a great admiration for Joe DiMaggio, not merely as a ball player but as a grand guy, personally.... He's always ready to sign an autograph or pose for a picture or give a quick answer to a fan's question, and he does it with a ready smile when a less obliging person probably would tell the fan to go jump in the gulf.... Maybe Joe feels that way, but he doesn't say it ... Incidentally, the reason he didn't play yesterday, except as a pinch-hitter, is that his arm, operated on last fall, still stiffens up a little and he's taking it easy on throwing.

Strictly Business

Before yesterday's game some New York writers were ribbing DiMaggio about the catch Al Gionfriddo made off him during the 1947 world series...."Did it make you mad to see that Gionfriddo got beaned?" one asked.... "That's a heck of a way to get even," Joe countered ....

"You know," DiMag went on, "Gionfriddo caused me to make the best speech of my career last winter....We were at a dinner together and first Al gave them his version of the catch....When it came my turn, I just said I was very happy that Al made that catch, because that extended the series, gave the Yankees an extra big crowd and more money and then they could pay me a little more."

Proven Method Of Taking Fish Census Needed

Ottawa (CP)—Someone once said:: "What the world needs is a good five-cent cigar" but a Dalhousie University zoologist hints that there is more need of an economical and accurate way to count the number of fish in Canadian waters.

F. R. Hayes of Dalhousie's zoological laboratories and the Nova Scotia Department of Industry, outlines three present-day methods of fish counting in the Dominion Fisheries department publication "The Canadian Fish Culturist." But, Mr. Hayes says, there's a catch in all three, literally and figuratively.

One method is to poison the lake and count the dead fish, but that isn't very practical. A second is to count the catch during the fishing season. This is costly and also in the surrounding community there is often a flourishing sport of fishing through the ice which throws out calculations.

The third method involves catching as many fish as possible, marking them and then throwing them back. After a period the lake is again fished and the proportion of marked to unmarked fish represents a percentage of the population.

Using the third method there are many sources of error, Mr. Hayes writes. Some of the fish may die of handling or old age, a fish may steer clear of taking a hook again and the census taker may miss an occasional marked fish the second time.

For general purposes, the three methods are sufficient but the fish census men still need a way to find the exact fish population in Canadian lakes.

What Drew's Letter Said; What Duff Report Said

5-Point Summary Of Letter Outlines Premier's Charges

Says Warning of War Was Ignored by Govt.

(By THE CANADIAN PRESS)

In a letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, dated July 11, 1942, Col. George A. Drew charged that, despite warnings by the British Government that war with Japan was an early possibility, the Canadian force was dispatched to Hong Kong in October, 1941, untrained and ill-equipped for battle.

Col. Drew, now Premier of Ontario, took a sharp issue in this letter — the Federal Government declined to table it in the House of Commons — with the report of the 1942 Royal Commission inquiry into Hong Kong, in which he participated as opposition counsel.

The findings of the commissioner, Sir Lyman P. Duff, then Chief Justice of Canada, "are directly contrary to the evidence as a whole," Col. Drew maintained.

Following is a five-point summary of statements in the letter:

Imminence of War

Three days before the Canadian Hong Kong expedition sailed from Vancouver, Oct. 27, 1941, the Prime Minister received "the most explicit warning" from the British government "of the possibility of early hostilities."

This message, along with a second from the British government of the same Oct. 24 date, "left no doubt that the Japanese government had passed under the control of extremists on Oct. 16 and that in their opinion war in the Pacific was an early possibility."

The second message referred in specific terms to the "altered circumstances" in the Far East. "I. was a message of the utmost importance because it showed that the British Admiralty was acting upon the assumption that danger had increased in the Pacific and in addition to the escort already arranged for the troopship, a cruiser escort was being provided from Manila to Hong Kong."

On Oct. 16, according to the United States' Roberts report of the inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster, the U.S. War and Navy Departments instructed their Pacific outposts to make their dispositions with regard to the early possibility of war.

Of Same Opinion

"You were informed that the government of the United Kingdom was of the same opinion as the government of the United States and that they were acting accordingly."

It would be "inconceivable" if the Prime Minister had not been informed of the reaction of the British government. It would also be "inconceivable" if he was not told of the U.S. reaction, unless the partnership with the U.S. in the joint defence board was "utterly meaningless."

In any event, Mr. King was "definitely informed" Oct. 24 in the two messages mentioned.

"I was unable to procure an order for full disclosure from the Commission but, even without full disclosure, I saw unmistakable proof that you were warned days before the departure of this force and that there was every reason to take stock of the situation in the Pacific and to anticipate the possibility of early hostilities."

While the question of the Hong Kong force was under consideration, there never was any thought that Hong Kong could be held in event of war with Japan.

State of Training

The Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada from Quebec City—the two battalions in the Hong Kong force— were "hopelessly untrained for war."

Up to the time of their departure, neither unit had been able to give its men training with the two-inch mortar. They had never fired a three-inch mortar, an anti-tank rifle, an anti-aircraft machine gun, a sub-machine gun or rifle grenade or thrown a live bomb. The Grenadiers had never fired their Bren guns and until just before departure had never fired service ammunition with their rifles.

The war committee of the Canadian cabinet and the general staff knew that an early attack by Japan was possible and they knew that these men might be called on to fight a desperate enemy at any time after debarkation.

"Nevertheless, units were sent which had never had any firing practice whatever with some of their most important weapons. They had little firing practice with any weapons....

"They were unready for active service by any standards of training."

The fact that it was known that war with Japan was an early possibility should have governed the composition of the force and the state of its equipment.

Mechanical Transport

The Canadians went into action against the Japanese before a single one of their 212 vehicles had arrived at Hong Kong.

The need for this transport — and of water vehicles—was underlined in messages from Hong Kong, yet the Royal Commission report said there was no detriment to the expedition due to failure of the vehicles to accompany the troops.

The report conveys the impression that failure to get 20 priority vehicles on the troopship Awatea, which carried the force, and failure to get the remainder to Hong Kong before the fighting started were matters of relatively little importance.

The Commission findings that "some lack of energy" was shown by N.D.H.Q. in getting the 20 vehicles to Vancouver in time were far from adequate.

Creation and Dispatch of Force

So casual was the method of dispatch that no staff officer in Ottawa knew that the Hong Kong force had left without vehicles until it was far at sea.

The War Committee of the Cabinet received no report on the state of the force when it sailed. The system of control and checking details was so inefficient that Hon. J. L. Ralston, Defence Minister at the time, did not know the troops were without transport until Dec. 15, one week after the Japanese attack.

The arrangements for reinforcements were so delayed that 450 new officers and men only joined the units immediately before departure or, in some instances, at stations en route.

Of these, about 140 had less than the minimum 16 weeks' training required for overseas service. Twenty-three men, left behind by another battalion because they were below mental standards of that battalion, were included.

The force left Vancouver 51 men short, that number being shown as deserters when the units left. This was known to no staff officer in Ottawa.

N.D.H.Q. Staff

While the report referred to the Canadian military authorities undertaking a "task of considerable difficulty" in October, 1941, the only difficulties were those created by the "shocking inefficiency" of N.D.H.Q. and the headquarters staff.

They were only difficulties resulting from incompetence.

Two months after the force left, the four staff heads in Ottawa still disagreed as to their respective responsibilities.

Govt. Describes Communist Coup As "Tragic" One

Ottawa, March 11 — (CP) — The Canadian government described the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia as "tragic" in a statement read to the Commons yesterday by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent on the death of Jan Masaryk, former Czech foreign minister.

It was the first formal Canadian government objection to the Red grab, and in it Mr. St. Laurent associated the Dominion firmly with the Feb. 26 declaration by Britain, the United States and France condemning the seizure.

"The Canadian government and the Canadian people at large associate themselves with the Feb. 26 declaration of the three great powers," the minister said.

In his statement, he made reference to Czechoslovakia's democratic freedom for which Mr. Masaryk had fought and which, he said, she now had "so tragically lost."

Mr. St. Laurent declared the government had been "shocked and grieved" to learn of the death of Masaryk, described in a Prague government announcement as having taken his own life.

He had devoted himself to the service of the state, the external affairs minister said, and when the Nazis had overrun his country, he had shown "courage and resource in carrying on the struggle" from abroad.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader, quickly seconded Mr. St. Laurent's tribute. He said all parties in the Commons would associate themselves with the minister's statement.

Special Precautions Taken for Churchill's Safety After Warning

London, March 11 (Reuters) —Scotland Yard took special precautions today for the security of Winston Churchill after Southampton police station received an anonymous warning that Britain's wartime leader "was to be assassinated" at midday today.

Scotland Yard stated that the call, made over the Southampton emergency telephone system, was in "a childish voice."

The incident was not brought to the notice of Churchill's staff.

Bang's Disease Discussed By Special Speaker

Approximately 60 Belleville district farmers attended the combined short course and farmers' meeting at the Belleville Collegiate Wednesday evening when Dr. E. F. Pallister, veterinary surgeon, stationed at Kemptville by the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, was the guest speaker.

Dr. Pallister discussed Bang's Disease and calfhood vaccination and later answered questions placed by the farmers attending the meeting. Two films, one a colored picture on Bang's Disease and another on milk production, were also shown.

The agricultural short courses at the Collegiate have been conducted one night each week since January and have met with considerable favor on the part of district farmers. Fifteen junior farmers are enrolled in the course with attendance being almost 100 per cent each Wednesday night. The classes are largely lectures by dairy and agricultural officials, and are in charge of Mr. Robt. Phillips, agricultural teacher.

8 Dogs Poisoned Within Past Week In Foster Ward

With at least eight dogs poisoned within the past week, pet owners in the Foster Ward district are keeping a close guard over their canine pets until investigators are able to determine the origin of the poison.

First dog to be poisoned in the district was reported to police approximately one week ago and since that time others have followed in rapid succession. In one particular area in South John Street three dogs have died, presumably from strychnine poisoning.

City Pound Keeper Thomas Thorne has checked closely with all retail sources of poison in the city but has been unable to learn where any has been recently purchased. It is now thought that the poison may have been purchased in some other centre and brought to the city.

Refuses to Admit Any Organization With Red Taint

Ottawa, March 11 —(CP)— A two-day conference by the Fisheries Council of Canada ended yesterday with its disclosure of a blunt refusal to admit to its membership "any organization tainted with Communism."

Delegates heard Justice Minister Ilsley declare "the triumph of Communism in the world at large would entail an intolerable abridgement of our liberties," and the council unanimously resolved to demand the deprivation of rights and privileges of Canadian citizenship to all who subscribe to "disruptive doctrines for which Communism stands."

The council also voiced its desire for the holding of the proposed Dominion-Provincial conference on fisheries and elected a new slate of officers; the president of a Vancouver packinghouse, J. M. Buchanan, being elected new president of the council.

Dealing with a request by the 6,000 member Fishermen's Co-operative Federation of British Columbia for affiliation with it, the council disclosed an air-mailed blunt reply to D. G. Macdonald, secretary-treasurer of the federation.

"From press reports, it appears that at least one of the directors of your member organizations . . . is a Communist.

"The directors of the Fisheries Council do not propose to admit to membership in the Fisheries Council of Canada any organization tainted with Communism."

Addressing yesterday's closing session, Justice Minister Ilsley told the delegates that Canadians had a political interest in European philosophies in the world today."

"European recovery, by raising the standard of living and increasing the prosperity of millions, perhaps hundreds of millions of Europeans, would make the task of Communism very much harder, so the Marshall Plan has been assailed as American agrression."

Yukon's Cold Spot Is Free From Colds

Snag, Yukon (CP) — Mention the name "Snag" and the average person turns up his coat and shivers. For little more than a year ago this outpost in the Yukon set a cold record of 86 below zero. But don't get the wrong idea — it isn't like that all the time.

The remote settlement is home to 20 people — 12 members of the Royal Canadian Air Force and eight from the Department of Transport. The encampment consists of a number of peeled log buildings, which serve for wireless and transmitting station and quarters. There are also two horses, a dog and a cat.

"It's not so bad at all," says Don Strath, formerly of Calgary. "It's really beautiful here in the summer. Time hangs a little heavy in the winter but most of the guys have some kind of hobby."

FO. S. R. Wallis of Lethbridge says Snag has at least one unusual feature — not one of the residents has had a cold this winter.

Chief Justice Was Satisfied Govt. Was Not at Fault

Evasion of Responsibility Not Proven Said Report

(By THE CANADIAN PRESS)

Sir Lyman P. Duff said in his 1942 Royal Commission report on Hong Kong that the Canadian Government received no information before the Canadian force sailed for Hong Kong on Oct. 27, 1941, that war with Japan was an early possibility.

Sir Lyman, then Chief Justice of Canada, said he was satisfied that nothing occurred between Sept. 29, when Canada informed the British Government she would send a force, and Oct. 27 that would "furnish any cogent reason for the withdrawal by Canada from the responsibility she had accepted."

The commissioner said that expedition was well-trained and well-provided with equipment, insofar as shipping facilities allowed.

Following is a five-point summary of the report:

Imminence of War

Nothing emerged concerning the probability of war with Japan before the Canadian expedition sailed Oct. 27, 1941, "which would have been considered to be justification for the withdrawal by Canada from the responsibility she had undertaken."

"On the contrary, the reasons which prompted the acceptance of the proposal continued to operate with possibly increasing force up to the sailing of the expedition."

This conclusion was reached with the advantage of reading a number of dispatches from the United Kingdom government, which the commissioner said he was not at liberty to reproduce, as well as a dispatch from Canadian military headquarters in London which was partially reproduced in the report.

The partial reproduction of the C.M.H.Q. dispatch, dated Oct. 26, 1941, was taken from paragraph nine and said: ".... consensus of opinion that war in Far East unlikely at present...."

The only telegram from the British government included in the report was dated Oct. 30, 1941, three days after the force sailed.

U. K. Grateful For Aid

It said: "We are very grateful to you for dispatching your contingent to Hong Kong at such short notice. We fully realize the difficulties of mobilization and of distance which have had to be overcome. The moral effect of their arrival in November will be much greater than it would have been two months alter."

The U.K. government in a dispatch of Sept. 19, 1941, had asked for a Canadian force for Hong Kong and the Canadian government accepted the proposal.

The Canadian government was actuated by considerations of what other Dominions had already done in the war. It was also considered that the arrival of the contingent in Hong Kong would have great moral effect on the Far East and would reassure the Chinese as to Britain's intention to hold Hong Kong.

"I have no doubt that the course taken by the government was the only course open to them in the circumstances."

There were solid military grounds for a conclusion that even in event of hostilities the situation of the force would not be hopeless.

It was thought the garrison could be evacuated or relieved from the sea by British and American naval forces and it was "not unreasonable to expect" aid from the landward side by Chinese forces.

The troopship which carried the expedition did not have sufficient cargo space to carry them. The vehicles did sail Nov. 4 in an American ship but it never reached Hong Kong, being diverted by United States authorities.

Twenty vehicles were sent to Vancouver to fill a small amount of free space on the troopship but did not arrive before the ship sailed.

"Had more energy and initiative been shown by the Quartermaster-General's Branch the availability of this space would have been ascertained earlier and the vehicles would have arrived in time for loading on Oct. 24."

Creation And Dispatch of Force

In a period of two weeks, it was necessary to obtain the required reinforcements as well as to attend to the tasks involved in equipping the expedition."

Of the men added to the force, all but about six per cent had undergone more than 16 weeks' training after enlistment.

"I have reached the conclusions that there was no unfairness either to the battalions, or to the expedition, as a whole, from the addition of this small percentage of men who had not fully completed the standard period of training."

N. D. H. Q. Staff

The Canadian military authorities undertook a task of "considerable difficulty."

"Subject only to my observation concerning 20 of the 212 vehicles of the mechanical transport, they performed that task well.

"Canada sent forward, in response to the British request, an expedition that was well-trained and (subject as aforesaid, insofar as shipping facilities allowed) well-provided with equipment."

A G.M.H.Q. telegram Oct. 28 said that the Chinese had undertaken to attack the Japanese with 10 divisions in the rear of Canton if the Japanese attacked Hong Kong.

The attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 and the loss of the British battleships Repulse and Prince of Wales in the China Sea Dec. 8, however, radically altered the situation.

"I can find no dereliction of duty or error in judgment on the part of the Government of Canada or of its military advisors in the decision to accept the proposal of the United Kingdom to send a Canadian force to Hong Kong and the dispatch of the force pursuant to that decision."

State of Training

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, then Chief of the General Staff, recommended the Royal Rifles of Canada, of Quebec City and the Winnipeg Grenadiers for the force.

He said that "both" battalions "are units of proven efficiency."

Hon. J. L. Ralston, then Defence Minister, cannot be justly criticized for action on this opinion and the evidence satisfied the Commissioner than Gen. Crerar's recommendation was "made upon sound ground and that he is not chargeable with any error in judgment, still less with any dereliction of duty in relation to it."

Principal criticism directed against this selection concerned certain platoon weapons which were included in the Canadian infantry establishment but which before October, 1941, were not available generally for training purposes.

Gen. Crerar said there were a number of battalions, including The Royal Rifles and Winnipeg Grenadiers, which, although "somewhat handicapped" by lack of mortars and anti-tank rifles, were generally adequately-trained to undertake defensive responsibilities such as those in prospect at Hong Kong.

The two battalions, in fact were in a "more advantageous position" in respect to these weapons than the units of the army in general.

There were solid reasons for believing any deficiencies in training in such platoon weapons could be made good before meeting the enemy.

Mechanical Transport

There is no evidence that the force suffered through lack of its 212 vehicles, which failed to reach Hong Kong in time, or that they were not supplied in the colony.

AUSSIES SET UP "CITIZEN ARMY" OF 50,000 MEN

Sydney, Australia, (CP)—Preparations for the establishment of a new Citizen Military Force of 50,000 men to supplement the Australian regular army are well in hand.

The army's vigorous recruiting campaign for part-time volunteers for the new force is expected to reach its peak by July this year. As part of this drive Army Minister Chambers has announced that the C.M.F. pay and allowances will be the same as for the regular army.

Making the announcement, Mr. Chambers said he hoped the good conditions and increased rates of pay offered would attract more men to the force.

Army publicity chiefs are using pay as one of their brightest baits to get recruits, but former commander-in-chief of the Australian army, General Sir Thomas Blamey, scorns the idea and believes it will have no useful bearing on Australian defence.

"Total Mobilization"

"It is just a window-dressing move", said General Blamey. "It won't solve any of our problems because it is not fundamentally sound. . . Everybody knows the only defence plans that make sense in these days are plans that provide for the total mobilization of a nation—plans for the most effective mobilization of everyone in the community."

Daily rates of pay for single men of the C.M.F. are: private, $1.60 to $2.40; corporal, $2.08 to $2.72; sergeant, $2.88; staff sergeant, $3.12; warrant officer (second class) $3.36; warrant officer (first class) $3.52.

Rates for officers are: lieutenant, $4.16; captain, $5.12; major, $6.24; lieutenant colonel ,$8 to $8.64 ;colonel $10.25 to $11.04.

Non-commissioned officers from the rank of sergeant up get an allowance of 24 cents a day for skill and an extra eight cents a day after serving two years in the ranks.

Marriage and other allowances provided for by army pay regulations will be paid to C.M.F. members when at training camps or on instruction courses.

Compulsion Gets Farms for Vets

Auckland, (CP)—A warning that the government intends to make greater use of its power to acquire farm land by compulsion for the settlement of ex-servicemen has been given by Rehabilitation Minister C. F. Skinner. The minister said that because of the falling-off in the amount of land being offered voluntarily for the settlement of returned men from the Second World War, it would be necessary to take more land under the compulsory clauses of the Servicemen's Settlement and Land Sales Act.

Departmental reports show that so far 320,257 acres have been purchased by the government by voluntary negotiation for subdivision for the settlement of ex-servicemen. A further 36,767 acres have been acquired under compulsory clauses.

It is estimated that a total of at least 10,000 veterans want rehabilitation aid to get farms and that 6,500 will be settled by 1949. By March, 1947, the government had settled 3,609.

When land is compulsory acquired the owner is allowed to retain an economic unit from his holding, including the homestead.

Russians Restore Dresden Theatre but Ignore Homes

By LYFORD MOORE

Dresden, Germany, (Reuters)—Reconstruction in this pulverized city, once the "Paris" of Eastern Germany, presents probably the best example of the Russian policy of restoring the ornaments of fine living while ignoring basic necessities.

Whether this is a manifestation of Russian love of music and the theatre, window dressing for western visitors, or a political attempt to provide an anaesthetic for the Germans, shops and homes remain gutted shells, while opera houses, theatres and public buildings rise again in all their pre-war splendor.

During three days here, United States correspondents on a conducted tour of the Russian zone saw only four major reconstruction projects. The other noticeable rebuilding consisted of a few mostly impromptu attempts by Germans to patch up their own properties.

The four big projects are the city hall, the playhouse, the world-famous Zwinger Museum, and a huge, old castle that is being converted into an Intourist (the Soviet official-sponsored touring agency) hotel which will not benefit the Germans because the Russian travel agency will not accept marks. The Germans probably like opera and the theatre as much as any other people, but here, as in Berlin and other Soviet-held cities, the Russian reconstruction policy is not popular.

Two saturation raids, one by the British and the other by American airmen, completely wiped out by the sprawling centre of the city. Some 300,000 persons are estimated to have been killed in the raids; but Dresdent still contains 400,000 of a pre-war population of 650,000 persons. Many thousands of these people are crowded together in primitive dwellings that have sprung up in the midst of endless ruins.

Treasures Missing

Ironically enough, when the vast Zwingle Museum is completed, the treasures it was built to hold will no longer be available for display in Dresden—unless the Russians reverse another policy and return to Germany treasures they have sent to Russia as war booty and "gifts".

The Museum's most famous paintings—Raphael's "Sistine Madonna", Correggio's "Holy Night", Titians, Reubens, and many others — all disappeared from their places of safekeeping shortly after Russian troops took over the city.

Hubert Armesch, Museum architect in charge of reconstruction, said bluntly the Russians took them to Moscow—although this was denied by Major Garmolov, liaison officer of the Saxonian military administration, who described their disappearance as a "mystery".

In Weimar, the Russians will not permit a visit to Buchenwald to investigate widespread reports that political prisoners are being held in the former Nazi concentration camp, but they are eager to show the visitor the Weimar Opera House where the old Weimar constitution was drawn up and where war action destroyed all but the walls.

Reconstruction of this building, which was begun shortly after the war by prima donnas and basso profundos who took off their coats and cleared away the rubble to show that restoration of the place where they earned their living was not impossible, now is all but complete.

Scientist Starts Unusual Service For Business Men

Edmonton, —(CP)— J.M. Olyan started in business less than two years ago with a typewriter, an old adding machine and an idea. He now has an office staff of 11, a series of rooms and every machine from comptometers to a printing outfit.

When he graduated from the University of Alberta with honors in science, he was puzzled about his choice of a life work and took some aptitude tests. These indicated he should get into accountancy—and that was the beginning of his idea.

He launched his "Send Me Saturday" system—a boon to the small business and professional man. It supplies an accountancy and income-tax service for which the customer is supplied with a daily envelope where he keeps all paid accounts and enters daily receipts. Periodically, he sends those envelopes in—and his books are kept. He gets a monthly statement, his income-tax forms are made out and his records kept up to date.

The system also has a statement for those small firms which do credit business. They mail out monthly statements and post accounts once or twice each week.

Mr. Olyan also conducts an aptitude test service. He conducts the tests and has a placement service in addition.

He has designed a simple account book for the farmer to use in compiling income-tax returns and his next venture will be forecasting business trends—he hopes shortly to supply customers with a monthly booklet with current forecasts.

Dig for Diatoms In Nova Scotia

Halifax, —(CP)— When they start digging in Nova Scotia these days it isn't gold they're looking for—it's diatoms.

Diatoms, sometimes called diatomite or diatomaceous earth, are minute shells found at the bottom of fresh-water lakes and ponds and in areas formerly covered with water.

Despite their tiny size, diatoms are large in industrial importance. They're used as a polishing medium, insulation material and decolorizer of oils and other liquids.

Brewers are interested too. Diatoms give beer that clear, sparkling look.

Nova Scotia is believed to be the only province currently mining diatoms and J. P. Messervey, deputy mines minister, has great hopes for the development of the industry.

ROOSEVELT HOUSE IN WARM SPRINGS TO BE PRESERVED

By CHARLES BARRETT

Warm Springs, Ga., —(AP)— In the homely, unadorned kitchen of "The Little White House" in Warm Springs, a negro cook scrawled her testimonial to history:

"Daisy Bonner cook the first meal and the last one in this cottage for the President Roosevelt."

It was April 12, 1945. Franklin Delano Roosevelt had been stricken suddenly and fatally at his rustic "second home" on a rural Georgia hilltop.

The door with the ship's anchor knocker seldom has been opened since. This spring—possibly on April 12—a state commission will open the simple, pine-pannelled home to the public.

Thousands of visitors—officials estimate up to 200,000 the first year—will find "The Little White House" preserved just as it was left three years ago.

The cook's proud farewell remains inscribed on the wall above her old-fashioned stove. The late president's morning paper (The Atlanta Constitution) lies on his desk where he dropped it after complaining of a "headache." A banner headline says the 9th Army is 57 miles from Berlin.

The wideboard cottage, low and graceful among the pines, has much of the president's personal touch about it. The chain he used for Fala, his pet dog, is hanging in an entrance hall closet where he left it, along with a battered hat he wore on fishing expeditions.

A set of pie-pans is fastened outside the bedroom window where he used to feed birds. His favorite red roses still climb over the white-columned entrance. They were blooming brightly the day he died, and requests for clippings have come from throughout the world.

Simple Cottage

For a wealthy New Yorker, it was a surprisingly simple cottage—a country home that might belong to any average American.

The bed where the president died is plain maple with a chenille spread and a hard, hair mattress. It is the type known locally as a "hired man's bed."

There is no mechanical refrigator—an old icebox sits on the back porch. The kitchen has a faded linoleum, beaten utensils, cane bottom chairs and an oilcloth-covered table.

Mr. Roosevelt insisted on panelled walls and rough beams. He placed ship models, pictures and engravings everywhere.

The living room also has the plain, worn leather chair where he was sitting when stricken with the headache, the first symptom the illness which was fatal a few hours later. A handmade rag rug is on the floor. Beside the Georgia rock fireplace are his books—murder mysteries, French novels, modern poetry, and books on politics. A long wooden fork rests where he kept it for roasting frankfurters.

In the president's bedroom is the desk where he transacted much of the world's business.

While governor of New York, Roosevelt selected the site for his remote country home near the Warm Springs Infantile Paralysis Foundation. It was his favorite resting place. It cost $8,700 when built.

HELPFUL SNACKS

In addition to three meals a day, extra food, in the form of "snacks" may be needed by young people to keep up with rapid development. Between-meal lunches should be very light however, say health experts.

N. Z. MUST CUT IMPORTS

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — Industries and Commerce Minister Nordmeyer told a meeting of manufacturers here that if New Zealand were to live within her means she could not continue to import at last year's level. Import licences last year totalled $390,000,000.

Tells of Foray On Atomic Bomb Work of Nazis

Vancouver, (CP) — Captain "X", a mystery man of the Second World War, who helped to halt German atomic research, is here on a visit—still a man of mystery.

He was a member of the Norwegian underground who directed a raid on a German-occupied plant where Nazi scientists conducted atomic research.

Captain "X" directed 11 men who had two machine-guns, a dozen revolvers, skis, knapsacks and 20 pounds of explosive. It was called "Operation Swallow" and opened Feb. 28, 1943, near the small town of Rjukan, Norway.

Objective was a few pieces of machinery and 275 pounds of heavy water ,an integral part of Nazi scientists' research for the atomic bomb.

The 10-man commando crew parachuted in and attacked the research centre while Captain "X" sat by his radio across the valley. His orders were not to accompany them. He had worked on the operation for a year and knew too much to allow a possibility of capture.

The plant was blown up. The Nazis had to start production all over again in Germany, too late to find the answer to the atom puzzle.

"Everything worked on schedule," said the captain in an interview. "All the men escaped."

For the last six months the captain had been in Yukon Territory on a civilian job, and now is en route to the United States.

Captain "X" is still his name for publication.

Build Model Town North of The Pas

Winnipeg, —(CP) Even though it has not yet been given a name, Manitoba's first pre-planned industrial town situated about 86 miles north of The Pas is rapidly becoming a "model town," Hon. J.S. McDiarmid, minister of mines and natural resources, said in a recent report.

The nameless town is known officially as "Township 68" although it has been called the Snow Lake Townsite.

The township is the first mining town developed under the new section of the local government's Districts Act passed by the legislature in 1945 to provide for orderly development of mining areas. R. L. Cochran was appointed administrator of the district and he has all the powers of a municipal council. All land in the area is sold through him.

Under an agreement with the province, the Howe Sound Exploration Co. undertook to spend $325,000 in development of the townsite. Of the amount, $175,000 will go to town improvements. Remainder will be spent on buildings, among them a four-rom school costing $35,000, a $40,000 seven-bed hospital and a $75,000 community centre.

Mr. McDiarmid's report said the mining company had shown a "keen interest" in the new community and had agreed to maintain streets, lanes, drains, sidewalks, street lighting, sewer and water systems, garbage collections and to maintain reservoirs for water supply.

The company also agreed to contribute $6,000 yearly to the local government district as well as to maintain fire-fighting equipment and to operate the electric distribution system.

In return the company receives local tax concessions for a number of years.

The town has a well-planned road and avenue system, the report said, with picturesque names reminiscent of the wooded northland such as Lakeshore drive, and Poplar Birch, Balsam, and Spruce Avenues.

Twins Look Alike, Hobbies Are Same

Cooksville, Ont., (CP)—Similarity doesn't end at physical resemblance with the Speck twins of this town about 15 miles west of Toronto. The two boys—Jack and Bill Speck—who resemble each other so closely that only their parents and close friends can distinguish between them, also have the same tastes in hobbies and recreation.

The twins' creative ability has crammed their house full of models and figurines of all types—from a half-inch-high Chinese figure to a perfect scale model of St. Paul's Cathedral. Both are also talented artists, woodworkers and puppet makers.

The boys, originally from Toronto, put on puppet shows at school with all the marionettes, stage settings and script is not adhered to strictly and ad-libbing often outdoes the original speeches. The lads are especially proud of a set of puppets dressed in 17th-century fashion, complete to the last detail, including snowy white wigs.

The figurines are made of clay, glazed and painted, all to scale. One figure of an English pot-and-pan peddler, leading his horse along the road, has pots and pans swinging from the side of his wagon.

The Cathedral model is complete with chapels, pews, whispering gallery, choir loft, nave, organ and tapestry on the walls. The inside can be seen by removing the dome and steeple.

Included among all types of train, boat and other vehicular models are several replicas of 1948-model cars, complete with shock absorbers "that work" and with ball bearings on all wheels for smoother running.

Quiet and unassuming, the two brothers differ in only one respect—Jack wants to be an artist while Bill has his heart set on being an engineer or automobile designer.

Lockridge won public acclaim when his novel was awarded the 1947 M-G-M award of $125,000. The young author had spent seven years completing his work.

U.K. Envoy No Stranger to America

By GLEN WILLIAMS

London, — (AP) — Britain's youthful new ambassador to Washington can hardly be told from an American—when he has his hat on.

Sir Oliver Franks, the ambassador-elect, likes wide-brimmed soft felts, the kind that make Americans conspicuous in British surroundings. That hat, however, is far from being his only distinguishing mark.

He has a brilliant mind and it was almost solely due to his mental qualities that the government insisted on his taking the new job, even though Sir Oliver would rather have continued his quiet, scholarly life as provost of Queen's College, Oxford.

His mind was the directing force behind Europe's response to the Marshall Plan. Many here regard him as second only to Secretary of State Marshall himself in bringing something concrete out of the idea Marshall expressed at Harvard last June.

Sir Oliver, while retaining his college post, became chairman of the executive committee of the 16 European nations which drew up the European Recovery Program. His choice for that difficult chore was based on his performance as a wartime civil servant. His judgment, tact and capable administration brought him eventual advancement to permanent secretary of the combined ministries of supply and aircraft production.

He made the two ministries into a single, tidy administration, cleaned up his desk and returned to Oxford less than two years ago. At the same time he turned down several private business offers.

Sir Oliver is convinced his proper career lies in academic life, but his delvings into moral philisophy have reinforced a sense of duty that draws him into public service.

Many Qualifications

He has many qualifications for his new job. His major task likely will be to link the United States to the countries receiving its economic help, a job he prepared himself for by whipping Europe's Recovery plan into shape.

Neither the United States nor Americans are strange to him. For a year, in 1936 he was visiting professor at the University of Chicago, on leave from a philosophy fellowship at Oxford.

He knew Americans well in the war. Conscious effort made his relations with them quite cordial, despite his retiring nature. He even broke his teetotal habits to promote happy relations with convivial Americans who came to confer with him.

Last fall he spent a couple of months in Washington, ready to answer any and all questions about the recovery plans he submitted.

Sir Oliver celebrated his 43rd birthday recently. He is a little over six feet tall, with a lean look that implies strength. He is friendly, with the friendliness of the normally reserved man. On occasion he displays a witty tongue.

Sir Oliver is the son of a congregational minister, the Rev. R. S. Franks. He was born at Bristol and went to Bristol grammar school. He studied classics at Queen's College, Oxford, and is a fellow in philosophy at Queen's He is married and has two daughters.

He held the job for 10 years, except for the year at Chicago, then became professor of moral philosophy at the University of Glasgow. He was knighted in 1946 in recognition of his administrative work.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. Equally effective for constipation, upset stomach, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babies.

Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Get a package today. Sickness often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Northern Lights At Brightest Now

Halifax, —(CP)— The price of entertainment may be following other prices upwards, but March and April will be months in which Nova Scotians will see free night entertainment provided by nature.

The northern lights —aurora borealis to astronomers—will be rippling across Maritime skies in these two months, the brightest in 11 years.

Rev. M.W. Burke-Gaffney, Dean of St. Mary's College Engineering Faculty, says that chips of atoms called ions have been erupting from the sun in increasing numbers and, when they touch off the gases above the earth the sky is alight with dancing colors.

Father Burke-Gaffney says the sunspots, which throw off ions, were the biggest and most numerous in century last year, guaranteeing a good show of northern lights.

In ordinary times, northern lights appear about 15 days in every year, but in the next two months there should be about 30 displays if clouds don't obscure the sky. Father Burke-Gaffney says the gases ignited during the displays will throw off brilliant greens, yellows, pinks and purples.

Father Burke-Gaffney says the display of northern lights is something like atomic warfare in the skies, though not as destructive. The shower of ions from sun spots whirl from the sun's face in exactly the same manner that atoms burst when hit by a guided neutron.

Minister Censures Films, Dance Halls

Winnipeg, —(CP)— Rev. Watson Argue, pastor of Calvary Temple, says that young people are "heading for trouble" through attending movies and dance halls.

"Dirty love-making, sex, and crime were found to be the three main themes in a survey made from some 1,500 recent movies," said Mr. Argue in a recent sermon. "Even the bill-boards are suggestive of the movies' immorality."

Mr. Argue said there were some good movies produced, "just as there is some good water in sewer water," but "you have to go to the devil's territory to find them."

The minister said it was not possible to "sanctify dancing under the roof of the church," and that any excuse that dancing is done for exercise "is a lie."

"Why should people take their exercise between 10 p.m. and midnight.?

Mr. Argue said that he did not hold with any argument that girls should dance to become graceful.

BOUND, GAGGED BY ROBBERS

Glen Cove, N. Y., March 9 —(AP) — Mrs. John J. McLaughlin, wife of a New York securities broker, and two of her children were bound and gagged by three robbers who ransacked their home last night. Mrs. McLaughlin told police the trio took a $2,500 diamond ring from her finger and $100 from a purse.

Colds are Unknown On Lonely Island

Cape Town, —(CP)— Tristan da Cunha is an island of very worried inhabitants. They are afraid that they will catch colds on the arrival of the scientists, mended Old Age Pension Act refishing, agricultural and survey experts aboard the ex-minesweeper "Peguena."

Colds, and influenza are unknown on the island—in the South Atlantic mid-way between South Africa and Argentina—and any visitors who bring these germs are likely to cause havoc among these world's lonliest but healthiest people.

The strictest medical precautions were taken prior to the departure of the expedition. Every member of the expedition underwent a thorough examination, including tests for typhoid, tuberculosis and other diseases.

Although heavily loaded with foodstuffs containing a special vitamin diet, scientific equipment, 9,000 gallons of fuel and oil and 12 tons of drinking water, special storage space was reserved for gifts to the islanders by a South Atlantic mid-way between South African fishing concern mainly interested in establishing a fishing industry on the uninhabited leeside of the island.

All the men will get a new shirt and gaily colored tie and the women will receive a wollen scarf, string of beads, a hank of wool and a packet of hairpins.

There are only three babies on the island and each will receive a present of a plastic rattle.

Four-Day Flights to Moon Forecast by Radar Expert

London (Reuters) — Thousand-ton "atomic spaceships" capable of carrying passengers 250,000 miles to the moon in four days may be under construction in 30 years' time if the present rate of progress in research continues.

But before then, perhaps in 10 years, 100-ton rockets, carrying scientific instruments, will probably be launched to the moon at a speed of about 30,00 miles an hour.

This view was expressed by a 30-year-old former Royal Air Force radar expert, Arthur C. Clarke, chairman of the Inter-Planetary Society which comprises many scientists and literary men including George Bernard Shaw.

Stressing that large-scale research on guided missiles was now being carried out in Britain, the United States and Australia, Clarke declared that "this research though mostly of a military nature, is identical with that which must be carried out to make space travel possible.

"The problem of sending a guided missile to the Antipodes is in some ways more difficult than sending one to the moon, and sooner or later the first steps in space-flight will follow automatically from present military research.

"Although the true spaceship is still a generation ahead, rockets have already left the atmosphere and the first steps in the conquest of space have already been taken.

Explore Moon, Planets

"The atomic spaceship, when it comes, will make possible the exploration of the moon and planets and lead to the greatest revolution in human history.

"Perhaps in the exploration of the planets man will at last find an enterprise great enough to absorb those energies which he has hitherto squandered in war."

Clarke added that his opinions are shared by a great many other people-perhaps the majority of rocket engineers.

He said that the United States Navy will have ready for firing this summer an improved version of the German V-2 rocket with a ceiling of 230 miles and a top speed of 5,600 miles an hour, and added that present research will probably result in rockets reaching heights of several hundreds of miles in the next five years.

"It should be technically feasible to send automatic rockets to the moon within 10 years," he continued, "but whether or not this is done will depend on non-technical considerations such as finance and national prestige.

But however that may be, he believes that the development of spaceships carrying human passengers and returning to earth must "await the harnessing of atomic energy for propulsion."

"At the moment the favorite idea is that some sort of high temperature atomic pile or furnace, burning plutonium may be developed to heat a gas, probably hydrogen or helium and so provide a propulsive stream of very high velocity."

There are, however, immense practical difficulties still to be overcome—the protection of passengers from the by-products of nuclear energy such as fatal "gamma rays" for example.

1,000-Ton Rocket

Stressing that his opinions are based "largely on conjecture," Clarke forecasts that the first atomic rocket to the moon would probably weigh about 1,000 tons.

The type of automatic rocket to the moon would, in Clarke's needed to cover the 250,000 miles view, probably weigh up to 100 tons. It would be similar to the V-2 except that it would have a number of separate "steps," each of which would be dropped off as the fuel became exhausted.

"Only in this way can the initial velocity of about 25,000 miles an hour necessary to escape the earth's gravitational pull be achieved with our present chemical fuel," Clarke explained, "because four-fifths of the weight of the rocket would be taken up in fuel and it could not carry more than about one pound's worth of instruments for every ton."

The step-rocket, Clarke stressed is not a new invention. The Germans used a 100-mile-range step-rocket "rhiene-boote" in the war and were planning a large trans-Atlantic one.

Navigation in space would not present any insuperable difficulties. The spaceship, which could be kept on its course by guide rockets, would, on leaving the earth's atmosphere, speed "uphill" against the earth's gravitational pull until it reached about nine-tenths of the way to the moon.

At this stage, roughly, the moon's gravitational pull becomes greater than that of the earth.

Return Flight Easier

The spaceship would then begin to "fall" towards the moon, and would probably, by reversing its engines, have to slow up its descent to ensure a smooth landing. The return flight to the earth would be easier since only one-tenth of the way would be against the moon's "pull." The rest of the journey would be "downhill" pulled back by the earth's gravity.

On returning to the earth's atmosphere, the spaceship would probably fly around in ever increasing circles and land by means of parachute attachments. It might even have retractable wings and land as an aircraft.

Once on the moon, Clarke pointed out, passengers, if they left the spaceship, would have to wear special suits similar to deep sea diving suits to prevent themselves from blowing up as a result of the reduced atmospheric pressure. Precautions would also have to be taken against the intense cold.

Clarke sees no reason why, in the distant future, it might not be possible to organize built-in settlements on the moon for mining its mineral wealth, with air-locks to keep the atmosphere at the right pressure.

He does not consider this problem to be so very different from that of the colonization of the Arctic and Antarctic which he believes will begin in the near future.

Whitehall Notebook:

Conservatives to Have Young Men in High Posts if They Win

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London March 11 (CP)—Winston Churchill and his deputy Anthony Eden, now can glance along the rows of opposition members behind them and judge those who will come to high office if Conservatives win the next election.

As party strategists they are interested in younger men. The assumption is that Eden will take over as party leader when Churchill leaves this means that with good fortune Eden, now 50, will retain the leadership for about 20 years and men of less than 45 years have the best hope of becoming future Conservative prime ministers.

Decisions about cabinet ministers will be made only if and when the Conservatives eject the Labor government. But even now the opposition chiefs must have some in mind.

If a turn of the wheel brought Conservatives to power soon, high offices might be filled as follows.

Foreign Secretary: Anthony Nutting, 28, member for Melton who served in embassies in France, Spain and Italy and at the foreign office. He was Eden's private secretary in 1942 and has been a major force in developing the young Conservative movement.

Chancellor of the Exchequer: David Eccles, 43, member for Chippenham, who served with the ministry of economic warfare, was economic advisor to the British embassies at Madrid and Lisbon and was at the ministry of production during the tensest war years.

Minister of Defence: Brig. A. R.W. Low, 34, member for Blackpool North, a barrister who turned soldier and had a notable war career.

Home secretary: John Boyd-Carpenter, 40, member for Kingston-Upon-Thomas, a barrister, among the most competent naggers of the government on home affairs.

Labor Minister: Peter Thorneycroft, 39, member for Monmouth, wartime transport ministry parliamentary secretary.

Minister of Civil Aviation: Air Commodore Arthur Harvey, 42, member for Macclesfield, experienced in both civil and military flying.

124,000 Draw Wages As Public Servants

Auckland, N. Z. (CP)—About one in every 4.5 people in employment in New Zealand is dependent for salary on taxes or public rates according to statistics prepared by New Zealand Commerce journal of the Associated Chambers of Commerce.

More than 124,000 employees now receive their salary or wages from national or local government sources, the journal states. The grand total of employed persons in the country is something over 560,000 a figure which includes farmers and working proprietors.

In every government department the staff has increased since the Labor government came into power 12 years ago. In 1935-36 the total number of permanent public servants was 48,170. In 1946-47 it was 90,003. Railway employees have increased during the period from 17,200 to 26,000; school teachers from 8,000 to 16,900; post office workers from 8,895 to 11,094. Workers in other departments have increased as follows: social security department from 176 to 1,498; state coal mines from 28 to 2,281; treasury from 127 to 347; land and income tax from 252 to 1,083.

The figures of state employees do not include such casual labor as the employees of the works and state hydro-electric construction departments. There are more than 12,000 men employed on this basis by these two departments alone.

Detroit Takes Over NHL Lead With Win Over Black Hawks; Boston Bruins Defeat Rangers

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

That's the darndest finish the National Hockey League has ever put on. Detroit Red Wings walloped the fifth-place Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 last night to take over the league leadership. The question is: Can the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the tail-end Canadiens at Montreal tonight and get back on even terms with the Wings?

The other game last night had Boston Bruins scoring three last-period goals to beat New York Rangers 6-3. That puts Boston one point back of the third-place Rangers.

The four play-off positions still aren't settled mathematically. For instance, the tail-end Montreal Canadiens can still get into the Stanley Cup fray if they win all their remaining games and Boston and Chicago lose theirs. But Chicago and Montreal are going to get the bad news any day now. One defeat for Montreal and they're out of the play-offs, no matter what the other teams do. Likewise for the Hawks.

Will Fix Dates

The race to the wire is so close that the N.H.L. governors postponed their meeting scheduled for New York today, to fix the Stanley Cup dates, until next Tuesday.

Today's standing shows Detroit with 71 points and four games left. Toronto has 69 and five games left. New York has 53 with five games remaining, Boston 52 and five, Chicago 44 and four, Montreal 43 and five.

The Wings, smarting under the defeat they suffered at Chicago Sunday, made no bones about it when they entertained the Hawks last night. They led 3-0 in the first and 6-0 in the second period. Harry Lumley in the Detroit goal looked a cinch for his seventh shut-out until Ralph Nattrass and Gaye Stewart scored for Chicago early in the third period.

Gordon Howe scored two of the Detroit goals, the others being potted by Pete Horeck, Rod Morrison, Jack Stewart, Ted Lindsay and Jim McFadden.

Bruins Score Three

At Boston, the Bruins and Rangers were on even terms until the final frame, when Boston scored three goals to clinch it. Kenny Smith scored two Boston goals, the others coming from Pete Babando, Jimmy Peters, Johnny Pierson and Paul Ronty. The 19-year-old Ronty, brought up recently from Bruins' Hershey farm, besides his own goal set up two other scoring plays.

Tony Leswick scored two of the Ranger goals and Ed Kullman got the other. Rangers' genial coach Frank Boucher lost his smile under the Boston avalanche in the last period and in the final minute yanked Jim Henry from the nets to send six forwards, up, but it did not work.

Kingston Vics Hand Toronto Byers 7-4 Loss

Oshawa, Ont., March 11.—(CP) — Kingston Vics handed Toronto Byers a 7-4 defeat here last night in the first game of their best-of-three Junior B Ontario Hockey Association playoff series.

Paced by forward-line of Aitken, Joyce and Flint, Vics jumped into an early lead in the first period holding Toronto scoreless while Flint and Aitken tallied twice on scrambles in front of Byers nets. Goalie May didn't stand a chance of stopping the two goals.

The second frame saw Toronto try to get back in the running with three goals—two of them by Gee—but the bigger Kingston squad held their own and finished the frame leading 5-3. Hall got the other Byers goal in the session while Aitken, Walby and Joyce counted for Vics.

Playing all-out in the final period, Toronto Byers left openings for Kingston, who put the game away on two quick goals in the first five minutes by Patterson and McKeown.

Byers just managed to score before the end of frame when Hinde broke the Kingston defence and beat Stone at the 19-minute mark leaving Vics in front 7-4 at the final whistle.

Cleveland Barons Run Unbeaten String to 22

(By The Canadian Press)

Clevelnad Barons' remarkable unbeaten string in the American Hockey League today stands at 22 thanks to a 11-0 triumph over the lowly Philadelphia Rockets.

In other games played last night, Providence Reds, eastern loop leaders, went down to a 10-6 defeat at the hands of the faltering Springfield Indians while Hershey Bears and St. Louis battled to a 3-3 tie.

Veteran Bill Summerhill and fast-stepping Bill Gooden led the Springfield attack with two goals each, finding Providence's sub-goalie Jack Stoddard a soft-touch. Other Indian goalgetters were Ken Hayden, Alan Kuntz, Paul Courteau, Wimpy Jones, Eldy Kobussen and Gordie Tottle. Carl Liscombe and John Chad stood out for Reds with a brace of tallies each while Harry Taylor and Chuck Scherza picked up one apiece.

Don (Count) Grosso led St. Louis to a tie with Hershey, slapping in two goals, the other one going to Henry Backor. Jack McGill, Joe Schertzl and Lloyd Gronsdahl dented the twine for Bears.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

It's all even-stephen now as far as the Trenton Flyers and the Trenton Hockey Club is concerned. In another rousing, slam-bang thriller, the town squad, riding high since their Monday night victory, evened the Intermediate "A" group finals last night with a 10-4 victory that had the faithful gasping for ozone when the final whistle blew.

That puts this thriller-diller ice rodeo right back to where it started, with the exception that the chips will be down, but heavy, on Friday night when the teams clash in the fifth and deciding game. And judging from the crowds attending the past four tilts, the S. R. O. sign will be out early.

Last night's game was another repetition of the previous three tilts with both squads travelling at top speed throughout, but with the Trenton team showing superiority when in scoring position. Flyers threw a scare into the town supporters early in the third period when they fired home three goals to bring the score to 6-4 but they didn't reckon with the reserve strength of the Anderson squad.

Led by Mac Watson who got another hat trick last nigh tas well as a trio of assists, the Trenton squad flashed a sudden offensive in the last six minutes of play that disorganized the Flyer defence, and resulted in four pucks smashing home to definitely decide the issue.

Trenton by virtue of their 2 victories in the last two games reign slight favorites to cop the series and go on to the Intermediate "A" playdowns. But Flyers are a money team, and with the heavy issue at stake Friday's battle will be a sizzler.

Yep, take a tip from us and grab that pasteboard early for the Fish Day tussle. Over 1,900 fans saw the brawl last night and its dollars to doughnuts that the rafter seats will be in demand long before Maestro Walt Gerow puts the tickets on sale.

Tonight the starry Gananoque juniors tangle with the equally classy Lindsay youngsters in their sudden death game to decide their O.H.A. playdown round. Both teams are highly rated in junior circles, and its a safe bet that they'll travel at top-speed tonight to get the victory nod. Game starts at 8.30.

Referee Maurice Walsh, and Speedy St. Louis were not fooling when they dropped in the dressing rooms for a pre-game chat last night, and gently but firmly informed the teams that any thing that looked like out-of the ordinary would result in a quiet sojourn in Sinners Avenue. They kept their word, and stopped the boys cold at the slightest infraction of the rules. As a result they had the game under control all evening, and only handed out eight misdemeanor sentences, all of them minors. Walsh and St. Louis, despite the opinions of some rinkside Frank Selkes, are so far the best whistle-tooting duo to show their wares here. They call 'em close, perhaps miss an odd one, but on the whole have been doing a fine job of arbiting.

Stirling's starry Midget "C" team took a stranglehold on the semi-finals series in the Hastings County village last night setting the Sundridge team back with a 15-6 defeat, giving the village kids a nine-goal lead to take away with them.

Toronto Byers and Kingston Vics at present in the threes of their Junior "B" playdowns, will meet in Belleville, if a third game is necessary. The first game was played in Oshawa last night with the Kingston Vics finishing on top by a 7-4 score. The second game will be played in Kingston Saturday night, and the Vics should tuck that one away to grab the round. However, if Byers win, as we mentioned the third game will be played here on Monday night.

Marmora defeated Norwood 6-4 in their Trent Valley League final series last night and now enjoy a 2-1 lead in the best of five series. The next game is slated for Madoc on Friday night. The Trent Valley champions are scheduled to meet the Bloomfield Sky Chiefs in the first round Intermediate "C" playdowns.

And here's another tip to the fraternity who vent their feelings against hockey referees by hurling bottles on the ice. The Memorial Arena management and the Arena Committee will take drastic action against any of you ladies or gentlemen who persist in heaving your "courage containers" at referees. There is a severe penalty awaiting any one caught indulging in such hair-brained tactics, and culprits will get the "works".

It's a boy in the 'Mid' Middleton menage. The rangy Flyers' defenceman who is one of the backbones of his team, became a proud poppa the other day, and is the latest recruit in the D. D. P. (Dawn Diaper Patrol). Mother and son are doing nicely thank you, and the old man is gradually getting back to normal. Congrats, pal, and smile when we meet, eh?

The Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, scheduled for the Toronto Coliseum from March 13 to 20, will provide anxious fishermen and outdoor enthusiasts with a close-up view of some of the quarry for which they will be searching as soon as the fishing season opens.

The Department of Lands and Forests, it was announced today, will have two aquaria with game and other fish, ponds for wildfowl, and a collection of animals including adult bears, timber and brush wolves, foxes, elk, deer, raccoon and other animals. Bruce Miller, ranger and wood carving artist, will display his handicraft.

Hamilton Tigers Win in Overtime From Dutchmen

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers and Windsor Spitfires continued their winning ways last night as the Tigers took a 5-2 overtime win from Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen to go into a two-game lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association senior finals and Windsor squeezed a 6-5 victory over Barrie Flyers for their second straight win in the best -of-seven junior finals.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Porcupine Combines shaded Copper Cliff Redmen 5-4 in their best-of-seven junior finals. Copper Cliff now leads the series 2-1.

Spitfires started off in strong style but faded in the last period as the Flyers put on a last-minute attack to net two goals in 11 seconds of play. Windsor led 2-1 at the end of the initial frame and 6-3 at the end of the second before Barrie finally climbed closer.

Shifty Gord Haidy outstepped the Flyers for three goals while Marcel Pronovost, George Ouellette and Eddie Busch each scored one. Rugged Ray Gariepy was high man for Barrie with two goals while Sam McNabney, Don Ashbee and Rusty Aikin each had one.

The Hamilton - Kitchener affair was closely matched all the way with both goalies, Art Childs of the Tigers and Keith Woodall of the Dutchmen, playing standout hockey. Tigers led 1-0 at the end of the first and 2-1 at the end of the second. Dutchmen tied it in the third to force the game into overtime.

Then in that extra period the Dutchmen promptly fell apart and three Tiger players rammed in goals to give them the wide edge.

Carl Smelle provided the first-period Hamilton goal and Clare Shillington got the second in the middle session. In the overtime frame, Swat Mason, Ab Conick and Frankie Liscombe all connected once. The two Dutchmen goals came from Sparky Weiler and Bobby Bauer.

The Porcupine - Copper Cliff battle was touch - and - go all the way as the Combines outscored the Redmen 3-2 in the opening frame and Copper Cliff evened it at 3-3 in the second period. Porcupine went two goals up in the final period before the Redmen cut the count to 5-4.

Lorne Pirie paced the Combines with two goals while Mineault, Campbell and McGinn each had one. Burton, McIver, McCarthy and Cuomo scored one apiece for Copper Cliff.

Kitchener - Waterloo moves to Hamilton Friday for their third tilt and the same night Barrie entertains Windsor for their 3rd game. Tonight, Copper Cliff again plays Porcupine for their fourth tilt.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

KENNY SMITH, BOSTON — who scored two goals as the Bruins whipped New York Rangers, 6-3.

GORDIE HOWE, DETROIT, whose two goals paced Detroit Red Wings to a one - sided victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

It has been estimated that there are probably less than 1,000 Trumpeter Swans in the whole of North America. Every remaining pair of these beautiful birds is vitally important to the continued existence of the species, and the protective legislation which has been enacted on their behalf must be carefully observed in order to save these birds from total extinction. More detailed information concerning this and other elements of our natural resources, and full-color reprints of our wildlife pictures, without advertising, are available free by writing to The Carling Conservation Club, Dept. D., Waterloo, Ontario.

In 1813, Audubon carefully estimated that he saw over a billion Passenger Pigeons in one day. Today there are none. This same fate may overtake the Trumpeter Swan unless great care is taken in conserving the meagre supply which still exists.

Trenton Hockey Club Defeats Flyers 10-4 in Fourth-Game Thriller Before 1,900 Fans

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Trenton Hockey Club riding rampant on the crest of a playoff heat wave, decisively wiped out the two-game lead Trenton Flyers enjoyed prior to Monday night, and evened the best-of-five Intermediate "A" group series at two-all in Memorial Arena last night when they grounded the air station team by a 10-4 score.

The fifth and final game of the series will be played in Memorial Arena here on Friday night. The winners will go on to the O. H. A. playdowns.

Consistency has been the keynote of this more or less dramatic series of the ice-lanes, despite scores that would indicate far wider margins in the hockey ability of the respective teams.

And last night's game was no different to the previous three tilts insofar as sustained action, speed, individual ability and thrill-packed incidents are concerned. The score was anything but indicative of the difference in play.

Full Value For Win

Trenton last night were full value for their win. And 1,900 howling fans sat and stood through sixty minutes of hockey excitement as the battle raged from rink-end to rink-end, with the town team's superiority asserting itself in the mounting score.

With elimination staring them in the face, Trenton threw everything to the wind in a successful effort to tie up the series. Their defence turned in a hard-checking display in front of Bridgman who again performed brilliantly in the nets, while their attacking divisions capitalized on almost every opportunity that materialized inside the Flyers blueline.

Flyers matched the town's stride for stride as far as speed was concerned, but could not penetrate a packed Trenton defence on their many goalward dashes. They skated themselves into the ice in an effort to get the nod, but the driving Trenton team was not to be denied.

Grab Two Goal Lead

Trenton grabbed a two-goal lead in the first period when R. Johnson, Barr and Bert Bastedo scored with Ault getting the lone Flyer marker. The towners added two more in the second session and the game appeared to be in the well-known container.

Schmidt, Trenton defenceman, who played one of the best games of his seasonal career, scored a picture goal after the third period started, speeding through the entire Flyer squad to fire home the rubber after he had been dumped near the opposing nets.

Then the Flyers struck. Down five goals, they surged into swift effective action. Ault, and Brackenbury raced down centre ice and the former swept home the rubber to make the score 6-2. Minutes later with the Trenton squad on the defensive, the same pair repeated their goal-getting performance and Cowick, tall Flyer defenceman fired home the third successive Flyer goal to bring the count to 6-4.

Flyer fans scenting victory roared their encouragement and the air crew again surged to the attack. But the flurry was short lived. Led by Mac Watson, starry right winger, the Trentonians organized their forces and dashed in to the attack. Watson fired home his teams seventh goal and forty seconds later Bob Johnson took the winger's pass to add another. Inspired by the two quick counters, Trenton again unleashed a combined offensive and Watson got his hat trick marker of the night from Schmidt's pass. Beale fired home an unnecessary clincher on Watson's pass with 30 seconds to go. All four Trenton goals were tallied in five minutes.

Watson Hero of Piece !

Watson was the hero of the piece as far as scoring points are concerned, for the winners. He flung home three goals and fifty seconds later Bob Johnson sists. Bob Johnson got a pair of markers with brother Cy sniping one Schmidt got one and two helpers with Bert Bastedo getting one and one. Barr and Beale got the remaining pair.

Gordy Ault with three goals stood out for Flyers with Brackenbury, with two assists, Middleton, Cowick, with the remaining goal, Sargent, Miller and Sherman turning in fine efforts.

Referee Maurice Walsh handed out nine penalties, five of them going to Flyers with Parker, Trenton defenceman drawing 3 of his team's four trips to the sin bin. Walsh with Speedy St. Louis who also acted in a referee capacity held the game under rigid control, and at no time did it threaten to get out of hand.

A capacity crowd will likely witness the fifth game here on Friday when the group title will be at stake. The series has been a very popular one and has been productive of fast, exciting crowd-pleasing hockey.

Flyers — Goal, Robertson; defence, Middleton, Cowick; centre, Ault; wings, Dennie, Miller; subs, Sargent, Edwards, Brackenbury, O'Meara, Provost, Prot, Sherman, McKenna.

Minneapolis Millers Halt Losing Streak

(By The Associated Press)

Minneapolis Millers are pointing for a winning streak to help them wind up the United States Hockey League season in first place.

The Millers halted a five-game losing streak last night at Minneapolis with a 5-3 victory over Tulsa. The victory pushed the Millers' points to 70 in the standings, four more than second-place Kansas City.

But the Millers have only five games remaining on their schedule and Kansas City has seven.

Tor Forgie and Norm Burns scooted in goals. The Oilers came back to tie it up at 3-3, but Burns dropped in another and Earl Bartholome gave the victors their final score.

At Kansas City, the Pla-Mors scored twice in the first and twice in the second periods to take a 4-2 decision over St. Paul.

Players to Share $200,000 In N.H.L. Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

Last-minute excitement prevails down the line as the National Hockey League heads into the home stretch leading to Stanley Cup playoffs in which players will share a money pot in excess of $200,000.

Final position means plenty to players involved and in the case of the Leafs and Wings it amounts to a difference of $500. First-place club players receive $1,000 each whereas second players get $500, third $350, and fourth $150.

There's something new in this year's playoffs and it will cost each cash customer 25 cents additional on each ticket with the extra income going towards the player's pension fund. Estimates say this figure could reach $80,000 after amusement tax is removed and already there is $26,000 in the fund from the All-star game last Fall.

J. A. House, president of the Henley Aquatic Association of St. Catharines which conducts all rowing regattas for the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen of Canada, yesterday announced that the C.A.A.O. had confirmed three regattas on the Port Dalhousie, Ont., course this Summer.

There are the Canadian school boy championships, with specified races for international competition with the American school boy racing association, on June 5; the Canadian Olympic trials ,under C.A.A.O. supervision on June 26; and the 55th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, July 28-31.

Dave Castilloux Wins Decision Over S. Waithe

Toronto, March 11 — (CP) — Promoter Frank Tunney should be glad only 2,500 spectators saw his main event in Maple Leaf Gardens pro boxing card last night. It narrows down chances of his getting a reputation for abusing tired old men.

The pair is question are 31-year-old Dave Castilloux of Montreal and 26-year-old Simeon Waithe of Toronto, who ploughed their way through eight dull rounds until the stubby Castilloux, weighing a fat 140 pounds, was awarded a split decision over Waithe, 135 pounds.

Castilloux' clever ring tactics had the younger Waithe missing punch after punch, and his years stopped him from really giving the Toronto Negro a boxing lesson.

Highlight of the bout was the third round and the opening five seconds of the next. Castilloux opened a small gash over Waithe's right eye in the middle of the 3rd and Waithe, still recovering as the bell opened the fourth, took a terrific straight right that jolted him against the ropes.

Reports say Castilloux by virtue of last night's win, may be Arthur King's next challenger for the Dominion lightweight crown.

Vic Eisen, 118, clever Buffalo featherweight, had a tough job winning a close eight-round semi-final over game Jean Richard, 126 pounds of Montreal.

Sudbury's hardrock Harvey Mathe, weighing 133½, won an easy six - round decision over Al Payette, 139½, of Montreal. Payette was down twice for no-counts under smashing blows from the 23-year-old Mathe, who looks as good a contender as any for King once he gets a little seasoning.

Jimmy Roberts, 172½, a Detroit Negro, decisioned Wilf Sauve, 186 of Sudbury, in a wild, sometimes amusing, heavyweight fling.

Pat Sullivan's Seamen's Union Signs Agreement

Montreal, March 11 — (CP)— J. A. (Pat) Sullivan's Canadian Lake Seamen's Union announced yesterday the signing of agreements for the 1948 shipping season with the Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Companies.

These agreements, according to the C. L. S. U., are similar to that signed last weekend by Sullivan's Union with the Canada Steamship Lines, covering some 2,600 seamen employed on C. S. L. vessels.

Yesterday's agreements "will give some 800 seamen a subsistance allowance of $5.25 a day; 14 paid holidays for an eight-month navigation season; union shop; maintenance of membership; and a wage increase of $30 a month.

The contracts with Canada Steamship Lines, Sarnia and Colonial Steamship Companies, are the first reached by the C. L. S. U. since it was formed a year ago by Sullivan after he resigned from the presidency of the Canadian Seamen's Union charging that the C. S. U. was dominated by communists.

According to the C. L. S. U. the new wage scale agreed to by these companies follows: $225 a month for first cooks; $175 fgor wheelesmen; $170 for firemen; $135 for porters and a $30 monthly increase for other personnel.

The shipping companies also agreed that an additional $10 a month will be paid on all self-unloading vessels. Overtime rates are boosted to 90 cents an hour.

Following the announcement last weekend by the C. L. S. U. and C. S. L. that an agreement had been reached giving the union bargaining power for C. S. L. personnel, President Harry Davis of the Canadian Seamen's Union said that all agreements entered into by the C. L. S.U. were worthless because the union was not recognized by the National Labor Relations Board.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

One of the toughies in bridge is a squeeze play. So, it is not surprising that only the most expert players go for it. But it makes an interesting subject for study.

Such a play is simply a matter of forcing an opponent to give up a good card against his will. Or of making him throw away his guard of some good card.

There was a deal like this:

NORTH
♠Q 7 4 3
♥Q 6 4 2

♥J 8
♦K Q 10 7
♣K Q 7 6 4

EAST
♠J 10 9 2
♥None
♦9 8 6 5 3
♣10 9 8 5

SOUTH
♠A K 6
♥A K 10 9 7 5 3
♦J 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 H	3 H
4 NT	6 C
6 H	Pass

Answering four no-trump, six clubs is Kibitzer convention for showing two aces and no kings. With two kings missing in their pair, south could not be blamed for stopping short of a grand slam.

West led the diamond king. Declarer saw that his only loser was in the second round of diamonds. So, he had nothing to worry about for his small slam. But he saw a chance to squeeze for the 13th trick.

Diamond ace took trick one. South took two trump rounds. Three top spades were hauled in. The fourth spade was led and trumped. Now south started laying down trumps.

He kept this up until his own hand held a trump, diamond jack, a small club. Dummy had A J 3 of clubs. West hung onto the diamond queen and K Q of clubs.

South now led the last trump and west was squeezed. If he gave up diamond queen, south jack was good. If west let go of a club face, dummy A J were good. Good to the last drop.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 11 (AP) — Having conquered almost every kind of acting role, Ingrid Bergman now is eyeing comedy. She is letting it be known that after her film with Alfred Hitchcock in England, she wants a light role. Her only previous approach to comedy was her hilarious boxing scene in "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Mortimer Snerd is learning Swedish. Edgar Bergen is brushing up on his ancestral tongue in preparation for his return to Sweden this fall. Mortimer has never spoken the language, but Charlie McCarthy does; in fact, he talks it better than Edgar. The ventriloquist explains that Swedish sounds better from his throat than from his natural voice.

He Gets Around

Billy DeWolfe, Paramount's travelling emissary, has an offer to help open a theatre in Lima, Peru. That's one trip he'd like to make, but he's too busy in "Isn't it Romantic?"

Lou Costello was discoursing on the business of horse racing on the "A and C Meet Frankenstein" set: "You can't lose money racing horses. It costs nine bucks a day to board a horse. Training expenses are extra. But almost any horse should be in the money a few times during a meeting. With the fat purses they hand out these days, you'll at least break even." If you don't mind, Lou, I'll stick to pinochle.

Sights and Sounds

Humphrey Bogart and Edward G. Robinson star in my favorite scene of the week. They were sunning themselves outside the "Key Largo" set when a rubbernecking tourist bus drove by "Look—here's Eddie Robinson; smile for the people, Eddie" Bogart shouted. Robinson got up and pointed. "There's Bogey, too, say hello to the nice folks, Bogey."

10-Second Review

"Sitting Pretty" (20th-Fox) will roll 'em in the aisles. In these days of heavy screen fare, it will be embraced by audiences, since it considers nothing weightier than the problems of a small town it considers nothing weightier than the problems of a small town couple (Robert Young, Maureen O'Hara) and their middle-aged baby sitter (Clifton Webb). Need I say more?

HEAT SAVER

Tests show that about 50 per cent of heat lost through ordinary glass is saved by the use of insulating glass.

AT THE CAPITOL — Leo Gorcey has the title role in "Mr. Muggs Steps Out," new East Side Kids comedy opening tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program Johnny Mack Brown in "Law Comes to Gunsight."

AT THE CAPITOL — Johnny Mack Brown will be seen tonight at the Capitol Theatre in his latest Monogram western, "The Law Comes to Gunsight." On the same program "The East Side Kids" in "Mr. Muggs Steps Out."

Winnipeggers Boast Of Letter-Writing

Winnipeg (CP)— Rivalry between Winnipeg and Vancouver for recognition as Canada's third largest city — next to Montreal and Toronto — has become a traditional affair.

For several years now the nod has gone to the West Coast city, but Winnipeggers are taking a bow on another count, that of writing more letters than Vancouver residents.

Postmaster C. W. Heisler said this week that the post office here transacted business worth $4,714,989.18 from April 1947 to January 1948. This revenue compared with 4,150,000 for Vancouver.

Montreal and Toronto were far ahead of Winnipeg however, with $10,258,000 worth of postal business transacted in the former city and $15,014,000 in the latter.

UNION PAPER ABOARD SHIP

Halifax — (CP) — The liner Lady Nelson, plying between the British West Indies and the Maritimes, is the first Canadian passenger ship to print a union paper for its crew. The paper is distributed among Canadian Seamen's Union members.

The Big Seven

Although held pointless as the Boston Bruins toppled the New York Rangers, 6-3 last night, Buddy O'Connor clung to his slim one point lead in the individual scoring race. Two Chicago players moved into a second place deadlocked with Norman (Bud) Poile as Gaye Stewart picked up a goal and Doug Bentley added an assist to give them a total of 54 points. Ted Lindsay scored a goal and picked up two assists to move up ahead of Toronto's Max Bentley with 51 points.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to get reddy to go to school against my will, only I couldn't find my cap, and I thawt, G, it's pritty cold out, maybe if I dont find my cap maybe they'll make me stay home.

And I said, Hay, pop, hay ma, this is a heck of a note, I cant find my cap.

Let me help you, pop said.

And he pretended to look through all his pockits, and I said, It dont seem any more use looking, I've looked everywheres.

Then look everywhere twice, ma said. You've always found it before, so no doubt histery will repeet itself, she said, and I said, But jimminy, ma, gosh, pop, I'm libel to go all a ways to school without a cap on a cold day like this.

That's a serious thawt, pop said. But just keep remembering that men have gone days without food and weeks without shelter, and that may give you courage as you manfully trudge block after block without a cap, he said, and I said, Well okay, if you and ma say so I'll take a chance. If I catch a bad enough of a cold it'll be my funerel. But I dont care. I wont be there, at least not conscious, I said.

By gollies I wouldn't want you to miss a treet like that, pop said. So you better keep looking for your cap till you find it, he said, and I said, But that's libel to make me late for school, and then I'll be kept after class besides diskracing the whole class record for promptness. Heck, pop, good night ma, this whole thing is a heck of a note, I said.

It seems too bad, ma said. It's just one of those unfortunate things that you have to werk out for yourself, she said, and pop said, That's about the size of it, Benny. Let me know the outcome, he said.

The outcome being I hurry up found my cap in the unmberella stand.

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and ma said, I was reeding an article, William, and I agree with it.

Was it aboat anything special? pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly. It was about ideally married cupples, and it seems the happiest married peeple are the husbands and wives who have the same main intrist in life, she said.

I'll string along with that, pop said. For instance, when the wife is a fine cook and the husband's hobby is well prepared food, it's a combination that's hard to beet, he said, and ma said, Oh, I mean the serious things. For instance the Frentch cupple who invented radium together. I mean Mr. and Mrs. Kewry, she said.

It was Nature who invented radium, pop said, and ma said, Well, Mr. and Mrs. Kewry did something to it, and they spent many blistful years together in their little private labratory. And other cupples can profit by their famous example and do the same thing. You and I, for instance, William, she said.

But for Peet sake we cant discover radium all over again, pop said, and ma said, Science isn't everything in life, except perhaps to scientists. There's also the bizzness field. Why couldn't I help you shoulder to shoulder in your office, even if it was only one or 2 days a week?? she said.

If you knew anything about insurance, it mite be an idea werth thinking over, pop said, and ma said, Couldn't I just sit around your office ferst, till I gradually absorbed the spirit of the bizzness?

You mite make homemade fudge for me to sell to the office force, pop said, and I said, G. ma, that sounds like a swell idea.

Then I hope you injoy the sound, because you'll never live to injoy the taist, ma said.

"If You Want To Be More Energetic Active, Take Syntona," She Says

Tells of Her Own Experience as Proof — Found Relief from Overtired, Listless Feeling. Appetite and Digestion Improved as She Began to Feel Better.

Whether you are 16 or 60 you may at times begin to feel overtired, listless and rundown. Digestion is impaired, appetite is lost, nerves on edge, and sleep is neither sound nor restful. In times like this, Syntona Herbal Compound has proved extremely helpful to thousands of men and women of all ages and usually after taking only a short treatment you are feeling like your old self again.

Here, for example, is the recent experience of Miss Doris Campbell, R.R. 3, Komoka, Ontario, who said:

"I'm certainly sold on Syntona, because I know how much better I feel since I've been taking it. Why, I used to be so tired and listless I didn't care whether I did anything or not. My appetite was poor and what food I did eat gave me indigestion. I became irritable and nervous and my sleep was not restful, so I felt awfully fatigued in the mornings.

"It almost seems impossible that a little medicine could make such a difference in anyone, but since I've been taking Syntona, I have a wonderful appetite and enjoy every meal with no indigestion at all. I am not tired, irritable, or nervous and I feel ever so much better right from the time I get up in the morning.

"I would say to anyone wanting to be more energetic and active, try Syntona. It is really a fine medicine."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

FLEE APARTMENT FIRE

Chicago, March 10 —(AP) — More than 100 persons fled from their apartments in a three-storey brick office-apartment building today when a bomb exploded. The explosion blasted out the door of a small printing shop and shattered more than a score of windows in nearby buildings. No one was hurt.

Police said John Campo owner of the printing shop, was unable to account for the bombing.

MONOCLED SKIPPER MAKES MODEL SHIPS

Vancouver, March 11—(CP) — Captain Edwin Hurt is a sea-going artist with a keen monocled eye for a trim line and stout ship. The 45-year-old skipper, now in port here, said he once tried to quit the sea but couldn't bring himself to do so.

A skilled wood carver, many of his finely-wrought ships' models have sold for $1,000 to eager collectors. He is also a sculptor of considerable talent.

"I started whittling out ships when I was a boy," he said. "I lived inland at Tartu, in Esthonia. I never saw anything larger than a river boat, let alone a ship."

So far he has completed 30 models — the last a 35-inch scale model of the New Bedford whaler Alice Mandell. It took 900 hours to complete.

His next assignments will take three years. It will be a bone and ivory scale model of U. S. frigate Constitution, his ivory taken from old chop sticks and discarded piano keys cut to size.

HEADS CANCER SOCIETY

Toronto, March 9 — (CP)—R. F. Bruce Taylor of Toronto was elected president of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, meeting here today. Other officers elected include Dr. Ivan Smith of London, Ont., first vice-president; C. N. Appleton of Toronto, second vice-president.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Jeff said, quite low, "I love you. I'll love you forever." And though he meant it, he was ashamed, remembering having said the same words to Troy not many weeks ago.

Several days later Lyle began to shop for clothes. A green wool dress and flat-heeled brown suede oxfords for daytime. A black velvet dinner dress and black satin sandals. Bonnie accompanied her and passed judgment. But Bonnie's eyes had pain in them of late, Lyle noticed, and often were unseeing.

"Anything wrong?" she asked her one morning after Michael had gone.

Bonnie shook her brown head. "Why, no. What makes you think."

Lyle's eyes searched her face. "Oh, nothing. But if anything is, and I can help ..."

Bonnie turned away abruptly.

That night Lyle came home to dinner and she and Bonnie dined alone. But Bonnie ate little and her eyes were tormented.

Lyle said, "Tell me. It will help to tell me. It always helps to tell even if the other person just listens."

Bonnie's eyes held tears. "I—I found a note in Michael's coat last week. I always look through his pockets before I send his suits away to be cleaned. It said, 'Lunch Same time. Same place. Helene'." Her voice broke. "Lyle, what else can I think except that he's.... What else is there to think? I didn't say anything to him. That night he asked me if I'd sent that suit away. I said I had. And he looked at me, trying to see in my face if I'd found that note. I'll never forget how he looked at me. But I was the same. And he looked immediately relieved."

Lyle asked, "Do you know who Helene is?" Oh, not this, not this to Bonnie!

She nodded, said quietly, "Yes. She's the daughter of the president of Michael's firm. I've heard him say how she came into the office to get money from her father and how beautifully she was dressed. She's tall and blonde, he said. And she's always going some place, Europe or California or Florida. Now... now...."

"I wouldn't take it too seriously," Lyle said gently "Michael is solid. I know he is."

Bonnie shook her head. "And he's handsome, very handsome. I can't let him know I know this. I can't say anything. I'll—I'll just have to wait and see...."

But the waiting, Lyle thought, the agonizing waiting while Bonnie cooked his breakfast and kissed him good-bye at ht edoor and pretended that everything was the same. While she fed and bath-

"Lyle," Jeff. Darling. I'm sorry. through the day, pausing about noon to think of Michael and Helene together....While she kissed Michael when he came home at night, wondering if he had kissed Helene that day. And the nights, the pretense, the waiting....

Bonnie said, her eyes desolate, "Girls like Helene Kent have everything they want, Lyle. That's why it's so attractive to them to want what belongs to somebody else. Have I failed?"

"In no way. You've been perfect."

"Then why—why..Oh, I know. She's beautiful and rich and new. She doesn't talk to him about a budget that won't balance this month because the baby had to have something special. She doesn't talk about the d reary, practicalthings. She talks about the places she's been, places Michael wants to go but can't because he has Mike and me. She doesn't wear a house dress she made herself, and her nails aren't broken. She always looks perfectly turned out. And Michael is flattered and...."

"And that's all," Lyle said emphatically. "He's just a new conquest to her. Bonnie, don't see what you adn Michael have built shattered in your mind."

But Bonnie said, "I can't help it, I'm scared. And I love him so, Lyle. Why does it have to be Michael? Oh, I'm not going to make any scenes of the outraged wife. But yesterday and today it's been all I could do not to wait outside the office building and...."

"Don't do that." The mental picture of Bonnie, waiting, her trusting eyes hoping it wasn't true and then seeing that it was, made her heart contract. Reaching across the table, she lay her hand over Bonnie's. There was nothing to say, really. No words, however comforting, could take the fear and hurt from her. Womanlike, Lyle saw herself in a similar position. "I'm not married to jeff," she thought, "but I think if ever I saw him with another girl, it would kill me."

"I didn't want to tell you," Bonnie said pathetically, "because you're happy. I knew you'd worry. And you've the big weekend coming up you've been looking forward to."

Later when Lyle was in her room writing to her mother, and Michael came in and she heard Bonnie laugh, she could have wept at the gallantry in that laughter.

On Saturday morning Lyle wore a blue suit and small blue hat and took a taxi to the store because she had the heavy weekend traveling bag with her. Bonnie, holding Mike, had kissed her goodbye, saying, "I know you'll have a wonderful time, darling." Mike had waved frantically.

Jeff was waiting beside the car on the parking lot after working hours. Soon the city was behind them and the white road ahead. Jeff leaned toward her and his kiss landed on her nose.

"You're too far away," he said. "Come closer. Happy?"

"So happy, Jeff." They were riding on a straight road now, she thought. But there were curves and hills and red lights ahead. Once Michael and Bonnie had ridden on a straight white road. Lyle thought," But Jeff and I will slow down at the curves and take the hills in high gear and we'll wait for the red lights to turn green."

"Have you ever been in love before, Lyle?"

"No." She looked up from his shoulder and smiled. "I was waiting for you."

"I'm glad." Waiting for him who had been in love more times than he could remember and each time seriously, he'd thought. Would Troy come up with Ray Hardy this weekend? He did not want Lyle to know about Troy and him. He did not want to see them together in the same room. But Troy would come out of curiosity to see Lyle.

But Lyle was thinking of meeting Stephen Tennant again and this time as a guest in his house.

It was night when Lyle first saw the exterior of Stephen's Connecticut house and consequently her chief impression was that it was a very large white house with a broad lawn spread around it and tall trees above it. Several cars were parked in the driveway. Soft lights from inside fell on the green lawn.

They followed the servant, carrying their bags, into the house.

Only Stephen, his blondness accentuated by dinner clothes, was in the long, lovely room where fresh logs in a gray stone fireplace glowed brightly.

He put down a glass and came toward them, looking at Lyle, thinking that they must pretend they had never met since she was not to know he had telephoned Jeff that day his quick thinking and strong arm had saved her from serious injury. He thought of Suzanne's deft description, "Purity in her face." Yes, purity and untarnished brightness and love for Jeff who stood beside her, proud of her.

Lyle was amused when Jeff introduced them, feeling that Stephen shared her amusement, not knowing that Jeff was amused, too. She held out her hand.

He said, "I'm delighted you could come, Lyle. Suzanne, Miss Gibson, requested that you share her room. There shouldn't be any shortage of conversation there."

Suzanne, wearing a green dinner dress, stood between the two white lamps on the dressing table and smiled at Lyle as she came in.

"Hello, my dear. This is why I left early. I drove up with Stephen." She laughed softly. "This weekend he'll be Stephen to you and I'll be Suzanne. Aren't you hungry? I'm famished. I'm going down."

Lyle took a shower and slipped into the black velvet dress. Her face burned with excitement. She must write her mother about this weekend. Her mother, ambitious for her, would be proud. Then she thought of Bonnie and hoped she wasn't alone tonight in the apartment with Mike. Poor Bonne, still waiting, still pretending .

Coming down the broad stairs, Lyle thought she had never seen a more attractive group of people than was gathered in the drawing room.

Jeff came to her, smiling, and said, "You look lovely, darling," and took her among Stephen's guests and introduced her.

At dinner Vera Gerhart, who had arrived late and who did not know that Lyle had come with Jeff looked, fortunately, at Stephen and not at Jeff and asked, "Where's Troy? I thought she was coming up. I saw her the other day and she said she was."

Jeff bit into his lip. Suzanne could have shaken Vera. Looking around the table, she saw that the other guests were being silently polite for Lyle's sake, because they liked her.

Stephen smiled his slow smile. "You can never account for Troy, Vera."

Vera, understanding now that it was Lyle who had come with Jeff, said no more.

After dinner other guests arrived.

Suzanne saw Stephen thoughtfully studying Lyle and Jeff who were sitting in a dim corner of the room oblivious to everything and everybody except each other.

She said, "Well, there's nothing you can do about it, you know. Do you want to? But by losing the most promising artist we have Jeff may be made into more of a man than he is."

"I'm going to give Jeff every opportunity," Stephen said. "I'm going to see to it that he gets more money and more responsibility. It'll either make him or break him. If he's really in love with the girl, really serious. Do you approve of that idea—giving it to Jeff to see if he can take it?"

She nodded. "Thoroughly. Stephen, have you ever been in love? I've never asked you that before."

He smiled. "I haven't asked you either."

She looked past him. Her gray eyes had memories in them.

"I'll tell you," she said quietly. "I was. But after we quarreled over something very silly, he — he married somebody else. And I turned myself into a successful machine to forget him. And haven't. Never can. New York is still haunted by him. But I haven't seen him since that day we quarreled."

"I'm sorry. I thought it was probably something like that."

"It was seven years ago—before I knew you."

"I probably haven't married because I value my freedom too much. Or because I've never met a girl who was important enough."

Slowly she shook her dark head. 'No, Stephen. You haven't married because no girl has ever been unattainable. You could have had any girl you wanted. That's why you never wanted any girl in particular. You've never had to pursue—they've pursued you."

He smiled. "You know, there might be something in what you say! If, for instance, there was a girl in a tower who had to be rescued...." He arose. "I'm going over and break up the love duet."

"In doing so," Suzanne said, "you may be beginning the eternal triangle."

Jeff rose when Stephen came. They looked down at Lyle.

"You've been monopolizing her, Jeff."

"I intend to. Do you blame me?"

Stephen smiled his indifferent, casual smile. He could not blame Jeff or any man for wanting Lyle Marsh, slim and graceful and auburn-haired, to himself. "She's so feminine," he thought. "She brings out the protective male instinct in Jeff. And I'm going to give him the chance to do big, noble things to impress her so that he can be very proud of himself."

Jeff joined a group at the opposite end of the room. Stephen sat beside Lyle and offered her a cigarette from his silver case.

"Sorry," he said. "I remember now. You don't smoke. But I'm not supposed to remember, am I?"

They talked awhile and Lyle admired the house. She said, "I'm anxious for tomorrow so I can see the outside. Probably I'm old-fashioned but I don't like modern houses and modern furniture. I like this."

"It's old family stuff mostly and things I've brought back from Europe. Have you ever been over?"

She wanted to laugh and say, "I'm a poor country girl with an art education that isn't paid for." But she said instead, "No. But I hope to go."

"Paris—for you. All good fashion artists get there. So you'll get there."

Was that a hint that the store would send her if she continued her good work? For an instant her head swam. Dreams coming true! To be able to write her uncle, "Here is the last instalment!" To be able to write to her mother, "I'm going to Paris!"

Suzanne joined them. "If Stephen is talking business to you, Lyle, I'll never forgive him."

"Wrong," he said. "We were talking or rather just beginning to talk of Paris where I've been often and where Lyle is going someday not too far off."

He had called her Lyle. Looking at him and at Suzanne, she thought, "These two people are my friends." But her eyes drifted to the opposite end of the room to Jeff. Leaving Suzanne and Stephen, she went to him and they found an unoccupied divan before the radio that was playing drowsy, sweet music. Before long they were oblivious—again to everything and everybody except each other.

They scarcely noticed when the guests for the evening left. And they took no notice at all of the house guests gradually thinning and going upstair to their rooms

Stephen was the last, except for Lyle and Jeff, to go up. He left them in the drawing-room, their heads close together, their voices a low murmur. Her face was rapt. Jeff was looking at her as if he could not get enough of looking at her. Kids, Stephen thought. No, Jeff wasn't. Only a few weeks before he had seen Jeff and Troy sitting on the same divan, her dark head against his shoulder. Several guests had said, "There's a match there." Now tonight Jeff was in love again and this time with little Lyle Marsh who loved him so much, Stephen thought, that in the end she would prefer him—to Paris.

Jeff was talking about his life in Boston, his parents, and of his two younger brothers still in school. And Lyle had been thinking, "When Jeff was in college in Massachusetts, I was in high school in Virginia. And we came to New York. He came to make tonight possible...."

Jeff looked back over the divan. "Do you know we're alone? Everybody's gone!" Then he took her hands, those steady, slender hands of hers, and put them to his lips. His dark eyes, solemn now, looked into hers. "Will you marry me, Lyle? I told you I loved you the second time I saw you. I couldn't see the good of waiting when I knew. Will you marry me?"

Lyle could say nothing for feelings that rushed over her like a warm tide. She sat very still, her hands imprisoned in his, and lovingly her eyes traveled over his thin, brown face. And now all she could think of was, "I love him. I love him so."

But Jeff misunderstood her silence. He stiffened. "Don't you want to marry me, Lyle? Doesn't love like this mean marriage — to you?"

It was the first time he had ever hurt her. But she hid this first hurt by lowering her lashes and saying, "Jeff, forgive me but I...."

"I love you. I want to marry you. I want to be with you every minute I'm not working. I'm jealous and I'm afraid I'll lose you. I can't give you...."

"Don't say anything about that. It wouldn't matter how little or how much you could give me." Please make him understand what she must say! She looked at him tenderly. "I feel the same way about you, Jeff. But I can't marry you. At least not yet." She felt his hands relax and saw high color come to his face.

Getting up, he walked away from her a little and lighted a cigarette. Lyle thought, 'We're hurting each other and we mustn't. He doesn't understand."

She said, "I can't marry you, Jeff, because I owe a lot of money to my uncle in Baltimore who paid my way through art school. And I have to send money to my mother in Florida."

He thought, "If I hadn't given Troy expensive presents, if I hadn't paid cash for the new car, I could pay her uncle every cent.

Then an ugly thought flashed. He could not suppress it. If it's your work, your career...." He was looking at her coldly now.

"I'm funny about that," Jeff said after a pause. "Old-fashioned, maybe. I don't want a working wife. I don't want my wife to live all day in a world I can't share, a world I don't know anything about. I don't want to come home at night and find my wife tired and worried over business problems. I don't want her to have her money and for me to have mine. That isn't marriage." And because Lyle was talented and ambitious she would, in time, earn more than he! He couldn't bear that! "So if your career means more to you than I ..."

Hurting her again because her refusal had hurt his pride. "You're perfectly right, Jeff. Before I knew you, I planned to work several years and pay my debt and try to prove to my family that I wasn't just dreaming when I fought and begged to go to art school. Then I wanted to get married and paint at home for pleasure. I'm not a career girl."

She's so sweet, he thought, so perfect, so right—always.

"I'm sorry," he said. Then he came back to her, ardent again, and kissed her.

"Don't make it hard for me. But if we married now, I'd have to be a working wife, paying off a debt. We can't begin in debt. And we couldn't continue at the store. There's a rule against that. So one of us would be out of a job for a while." She thought of what Stephen had said about her going to Paris some day, not too far off. She didn't want to go to Paris! She wanted to be Jeff's wife!

"Then shall we leave it like this, Lyle?"

Her hand touched his face. "We can wait."

He smiled. "And save our money. Now that's an idea! We'll save our money. We'll open a joint bank account so you can check up on me." He laughed, feeling better. "And we'll start off with enough for a swell honeymoon. You're right. You're always right. If only I could be sure of you."

"I'll love you forever."

"It's your decision, this waiting. We could get married tonight."

For an instant she let herself dream... Get married in a small parsonage and disappear for a few days somewhere, anywhere. But they would have to come back to the store and to people and one would have to resign.... Oh, no! That was not the way to begin! She said, "Jeff, never hurt me again by telling me that my work is more important than you. Nothing is."

"I'm sorry. I lost my temper. It's because I'm so crazy about you, Lyle."

She sat up. "It's terribly late."

He smiled. "Just one more thing. Say, Jeff, I'll marry you.'"

She said it, adding, "Some day, not too far off."

Suzanne was reading in bed when Lyle entered their room.

"I had no idea it was so late," Lyle said.

"It's never too late when you're in love, my dear." She put the book aside and looked at Lyle who was unhooking the black velvet dress. "Happy, aren't you? And living in a world of your own. I know."

"I don't know if I'm happy or not. I've just been telling Jeff I can't marry him yet. My uncle lent me the money to go to art school and I have to pay it back. And I—I want to marry Jeff now while everything is—is new."

"But I never like a new dress the first time I wear it, do you?" Suzanne said, smiling. "Somehow it doesn't seem to belong to me. But after it's weathered a good soaking, I know it's good material. I always like my clothes much better after they're cleaned."

And along toward morning when Suzanne opened her eyes, she looked over and saw that the tears had dried on Lyle's sleeping face. "The first time I saw them together," she thought, "she wouldn't have believed it, if I had told her, that love held any tears. Now she knows it does.

Lyle, wearing the green wool dress that accentuated the redness of her hair and the flat-heeled brown suede oxfords that made her look so small, walked a long way into the country with Jeff the next day.

Finally he said, "You know, I'm serious about this joint bank account business. I've been thinking about it." He smiled. "Afraid to trust your money to a notorious spendthrift? . Your name on the book will be an incentive to make me save. I wrote my family about you last night. They'll love you. They'll think you're so good for me. And beginning tomorrow I'm going to get down to some serious work at the store. I've been loafing. Steve'll be glad to hear I'm taking some interest."

"I like Steve. Is he really as indifferent as he seems?"

"About women, yes. But about this bank account...."

She smiled. "It's settled. Right now I've less than a hundred dollars."

"And I've less than two hundred...."

'I won't be able to save very much because of Uncle John and my mother getting their share. But I'll save consistently." She wouldn't buy the fur coat she had said she would get as soon as she was earning money. She wouldn't buy the dress that had been tempting her for days from a shop window.

"And you'll keep the bank book with you," he said. "That's settled, too."

She was quiet for a time, thinking of Bonnie. She, Lyle, was building her life. What Bonnie had built with love and loyalty and sacrifice was crumbling ...

As they approached the house. Lyle said, "There's a car that wasn't there when we left What an elegant car!"

It was Troy's green phaeton!

Going into the house, Lyle saw a small, dark-haired girl in a brown suit.

Jeff introduced them while all Stephen's guests looked on, hoping there wouldn't be an ugly scene. Stephen looked genuinely concerned as he watched the tall, dark-haired Jeff, the smartly dressed Troy, and Lyle, her bright hair disheveled, her face aglow from the cold outside air. Jeff was a man looking at his past and his future, he thought, Jeff for whom Lyle had a bright and shining love ...

But Troy had come for her scene, her last bitter laugh.

With Lyle looking at her, she said, her voice low, her eyes dark and contemptuous, "I'm so glad to know you, Miss Marsh. In fact, I drove all the way up here today to meet you." She ignored Jeff's pleading eyes. "You're in the driver's seat now. Last month I was. I'm talking about Jeff and me before you came on the scene. I had to meet the girl who took him away from me. But if you stay in New York long, you'll constantly be meeting girls who've had love affairs with Jeff. We really should form a club, there are so many of us. And they'll all tell you the same thing about him—that you can't trust him, that he—he can't be true! And he can't help himself! That's the pity of it! He can't help being the way he is and he'll never be any other way!"

The color rose hotly in Lyle's face as if it had been struck.

No one said anything for a moment. No one moved. Then Stephen stepped to Jeff's side. Without thought or plan his going to Jeff was an unconscious gesture of protection to Jeff whom he had known and liked for years but of whom he did not always approve. He was going to speak ...

But Lyle spoke first. 'I never suspected that I was the first girl Jeff ever loved. I've suspected there have been many. And I can understand their loving him. Because I love him."

YES, MEN WHO KNOW HEAT WITH COAL and use AUTOMATIC STOKERS

Plan Coal Heat For New School

Heating plant for the new $650,000 East Middlesex High School to be built at Arva will be fired by coal and not by oil as intended originally.

Architects for the building have recommended the change, and added that in proposed new schools where oil heating was intended the change is being made.

Members of the East Middlesex High School Board, of which W. E. McClary is chairman, had considered the change before the recommendation was received. They will give it approval when they meet later this month, Secretary Blake Kennedy said.

Shortages of gas and oil for fuel have prompted the switch. The new school at Arva will be equipped with an underground coal bunker, bin feed stoker arrangement, and an ash hoist.

5 NATIONS ADOPT TREATY TO CHECK COMMUNISM

Proposal to Unite Western Europe Laid Before House

73 British M.P.'s of All Parties Sign Resolution

London, March 12 —(AP)— A resolution calling for a constitutional convention to unite all Western Europe with a common citizenship was submitted to the House of Commons today.

Seventy-three members of five political parties signed the resolution.

Winston Churchill, opposition leader who called for a "United States of Europe" 18 months ago, was not a signer, but he promised the group he would seek a day's parliamentary debate on their plan.

The resolution seeks to set up at once "a council of Western Europe consisting of representatives of the 16 participating countries in the European recovery plan and Western Germany, to lay down broad lines of common action."

Launching into a long-term policy, the resolution asks for creation of "a democratic federation of Europe, with a constitution based on the principles of common citizenship, political freedom and representative government, including a charter of human rights."

There appeared to be no immediate support for the plan in the government.

Sees Cominform's Fall if Situation In Russia Known

London, March 12. (Reuters)—Christopher Mayhew, under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said today at a press conference that if the full facts of conditions in Russia were known by the workers of Europe "the cominform would collapse tomorrow".

Mayhew, leader of the British delegation at the sixth session of the United Nations Economic and Social Council at Lake Success, N.Y., was commenting on an attack made by a Russian delegate at Lake Success against conditions prevailing in other countries.

The underlying weakness of the attack was that Russia had not supplied any valid information for either the United Nations world survey or the monthly statistical bulletin, on the economic conditions in the Soviet Union, Mayhew said.

"It can only be assumed that a fair comparison between conditions existing in Soviet Russia and in social democratic countries would be fatal to Soviet propaganda."

The Soviet statistics produced had all been in percentages and it was difficult to get a picture of conditions from them.

Kelso Roberts Charges Communists Trying to Turn Miners Against Their Employers

Toronto March 12 (CP) — The Ontario Legislature last night held its first night sitting of the 1948 session and members, continuing Throne Speech debate, spent most of the time discussing Communism.

A. Kelso Roberts (PC-Toronto St. Patrick) charged that Communists have been going into the gold mining camps of Kirkland Lake and Timmins and trying to turn miners against their employers. He said he did not believe Canadian workers in gold camps wanted to be "led aroupd by the nose by known Communists."

He demanded that Robert Carlin (CCF-Sudbury) district eight organizer for the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO) make his position clear on what Mr. Roberts termed "the Communist movement" in the mine union. Mr. Carlin did not reply but it is expected he may do so when he speaks later in the Throne Speech debate.

Criticism of Communism came earlier in the day from W. J. Grummett, C.C.F. House leader, who declared his party opposed to "any truck or trade with Communism." Mr. Grummett also called for settlement of immigrants in Northern Ontario to develop agricultural areas and advocated larger taxation allowance for Northern mining communities.

Called Rehash of Papers

A.A. MacLeod (LPP-Toronto Bellwoods) called Mr. Roberts' speech "a rehash of newspaper clippings probably handed to him by dissatisfied union members in Northern Ontario bars." He described the Throne Speech as a "paste-pot symphony" and said that since its election the government had been "manufacturing excuses about not doing anything about housing."

Gypsy Convicted of Promising Husband And Large Fortune

Haverfordwest, Pembrokeshire, Wales, March 12 (CP)—A court case which a judge said was reminiscent of the dark ages resulted in a gypsy fortune-teller being convicted of swindling a sp[illegible]ter by promising her a "hus[illegible]and a large fortune."

Miss Patty Davies, [illegible], said the fortune-teller, Geraldine Worral, 50, told her—for £1 ($4)— she would get married and inherit a large fortune from abroad.

Later she agreed to the gypsy's suggestion that she sacrifice "a bit of money" which would help her get a husband.

The gypsy, sentenced to nine months, said: "Many people believe in fortune telling. She was maddening for a husband.'

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, March 12—(CP)—Synopsis: Ontario is not the only section of the country beset with cold weather for almost all of the eastern half of the continent is in the grip of this chilly weather this morning. In Southern Ontario, the coldest temperatures of this current cold spell were recorded last night. Many places were near or below zero, but the worst is not past, and temperatures today and Saturday will moderate considerably. Over Northern Ontario the upward trend in temperatures today will be reversed Saturday when colder air again spreads south into this section.

Tale of Ill-Treatment of German Internees Told in Officer's Trial

Hannover, March 12 (Reuters)—Former Sergeant Frederick Thomas testified today that two Germans in Bal Nenndorf Camp were "punched in the kidneys and face" and "pushed around."

He was testifying for the prosecution in the resumed trial of Lieut. Richard Oliver Langham of the British Army, charged with "disgraceful conduct" arising out of alleged ill-treatment of German internees at the camp.

Cross-examination by defence counsel, Thomas denied that the two prisoners, Horst Mahnke and Rudolf Oedsler-Roeder, were burned with cigarets or beaten so that they suffered head wounds and bled.

The allegations of ill-treatment refer to incidents in April 1946.

Thomas said that he and former Sergeant - Major John Mathers, who testified yesterday, visited the two internees in their cells seven times on April 17, 1946.

On each visit, which lasted about 15 minutes, the Germans were forced to walk around their cells and were punched in the kidneys and face. They were also pushed around forcibly and forced to stand against a wall with arms outstretched.

Both Germans gradually showsigns of exhaustion, Thomas said.

Shortly before midnight, Oedsder-Roeder was given paper and pencil to write a confession.

When Mathers returned to the prison, Thomas added that they went back to Mahnke's cell and made him run around and beat him.

When Mahnke lost consciousness they dragged him to a shower and held him under it until he regained consciousness.

Then they forced him to run up and down the corridor, punching him and throwing a chair in the way as he ran. Whenever he collapsed they dragged him to the shower and revived him.

Then Mahnke was brought back to his cell, was given paper and pencil and ordered to write a confession.

What the Germans were required to confess to was not brought out in evidence.

TWO ARE DEAD, WOMAN MISSING IN MONCTON FIRE

12 Suffer Injuries Jumping to Safety

Moncton, N.B., March 12 (CP)—Two persons are dead and little hope is held that a missing woman will be found alive after an early morning fire destroyed a three-storey apartment building at the corner of Robinson and Main Streets here today.

The dead were identified as Clifford DeRoche, 50, whose wife is missing and is feared to have perished, and Alfred Conier deschibed as about 30 years of age.

Seven other persons who had been missing were found by police who reported that all but two of 12 injured had been discharged from hospital after treatment for superficial hurts.

Police said the two remaining in hospital were Alfred DeRoche and Telesphore LeBlanc, suffering from back injuries sustained in leaping from the flaming building.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Apartments on the second and third storeys of the building in the business section housed 29 persons and most of the injured suffered their hurts when they leaped from upstairs windows. None was reported in serious condition.

The fire was discovered at 2:20 a.m. by two taxi drivers who rushed up the flaming stairs of the building to warn the residents after turning in the alarm.

Pounded on Doors

The two young men, Ronald Babineau and Clarence Cormier, pounded on all the doors on the second storey but were blocked from the third floor by flames.

Most seriously injured were Alfred DeRoche and Felix LeBlanc who suffered broken legs and injured backs when they leaped from the blazing building. Others suffered cuts, bruises and shock.

Would Deny Radio Time to Reds

Quebec, March 12. (CP) — Communists will be denied speaking time on the air by all radio Stations in Canada if effect is given a resolution adopted yesterday by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters at the closing session of its fifth annual convention.

The measure strongly recommended that all radio stations refuse either to sell or give time "to speakers representing any party, group or association whatever its name or front that advocates or approves of the overthrow of government other than by peaceful democratic or constitutional methods."

It grew out of a point raised by K. D. Soble of CHML, Hamilton, who asked for direction as to whether requests from Communist labor organizations for air time should be granted.

Low-Cost Housing Plan For Farm Workers Urged In Agricultural Brief

Toronto, March 12 — (CP) — Recommendations that the government invest "many millions more" in the province's agricultural industry and settle farm workers in separate low - cost housing units, were advanced in a brief presented today to Premier Drew and his cabinet by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

The brief stated that Ontario government expenditures in 1946 were $6,459,000, of which less than $3,000,000 was for ordinary expenditures, and about $3,500,000 for such items as quality premiums and subsidies.

"We believe that these are inadequate expenditures on such a vast business," the brief read.

To alleviate demand for full - time farm employees, the O. F. A. suggested the provincial government consider social and economic advantages of settlement of the greatest number of farm workers in separate houses and that this be included in consideration of assistance in providing low - cost housing units in Ontario.

The brief also said that the level of remuneration in the Department of Agriculture, agricultural colleges and schools and agricultural representative services were too low. Improved salaries and opportunities were needed to hold and attract "a strong and aggressive agricultural personnel."

The brief asked the government to pass legislation which would offer complete accident insurance coverage for farmers, their families and their hired help on a group basis.

Generally Pleased

"Farmers are generally pleased with the administration of the farm products Farm Products Marketing Act and these schemes should have a stabilizing and lifting effect on farm income throughout the province," the brief read.

It asked that the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Association should have the right to determine its organizational collection of license fee.

"It is our belief that there should have been no sudden change in the interpretation of the Milk Control Act after 10 years successful operation," the brief said.

A recommendation of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers Association urged that there should be provision in the Act to enable producers' organizations to set up a central marketing agency to direct and control milk of its members.

Support was given to a recommendation of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association that the Ontario government replace the cheese subsidy paid since 1941 with a quality premium paid on top quality milk and sediment-free cheese.

Long-Term Credit Asked

Need for a long-term credit was brought out in the presentation. The government was requested to expand its credit union service and to assist in organization and encouragement of rural credit unions.

To give the Ontario Agricultural College "university status which would have greater meaning," the brief urged the government to allow the college its own board of governors.

"The college program and staff should not be subject to the direction of the Minister of Agriculture or the government."

The Federation also asked that the Ontario government increase its grant to seeding plants to $500 to compensate for the $250 grant withdrawn by the Feleral Department of Agriculture.

Consumers Ask Extension Of Probe of Retail Prices Into Items Like Flour, Milk

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)—Investigation into the practice of manufacturers and wholesalers setting retail prices was asked of the Commons Price Committee today by the Canadian Association of Consumers.

In a brief presented to the committee, the association asked that this practice of "re-sale price maintenance" be probed to determine its contribution towards the prices on consumer goods.

"As consumers," said the brief, "we would like to know whether competition in our economy is working free. In our free competitive economy, is it ever right for the manufacturer or wholesaler to tell the retailer what he should charge his public? What part does this play in the prices on consumer goods."

Recently, the committee has been looking into re-sale price maintenance in connection with bread, and the association suggested specifically it also should deal with such items as soap flakes, matches, hardware items and electrical appliances.

Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Agincourt, Ont., association president, read the brief. With her on the witness stand were Mrs. F. E. Wright of Port Credit, Ont., secretary. A large delegation of women accompanied the two witnesses.

The association urged the committee to extend its inquiry — which already has touched on bread, fruits and vegetables—into such cost-of-living items as flour, milk, butter, clothing, "household necessities' and furniture.

In the case of most of these, the committee already had indicated it planned investigations. It was due to start Monday on butter, and down for later investigation were flour, milk, textiles, meats and boots and shoes.

Justice Cameron To Give Statement On Wage Demands

Montreal, March 12 (CP)—The Conciliation Board under Justice J. C. A. Cameron inquiring into a demand for a general 35-cents-an-hour increase for Canada's 125,000 railwaymen, adjourned today to March 30 after 2 1-2 days of discussions.

It was reported outside the conference chamber that little progress had been made towards a solution of the wage increase questions.

The conference was held in camera.

Justice Cameron—a member of the Exchequer Court, Ottawa — said that he would make a statement later.

Morris M. Wright of Ottawa, represented the 18 railway brotherhoods while M. M. Porter, Calgary, acted for the 10 railways concerned. Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee for the Unions read a brief upholding the workers' demands and was answered by D. I. McNeil, K.C., vice-president of personnel, Canadian Pacific Railway.

Rising Trend In Temperature Seen for Weekend

Toronto, March 12 —(CP)— Zero and near-zero temperatures held most of Ontario in an icy grip over night. However, the weatherman forecast an upward trend in temperatures today and tomorrow for the southern part of the province. In the north, another icy blast is in store for Saturday.

White River, in Northern Ontario, upheld a tradition of nearly 50 years with the lowest temperature reported in the province over night — 22 below zero. Subzero levels were reported in Southern Ontario as well — 17 below at Muskoka airport, 10 below at Welland, one below at London.

In its forecast for tonight, the Dominion Public Weather Office in Toronto foresaw sub-zero temperatures only in Northern Ontario with 10-below levels expected at Moosonee.

THREE MEASURES TARGETS OF FIRE BY OPPOSITION,

Pension Increases Claimed Inadequate

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)—Three government measures, one aimed at increasing veterans' pensions, another at extending the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board, and a third at ratifying new excise taxes, were the target for opposition criticism in the Commons yesterday.

The pension bill, given second reading and referred to the Veterans Committee for detailed study, was criticized on the grounds that the proposed increases were inadequate. George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley) joined opposition members in urging larger increases.

Veterans Minister Gregg said supplementary cheques covering the proposed increases, which average between 16 and 20 per cent of the present pensions, will be about the equivalent of one month's pension and will be mailed by the end of the month. The increases are retroactive to Oct 1, 1947.

Opposition to the wheat board measure stemmed from Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. benches, with A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) charging that acceptance of a section of the legislation would mean the complete socialization of practically everything the western farmer has to sell.

The debate was on a resolution to a bill that would provide for an increase in the initial price of wheat; give the wheat board power to become the sole marketing agent for oats and barley as well as wheat, and provide for the establishment of a pension fund for board employees.

Duty to Spread Gospel Against Communism

Chatham, March 12 (CP) — A vigorous verbal attack on Communism was voiced here last night by Sydney Aiken of Windsor, district commander of the Canadian Legion, at the quarterly meeting of zone three of the Canadian Legion.

"It is the duty of every Legion man to combat Communism to the utmost of his ability by spreading the gospel against it. This is the only way we can stop the Red scourge that is currently devouring the earth," he said.

Mr. Aiken also claimed that the best civil service commission jobs do not go to veterans and that the commission should be a veterans' employment service and "taken out of the hands of the politicians."

Col. Ivan Nurse, Branch Number 28, Legion past-president spoke against the government giving permission to the Labor-Progressive Party to hold meetings in the schools.

Military, Economic, Political Union In West Europe

Britain, France and Benelux Nations Sign Pact Next Week

Brussels, Belgium, March 12 — (AP)—Britain, France and the Benelux nations adopted today a 50-year treaty for a political, economic and military union of western Europe intended to check the march of Communism.

Conference officials said the accord and allied documents will be signed here next Wednesday by the Foreign Ministers of Belgium, Britain, France, Luxemburg and The Netherlands.

The text of the agreement will not be released until the signature ceremony, to give the five governments of the negotiators opportunity to examine it closely.

Delegates from the five countries, including four of the world's greatest colonial powers, completed their efforts on the western union suggested in January by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin after more than a week around the conference table.

Sir George Rendel, chief of the British delegation and Britain's Ambassador here, said upon emerging from the conference room that the delegates had agreed among themselves not to communicate any of the substance of the treaty before their governments approve it.

Questioned as to whether the treaty provided for a permanent five power commission to carry out its provisions, Sir George shook his head.

"That," he said, "is one of the things I just cannot talk about."

What Treaty May Contain

The treaty is reported to contain a preamble and 10 clauses and was believed to bind the five countries to mutual assistance in the face of aggression, mutual aid in the economic field, co-operation in improving their living standards and a measure of coordination of colonial resources.

One of the final points before the conferees, it was learned, was whether the treaty should name Germany as a possible aggressor. There was no definite indication as to the decision reached.

A short communique issued after the final session said the delegates, meeting here since March 4, have "drawn up a draft treaty which they will be recommending to their respective governments and which will include clauses dealing with economic, social, cultural and defence matters within the scope of the charter of the United Nations.

"It is hoped the treaty will be signed in Brussels next week by the foreign ministers of each country. It will be for the governments concerned, after finally approving the text, to publish its substance in such a manner as they decide in common."

Conference officials said the text would be released simultaneously in the capitals of all five countries on the day of signature.

He Kissed 'em All

New York, March 12 (AP)—Governor James (Big Jim) Folsom of Alabama stalwartly withstood a crowd of 2,500 on Fifth Avenue yesterday but succumbed to the charms of scores of beautiful girls who fought their way through the mob to his arms. He kissed 'em all. He was feted as "the nation's No. 1 leap year bachelor."

Rumor U.K. Officials Expect Russia To Seek Norse Treaty Unconfirmed

London, March 12 (AP)— Wide circulation was given today a rumor that British officials expect Russia to ask Norway for a treaty of friendship soon. There was no confirmation of the report, and both the British Foreign Office and the Norwegian Legation said they know nothing of such a move.

Under the Finnish Peace Treaty, Russia has a short frontier on Norway.

A denial of the report was carried by the Copenhagen newspaper Nationaltidende, quoting the Norwegian Foreign Minister, Halvard Lance.

The report apparently first appeared in "Nationaltidende" under a London dateline quoting "informed political sources" and "prominent British politicians."

A similar report was carried later by the Columbia Broadcasting System. It said British officials expect Prime Minister Stalin to ask Norway for a pact. It added that J. C. Hauge, Norwegian Defence Minister, made a "secret" trip to London and talked two days with war office officials.

The official Norwegian spokesman here said that Hauge's trip here was "far from being secret"; that it was announced in Oslo at the time of his departure. The trip took him to Germany to inspect Norwegian troops stationed in the British zone of occupation, and his talks later here were in that connection.

PRESIDENT CALLS HALT TO SPREAD OF COMMUNISM

Will Pit Full Political Power and Prestige of U. S. Against Scourge

Washington, March 12—(AP)—President Truman today pitted the full political power and prestige of the United States against the spread of communism anywhere.

At the same time a five - point administration plan began to emerge: a plan for coming to grips with what State Secretary Marshall considers a "great crisis" in the world.

Within a few hours, both the president and his secretary of state spoke out with extraordinary frankness on the state of affairs resulting from the bitter conflict between Russia and the western powers.

For the first time publicly, Truman admitted that his faith in the attainment of a real world peace has been somewhat shaken. He said so at a White House press conference late yesterday.

Marshall, appearing last night before a meeting of the Federal Council of Churches, declared flatly that "the world is in the midst of a great crisis, inflamed by propaganda, misunderstanding, anger and fear."

Appeals for Moderation

Marshall coupled with his pronouncement of crisis an appeal for moderation, calm thinking and cool judgment on the part of the American people.

Truman himself had said earlier that Americans should be careful not to let their passions get the better of them.

Out of the president's press conference comments and Marshall's brief speech came the pattern of administration policy for meeting the crisis.

Officials expect that crisis to reach a climax first and most directly in the Italian political campaigns leading up to elections there April 18. Here are the points which the president, the secretary — or both in some cases — stressed:

BOY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Eight-year-old Ronald Tapp, Bull Street, in Thurlow township, suffered gashes on both temples and abrasions to the face when last evening he was struck by a car as he was crossing College Street. The young lad was taken to hospital where he is under the care of Dr. R. Potter.

Police who investigated the accident stated the Tapp boy had been struck by a car driven by William Grier, Grier Street, and that the lad had been dragged for a distance of 60 feet on the city roadway before the car was brought to a stop. Grier had been driving east on College Street when the lad darted across the roadway from North James Street. He was struck by the left headlight and bumper.

A Pat on the Back For the Hydro Boys

"It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody some good."

And that old bromide applies to the much-discussed, much criticized power cut-offs that have been the bane of housewives for the past few weeks.

This morning, however, instead of the usual "blast" over one of the news-room telephones, came a cheery voice announcing that the speaker, a lady, was anxious to give the hydro people a pat on the back.

Asked the reason for this surprising reversal of form on the part of the rulers of the home, the voice replied. "I have always enjoyed my breakfast toast made over hardwood coals. Since we have had the hydro, I've been satisfied with the sometimes soggy, oft-times burned article that I rescue from the toaster."

"Since, the cut-off came, and I have been forced to make the toast the old-fashioned way, I have been happier and now really enjoy my breakfast. My disposition has improved, the world appears to be a better place to live in, and I'm thinking of chucking the electric toaster out the window."

"So give the hydro people a pat on the back for me," the "voice," concluded, and after you do that, ask 'em when these darned cut-offs are going to stop."

Bump! Bump! Bump! Resulting Damage $100

Slippery and rutted streets were responsible for a series of minor accidents yesterday with no less than four accidents of this nature being reported in various parts of the city.

One was a three vehicle accident on Front Street with approximately $100 in property damage resulting. Harold Wright, R.R. 3, Belleville, was proceeding north on Front Street when he was forced to stop through a car pulling out in front. His vehicle was bumped by the following car driven by William Potter of Picton, while the Potter car in turn was bumped by a Rawson bus driven by Reynold Brown, Charles Street.

Court Case Involving Store Closing Hour Enlarged for Week

A court case involving a charge against Ed A. Kellaway, West Bridge Street grocer, for remaining open contrary to the provisions of the local grocery by-law, was enlarged for one week when the matter came up before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court today.

Mr. Kellaway is charged with keeping his store open for business later than the closing time specified in the city grocery by-law.

The enlargement of the case was asked by special prosecutor Frank Cushing who stated that he required time to obtain further information regarding submission by defence counsel Malcolm Robb that city council were not within their powers in passing the by-law under which Mr. Kellaway had been charged.

Two witnesses were called by special prosecutor Cushing. City Clerk J. Wilfred Holmes testified as to the passing of the by-law by city council, while Detective Sgt. Ellis produced groceries purchased in the Kellaway store following closing hours as specified in the by-law. Sgt. Ellis also told of other occasions when customers had been served in the Kellaway store after regular closing hours.

Tenants Vacate Building When Blaze Discovered

Four elderly women were led from third-floor apartments on Front Street early last evening when fire of undetermined origin caused small damage to a partition in the repair shop of the Wonnacott Jewellery Store.

Damage to the shop and to stock amounted to approximately $100, it was stated by firemen.

Employees at the Geen Drug store were first to notice the fire as they saw smoke sifting out through the partition and promptly notified the fire department. The blaze was discovered shortly after six-thirty, after the Wonnacott place of business had been closed for the day.

Smoke seeping up through the partition had filled the third floor apartments with smoke and as a precaution the tenants were led by firemen down the stairs to safety.

Firemen answered a second alarm shortly after eleven o'clock this morning when an alarm was turned in from 121 West Bridge Street where over-heated stove-pipes were reported. No damage was reported by firemen.

Word was received by relatives of the death of Fred Ingram in hospital at Kirkland Lake, Ont., on Tuesday night. He was in his 39th year and had been seriously ill for about a week.

The late Mr. Ingram was a star hockey player in the Trent Valley League in the early thirties and played with Campbellford, Stirling and Belleville teams. He was well and popularly known and a host of friends throughout this district will regret his early passing.

He was a native of Campbellford district and has been employed as an electrician in the Wright-Hargreaves mine, Kirkland Lake, for many years. He is survived by his wife, one sister, Mrs. J. Donoboe, of Stirling, and five brothers, Harry, of Stirling; James of Codrington; William and Robert, of Campbellford; and Elmo, of Wilson Settlement.

LATE MRS. MARTHA T. EMERSON
(Huntingdon Township)

The funeral of Mrs. Martha T. (Hamm) Emerson, wife of Mr. John Emerson, was held Thursday afternoon from her late residence in the second concession of Huntingdon township to the United Church at Moira where service was conducted by Mr. Kenneth Stewart of Lakefield District, a former pastor at Moira. During the service a vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. Nelson Welsh and Mrs. Donald Holbert.

Interment took place at Thomasburg Cemetery. The bearers were Nelson Welsh, James Vanderwater, Milton Vanderwater, Cecil Geen, Burton Foster and Walter Thompson.

LATE MRS. EMMA GILMOUR

On Thursday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Emma (Orr) Gilmour, widow of Albert E. Gilmour, and late residence 7 Victoria Avenue, was held from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bearers were Garfield Carson, Jacob Mattis, Frank Orr, Percy Cavanagh, P. G. Tounsley and Frank S. Follwell.

A FRIENDLY MOTORIST

Windsor, March 12 (CP)—This city has its friendly motorists. A hit-run driver caused $10 damage to a taxicab driven by Daniel Mahoney yesterday as he was waiting to make a turn into the bus depot. After the impact, the hit-and-hunner waved his hand and kept on his way.

Services of C. of C. Sec'y-Manager Will be Sought by Joint Committees

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their weekly luncheon at the Chez Henri yesterday, endorsed a recommendation to appoint a special committee to act with a similar committee appointed by the Industrial Commission, the joint representatives to investigate the possibility of securing the services of a joint Industrial Commissioner and secretary manager.

The recommendation followed a discussion on the matter with the City Industrial Commission Chairman Jack Allin, Harry Rollins, Robert Pringle and Mayor D. L. Storey, who were guests at the luncheon. Alderman Bruce Lattimer is also a member of the Commission as well as director of the Chamber.

Named to the special committee were Chairman Harold Seldon of the Chamber of Commerce, and director Henry Becker, with Director Lattimer cited to act as a representative of both bodies. The Industrial Commission expressed its willingness to appoint a special committee to discuss the matter with the Chamber representatives and will appoint its members later.

No Action on Applications

No action was taken on a number of applications for the position which were presented to the chamber at yesterday's meeting.

The committee was given power to act and also authorized to insert advertisements in the proper publications.

Chairman Allin of the Commission told the meeting his organization had already made some arrangements for secretarial work, but he thought that a bright young energetic man was needed to look after the tourist and other business, and who would be capable of looking after industrial requirements if the commission was called out of town on official business.

Following a suggestion that the proposed industrial commissioner's salary be paid jointly by the Chamber and the commission, Commissioner Harry Rollins said that while the closest co-operation was necessary between the two bodies, and each should do its own phase of work, the Commission could not see its way clear this year to contribute much to the salary, as far as this year's budget goes.

Committee Appointed

Chairman Allin then suggested that committees from each body be appointed with power to act, in the event of a suitable applicant being available. Some directors, however, believed that the applications should be brought before the bodies as a whole, to prevent a selection that would not be wholly approved by other members of the Chamber and Commission. This suggestion was tabled, and the discussion ended with the motion to appoint a committee.

Directors Lorne McDougall and Art. Francis were appointed a committee of two to investigate the restoring of Chamber furniture, damaged in the recent fire, and the purchase of new articles to replace those irreparably affected.

Booth Will Advertise District Tourist Attractions at Sportsmen's Show

Tourist attractions of Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district and of the highlands of Hastings County will be advertised at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show to be held in Toronto Saturday and all next week.

A special booth setting forth the various local attractions is now in the course of preparation and throughout next week will be staffed by Belleville personnel who will hand out tourist literature and give any information asked. The booth at the Sportsmen's Show is being decorated tomorrow by Gordon Rattray of this city.

Cost of the booth is being split three ways by the city, the County of Hastings and the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association. Alderman Claude Tice, as chairman of publicity for the city council, will be in attendance at the booth Monday through Wednesday, while Miss Helen Fralick of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, will be in attendance representing the county from Thursday through Saturday.

Miniature Orange And Lemon Trees Bloom in Home

Orange and lemon tres are in bloom. Not in sunny Florida, natural habitat of the citrus fruit, but here in the outskirts of winter-weary Belleville.

Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Trent Road, has dwarf orange and lemon trees that are now throwing down a colorful defiance to Old Man Winter.

Symbol of love, weddings, the altar, and bridal gowns, upwards of 300 beautiful full-blown blossoms are spreading a colorful mantle of bloom over the orange tree. Within a few days, the miniature lemon trees will be in all the glory of blossom.

And the tres are productive. Mrs. Ponton has jars of marmalade in her pantry flavored with the fruit of these small trees, which are approximately eighteen inches in height. The oranges reach a size slightly smaller than the normal fruit, but the lemons cannot be distinguished from those which grow in outdoor groves.

Neighbors Assist Hoskins Family To Re-establish Home

Centenary.— The good neighbor spirit which exists in most communities when trouble strikes, was shown for Mr. Ted Hoskins and family, who recently lost their home through fire. On Tuesday evening as a climax of two days of collecting, a miscellaneous shower was held for them at the school when friends from the surrounding district gave them a good start in refurnishing their home, as well as a sum of money.

Mr. Jack Sargent acting as chairman started things off with community singing led by Evalyn Ray. He then called on the family to take over the unwrapping of parcels.

Rev. A. C. McCallum spoke briefly making reference to the spirit prompting the occasion.

Mr. Hoskins on behalf of his family and himself, expressed his appreciation of the many kindnesses shown to them. Later the ladies served refreshments. Success of this project is due in large part to Mr. Burton Hubble for the use of his truck and the boys who helped with the collecting.

Asks for Inquiry Into Oil Prices

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)—Park Manross (PC—London) today asked the Prices Committee of the Commons to launch an inquiry into the fuel oil situation. He said consumers now found themselves facing heavier charges.

In reply to his request that it be placed high on the committee's agenda, Health Minister Martin said the subject was "under consideration."

Tweed
Kinsmen Carnival Enjoyable Affair

Tweed (Special) — The annual Carnival sponsored by the Tweed Kinsmen Club was held at the arena on Wednesday night and the event was particularly enjoyed by the children. A large number of those present were in costume.

The comic hockey game with Jean Sherry's "New Lookers" and Keith Cotton's "March Hares" was the big event of the evening.

The lassies claimed a victory over the male opposition, Johnny Orr, referee. Results of the various races were as follows: Boys, 12, and under Don LeSage; boys, 16, and under Burnie Taylor. Eileen Dion cleaned up all sections of the girls' contests when she took the 12 and under, the 16 and under, and the ladies' open race. Harry "Frenchy" Leal cleaned up everything in the men's open.

Pat McCue was awarded the prize for the best dressed boy, while Mrs. Wm. Lanson and Mrs. Laura Stephenson were the best dressed couple, in the opinion of the judges. Mortimer Deline was an easy victor for the best comic.

Keith Cotton was committee chairman and he was assisted by several members of the Kinsmen Club.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 12 — (CP) —A sharp drop in golds generally and in a sizeable list of base metals in one of the busiest days this year dominated the stock exchange here today.

Other groups, including industrials and western oils showed weakness on substantial majorities of losses. The range among the mining stocks extended to about 50 cents.

Volume for the first three hours was 892,000 shares, about 503,000 more than yesterday's similar period.

The downward move among the golds was touched off by Louvicourt which dropped almost 50 cents at 79 in the first hour of trading. Other junior golds and speculatives soon joined the trend for sizeable losses. Heaviest losers were Buffadison, Chesterville, Elder, Giant, Guyana, Kerr Addison, Lake Shore, Little Long Lac, Negus, Northern Empire, Sylvanite, Sullivan, San Antonio and Pickle Crow. Base metals were active with Sherritt the heaviest trader on a loss at one time of 17 cents at $1.68. A good recovery brought the price back to $1.80.

Industrials slipped for a long list of issues but the range was relatively narrow.

Subterfuge Used To Market Hogs Says Tummon

Toronto, March 12. (CP)— Secretary W. E. Tummon of the Ontario Hog Producers Association charged yesterday at the Association's annual meeting that many truckers are taking hogs to market "by subterfuge". He said that under present regulations a farmer may truck his own hogs to market but the producer's agent may not do so unless he has a public commercial licence passed by the Ontario Municipal Board.

"The result is that many truckers are getting hogs to market by subterfuge. They have to say they own the hogs."

Licensed truckers were restricted to certain districts and in many cases delivered livestock to one particular point.

"For example, if I want to ship hogs to Peterborough, the licenses trucker can't take them there because his shipping point is designated as Toronto. I live near Belleville and if I want to market hogs in Kitchener or some place else, I should be able to do that."

"We're in this fight to win," Mr. Tummon said. "We're going to get our livestock to market without subterfuge and no board should be allowed to stand in our way."

Credit for the development was given to Dr. C. M. G. Lattes of Brazil (shown above at the cyclotron), and Dr. Eugene Gardner, 35, a research physicist at the University of California.

Famed 'Kensington Stone' Believed Authentic Say Archeologists

Washington, March 12 (AP) — Smithsonian archeologists, announcing acquisition of Minnesota's now famed "Kensington Stone," said today they believe it is authentic.

The carved stone contains a message ostensibly written by a party of Vikings in 1362, more than a century before Columbus' day.

It relates in Norse characters that a band of Swedish and Norwegian explorers had reached what is now Minnesota—and then ran into trouble, presumably Indians.

It is a tale of blood and death—and Smithsonian scientists see "a very high probability" that it was the despairing message to posterity of the doomed men.

Discovered in 1898 near Kensington, Minn., by farmer Olof Ohman, the stone first was looked upon as a hoax.

But in the last 50 years, says the Smithsonian Institution, "one bit of evidence after another has come to light indicating that the relic is genuine." Up until recently, the 200-pound stone was on display at the office of the Alexandria, Minn., Chamber of Commerce.

In National Museum

Declaring the stone now has been transferred to the National Museum "for safe keeping" and public exhibition on a loan basis—the Smithsonian announcement said:

"Even if it cannot be indisputably authenticated, the confirming evidence that the stone constitutes a genuine record is so strong that this relic is regarded by Smithsonian archeologists as one of the most significant historical objects ever found in the new world."

The message as translated with some reconstruction, is as follows:

"(We are) eight Goths (Swedes) and 22 Norwegians on (an) exploration journey from Vineland through (or across) the West. We had camp by (a lake with) 2 skerries (one day's journey) north from this stone. We were out and fished one day. After we came home (we) found 10 (of our) men red with blood and dead. Avm. (Presumably 'Hail Mary.') Save us from evil. (We) have 10 of our party by the sea to look after our ships 14 days' journey from this island. Year 1362.'

When the stone was found, says the Smithsonian, this was the situation:

"From the first, serious doubts were thrown by Scandinavian scholars on its authenticity. The Runes (written characters) were not those of Norse scribes, it was held.

"The inscription told of a camp beside a lake......(but)..... the stone was found on a hilltop far from any lake. There was no known record of a Norse party anywhere near North America in 1362."

Facts Substantiated

But in the years since then "one after another the objections have been met."

"The Runes themselves, it has been determined," says the Smithsonian, "were not identical with those used by the scribes but were such as would be used by an ordinary man who was not a professional writer in 14th Century Norway.

"Geologists have certified that the elevated field where the stone was found actually was part of a lake shore in 1362....

"Strongest evidence of all is the fact that a Norwegian expedition actually might have been in North America at about this time. It consisted of a body of picked youths of the King's Court who were sent out to bring back to Christianity the lost colony of Greenland.

"It was very likely that this party had found the West Greenland villages abandoned, had learned from Eskimos that the inhabitants long since had departed southward and had followed their supposed trail.

"Presumably they came to Central Minnesota by way of Hudson's Bay and southward by boat along various streams."

TWO ARE DEAD,

Firemen recovered the bodies of DeRoche, a former boxer known as Kid Roach, and LeBlanc from a third-storey apartment.

Few survivors were clad in more than night attire. One man, William Downing, said he lost his insurance policies, clothing, even his watch.

Describes Scene

Albert Biddington, an eye-witness, described the scene:

"I was in front of the Windsor Hotel and I could hear the screams of the trapped from there. I ran all the way."

With a companion, Gordon Roberts, he held a coat and caught five persons who leaped from the second storey of the burning structure.

The five, Mrs. Felix LeBlanc and her four children, were immediately rushed to hospital. Mr. LeBlanc attempted to jump but his weight was too much for those on the ground, and he crashed on his back, suffering severe injuries.

An elderly lady leaped screaming from the Main Street side of the tenement clad only in a house coat. She was caught in a makeshift life net by two R.C.M.P. constables.

One man who jumped was slashed by protruding spikes in the walls. He was clad only in his underwear.

Young Alfred DeRoche, who lost his father in the blaze, hurled himself from the third storey, and stumbling away suffering arm lacerations and back injuries.

One survivor ran up and down the streets in his bare feet and underwear calling hysterically for his children. They were located later.

Call 'Smoke Ring' Cloud Formation

London, Ont., March 12 (CP)— Flying saucers, mysterious lights over Lake Huron—and now an airborne smoke ring.

From the airport last night it appeared to be south of London. Those who saw it told their friends and soon dozens of calls were streaming into newspaper offices and the police station seeking an explanation of the floating apparition.

A news photographer went chasing it but all he reaped was the full sweep of cold night air from atop a hill. The smoke ring had disappeared from the sky.

Reasons for the phenomenon were bandied like chaff before a windstorm.

Officials at the control tower of London city airport adopted a more practical—if less imaginative—point of view. They thought the "smoke ring" which they described as "large enough to fly an aircraft through" was probably a cloud formation. When the cloud began to disintegrate, a circular role of sky poked through the middle, forming what looked like a floating ring of smoke.

PRESIDENT CALLS

Stresses Points

1. The European recovery program, which now is near final action in the Senate but awaits debate in the House of Representatives, should be carried out promptly.

2. The United States encourages the formation of what Marshall called a political association in Western Europe as the first step to restoring stability.

3. The spread of communist governments anywhere in the world, including China, is opposed by the American government. And Truman indicated that the United States will do everything in its power to block Communism.

4. The United States will continue to work for world peace wherever possible, but the problem is now more difficult than at any time since the end of the war.

5. Meanwhile, the American people must keep their fears and their "passions" under control in spite of what Marshall called the "distractions" of election - year campaigns at home.

APPLICATION APPROVED

Toronto, March 12 — (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board announced today that an application for alterations and additions to the Niagara Falls Vocational Collegiate Institute to the extent of $530,000 had been granted on 20-year repayment terms. As soon as the board's fee has been received an order will be issued and forwarded to the municipality.

Govt. Gunning for Communists Trying to Enter Labor Fields

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)— Communists trying to move into the Canadian labor field from other countries—particularly the United States—have official notice that the government is gunning for them.

The warning came from External Affairs Minister St. Laurent who made clear to the Commons yesterday that Canada is cracking down on labor-union Reds fleeing from the anti-Communistic Taft-Hartley labor law of the U.S.

These Communists will be stopped at the border, the Minister told the House as he formally confirmed the unofficial disclosure of March 4 that the government had undertaken this policy.

The Minister left unclear the status of known Communists or Communist suspects already operating in the country under immigration permits. It has been reported that the government will just allow these permits to lapse, thus forcing the holders to leave the Dominion.

On this point, the Minister said he might have some definite information for the House today.

Based on Reports

The Minister's statement, produced by a series of opposition questions based on newspaper reports of the government's new policy, came just a day after the Canadian Congress of Labor had announced it would not try to help some U.S. officials of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers threatened with eviction from Canada.

Long known to have a Red tinge around its U.S.-dominated leadership in Canada, the C.C.L. affiliate had applied to the Congress for help in halting application of the new policy to its U.S. officials now in Canada. The Congress rejected the plea flatly.

The situation in the smelters union, it was understood here, was one of the major factors in deciding the government to exclude alien Communists. A number of other Canadian unions are known to have Reds from the U.S. operating within them, but the condition in the I.U.M.M.S. was the most obvious.

The ban will apply in at least one instance to the United Kingdom. That is the case of Harry Pollitt, leader of the British Communist Party, whose application for entry to Canada has been refused.

Second World War Book of Remembrance

Approximately 45,000 names of fallen servicemen will appear in The Second World War Book of Remembrance on which work has now commenced, according to Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence. This compares with 65,651 names that appear in the World War I book, now reposing in the Memorial Chamber of the Peace Tower Parliament Buildings, Ottawa.

The first book took ten years to complete, the work being delayed by the death of the artist in charge when he had but one page illuminated. The artist who completed the decoration of the remaining 600 pages of World War I book, Lieutenant-Commander Alan B. Beddoe, O.B.E., is to be in charge of the new work. He will prepare the designs for all illuminations and be responsible for the production of the entire work which will take a number of years.

Names to appear in the book are now being completed on cards from which they will be listed in the book by year of death. The first shipment of rare vellum, on which the names are to be inscribed arrived recently in Canada from an old English firm of craftsmen.

Canadians who fell while serving with and British Commonwealth forces will be included in the list of 45,000 names going into the new book, following the policy adopted for the original World War I book.

Jan Masaryk Martyr

Jan Masaryk's death in Prague this week has been the second recent event in Czechoslovakia which has shocked the democratic world, for Masaryk was a leader whom the democracies of the world admired as one of the outstanding statesmen of Europe. Just two weeks ago the world had been shocked by the news that a minority group of Communists in that country's parliament had seized the government and set themselves up as the government. That there has followed a reign of terror in that land is the opinion expressed by United States Secretary of State Marshall. Masaryk had remained as Foreign Secretary in the new government it was reported and it is confidently believed by the democratic peoples he did so in the hope that he might be able to exert a restraining influence upon the unconstitutional government which the Communists had set up.

Masaryk's death is reported to have been the result of a plunge from the window of his room in the Czernin Palace where he was staying and the government reported his death as due to suicide. Since then there have been outside of Czechoslovakia expressions of opinion as to the cause of his death.

Masaryk, the son of Thomas Masaryk, founder of the Czechoslovakian Republic, was aware of the spirit of Communism and its object of world power, and along with President Benes strove to preserve the freedom of the state and the legality of democratic rule. He was the very spirit of freedom for his father, Czechoslovakia's founder, was the inspiration of his life as every Czech knew.

The shock which his countrymen must feel at the coup and over his death can be understood by a democratic world. Inside Czechoslovakia the minority group of Reds is in full sway. But the soundness of heart of the people themselves can be indicated by the immediate reaction the Red aggression caused in the minds of Czechoslovak diplomats abroad for they resigned their posts rather than serve under the tyranny of the new Red government.

What President Benes and Foreign Minister Masaryk had endured in the post-war years to preserve the people's liberty against the pressure of Communists and since the coup of two weeks ago the outside world will not fully know. It is suggested that Benes himself may be under watch or what is similar to house arrest by the Communist government.

Masaryk's death will without doubt serve to make the people of his country endeavor to maintain whatever precious values of democracy it may be possible to preserve under the circumstances and his name will be an honored name among the people who are freemen at heart, however undemocratic and autocratic the new Communist rule is.

His life has been given for his country, that is sure. His death is the consequence of his devotion and service to Czechoslovakia. Had the former democratic and representative government been permitted to carry on, he would still be serving that freedom-loving people.

The Aegean Islands

The Aegean islands which were once the scene of the great classic civilization and which have had a precarious history in later days are now back again with the rest of Greece and the flag of that country flies over what was once called the Grecian archipelago. For more than four hundred years the islands were under foreign control.

One of the pictures which will be indelibly impressed upon the minds of the Greek people is that of King Paul and Queen Frederika proclaiming the renewal of the sovereignty of Greece. The rulers stood on the deck of the Greek destroyer bearing a name revered in the western world for twenty-four centuries, that of the great Grecian hero Themistocles who saved these islands at the Battle of Salamis.

"Some of the deepest roots of our culture lie in the soil of the Dodecanese," remarks the New York Times noting that for many centuries before the modern age these islands kept alive the spirit of the ancient world "with an invigorating spirit that finally embraced the entire Mediterranean basin and turned Europe definitely westward and away from the stratifications of Asia. The first temple to Aesculapius rose on one of these islands. There the first Hippocratic oath was uttered. The first lyric poets sang from these shores," as everyone can well remember from the words of that British lover of Greece, Lord Byron, who sang of "The Isles of Greece, the Isles of Greece, Where burning Sappho loved and sung"

The inspiration of much of modern thought rose in these Grecian Isles. There the earliest philosophers established the schools which have reflected their light of knowledge upon the modern world of philosophy and science and thence came the inspiration that turned men's minds to moral speculation. For the modern world these Isles of the Aegean are precious as here the dream of mankind for personal freedom was first expanded.

Though long under the rule of Turkey, the people of the Aegean Islands preserved their identity and at last have come to the long-looked-for reunion with the Greek mainland.

Cruelty to Animals

Last week a North Norwich farmer was sentenced to one year in jail for cruelty to animals. The magistrate, in passing judgment, commented that he had seldom heard such revolting evidence. The man had left thirty-three animals — pigs, horses, cows and chickens — to die horribly slow deaths from hunger and thirst.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal, observing that when the man gets out of jail he may resume farming, notes that there is "an appropriate provision in the British cruelty to animals law that a person convicted of cruelty to animals is prohibited from keeping another animal of the same kind for a certain length of time, or in bad cases such as this, the ban is lifelong."

There is justice in such a provision. Allowing animals to die in slow agony is not the result of a fit of temper; it is the result of deliberate neglect, over a period of days, sometimes weeks. Under such circumstances, it seems only just that the person guilty of such cruelty should be required after release to show cause why animals should again be entrusted to his care. —Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

A man who left his dog unattended for three days gets for himself three days in jail. Fair enough, but the man will be fed —the dog wasn't, comments the Ottawa Journal.

A man that does not know how to be angry does not know how to be good. Now and then a man should be shaken to the core with indignation over things evil.—Beecher.

COURAGE

What is courage but the will
To endure, unto the end,
Everything of hurt and ill
One more brave attempt may mend?

What is pluck but keeping on
When the frail for rest implore;
Daring, after hope seems gone,
Still to venture one blow more?

Failure is to all a threat.
Many break beneath the strain.
Brave men, howsoe'er beset,
Fall, but rise to try again.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How tall was George Washington?

George Washington is generally regarded as ranking second in height among the Presidents. He was about two inches shorter than Lincoln.

The evidence indicates that Washington was six feet tall at 16 and six feet two inches in his prime.

In 1760 George Mercer, his friend and companion in arms, wrote: "He may be described as being as straight as an Indian, measuring six feet two inches in his stockings, and weighing 175 pounds, when he took his seat in the House of Burgesses in 1759."

David Anderson, of Alexandria, Virginia, recorded that in 1776 Washington "seemed sic feet and a half" but his "exact highe was six feet two inches in his boots."

George Washington Parke Custis, who was reared by Washington, agreed that he was six feet two inches in height.

Oddly, Washington himself persisted in giving his height as about six feet.

In 1761, in an order for clothes to his London agent, he wrote: "I enclose a measure, and, for further insight, I don't think it amiss to add, that my stature is six feet, otherwise rather slender than corpulent."

In a clothing order dated April 226, 1763, he describes himself variously as "six feet high" and "about six feet high."

Apparently that was the height Washington gave when asked how tall he was. John Hunter, a London merchant who visited Washington at Mount Vernon in 1783, noted in his diary: "The General is about six feet high, perfectly straight and well made; rather inclined to be lusty."

Despite this evidence Tobias Lear, who was present when Dr. Elisha C. Dick measured Washington after death, reported that "Washington's dead body measured 6 feet 3½ inches."

On August 19, 1783, General Washington and ten of his officers weighed themselves at West Point and the Commander-in-Chief tipped the scales at 209 pounds in uniform.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Price of bread and communism seem to be interesting topics.

Many adults will remember when we paid ten cents for a four pound loaf of good wholesome bread; now we pay fourteen cents for a loaf of only one and one-half pounds, an increase of about 270 per cent.

It is said that the action of the big bakeries has had the effect of gradually eliminating small bakeries. It was believed that the big bakeries with their tremendously large production and cheapening machinery would reduce the price of bread.

If the increase in price of over 270 per cent is due to watered stock or selfishness, it may have the effect of encouraging the increase of communism and they tell us that communism will wipe out the big bakeries. Selfishness has incited every riot committed every crime, started every war and raised the price of food.

The British North America Act gives the provincial legislature power over civil rights and property so that the big bakeries might be expropriated without compensation and the bread eaters might insist on it being done and kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

Shylock was content with a blood transfusion and a piece of flesh. He would have chuckled at 270 per cent.

"Give us our daily bread" — but not at an increased price of 270 per cent.

Customers Will Have Inning Before Committee

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)— The little ma nand the little woman who pay the bill—the customers —will have their inning today before the Commons Price Committee.

After listening for almost five weeks to the stories of the producer and the middleman, the committee will turn the floor over to the consumer.

Representatives of the Canadian Association of Consumers will be heard, along with spokesmen for a number of smaller groups.

After hearing the consumer representatives, the committee will take up Monday the price of butter, which took such a jump during the winter that the Prices Board reimposed ceilings.

Yesterday's sittings saw the windup of the first stage of the committee's inquiry into the upward-sliding price of bread since controls were taken off last September. The bread hearings lasted almost three weeks and covered the retail and bakery end of the business.

After dealing with butter and some other commodities, the committee is scheduled to return to bread for further investigation. In the meantime, committee accountants will make first-hand studies of costs within the bread firms.

Among matters they are expected to clear up are the contentious question of whether or not bread can be retailed for 10 cents at a profit. The committee has had conflicting evidence on this point.

Another subject the committee will return to is that of fruits and vegetables. It had some confused evidence on these articles— with some suggestions of gouging as the result of the ban on U.S. imports —in the early stages of the inquiry.

At yesterday's session on bread, the committee heard from The George Weston Bread and Cakes, Ltd., of Toronto that it had been losing money for more than six months when it put on a one-cent increase in the price of its bread in late January.

FIRES KILLED 500

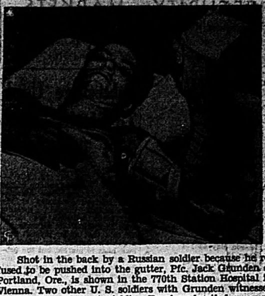
RECOVERING FROM RED SHOOTING



Shot in the back by a Russian soldier because he refused to be pushed into the gutter, Pfc. Jack Grunden of Portland, Ore., is shown in the 770th Station Hospital in Vienna. Two other U. THE COLD, DRAB, MELANCHOLY GRAY

Hypochromic anemia or hypochrosis—I call it the gray sickness—is as prevalent today among women in the fourth decade as chlorosis, the green sickness, was among girls in their 'teens in the good (my eye) old days when butter was 1 1-2 hours of a man's work a pound.

The characteristic feature of chlorosis which gave it the name of "the green sickness" was the peculiar pallor — not green really but still not sallow nor gray nor lemon yellow as it is in ordinary secondary anemia, hypochromic or nutritional deficiency anemia and pernicious anemia, respectively.

If chlorosis was green hypochromic or nutritional deficiency anemia is at least as accurately described as gray. In this type of anemia of middle-aged women, the usual features of complaints are premature graying hair, sore tongue (glossitis is our $2 word for it), wrinkled, flabby skin, sores at corners of mouth, flattened, ridged or spooned fingernails and brittle nails. But the overall picture of the poor girl is that cold, drab, melancholy gray—but let it get you down, girls, for, remember, Ol' Doc Brady is here to tell you —if you ask him in writing (beware, a clipping tears it so far as his interest goes) for the pamphlet The Gray Sickness and inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address.

This hypochromic (hypo meaning low or under or deficiency; chrom meaning pigment or coloring matter, deficient hemoglobin, iron coloring matter, in the blood) anemia, the gray sickness, is due to nutritional deficiency, or, as the smug overprivileged Yankee Wiseacres call it, "malnutrition," never for a moment suspecting, the poor geeks, that they and their pamphered children, suffer from malnutrition as much as any other class and their children particularly do.

A woman whose nutrition is good—and for heaven's sake, Miss or Mrs. Wiseacre, don't think this means merely that she gets enough to eat—does not begin to turn gray, become wrinkled and flabby when she is or should be at her peak in every respect.

Miss ——, 43, has been department head in an industrial business for six years and, perhaps from the nature of her job, she has acquired a bit of conceit. She knows what's what (she thinks) and she has little confidence in the general run of doctors. When she needs medical advice or care she goes straight to the top—a "specialist." Well, it is a long story—too long to tell today, yet it is too good a story to omit, for it illustrates the gray sickness and it teaches how you get that way. So I'll tell the story of the cold, drab, melancholy gray Miss —— achieved for herself, in this column next week. At least I'll supply the copy—I can't make 'em print it, you know.

Aside from the signs and symptoms the patient presents, this nutritional deficiency anemia is characterized by a diproportionately great reduction in the hemoglobin, the iron coloring matter in the blood. For example the hemoglobin is generally reduced to perhaps one-half of its normal strength whereas the red blood corpuscles are present in little less than two-third or four-fifths of their normal numbers.

The palpitation and the shortness of breath on slight exertion may suggest heart disease, but the physician's examination dispels this suspicion or doubt, one way or the other.

In every instance of hypocnromic anemia the first step in treatment is a careful examination. Among other things the possibility of unrecognized or undetected occult bleeding, frequent small hemorrhages from stomach, intestine or rectum, must be ruled out. It is not at all unusual, for example, to find that the cause of the anemia is simple internal hemorrhoids (piles) that bleed internally although the condition may have given the patient no pain or other serious trouble.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How to Choose Family Physician

Physician recently established practice in our city is said to have come —from——Hospital. How can we determine his professional ability and also his personal integrity insofar as it may affect his care of our family?

(F. S. W.)

Answer—1. Inquire of the local office of the County Medical Society whether the physician is a member of the medical society.

2. Give him a wide berth if he proclaims himself to be a "specialist." A reputable specialist restricts himself or herself to the simple statement "practice limited to" orthopedic surgery, nose and throat, children's diseases or whatever it may be.

3. Ask any one you know who has consulted or employed the physicial.

How Many Years Left?

After a person has had a nervous breakdown in your opinion how many years would they have left to live? (V. M.)

Answer—A person never has one in my opinion. You may be adamant about it, but at least it can do you no harm to read the green book Nerves and Nutrition. Ask for it in writing (do not use clipping) and inclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

QUITE TINY, BUT A GIANT KILLER!

Remember how Jack slew the giant with a very small stone? Well, there's another giant killer in our midst today .. a material called Packing. Often quite small in comparison to the giant machines it is used on .. but so vital, that without it production would stop.

Almost every piece of hydraulic machinery in use today depends for its efficient operation on this same material — Packing. For over 75 years Johns-Manville have been making long-wearing packings for use wherever a seal is needed to prevent leakage of water, gas, oil and other liquids.

In addition to many standard forms of sealing materials, Johns-Manville also specializes in "tailor-made" packings for special jobs. Years of research and development enable J-M to supply a packing for every application.

Agreement Ends Hollywood's Ban On Movie Shipment

London, March 12 (AP) — An agreement was signed today ending Hollywood's ban on movie shipments to Britain, the United States film industry's main foreign market.

The pact, effective for four years beginning June 14, provides for the lifting of the 75-per-cent tax that Britain clamped on the earnings of foreign movies last August as a dollar-saving measure.

In return, Hollywood agrees to limit its dollar takings from Britain, whose economy is threatened by a shortage of hard currency.

The agreement, signed by H. Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, and Eric Johnston, President of the Motion Picture Association of America, represented more than two weeks of intensive negotiations.

It was front-page news in Britain. British movie houses had faced the prospect of closing their doors because they are dependent upon American studios for more than 80 per cent of the pictures they show.

The American movie-makers, in reprisal, stopped all film shipments to Britain when the 75-per-cent tax was announced.

Wilson and Johnston told a press conference this morning the full text of the agreement will be published later.

Though it covers a four-year period, it will be reviewed at the end of two years.

Taking into account Britain's precarious economic position, Johnston agreed to limit dollar withdrawals from the country to $17,000,000 a year plus an amount equivalent to the dollar earnings of British-made films.

British movies shown in the United States last year, he said, earned about $4,000,000. He predicted they would grow to two or three times that—which, in itself, was several times any previous years take.

Wilson said a major portion of the pounds sterling earned by American pictures in Britain will remain in Britain.

He added part could be used to build new studios and increase American-sponsored productions here.

Parties Take Sides Over Suspension Of Vice-Buster

Montreal, March 12 (CP)—Religious and civic leaders were taking sides today over the suspension of assistant director of Police Pacifique Plante—greatest vice-buster Montreal has ever known—as a wide-open showdown between "Paf" and Director Albert Langlois loomed.

Langlois suspended Plante and his chief henchman, Lieutenant Armand Courval, yesterday for "insubordination and refusal to obey an order" when called to take part in the departmental trial of three morality squad officers accused of immorality.

While the city executive committee was known to stand behind Director Langlois on the grounds that the suspension was purely a departmental matter of discipline, friends and supporters of Plante claimed that it was an attempt to force the "crusader" to resign.

City council leader Pierre Desmarais, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade and the President of the Federation of the Sacred Heart League, a Catholic action movement, issued statements last night alleging that Plante's suspension was an indirect result of his successful campaign to clean up the metropolis.

City hall observers said today that there was a strong possibility that Plante's suspension might end within a day or two and that this was the only way that a showdown could be averted.

The morality squad expressed its confidence in Mr. Plante when more than 35 of its members asked for transfer to other duties on the grounds that Plante's suspension was "unjustified."

The suspension is the first stop in Plante's meteoric rise from a recorder's court clerk to the No. 2 spot on the police force.

This appointment was made over the protest of police officers who considered Plante an outsider. One source said that "the suspension is the climax of a silent war which has been fought between Plante and the Director ever since their appointments to their respective posts last sumer."

ATTACKED WITH MALLET

Leconfield, Yorkshire, England, March 12 —(CP)— Peggy Murphy, 19, described by airmen as "the nicest girl to look at" in the Leconfield R.A.F. station, was in serious condition today after a man with a wooden mallet attacked her in a W.A.A.F. hut Thursday.

W.A.A.. Violet Elliott, who was awakened by the noise, said the intruder turned back the bedclothes in the hut to uncover the faces of the sleeping girls and then struck Miss Murphy with the mallet.

Her screams awoke the other girls and the man jumped out of a window.

Christian Youth Fellowship Group Hears Jack Wyrtzen, Dynamic Evangelist at Holloway St. Church

More than eleven hundred people heard Jack Wyrtzen, director, "Word of Life Hour" and Harry Bollback, radio pianist, both of New York City, in a great interdenominational rally sponsored by the Christian Youth Fellowship, in Holloway Street United Church on Wednesday night. Auditorium, balcony, choir loft, vestibule and stairs were thronged with folk, many of them coming from distances of seventy-five and one hundred miles, to hear this great modern youth evangelist, who has a following of over four million radio listeners and who addresses overflow audiences regularly at Madison Square Gardens and other large auditoriums.

Jack Wyrtzen does not resort to hocus-pocus or sleight-of-hand tricks but he presents a forthright Gospel message, his dynamic personality gripping his audience in rapt attention. He calls sin by its right name and does not gloss over its consequences. The only medicine that will heal a heart defiled and marred by sin is the blood of Jesus Christ he declared.

Only True Message

Reading from the Gospel of St. John, Mr. Wyrtzen quoted the words of John the Baptist, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world'. "This has been the true message of every true preacher down through the ages," the speaker said. "Picture our Lord, creator of heaven and earth, the Son of God, nailed to a cross, a crown of thorns pressed on His brow, the precious blood running down His lovely face. He is the Lamb of God, the perfect sacrifice for your sin and mine."

Referring again to the Scripture lesson, Mr. Wyrtzen drew attention to the fact that Andrew, when he had met Jesus and realized He was the Messiah, hastened to bring to Jesus his brother Peter.

"Oh, the thrill of bringing people to Jesus," said the speaker. "You never know until you do it. The biggest business in all the world is bringing people to Jesus Christ. If preachers, deacons, Sunday School teachers, are not leading people to Jesus Christ, it is because there is sin in their lives. They have no business to be teachers. They must first cleanse their own hearts if they would be effective witnesses for the Saviour.

"The Spirit of God leads people to come and hear the Gospel. Some of you may say, 'It is just curiosity'. No it isn't. It is God's Spirit moving you."

Ashamed to Stand up for Jesus.

Jack Wyrtzen had a word to say about hypocrisy and sham Christianity. "Folk can stand up for anything that strikes the popular fancy these days", he declared, "but many people are ashamed to stand up for Jesus, ashamed to let people see them bow their heads in public and give thanks for their food. A dog knows enough to bark when he is fed and even a pig grunts. Any old dead fish can float downstream and any old sissy can souse himself in beer; but it takes a real man to stand up for Jesus.

"There is a great difference between a professor and a possessor. There is a lot of empty profession these days, but not so much possession. Have you the Lord Jesus living in your heart, or do you just know about Him in your head? You don't go to heaven head first, but heart first. You don't go to heaven on what you know, but Who you know."

No Short Cuts

Mr. Wyrtzen went on to say that the disciples, when they had found Jesus, above with Him. "There are no short cuts to spirituality," he stated. "You must abide with Jesus, set aside a period every day to have a quiet time with Him, to pray and read the Bible. Ninety-nine per cent of the reason young people are living defeated lives is because they are not feeding on the word of God."

In response to Mr. Wyrtzen's appeal, over two score people came to the altar and signified their desire to accept Jesus as Saviour. They were each presented with a Gospel of St. John and, retiring to the lower auditorium, Harry Bollback spoke to them about the new life in Christ.

Mr. Harry Bollback, gifted pianist of the "Word of Life Hour", played his own arrangement of three well-known hymns, "Onward Christian Soldiers", "Jesus Saves" and "Ivory Palaces". With amazing versatility his fingers flew over the keyboard as he executed variations that held the audience enthralled.

The Christian Youth Fellowship chorus, under the direction of Stan Lessels, sang two numbers, "Hail Immanuel" and "Beneath the Cross of Jesus". The chairman was Mr Eric Naylor, who introduced the guest speaker. Mr. Naylor gave the benediction.

Sidney School Area Bd. Meets

The Sidney Township School Area Board in its last two meetings made excellent progress in clearing up the business of combining the work of 14 school boards and 18 schools into a working unit. The Board has decided to hold its regular meetings on the second Monday in each month; meeting to be held in Wallbridge School, unless otherwise specified. This date was chosen in order that the Board might deal more quickly with items contained in the monthly reports from the teachers.

Survey reports were assigned to individual members of the Board to list the most urgent repairs, needed in the listed schools, so that an estimate of the year's expenses may be ascertained at the next meeting and a budget formed.

Supervisor's Duties Outlined

In keeping with the idea formulated at their first meeting, when the secretary-treasurer was chosen, this position is combined with that of supervising principal in order to keep in closer touch with the teachers and pupils in the various schools, and to unify and standardize the teaching in the area, Mr. A. Warren's appointment to this position has been approved by the Department of Education at a salary of $2,700 to begin in September.

Duties are to include general supervision over all schools in the area, including organization, management, and discipline; to work with the teachers in outlining the courses of study, grade enrolments, time-table preparation, and any other matters affecting the welfare of the school. Regular visits to the school monthly, during which tests will be administered, new or inexperienced teachers assisted, and remedial work suggested, along with recommendations for agriculture or manual training designed to bring to the rural school child some of the benefits of an urban school. Organization of school and community projects; such as sports, music festivals would be included in the duties.

504 Enrolment

The enrolment, taken from the monthly report sent in for February, totals 504. Avondale School, Mrs. Young, teacher, had the best attendance record for February with 98.95 per cent perfect attendance. Marsh Hill School, Mrs. Good, teacher, was second with 95.96 per cent. This average percentage for the schools was 90.87 per cent. This figure is commendable considering the weather and illness for February. Monthly attendance figures will be published from now till the end of the term.

A special meeting at Marsh Hill School, Tuesday, March 23, will be held to prepare an estimate of the year's work.

Elizabeth Visits PrivateCoaches

Wolverton, Eng., March 12.—(Reuters) — Princess Elizabeth inspected her two personal railway coaches during a visit to a carriage and wagon works here.

"They are delightful and self-contained," she said, "It will be a pleasure to travel in them."

One of the coaches was used by Winston Churchill when he was prime minister.

Both coaches, which the heir to the Throne will use on official journeys, are painted bright maroon with a double line of gold leaf divided by a black line. These colors are also borne by her father's train.

Four bedrooms in the Princess' coach provide accommodation for herself, her husband, an equerry and a lady-in-waiting. The Princess' bedroom is panelled in oak.

The bed has a quilt of soft rose pink, with a matching stool at the low dressing table before a wall mirror. Adjoining is a bathroom decorated pale pink.

There is a lounge with comfortable green armchairs and a settee. A dining room is lined in walnut with a table for six. The kitchen has a modern gas cooker and a refrigerator.

Teachers' Assoc. Hears Talk On Student Guidance

A meeting of the Wellington unit of the Teachers' Association of Prince Edward County was held at Wellington Consolidated School Tuesday evening, the guests of the staff, after the President, Miss Vera Pyne presented the following facts:

That requests regarding salary should be presented to the school boards now.

A written resignation presented by the teacher by the first of June is final. If the teacher is dismissed, the dismissal must be in writing and must state a reason.

Teachers are not responsible now for the conduct of pupils to and from school.

It is unethical for a teacher to apply for a job unless certain there is a vacancy. In doing this, the applicant is subject to discipline which may mean the suspension of certificate.

Members who withdrew their superannuation money now, are able to get a second refund, provided the second contribution exceeds the amount of interest owing on the first refund. Withdrawals are taxable so refrain.

Miss Norma Hackett, the Secretary of the F.W.T.A.O., has resigned her office to return to the Windsor Public School Staff.

It was decided to hold a joint meeting with the Picton group in the form of a banquet to be sponsored by some church organization, late in May.

All trustees are invited to attend the April meeting of the Teachers' Association at Wellington Consolidated School.

A questionnaire on fees was now filed in.

Tells of Clinic Work

Miss Gladys Pettingill, a former teacher of Manitoba was the guest speaker for the evening. She chose as her topic "Guidance." By guidance is meant giving assistance to pupils at strategic points in their lives; helping the pupils to solve their own problems; and giving help to the pupils in the form of self-analysis.

In Winnipeg, guidance clinics have been set up in the High Schools of about one thousand pupils. There are two councillors who get a personal interview with all the pupils. They set up files, give intelligence tests and aptitude tests. Problems, such as social adjustment, mental health and inferiority complexes are dealt with.

In Prince Edward County there is a Child Guidance Clinic available once a month in Picton. Books and pamphlets of interest are: Guide to Guidance by Smith and Ross; Personnel in High School by Germaine and Germaine and Suggestion for Guidance in High Schools.

Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, Miss Joan Archard and Miss Mavis Snider contributed musical numbers which were much enjoyed.

Miss Mary Mayell, on behalf of the guests, presented her mother with a shower of miscellaneous gifts, for which Mrs. Mayell graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation.

Marmora Teachers Visit Local Club

Visiting teachers from the newly-formed Marmora Association were warmly welcomed at the March meeting of the Belleville Women Teachers' Association.

Reports from the various conveners were adopted as read. The publicity report, by Miss Mabel Chapman showed that food parcels weighing approximately 45 lbs. and valued at $33.00 and one box of used clothing had been sent to England.

As Queen Alexandra School was responsible for the program Miss Kathleen McPherson now took charge and started off with a very interesting and well-told story of the life of St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland. Miss Phyllis May, Music Supervisor, followed with a lovely Irish solo, "A Little Bit of Heaven."

A novel piano and banjo duet by Misses Mary Rutherford and Wilma Cartwright was much enjoyed.

After two lovely solos, "By the Bend of the River" and "When Love is Kind," by Miss Norma Arkles, all present puzzled their brains over the number of "Pats" in an Irish contest conducted by Miss Catharine Morton.

Miss Olive Elson then moved a vote of thanks for a very enjoyable program. Miss Johnston on behalf of the Marmora teachers also expressed their appreciation.

Canada Faces Brilliant Future In World Affairs Study Club Told

"It is the things of the spirit that will count in Canada's future" said Dr. R. C. Wallace, President and Chancellor of Queen's University, who spoke last evening to a large audience in the B.C.I.V.S. auditorium on the subject "Canada Looks Forward." Dr. Wallace was the guest of the Lecture and Study Club of this city.

Mr. G. E. Currie, Principal of the Collegiate, welcomed Dr. Wallace and all who were present to hear him. Outlining the objects of the Club, Mr. R. H. Macklem, president, said, "The object of the Lecture and Study Club is to extend adult education, and to that end the Club has used the facilities of radio station CJBQ during the winter." Introducing the speaker, the chairman continued, "Dr. Wallace, a graduate of Edinburgh University, was for some time connected with the University of Manitoba, and in 1938 came to Queen's as its chancellor and president. He also holds several other offices in outstanding Canadian services and projects."

Three Aspects

Speaking on "Canada Looks Forward," Dr. Wallace said in part, "There is little that is new to speak about, but one serves a purpose in talking if one arouses questions in the minds of the hearers. One gets a composite picture of Canada by living in different sections, but there are three different aspects to be considered in Canada's future; they are, first, 'materials'; second, 'relations to other countries', and third, 'contributions which count in the country's future.'

"Men living about fifty years ago, and some living in succeeding years, voiced the opinion that, 'The manifest destiny of Canada is in the arms of the United States'; Others said, 'The emotions of its people determine the destiny of a country, and these will prevail in the long run.'

"So far," continued the Dr., "Canada's destiny has been in the arms of Canadians and determined by them. The country's resources have a significant place in molding her destiny, and a strong factor is her export trade. Three out of every eight Canadians live on export business. The vitality of the trade is of tremendous importance to the life of Canadians. Some products exported are, hard wheat, lumber, base metals and electrical power, all of which must be husbanded for Canada's future export trade.

"Canada's youth are making an important contribution to science and research, which has a significant influence on her exports, for development in the North is an important factor, where, across the Bering Strait, Russia is a close neighbor.

Have High Opinion

"In international relations we have learned that other countries have a high opinion of our country because, Canada is friendly and is not self-seeking; Canada has a great desire for world peace. This brings responsibility because of Canada's position as a part of North America; a part of the British Commonwealth and a part of the world. Our country has obtained a strategic position as a peacemaker between Britain and the United States by making allowances for the criticized characteristics of both nations.

"Nature," said the speaker, "always works slowly. The Rocky Mountains were raised slowly through thousands of years, and are as slowly being lowered. Patience is needed in the problems we are facing today for they have been growing to their present size over a period of years. They may, therefore, be solved over a period of years, and peace be retained in this composite world where there are peoples of many different emotions and environments.

Things of Mind Continue

"Lastly," it is the things of the mind that continue. The arts of Greece have lived, while the country's material resources have disappeared. The same is true of the Italians, and of the Hebrew race whose religion has continued to survive while many pagan practices have become extinct.

" 'Those who see great sights, think great thoughts,' quoted Dr. Wallace, and, he continued, "Canadians should be inspired to poetry, music, literature and art from the greatness and beauty of our mountains, lakes and rivers. Artists are the soul of any nation. Theirs is a life chosen because of a wide vision, which they pass on to the Spirit of Canadians everywhere. —Unless we appreciate this, our material success, our international greatness will count for little in the world. It is the things of the spirit that will count in Canada's future."

Mrs. F. R. Harback expressed the appreciation of the Club members, and of all others present, to Dr. Wallace, "who," she said, "has his hand on the pulse of Canada's heart beat."

Entertainment during the early evening was provided by Mary Conner Deacon, who gave a short organ recital during the assembling of the audience.

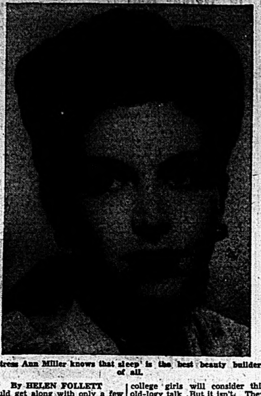
Sleep: A Time When Nature Makes Its Valuable Repairs



Actress Ann Miller knows that sleep is the best beauty builder of all.

By HELEN FOLLETT

could get along with only a few hours' sleep out of the twenty-four but you can't. Not if you are to attend to the day's activities with efficiency and keep good natured

Also, in due course of time, if you lose out on slumber, you'll begin to think that you look like a wreck. Wrinkles will beset you. Shadows will appear under your eyes. Steps will be lagging. You will not find yourself pleasant company being downcast and depressed.

A Beauty Builder

Sleep is the best of all beauty builders. During sleep Nature makes repairs. If you don't give her a chance to do this your motors are going to get run down. The complexion, the hair, the finger nails, the figure will all suffer because the Sand Man is a late arrival.

We guess that high school and college girls will consider this old-fogy talk. But it isn't. They say they never get tired. But they do, and the accumulative effect of loss of sleep will show up in a case of nervous exhaustion. Youth is not made of wire and fiddle strings, as youth foolishly fancies.

To have restful sleep, the kind that refreshes one, there should be peace of mind. "Bad nights" are often caused by distracting thoughts carried into dreamland. When you are tucked into bed, don't let your mind dwell on the dentists bill that is coming in the first of the month or the little argument you had that day with "that woman", or whether the plumber is coming as he promised. Think of budding spring time, recall delightful memories of your childhood days, think of anything pleasant, so there is no room in your mind for distracting brain riots.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Keeping the Scalp Free of Dandruff

Baldness and dandruff are good looks liabilities that seem confined pretty much to the male sex. It is just as well. Women have enough sorrows in the way of pulchritude defects.

Some scadp

Some scalp and hair specialists believe there is an explanation; they say that the members of the frail sex take better care of their hair, have more thorough shampoos. Also, women are orme poos. Also, women are more fastidious about keeping combs and brushes clean. Who ever heard of a man who attended to this hygienic chore?

At the first sign of epidermal debris upon the scalp a woman gets busy and cleans up the premises. White flakes on lovely glistening hair would put it out of order entirely. Dandruff is unclean and untidy.

It has been discovered of late years that dandruff is a fungus growth. It may not caure the hair to thin out and depart this life, but it forms a perfect tenement for bacteria. It invites scalp disorders and infections. The first need in hair beauty and preservation is a healthy, clean scalp. Without it the glorious halo will be dull and lifeless.

The condition calls for frequent and vigorous brushing. The best brush for the purpose is a narrow one with firm bristles set in groups. Part the hair in the middle, down to the napeline; groom from either side. Part the hair from ear to ear; slap the bristles along the partings. Go around the hairline, front, back and sides. Then, treat the hair strand by strand, holding each strand away from the head.

This treatment will help tone the scalp, put it in a healthier state. To disturb dandruff by digging with the comb or the fingernails is a mistake; it should never be done. Tiny wounds may result; wounds of any kind invite infection.

A woman gets busy at the first sign of dandruff.

Hot mineral oil, applied the night before the shampoo, will loosen the scales to a certain extent. The shampoo must be a rousing one. Begin with a rinsing with a bath spray and a strong current of water. Have three soapings, as many rinsings. If the hair can be dried in the sunlight, that will prove beneficial.

The scalp, like the skin over the entire body surface, is constantly shedding. Bathing keeps these dead cells from accumulating. Unless the hair is shampooed frequently, at least once a fortnight, it is not surprising that cutaneous wastes accumulate.

There seems to be a difference of opinion among specialists as to the contagiousness of dandruff But one should play safe, use no comb or hairbrush other than one's own.

The Face Cleansing Ritual

Foundation cream should be applied after morning face washing

By HELEN FOLLETT

WOMEN have different methods of keeping their complexions clean. Some make quite a ritual of it, using first a thin cream to remove make-up, then a heavy emollient for slapping and patting, finally a skin tonic or astringent. They are the ones who are against soap. If they have extremely dry skins, they may be on the right track but, when that is the case, they do not need an astringent.

For the average complexion, the simplest, most effective means of renovating, fighting atmospheric dust and the excretions of sweat and sebaceous glands, is a quick removal of make-up with cream, a thorough soapy going over, a rinsing with warm water, an application of massage cream that is to remain on overnight.

In the morning it is not necessary to use soap. Dash on cold water to bring a glow, dry the flesh with gentle pats. In course of time apply a foundation cosmetic.

Now and then a skin will rebel against even the blandest soap. It is then advisable to use a cosmetic meal. These products are cleansing, the starchy contents give softness to the epidermal coat. Sprinkle the meal on a moist wash cloth, go over the facial area gently. After that it is wise to use a cream. Remove it with tissues before putting on the blush coloring and powder.

Even oily skins are benefited by fragrant creams because the skin is ever shedding tiny dead scales and new ones are forming. The oily preparation should not remain on overnight.

One rule holds good for all feminine faces; apply make-up to a clean skin surface. To add rouge and powder when one has been exposed to dust is to grind dust and make-up into the pores. The result: a flock of blackheads.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Widow is Urged to give her Daughter in Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer several questions concerning my daughter's wedding in the late Spring?

1. My husband has passed on, and therefore my brother-in-law (my husband's sister's husband) is to give the bride in marriage. Under these circumstances, do I, as mother of the bride, sit alone in the first pew, or would my sister-in-law sit with me?

2. Am I correct in thinking that I am the last person to be seated before the wedding party enters?

3. Does the matron of honor walk up the aisle alone? And, after the ceremony, does she walk in the recessional with the best man? And do the two junior bridesmaids walk up the aisle together? And, in the recessional, do they walk with the ushers?

4. After the recessional, am I the first one to be escorted down the aisle?

5. Is this the formation of the receiving-line at our house: first the bride and groom; then I, the bride's mother; then the groom's mother and father? And what about the brother-in-law (who is to give the bride in marriage) and his wife?

6. Does the groom pay for all the flowers, the bride's, matron of honor's, bridesmaids', and the corsages of the two mothers?

S. N.

1. I think it is an excellent plan to have this uncle of the bride escort her up the aisle. But why don't you plan to give your daughter in marriage? To my way of thinking, this is the perfect plan, the most loving and appealing procedure, and very simple and easy. If you decide to do this, I suggest you sit alone in the first pew (unless you have other children who are attending the wedding, in which case they sit with you). Reserve the second pew for your sister-in-law; and her husband; when he has reached the head of the aisle with the bride, he steps to the left and takes his place with his wife in the second pew. Then, in the ceremony, when the minister asks, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" you step out of the front pew, answer "I do", and return to your place. Or, if you prefer, simply reply to the question from your place in the front pew.

2. Yes.

3. Processional: first, the ushers, two by two, next, the two junior bridesmaids, together; next matron of honor, alone; last, bride with her uncle. Recessional: first, bride and groom; next, matron of honor, either alone or with the best man; next, junior bridesmaids, walking together; and, last, the ushers, in pairs|

4. Yes.

5. In receiving-line: first, you, the bride's mother, hostess of the wedding; next, groom's father and mother: the groom and on his right, the bride; on her right, the matron of honor, then the bridesmaids. If you particularly wish, may stand between you and the groom's parents. . .but they are not necessarily included in the receiving-line.

6. The groom customarily provides his bride's bouquet. . .always sends a corsage to his bride's mother and to his mother. . .always provides the boutonnieres for his best man, ushers, his bride's father and his own father. The flowers for the brid-

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Doing Wrong Always Has Its Price

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a woman of 33 who was married at 16. I was very happy always until I got too much freedom from my husband. I love him very much, but always thought he didn't love me.

Now my husband has found out that I went out with a younger man and it has hurt him very much. I never realized he loved me so much. He thinks that I fell in love with this man, but he meant nothing to me. It was just one of those wild flings, because I thought my husband didn't love me.

Now I am afraid he has lost all his love for me, and I want to win him back. We have three children and a very nice home, and all I want is forgiveness and a new start, so that I can be a good wife and mother. I am so sorry.

"A. L."

Dear "A. L.": It is possible that what your husband has lost is his faith in you, and not his love for you. Surely, if you took advantage of this trust of his to deceive him, you could hardly blame him if he now shows that he no longer feels the same toward you. Being sorry for having done wrong, unfortunately, never cancels out the consequences. I am afraid you will have to consider your present unhappiness as the price you are paying for what you did.

On the other hand, if you centre all your thoughts now on making as happy a home as possible for your husband and your children, and prove to him, by your devotion rather than by promises and expressions of regret, that you want to make amends for the past, it may be that in time he will be willing to forgive and forget. In any event, such a program is your only hope. It is up to you.

A Sunday School Teacher Asks Advice

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a Sunday School teacher, and, since the girls in my class are not much younger than myself, we have always shared our problems. The other night a member of my class, a girl of 20, came to me and told me that she was to have a baby in about five months. The 18-year-old boy who is the father refuses to marry her. He said the only way he would marry her was to be forced to do so if she got some sort of court order. He only said that because he knows she will not go to court and make a show of herself.

Is there any such court order that we may obtain?

"A Sunday School Teacher"

Dear "Sunday School Teacher": I am afraid that there is no law under which this boy could be forced to marry this girl. He could, of course, be forced to support the child by law, but the girl would first have to prove to the satisfaction of the court that he was actually the father of her child. If the boy chose to deny this and fight the court action, it could result in a great deal of very ugly publicity, which I am sure the girl wishes to avoid.

It would seem to me that the girl's best plan would be to have the baby adopted as soon as it is born, and thereby close the books on this most unfortunate chapter of her life. Of course, if she does not wish to do this, however, but preferred to keep the child, counting on financial aid from the father for its support, it would undoubtedly be necessary for her to consult a lawyer about the proper steps to take.

Time Will Solve this Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl 16 forget her but my heart has a mind of its own. I have tried going out with other girls, but I for the past seven months. I am 20, but when I first met her she told me she was 17.

We fell in love, but now she tells me that, while she is still very much in love with me, she doesn't want to go with me any more but wants to go out with different fellows. I really don't know what to do. I have tried to can't seem to enjoy myself.

"Rusty"

Dear "Rusty": I may as well tell you frankly that I am afraid this girl has lost whatever interest she had in you. It is nonsense for anyone to talk about being in love with another person and, at the same time, say that they prefer going out with somebody else.

You should realize that, at 16, a girl is not ready to become serious about any young man, and that you can't expect her to have the same point of view as you have at 20.

It may be difficult to make up your mind that this girl is not for you, but I think, nevertheless, that is what you had better do. While she may be too much on your mind now for you to enjoy the company of other girls, it may well turn out to be different later on, if you will just give it a chance.

Should She Use Her Mother's Wedding Ring?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 30 years old and to be married in June. I have my dead mother's wide gold wedding band. Would it be proper for me to use it as my own wedding ring? If so, would it be proper for my husband-to-be to make necessary repairs on it, since he will be the one to present it to me and place it on my finger in the wedding ceremony? Also, what name, or names, or initials, should be on the inside of the ring? My mother's name is already there. I would so love to wear my own mother's ring, if proper.

What sort of engagement ring would look best with a wide gold wedding band? I presume a solitaire diamond. I have not yet gotten my engagement ring.

"Bride-To-Be"

Dear "Bride-To-Be". I don't see any impropriety in using your mother's wedding ring if you wish to do so. If you decide to do this, I think it would be the logical thing for your fiance to have the ring put in first-class condition in advance of the ceremony and have it engraved on the inside in whatever way you and he choose.

A solitaire diamond engagement ring of course looks very charming with a plain gold wedding band, but the choice of an engagement ring is again a matter of personal preference, and I think you should give your fiance the pleasure of picking it out himself. I think I would also give him the opportunity to say how he feels about the wedding ring. It may be that it would mean a great deal to him to give you a wedding ring himself, in which case you should be happy to let him do that and simply keep your mother's ring as a treasured heirloom.

She Is Unhappy Because of Her Bad Teeth

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I guess you will think this is the silliest thing you ever heard, but to me it means all I ask of life, and that is happiness.

My trouble is my teeth. Some of them are artificial and not pretty. When I am out with anybody, I can't laugh and show my teeth like anyone else, as I am conscious of them all the time. I have been going with a nice boy, but would just as soon sit home and read, because he has pretty teeth and I don't think boys want girls with false ones.

Please help me solve this problem so that I can laugh freely once more and become happy like other girls with pretty teeth.

"Worried"

Dear "Worried": Has anyone ever told you that some of the most charming women in the world are "as homely as a mud fence," to use the slang phrase? Because that just happens to be the truth.

Naturally, I don't mean that they are charming because they are homely, but I am simply making the point that nobody is unpopular because they are not as pretty as somebody else. A girl who makes a point of thinking of other people's happiness instead of her own, who enjoys good times, who has a happy disposition, will never be one who needs to "stay home and read." On the contrary, she will be somebody whose company other people enjoy so much that they will never think of any defects of appearance she may have. That is the first thing I would like to say to you.

The second thing is that it is perfectly possible for you to have such a good dental job done on your teeth that it would be practically impossible for anyone to tell that they were not your own. This, however, costs money, and it may be something you cannot afford at this time. It is something to keep in mind, however, as a possibility for the future, and perhaps you can start now saving a little something toward having this done later on. You certainly don't need to feel that you have to go all through life with a mouthful of unattractive teeth, because you don't.

emembrance Book ill Take Five ears to Complete

Ottawa, March 12 —(CP)— reparation of Canada's Second orld War Book of Remem-rance — a detailed, precise task expected to take five years — has ben started here by Lt.-Cmdr. Allan R. Beddoe, 54-year-old sailor artist.

The book will contain some 45,000 names of fallen Canadian service men, compared with 66,651 names in the First World War Book, now in the quiet sanctity of the Memorial Chamber in the Parliament Buildings' Peace Tower.

No decision has been made on the ultimate location of the second book.

The Memorial Chamber, a small peaceful room of which the first book is the centre, is devoted wholly to the deeds of Canada's First World War forces. Its solid, intricately-carved stone work depicting First World War scenes and emblems might not easily be altered to accommodate tokens of the recent conflict.

The first book took 10 years to complete, the work being delayed by the death of the artist when he had only one of the 600-odd pages illuminated.

Lt.-Cmdr. Beddoe, who completed the decoration of the first book, is in charge of the new work.

He served with the R.C.N.V.R. during the Second World War.

The first part of his new work —compliation of a card series on which appear the names to be inscribed in the book by hand—is under way. The names will be listed by year of death.

The new book, about 450 pages, will be of rare vellum, a sheepskin material manufactured in England. The first 100 sheets have already been received here.

SENDS IN FALSE ALARM, HAS TO POLISH EQUIPMENT

Boston, March 12 (AP) — Because they had to answer a false alarm recently firemen assigned to engine 12 won't have to polish their equipment for the next 30 days.

It will be done for them by Donald Butts, 21, who pleaded guilty today in Roxbury District Court of sounding a false alarm.

Judge Franklin W. L. Miles ordered him to report to the fire station daily for the next 30 days to polish the equipment.

Every Country Far Ahead of Germany In Economic Recovery

By JACK SMITH

Berlin, March 12—(Reuters)— —Allied economic experts, following an extensive survey of conditions in Europe, are satisfied that every other country without exception is today far ahead of Germany in economic recovery.

The estimate of the level of physical production indicates that German output during the last half of 1946 averaged about 40 per cent of that in 1936, roughly 34 per cent of the 1938 production. During May-June, 1947, however, following the recovery from the winter recession, the level was probably several points higher.

All other European countries for which data are available show a far greater degree of recovery.

In France, production in the last quarter of 1946 and in January, 1947, was about 90 per cent of the 1938 rate. In Belgium, production was about equalled, while in Norway, it surpassed that of 1939.

In none of the European countries is the current production level much below 90 per cent of pre-war.

56 Per Cent of 1938 Output

In terms of basic industrial production, the contrast is equally striking. German production of hard coal during March, 1947—the highest since the occupation—was about 56 per cent of the 1938 output. In Belgium, on the other hand, coal output during the same month was just under 90 per cent of 1938 production, while Czechoslovakia, France and Poland all showed coal production higher than before the war.

In 1938, German hard coal production, excluding the separated areas, was more than three times that of France and more than four times that of Poland.

In March, 1947, German output was less than twice that of either of these countries.

Before the war, Germany was by far the greatest producer of steel in Europe, excluding the U.S.S.R. But in March, 1947, steel production in the United Kingdom was almost three times that of Germany while French output was more than 50 per cent larger.

It seems probable that average food consumption in Germany is less than that of any of other European countries, with the possible exception of Greece, where only figures relating to the Athens region are available.

Child's Custody Being Argued In Appeal Court

Toronto, March 12 (CP)—Seven-year-old Terry McKee, during most of his young life the object of a legal battle between his divorced parents, Mark T. McKee, wealthy American Airline executive, and Mrs. Evelyn McKee, yesterday became involved in the niceties of jurisprudence as his mother's counsel, R. I. Ferguson, told the court: "There is not only the custody of the child involved in this case."

"In the interest of justice," Mr. Ferguson said, "McKee should not be allowed to run from court to court and State to State and have this issue retried and retried."

Mrs. McKee is appealing from a judgment of Mr. Justice Dalton Wells which gave custody of the boy to his father. Mr. Ferguson argues that a California court gave custody of the child to his mother in 1945 and then his father "kidnapped" him and took him to Michigan and subsequently to Kitchener. Mrs. McKee's case is that the California judgment should be upheld.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson, at yesterday's hearing, observed there was the possibility the father could apply for custody in Michigan courts.

"He won't do that," said Mr. Ferguson, "because the Michigan law gives the mother the child until he is 12."

"I'm afraid Terry will have celebrated his 21st birthday before he gets through with this litigation," commented Chief Justice Robertson.

The case has been fought in United States and Canadian courts since the parents were divorced in California in 1942.

Court of Appeal Orders New Trial

Toronto, March 12. (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal here yesterday quashed conviction and ordered a new trial for Denton Clifford Johnston, previously fined $3,500 for having carnal knowledge of a girl under 16, and several criticized Judge E. W. Clement, Waterloo County, for not imposing a jail term.

W. B. Common, appearing for the attorney-general's department in its appeal against the sentence, said Johnston should have been sent to reformatory.

Johnston, a contractor, was released on payment of the $3,500 fine because of the need for houses he was building, the court was informed.

In his summation, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach said:

"The judge (E. W. Clement) proceeded to give effect to the fact that accused . . . was engaged as a mason-contractor on a housing project and was, in the judge's words, 'an important cog in the machinery which today is trying to supply the people with the housing and hospitalization for which they have been crying to high heaven for upwards of three years'."

"With the utmost deference," continued His Lordship, "that fact is not a fact which should have been taken into consideration."

"The offence here is a serious offence against society, that is the state. If the accused is guilty, the mere accident of his employment and his ability to pay the substantial fine imposed should not enable him to escape the term of imprisonment which the offence merits."

Senator Duff Thinks Members Wasting Time

Ottawa, March 12 (CP)—Senator William Duff (L., Nova Scotia) had a few things to say about adjournments, thumb-twiddling, fingernail-biting and "getting into trouble' during long weekends.

The Newfoundland-born ruddy-faced senator, whose nickname "The Admiral" has followed him from his Lunenburg home to the floor of the red chamber, lashed out too at certain wordy "young fellows" in the Commons.

He even went on record as willing to work Sundays—"although I am a Presbyterian"—and topped things by suggesting the Senate give itself a 27-day Easter holiday, 22 days more than the Commons' proposed adjournment.

The 75-year-old senator spoke his piece after Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, outlined the Easter possibilities. No decision was made.

"If I understood him rightly," smiled Senator Duff, "he is not quite sure as to when it should begin."

The Commons' five-day adjournment would be "quite proper —because goodness knows, hon. members of that place have wasted enough time all session doing nothing."

But senators "waiting to attend to business" should not be forced to commute between Ottawa and their homes" just so that we may wait around here for certain people elsewhere to get their work through."

"I think we should stand on our dignity and declare a definite date of adjournment."

He admitted—speaking of adjournments in general—that "we are a happy family here, and those of us whose homes are a long distance from Ottawa do not mind waiting around here from Thursday night until Teday night while our Ontario and Quebec colleagues are away."

"During those long weekends we have nothing to do but twiddle our thumbs and bite our fingernails."

"Hear, hear," chimed in Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader.

But Senator Duff added: "And most of us get into trouble."

"Speak for yourself," said Senator C. B. Howard (L, Quebec).

"I am speaking for myself... I am getting tired of having to commute between Lunenburg and Ottawa every fortnight or so. If there is business to be done, I am willing to stay and do it, and, although I am a Presbyterian, I am willing to work on Sundays, if necessary."

"Shame!" cried Senator Haig.

"I say I am willing to work on Sunday if necessary, because I am convinced it is God's work that we are doing in this chamber ... I say we should not be called back here when there is no work for us to do.

"And there will not be anything ready for us by April 13, which I understood was the date mentioned by the leader."

Then came the suggestion of the 27-day Easter holiday —from March 24 to April 20. What the Senate did do was to adjourn until next Monday at 8 p.m.

That could give Senator Duff some sort of a weekend in Lunenburg.

UK Conservatives Hold N. Croydon In By-election

London, March 12 — (AP) — The Conservative party kept its House of Commons seat in yesterday's North Croydon by-election.

Fred W. Harris, the Conservative candidate, got 36,200 votes against 24,536 for author Harold Nicolson, Labor. Former Air Vice Marshal Donald Bennett, Liberal, trailed with 6,321 votes.

The election, in a London suburb, was held to fill a vacancy caused by the retirement of H.U. Willink.

It was the 39th by-election since the 1945 general elections. The Conservatives have not lost any seats in that time and have gained one from the ruling labor party.

Labor now has 396 seats in the Commons and the Conservatives 199, of the total of 640.

Harris had a plurality of 11,664 compared with the 607-vote Conservative margin in 1945, when Willink, wartime minister of health, was elected. The by-election results from Willink's resignation from parliament to become Master of Magdalene College, Cambridge.

Throwing full weight of its powerful electoral machine into the election, Labor did its best to make a first gain from the Conservatives since the 1945 general election, but the "unknown factor" — the 12,000 new oters who have moved to the district during the last 2½ years — evidently went against it.

Amana Leaves For Byline Ball

Sydney, Australia, March 12 — (CP)—Amana, the grey kangaroo being flown to Toronto for the Byline Ball on April 10, today left her home at Cairns in North Queensland on the first hop of her 11,500 mile journey after many transport difficulties were overcome.

Arriving at Sydney late today on an Australian National Airways plane, she will rest until March 28 when she embarks again with A.N.A. for the Pacific flight to Vancouver. From there she will fly to the Toronto Press Club ball as representative of the International Correspondents Association in Australia and the Sydney Journalists Club.

After the ball she will meet Bluey, the grey kangaroo sent as guest of honor to last year's ball by the Sydney Journalists Club. The couple expect to settle down quietly at the Toronto zoo.

Until today it looked as though Amana would be late for both the ball and her wedding. A.N.A. have given her free passage from Sydney to Vancouver but have a strict ban on the carriage of livestock on planes in Australia. They could see no way of breaking it without getting angry protests.

The Queensland government offered her passage on their trains as a guest of the state. But striking railroads and flooded rivers decreed otherwise.

The North Queensland Sunday Australian ran a story of her transport problems under a banner headline: "Will Cairns' Bride Keep Her Wedding Date in Toronto?"

When all hope seemed lost A. N. A. re-entered the scene and a spokesman telephoned The Canadian Press to say: "Ban or no ban, Amana is going to that ball and we are going to carry her all the way—and what is more she travels as a guest of the company."

a result of criticism, Trade ster Howe finally agreed to rate the initial payment sec- from the other two so there d be no delay in getting the ues reflecting higher pay- s to western wheat producers.

ker's Decision Upheld

rlier efforts by J. A. Ross -Souris) to have the resolu- split into three parts so that subject could be considered rately were rejected when aker Gaspard Fauteux ruled his amendment. The Speak- decision after appeal was up- 121 to 62, with the C. C. F. voting with the government the Social Credit members d with the Progressive Con- tives.

followed by adoption of the followed by adoption of the ution and first reading of the to which it pertained.

progress was made on the ntious resolution that would legislative effect to the 25- cent excise taxes which Fi- e Minister Abbott announc- ov. 17 would form part of the r-conservation program. The opposition has termed the taxes unjustified and illegal.

Mr. Abbott said that from November to February the new taxes applying against a lengthy list of durable consumer goods, had yielded an estimated $5,555,595.

In the wheat debate, Mr. Smith argued that the marketing of oats and barley should be left under the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. G. H. Castleden (CCF-Yorkton) took an opposite view and said farmers were determined that "this grain exchange type of legal robbery" go out of existance.

Mr. Smith argued that no organization seriously asked that the Wheat Board be made the sole marketing agency for oats and barley. The two grains were entirely different from wheat. They were used mainly in Canada — grown in the West and sold in the East.

Would Have Price Fixer

In such a situation, the Board would be in a position of fixing a price for the consumer who wanted to pay as little as he could and for the producer who wanted as much as he could get. Any government would have in the Board a "price fixer." As buyers outnumbered sellers about four to one, anyone could picture what would happen.

In the veterans debate, Mr. Gregg promised to consider suggestions that a permanent committee be established to deal with affairs of former members of the services. He said he would be glad to review cases where the pensions of First World War veterans were reduced and cited figures to show that during the last year only 147 had been decreased out of the 69,736 pensions being paid to veterans in this class.

He recalled that a cost-of-living bonus, later included in the basic scale, was paid to veterans following the First World War and said he had been asked whether the government intended the present increase to fluctuate with the cost of living.

He went on:

"The answer to that and similar questions is this: The government does propose in this bill an increase in the basic rate of pension and it is not intended that it should fluctuate according to the changing cost-of-living index."

Besides Mr. Gregg speakers included G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough); Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia); H. W. Herridge (People's CCF-Kootenay West); and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod).

Wants Life Pension

Mr. Hansell suggested that every volunteer who saw an actual theatre of war be paid a life pension-equivalent to the average Canadian income. Such volunteers should also be exempt from all taxation on their return to civilian life. He believed the country's productive capacity could afford such action.

In the taxation debate, Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) said Mr. Abbott had "extorted" $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 from the Canadian people since the taxes became effective "illegally" Nov. 18.

Several members asked Mr. Abbott how people could go about getting refunds for taxes paid on artifices since removed from the list of taxable goods. Mr. Abbott replied the tax now was being collected on the wholesale level and the wholesalers could make a claim against the government. As to consumers, it was up to them to settle the matter with the retailer.

Claimed Inadequate

Speaking in the pensions debate, G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough) said the increases were "totally inadequate." Canada could afford larger increases.

The government planned to spend hundreds of millions on the beautification of Ottawa and as a war memorial, yet "hedged" and "quibbled" when it came to paying pensions.

Mr. White said he wondered how many veterans and veterans organizations had been consulted on the type of war memorial the country should have. Personally he felt that scholarships for veterans children across the country would be more valuable than a beautified Ottawa.

His party advocated on many occasions that there should be a $100-a-month pension for 100 per cent disability.

He felt the wives of disabled veterans should continue to receive a pension when their husbands died. Action should be taken as well to prevent reductions in pensions of First World War veterans. Provision should be made to provide increases for all pensioned veterans when they reached a certain age.

He protested against the "class distinction" which gave a ranking officer a higher level in civil life. A private suffered just as much during the war as did a brigadier.

He objected also to salary increases being proposed in the legislation for the pension commissioners, who received even more than did county judges.

MEMBERS DEAL

Aurel Chartrand (L-Ottawa East) urged greater equality in grants to public and separate schools, midday meals for school children and increased allotments to crippled children, widows and aged persons.

John A. Pringle (PC-Addington) followed him. He declared that "no government has ever fulfilled pre-election promises so fully and in so short a time as has the present Drew government."

First reading given during the afternoon sitting to government bills dealing with education, change of Name Act, Public Vehicles Act and Surveys Act and a Liberal bill which would increase payments under Workmen's Compensation Act for 66 2-3 per cent of regular wages to 75 per cent. 13 private bills previously entered in the form of petitions were given first reading.

One of the government bills would enable establishment and maintenance of technical and polytechnical institutes to provide more advanced industrial training than is afforded by regular vocational schools.

Owes Explanation Claim

In the speech, Mr. Roberts discussed a report to Phillip Murray, president of the C.I.O. from a committee appointed to investigate a breach within the Mine and Mill Union.

The report to Murray was quoted as saying "that the loyalty of the present officers of the union is not to the members of the union but to any outside group having no connection with the movement. In every dealing they acted under the guidance and instruction of the Communist party.

He said the officers said Robinson, president and Morris Travis, vice-president were installed when a split developed in the union during elections.

Directing his remarks at Mr. Carlin, Mr. Roberts said:

"I say to this House in view of the seriousness of a condition such as this, that he owes an explanation to this House and if he is not himself connected with the Communistic movement within the organization, which I sincerely hope he is not, he should certainly make his position very clear in that regard to this House."

Mr. Grummett, C.C.F. House leader and member for Cochrane South, charged in his speech the government with failure to recognize the need for comprehensive planning and broad measures of social ownership.

Mr. Grummett levelled the criticism in an amendment expressing regret that the government put forward "thoroughly inadequate proposals for labor legislation, vague and insubstantial housing proposals, and no plans at all to meet the pressing need of adequate health and welfare services."

Calls for Direct Taxation

Mr. Grummett opened his 90-minute address by declaring the C.C.F. never has had nor will have in future "any truck or trade with Communism."

He noted the Labor-Progressive party attempt to attach itself to the C.C.F. and said his party had no illusions about Communism. The C.C.F. he declared, propose to defeat Communism by offering a "dynamic Democratic program."

Mr. Grummett advocated all-out development of Northern Ontario, including agricultural expansion for which he would utilize immigrants.

He called for direct taxation on mines to go to the communities in which they are situated instead of what he described as the present system where Reeves and Mayors must go " hat in hand" to provincial government for "hand outs."

Commendation for government handling of education came from the C.C.F. leader with the suggestion that vocational school system be enlarged to provide vocational training which will fit people for work in industries of their particular community.

Claimed Political Football

Mr. Grummett expressed disappointment that the Throne Speech had carried no explanation of what the government intended to do to aid mining communities. He declared that discussions by the Premier and Liberal opposition leader Oliver confirmed "our impression that hydro is treated as a political football.'

Need for a second highway between Sudbury and Timmins was mentioned in the C.C.F. leader's discusion of highways.

In his speech Mr. Roberts devoted a large part of his address to labor in Northern mining camps and said he regretted to "find it necessary to refer to certain Communistic activities to assert leadership there."

In speaking of Reid Robinson and Harlow Wildman, Mr. Roberts described the two officials of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union as outright Communists, and asked Mr. Grummett if he would dissociate himself and his party in Cochrane South from any connection whatever with them.

Mr. Grummett replied that he had never met the two men and was confident the miners of Kirkland Lake and Timmins could be trusted to take the right path in the face of Communistic attempts to lead them.

Canadiens Cling Like Leeches To Chance for Playoff Berth By Defeating Maple Leafs 3-1

Coach Frank Boucher —of New York Rangers better be on his toes this weekend. The Rangers have two games against Montreal Canadiens, and the Canadiens are clinging like leeches to their mathematical chance of getting into the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Canadiens were not only clinging like leeches but they were fighting like wildcats last night when they hung a 3-1 defeat on the Toronto Maple Leafs at the Montreal Forum.

That game put Toronto two points under the Detroit Red Wings, and Toronto and Detroit each have only four games left before the schedule closes. It may turn out that the Canadiens victory cost the Leafs the league championship. But the race is so close that no one will make any predictions.

Apart from the leaders, the victory put Canadiens seven points behind Boston Bruins who hold the fourth and last play-off position. One Boston victory will eliminate the Canadiens even if the Montrealers win all remaining games. Because Canadiens have only four games left.

Didn't Look Like Discards

The Canadiens didn't look like discards last night when they checked and skated the Leafs off their feet. Sticks were carried high, crushing board checks were handed out and a couple of fist fights marked proceedings.

But in the goal light section, where the red flash casts only gloom on the opposing teams, the Canadiens were tops. Elmer Lash, after concentrating on tying up Leafs' flashy centre Max Bentley, scored the Canadiens' first goal. Gus Mortson got Toronto's only counter early in the second period to tie it up. Then Jacques Locas put Montreal ahead before the frame ended, and Murph Chamberlain added one for good measure in the third period.

Referee George Gravel handed out 15 penalties, trouble starting with a fight between Montreal's great defenceman Kenny Reardon and Toronto's steady Gus Mortson in the first period. Chamberlain and Leafs' Howie Meeker were slugging each other at the time. Meeker later took on big Butch Bouchard, with no damage done.

Porcupine Hangs 6-3 Defeat On Copper Cliff Team

(By The Canadian Press)

While Ontario Hockey Association senior and junior finalists took things easy in preparation for tonight's tilts, another junior Northern Ontario Hockey Association final game was run off last night with Porcupine Combines hanging a convincing 6-3 defeat on Copper Cliff Redmen. The best-of-seven series now stands at two games apiece.

Combines came from behind a 2-0 deficit at the end of the initial frame to tie the count at 2-2 at the end of the second. In the third period the Combines clicked four times to the Redmen's once.

Flashy Roger Mineault paced the Porcupine crew by rapping in four of his team's six goals and assisting on the other two which Campbell converted. The Combines began to control play midway through the second period and from then on play was all Combines.

McIver and Rubic tallied the two Redmen goals in the first period and in the second Mineault set up a pass for Campbell for the first Combine marker. He then evened the score with a minute to play in the period.

Minneault also scored the first goal of the third period as he rapped one in after 20 seconds of play. He again set up Campbell at the three - minute mark and then scored two more before the half-way mark in the period.

A desperate rally by Copper Cliff produced one more goal, this time by Burton, but the fierce Combine checking proved too much for the Redmen.

Leipala in the Copper Cliff nets played brilliantly despite the wide margin in score and his steady work was all that prevented the score from mounting higher.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Timmins Saturday and then the clubs return to Copper Cliff for the remaining games.

The O. H. A. swings into action again tonight with Kitchener - Waterloo invading Hamilton seeking their first win in the best-of-seven senior finals which the Tigers now lead 2-0. Windsor moves to Barrie seeking their 3rd victory in their best-of-seven junior finals.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 12 — (CP) — The National Hockey League betting imbroglio could scarcely be said to have stunned the Canadian sports public in view of the lengthy investigations before the expulsion from the league of Billy Taylor of New York Rangers and the indefinite suspension of Don Gallinger of Boston Bruins.

But the fact that the betting charges had anything behind them at all was a nasty blow. Early sports writers' comment on the case paid a tribute to the N. H. L. executive for the thorough way in which the probe was carried out.

However, Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman warned his readers against any misconception of what happened.

"... According to the evidence made public by Clarence S. Campbell ... Taylor wagered on a game in which his own team wasn't participating .."

"We aren't apologizing for Taylor, but his only sin was that he was damn' fool enough to wager on a hockey game when the National Hockey League had warned every player that betting would lead to expulsion from the game ..."

"The important thing is that professional hockey has emerged from the case with its reputation untarnished. It has been shown that no player or players made any attempt to 'throw' a game."

Bobby (Toronto Evening Telegram) Hewitson declared: "Hockey will be stronger than ever because of what has been revealed ... this hasn't been a 'sport scandal' as some like to call it. There has been no evidence of fixed games. There has been no evidence the gamblers have tried to approach players to do things they should not do towards the losing of a game."

Said Tommy (Globe and Mail) Munns:

"More worthy of public confidence than ever is hockey in general and the National League in particular.

"The vigorous handling of the involved ... case ... proved that gambling influences touched only the fringe of hockey and had no entree to the game itself . . actually the case calls for very little comment. Campbell's decisions ... are self-explanatory, climaxing the progress of an investigation which he had conducted with the utmost frankness."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Lakefield, Fla., March 12 (AP) —Ever hear of a baseball executive who welcomes a holdout?... Maybe Col. Jake Ruppert used to welcome Babe Ruth's periodic resistance to offers in the old days. That was something of an act between the Babe and the Colonel, winding up in a blaze of publicity for the Yanks .. Now comes Billy Evans, Detroit General Manager, saying he's glad shortstop Eddie Lake hasn't come to terms..."if he was here, he wouldn't let anybody else in there," (Billy explains: "He's a strong little fellow who can play every day. That's one of his arguments. Since he hasn't come in we've been able to try Neil Berry and Johnny Lipon at short. Both have looked good and we have been very much impressed by Berry's play."

Study in Contrasts

Evans, who used to be a newspaper man, besides being a ball player, umpire and minor league president, offers a unique theory about Dick Wakefield's failure to pull out of a hitting slump... Dick acts like a don't care guy, but Evans thinks he "effects a nonchalancy (sic) he doesn't feel."..."Look at him," Billy commented as Wakefield stalked by. "He has everything. I think he could be as great a hitter as Ted Williams, but he has an entirely different attitude...Williams always is looking for improvement. He bothers his team-mates with questions. Everywhere he goes, he singles out players and asks them to watch him and tell him what he can do to improve his hitting. Wakefield never does things like that."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

There are eight players currently starring in the National Hockey League who have performed in hockey's major circuit for 10 or more years. Four of these players, Syl Apps, Toronto; Neil Colville, Rangers; Jack Crawford, Boston; and Turk Broda, Toronto, are presently playing in their 10th season.

Head man in the seniority section is Phil Watson of New York, who is now in his 13th year in the N. H. L. He played one season, 1943-44, with Montreal Canadiens, but the remainder of his major league career was spent with the Broadway Blue Shirts. Watson broke in with the Rangers in 1935-36 and is the second Ranger player ever to wear number seven — the number made famous by Frank Boucher.

Nick Metz, the wheat farmer from Wilcox, Sask., who has been a valued all - round campaigner for Toronto Maple Leafs ever since he joined the team in 1935-36 is now in his 12th season in the N. H. L. and is next to Watson in seniority. Metz spent two years in the Canadian Army and missed the 1942-43 and 1943-44 seasons.

Murph Chamberlain of Montreal Canadiens and Bryan Hextall of Rangers, who are now playing their 11th season of National League hockey rank 3rd among the N. H. L. veterans. Hextall has spent his complete N. H. L. career with the New Yorkers. A 20-goal man for six consecutive seasons, Hextall missed most of the 1945- - 46 season with a serious illness.

Chamberlain, the colorful Montreal left winger, has played for three other N. H. L. clubs besides Canadiens during his 11-year span. He has played for Toronto, Boston and the now defunct New York Americans.

Like old wine, Turk Broda, Toronto goalkeeper, seems to improve with age. The pudgy puck - blocker now playing his 10th season with the Leafs is one of the few netminders to last 10 seasons in the National League. Of the present goalies, Frank Brimsek of Boston, who is now in his eighth season of play, ranks next to Broda.

Apps, Colville and Crawford have played all their N. H. L. hockey with their respective teams, Toronto, New York and Boston. Apps broke in with the Leafs in 1936-37 and has played continuously for the team except for a two-year break while he was serving in the Canadian Army.

Colville crashed the Rangers' lineup in 1936-37. He missed the 1942-43, 43-44 seasons while in the Canadian Armed Forces. The steady - playing Crawford had his name first inserted in the Boston lineup in the season of 1938-39 and he has played with the Bruins every year since that time.

Of the eight ten-year men noy playing in the N. H. L., three are members of Toronto Maple Leafs, three are from the New York Rangers, with Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins each having one representative.

Buddy O'Connor and Max Bentley, ace centres of New York Rangers and Toronto Mple Leafs respectively, are disproving the theory that you have to be big and tough to star in the National Hockey League. O'Connor and Bentley who both weigh exactly 145 pounds and are the lightest players in the League have led the N.H.L. scoring race for the greater part of the current campaign. They are both particularly clean players and make very few trips to the penalty box. In the six previous seasons O'Connor spent a total of 22 minutes in the "penitential pew" and Bentley in five seasons spent a total of 28 minutes in the "sin-bin."

If Montreal Canadiens fail to make the Stanley Cup playoffs this season, it will be the first time that their coach, Dick Irvin, has missed the post-schedule classic in 19 years of N.H.L. coaching.

Irvin made his debut as an N.H.L. coach in 1929-30 with Chicago. He spent two years with the Black Hawks, nine years with Toronto, and is presently in his eighth season with Montreal Canadiens. During his 19-year sojourn as an N.H.L. coach, he has piloted three of his teams to hockey's grandiose prize, the Stanley Cup. Dick was at the helm of Toronto Maple Leafs when they won the Cup in 1931-32 and of Montreal Canadiens when the captured the trophy in 1943-44 and 1945-46.

The players of the six American Hockey League teams which will compete in the coming playoffs, starting on March 23rd, will have a very lucrative prize of $74,600 to divide up. It is quite possible for one of the teams to have as much as $28,000 to share among its players. This could occur if the leader of either the Western or Eastern Division during the regular season, should go on to annex the final championship title. The lowest amount a first place finalist will receive is $24,000, even if eliminated in the final round.

Its been many a moon since a hockey series like the current one between the Trenton Hockey Club and the RCAF has struck the popular fancy, with such a resounding (and box-office) boom. Nearly 6,000 fans have witnessed the four games played thus far, and if ticket sales, and street gabfests are a criterion this figure will be boosted by 2,000 come this evening.

Following the Hockey Club's Wednesday night victory which tied the series at two-all, the demand for tickets has been the heaviest this season. Sources of supply were deluged with demands for the pasteboards as early as eight o'clock yesterday morning, and all day there was a clamor for tickets.

Exciting and thrilling as the last four games have been, tonight's tussle should be the last word in excitement. Trenton is "hotter" than a defeated politician. While Flyers are grimly determined to wipe out their last two setbacks, and grab the series clincher. It should be one for the book.

Personally, we won't be there. By the time this edition hits the street we'll be well on the way to Kitchener to take in the Belleville Merchants-Waterloo Sparks final game tomorrow night. And that series, is a goals-to-count affair and not a two-of-three bevy of hockey bliffs. The OMHA rules and regs say that the decision to play best-of-three or goals-to-count rests with the rival managements. The Merchants management informs us the goals-to-count idea was adopted previous to the Waterloo game here the other night.

So it looks as though the Barriage-Wilbur crew has a mighty chore on its hand if they are to defeat the Sparks by six goals. Almost impossible, it seems, but the courageous little cusses will be out there doing their dangdest, no matter what happens. They leave Belleville early Saturday morning for Waterloo, and will return on Sunday. Best of luck to 'em.

Houston Huskies Five Points Ahead

(By The Canadian Press)

The old Merriwell trick came into play last night to give Houston Huskies a five-point lead in the Southern Division of the United States Hockey League.

With 5 seconds to play, Joe McArthur pushed in a tie-breaking shot to give the Huskies a 3-2 victory over Fort Worth Rangers and increase their lead.

Hub Macey and Morden Skinner got the other Houston goals while Joe Schmidt and Alex Ritson scored for the losers.

In the only other league game last night, defenceman Fred Shero's goal in the overtime period gave St. Paul Saints a 4-3 victory over Kansas City Pla-Mors. The victory put the Saints in tie for second place in the Northern Division with Kansas City. Minneapolis leads the division.

Gananoque Ousts Lindsay 14-5 In Junior C Playoff

The highly-rated Gananoque Junior "C" squad lived up to all advance notices in Memorial Arena last night when they swamped the Lindsay team under a 14-5 score to win the third and deciding game of their OHA playdown round. Each team had chalked up a victory previously and last night's slam-fest was the payoff.

It was a wide-open free-scoring brawl that included some smart collective and individual hockey, garnished with occasional gobs of old-fashioned shinny. Nineteen goals rattled the rigging during the pastime while Sinners Avenue was populated continuously especially in the third period, when the sinners' exits developed into a parade.

Twenty-one penalties were handed out by Referee Maurice Walsh, fourteen of them in the third period, when play began to roughen. The officials however, clamped down heavily on all misdemeanors, and kept the game well under control. One misconduct was given, and that went to Arthurs of Gananoque, who childishly threw his stick across the ice when given a minor.

Plenty of Speed

The game was fast, with both squads showing plenty of speed and ability. But after the first five minutes when Lindsay racked up two quick goals before a surprised Gan squad could find its legs, it was the St. Lawrence River crew all the way. Their plays started to click, and they went on a scoring rampage that Lindsay found impossible to curb.

The Gans fired home four goals in the initial period after being down a brace, added five more in the second against a single by Lindsay and tacked on another quintet of markers in the rough-and tumble third period with the western squad poking the rubber home twice.

Keyes spearheaded the winner's attack with five goals, with Atkins getting three and five assists. Jackson, Gananoque defenceman was easily the best man on the ice and got two goals and one helper with Anderson and Compeau each getting two. Hudson was credited with three assists.

Coombs scored a pair for the losers with Dysart, Robinson and Hennessy accounting for the remaining three. Gananoque outshot the losers 29-24.

The teams:—

Lindsay — Goal, Quigley; defence, Gleeson, Kelly; centre, Parker; wings, Coombs, McPhee; subs, Robinson, Dysart, MacInnes, E. Hennessey, Burns, L. Hennessey, Arthurs.

Horsemen Offer Reward and Plan Search for Men

(By The Canadian Press)

Horsemen posted rewards and made plans for a search of their own at Miami, Fla., yesterday for jockey Al Snider of Calgary, Alberta, and two companions missing for six days on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys. The Jockeys Guild and Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Agency jointly offered $1,000 for finding each of the missing men, dead or alive. An addition $500 was offered for anyone locating the 16-foot plywood boat they were in when they disappeared last Friday.

Three friends of Snider had already posted $5,000 reward for anyone finding the men alive. Missing with Snider are C. H. (Tobe) Trotter, Miami horse trainer, and Donald Fraser, Toronto business man.

Jack Nash was named chairman of the London Hunt and Country Club Committee yesterday at London, Ont., succeeding Dr. W. J. Brown who resigned after 25 years in office. The committee announced dates for major golf tournaments this summer. They include the annual 36-hole invitation June 16 and the two-day seniors Aug. 12-13. Initial play for the Sandy Somerville Cup will be held at Brantford, June 6, with the second round at the Hunt Club, Sept. 12.

Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, top-ranking world's light heavyweight contender, last night was matched for a 10-round bout with Elmer (Violent) Ray, Minneapolis, at Chicago April 7. Jack Hurley, matchmaker of the Stadium Boxing Club of Chicago, said Charles had pledged to donate $5,000 to the parents of the late Sam Baroudi, who died six hours after receiving a knockout blow delivered by Charles in the Stadium Feb. 20. Hurley also said the Boxing Club would donate $5,000 to complete a $10,000 fund for the dead boxer's parents.

Tommy Rodgers, one-armed boxer, successfully defended his 155-pound Harvard College title at Cambridge, Mass., last night by gaining a close three-round decision over Jack Lord. Rodgers, who lost his left arm in a railroad accident while a youth, relied on his speed and swift hooks to win the officials' nod. He won the title last year in a technical knockout victory.

RCAF Flyers, Canada's Olympic hockey champions, yesterday defeated the Swedish Club team Soertalje 3-2. Period scores were: 1-0, 0-0, 2-2.

Don Gallinger, suspended Boston Bruins hockey player, left by automobile yesterday for his home at Port Colborne, Ont. The 22-year-old Bruin, veteran of 5 seasons, was suspended Tuesday following the National Hockey League gambling investigation.

Pete Babando, Boston Bruins' forward, pleaded innocent yesterday at Boston, to a charge of assault and battery. He was released on his own recognizance until March 31. Babando was charged with assaulting a hockey fan and the latter's small son when leaving the ice following a Boston - Chicago National Hockey League game Jan. 31 in Boston Gardens.

INLAND FISHERMAN

Peterborough, Ont. — (CP) — After a two-hour battle, George Street, local angler, shouldered his rod, baited only with a straight hook, and grinned at his catch — a suit. A gust of wind blew the suit from a second-storey clothes line to a roof below. When ice prevented use of a ladder, Street confidently resorted to his skill at casting.

Valuable Men Out of Action Through Injuries

Dunfermline, Scotland, March 12 — (CP) — The Scottish National Hockey League, dependent upon Canada for its supply of players, can't afford to use them up too rapidly, but in a recent game here two valuable men were put out of action through injury, possibly for the balance of the season.

They were Randy Ellis, Dunfermline Vikings' centre from Regina, and Bob Leckie, Ayr Raiders' defenceman who comes from North Bay, Ont.

Meanwhile, league playoff spots have been decided with Paisley Pirates and Ayr finishing one-two in the eastern zone and Dunfermline and Dundee Tigers holding first and second positions in the western section.

Leading the league - scoring parade is Al Gordon, slender Ayr centreman, with 43 goals and 59 assists. He's followed by Ellis with 61 goals and 32 assists and Jack Thaler, of Paisley via Oshawa, who has 47 goals and 42 assists.

Johnny Sergenese of Humberstone, Ont., has scored 83 points playing with Perth Panthers.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Jacques Locas, Canadiens, who scored Montreal's second goal which enough as the Habs defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1.

Bill Durnan, Canadiens goaltender who played stalwartly in repelling the Leafs repeated attacks.

Turk Broada, Toronto, who played a sensational game for the Maple Leafs.

Loser of Fat Roll Of Bills Gets All But $100 Back

Brantford, March 12 (CP) — Illes Fagt, tobacco farmer of nearby Wilsonville, was so excited last evening he could not recall the name of the man who returned to him $1,100 of the $1,200 that fell through a hole in his pocket here the day before.

He's not worried about the missing $100. "I'm thankful that much was returned to me." Mr. Fagt said the money he withdrew from the bank was to pay hired help and some hospital bills.

He remembered that the man who did not speak English fluently came from R.R. 3, Burford.

Training Camp Notes

New York, March 12 (AP)—Three Philadelphia Athletics' rookies will get an opportunity to show their stuff during the three game series which the A's open against Washington Senators today.

Manager Connie Mack is expected to lead off the series with his old stand-by of last season, Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, a 19-game winner.

Rookie hurler Alex Kellner will be sandwiched between veterans Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib tomorrow. The other freshman Bill Connelly and Lou Brissie, are expected to follow Russ Christopher on the mound Sunday.

Outfielders Pete Reiser and Dick Whitman are getting a workout at first base for Brooklyn Dodgers.

Manager Leo Durocher, apparently experimenting in case he needs another first sacker instead of Jackie Robinson or Ray Sanders, said he wanted to discover the versatility of each Dodger. Some observers viewed this as another step toward moving Robinson to second base.

Washington Senators, who a few weeks ago would change the subject if anyone asked about the club's prospects, are looking happier these days because of three rookies. They are second baseman Al Kozar from New Orleans, and outfielders Dean Stafford from Greenville, Tex., and Larry Drake, from Sherman-Dennison of Texas' Big State League.

Joe Dimaggio will make his spring training debut for New New York Yankees Sunday when they meet the Boston Red Sox in an exhibition at St. Petersburg Fla.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may not be a good bridge player. But you look like one when you study the opening lead. Even if your study produces a blank, it surrounds you with an air of knowing something.

Of course, it is still better if you actually know what you are trying to figure out. Or what each lead means. Nor is this a difficult assignment in most cases.

Every lead is expected to mean something. When you lead a small card, partner assumes it is your fourth best in that suit. How does he know when it is? How does he know when it is not?

The answer is by applying the rule of 11. Subtract the led card from the number 11. The balance tells how many higher cards in that suit must be in the other three hands (outside of the leader.)

Suppose your partner leads the five of clubs and it is a fourth best. Five from 11 is six. There must be six clubs higher than the five in dummy and in your hand and in declarer.

Take a look at dummy clubs. Take a look at the clubs in your own hand. Do you see six higher than the five? If not, the balance must be in the declarer's hand.

This assumes that the led card is a fourth best. If it is not a fourth best, a small card lead is the highest of a short suit. How can you tell when it is highest of a short suit? See those diamonds:

NORTH
♦K 10 7 4

WEST

EAST
♦A J 9 6

SOUTH
♦Q 8 3 2

West leads the five. East takes five from 11. Answer is six. If it is a fourth best, north and east and south must have the six diamonds higher than the five.

But in dummy north and his own hand, east sees seven higher. So, the lead could not be a fourth best. It must be from a short suit.

Not always is this discovered in the first round. But know what to look for and you will not feel so dumb. Or look it.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood March 12 (AP)—International distances mean nothing to John Ford, Merian Cooper and their new argosy film company.

Having filmed "The Fugitive" in Mexico, the producers will return there for "Three Godfathers." They plan to make "Bora Bora" in Tahiti, the story of Bastille day celebrations at the Island. They had hoped to shoot "The Family" in Tsingtao, Manchuria, but it will probably be done in Mexico City.

Back ground shots for "Mr. Joseph Young of Africa" will be made in the dark continent by an expedition which is leaving soon. Ford and Cooper also plan "The Quiet Man" in Eire.

Long Era Ends

Wallace Beery is reported to be leaving MGM after one more picture. That would mark the end of a 20-year stay at Culver City lot heer where he made such memorable films as "Min and Bill" "Tugboat Annie" "The Champ" and "Viva Villa!" Wally has been unhappy with the kind of pictures he has been getting in recent years and it's said he'll return to his old stamping grounds Paramount...

Abbott and Costello will barnstorm the country in April for a dual purpose — to publicize their independent film, "The Noose Hangs High," and to raise money for their youth foundation in Eastside L.A. They'll start the tour after they finish "A and C Meet Frankenstein." ...

FAVORS 'CLEAN NECKING'

Springfield, Mass., March 12 — (AP)—There is nothing "as wholesome as good clean necking," in the opinion of a Springfield psychologist.

Dr. Dorothy T. Spoerl, a member of the Psychology Department of American International College, advised students, however, to "be relatively careful where and when you do it.

"You don't have to travel 100 miles into the woods where you'll be alone with temptation," she added.

Little Benny's Note Book

The house next store to us got robbed, and it was in the papers and everything, making the other fellows jelliss as anything on account of me living rite next store, and after school me and Puds Simkins and Glasses Magee were pretending to be detecktives looking for clews and footprints and things o nthe sidewalk, and Puds said, If —we were real deteck-tives we'd be asking the naybors if they heard any sispicious sounds or anything.

Sure, G, let's ask Benny's mother some 3rd degree questions, Glasses said.

Sounding like a swell idea, and Puds —and Glasses went and sat down in our living room, and I went up to tell ma, and she was fixing up her room in her dressing gown with the silver flowers on it, and I said, Hay ma, there's 2 guys downstairs from the police department to ask you about the robbery next store.

Oh dear, now what do I know about the robbery? ma said, and I said, That's just what they want to ask you.

I never heard of anything so provoking, now I'll have to get dressed just when I wanted to finish my room in comfort, ma said, and I thawt, Heck, if she goes to all the trubble to get dressed ferst, she mite not think it's so funny.

And I quick said, Aw G, ma, you dont have to change anything, those guys are used to seeing people every old way.

Well they're not going to add me to their collection, the idea, ma said.

And she started to take her dress out of her closit, and I said, But jimminy, ma, —htose guys are in a hurry, they've still got a lot of clews and things to find.

They're not going to find me in my dressing gown, for one clew, ma said.

And she started to take it off and I quick ran down stairs and yelled up, Never mind, ma, they cant wait, they're going ma, never mind.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Stephen's eyes narrowed. He thought, "What a girl! She's forgiving him for everything he's done and excusing him! She's telling Troy and every one that she believes in him and she'll stick by him. And Jeff isn't saying anything. But he looks ghastly. . . ."

Suzanne thought, "She'd go through anything for him. Anything. Such faith!"

Troy arose. "You'll spend the rest of the time forgiving him! Do you know where he was the day he didn't meet you? He was in his apartment giving me back my love letters. But I still have his!" She went to the door and opened it. She was crying when she looked back. "I'm sorry. I'm sorry, Stephen."

Lyle thought, "Jeff lied. But he couldn't tell me where he was that day. He didn't want to explain. I can understand that.

When the door closed after Troy, Jeff stiffened angrily. "Of all the cheap, scheming tricks."

Stephen lay his hand on his shoulder. "Forget it." He looked at Lyle, her face drained of color now, her eyes absorbed. He lay his hand on her shoulder. "You forget it, too," knowing that neither they nor his guests nor he would forget it and regretting that everything Troy had said was true.

It was not until they were driving back to New York that night that Jeff spoke alone to Lyle.

"That day I didn't meet you I. . . ."

"What happened between you and Troy was before us, Jeff."

That meant she forgave him. He said, "I didn't think she'd pull a trick like that in Steve's house."

She moved closer. "She was jealous and hurt. She's still in love with you."

"She couldn't be and. . . ."

"She is." And Troy had made her feel that she, Lyle, was taking what did not belong to her. How ugly and humiliating it had been with every one looking on, their sympathies divided! But to make Jeff feel better, she put her lips against his face. "Stephen said we were to forget it. Let's."

"I've played around plenty. I admit it. But this between you and me is—is serious, Lyle." It was! It was! "She spoiled our weekend."

"But not our lives, Jeff. Not our love."

Because Michael was at home in the morning and he and Bonnie and Lyle had breakfast together, and because he was at home in the evening when Lyle came in with Jeff, she did not have an opportunity to talk alone with Bonnie for several days. There was nothing on the surface to indicate that Bonnie and Michael were not happy but Lyle knew when Michael looked away and Bonnie looked at him, she was thinking." How can you sit opposite me and pretend that everything is the same between us? How much longer must I wait? How much longer must I stop my housework and look at the clock around noon and know you're with her? And die a little death every day at noon. . . ."

One morning Lyle rode downtown on the bus with Michael.

"I don't think Bonnie is looking very well," she said to him.

He looked ahead, ashamed to meet her eyes. "No, she doesn't. The baby is pretty heavy for her to carry around."

"She doesn't go out enough," Lyle said.

How guilty he looked!

"Up until now," Lyle went on, "she's felt that Mike needed her every minute. She needs to play. You'll think I'm interfering."

'No. You never interfere, Lyle. Maybe if she took a little trip to see her family. . . ."

Lyle thought, 'He wants to send Bonnie away!"

She said, "You talk to her about it, Michael. I just wanted you to know that I noticed she was looking thin and tired. She won't complain." And added, "She's always been one for keeping things to herself." And you are poisoning her and breaking her heart and killing her, she thought. . . .

That noon Lyle and Jeff opened their joint bank account and then lunched gaily together.

"I've something to tell you," he said. Ever since they had met today, his dark eyes had had a secret happiness in them. "I've been given some new and important work to handle. It's Steve's doings, I know that. Every break I've ever had I owe to him."

"Jef, that's wonderful!"

"But that's not all! There's a raise going through for me and—and I'm being sent to Chicago next week to a meeting! What do you think of that? Just watch that bank account grow!"

'How long will you be gone?"

She laughed. "But I shouldn't ask that or look sad, should I?"

"Just a few days. I want you to look sad. Then I'll know you're going to miss me. And leaving you will be like leaving my right arm. I thought I'd have a little party at my place the night I leave. Steve and Suzanne and a few others. Then you can come down and see me off."

She laughed again. "Don't let me cry, Jeff!"

That afternoon some on tapped her on the shoulder.

"There's somebody outside to see you, Lyle," Kay said.

In the corridor she found Bonnie, looking shabby and oh, so tired.

"Lyle, I knew I shouldn't come here but I had to! I had to talk to you!"

Lyle took her to the dressing-room and stood over her while Bonnie sat, white and still, and said, "I couldn't stand it any longer. I had to know! I had to make sure! So I left Mike with a neighbor and came downtown. And I saw them, Michael and Helene Kent. She was waiting and he came out and they walked down the street together. I didn't follow them. I—I didn't want to see any more! I turned the other way and walked and walked. . . ."

Lyle bit back her tears.

Bonnie looked up helplessly. "What am I going to do?"

"I don't know, Bonnie. But Michael is suffering, too. Oh, I'm not condoning what he's doing but he's in deep water and worried. He hates the game he's playing. Don't say anything to him now. I don't think it's the right time to speak out. Somehow I feel it isn't. Bonnie, if Michael were ill for a long time, you'd have to wait for him to get well. You'll have to wati for him to get over this illness."

Bonnie arose. "But you don't know what this is, Lyle. You've never been married. I—I can't wait much longer." She tried to smile. "You'd better get back to your work."

But Lyle's work progressed very slowly that afternoon.

On Sunday night Jeff had a party. Stephen stayed in town that weekend and brought Suzanne. Fourteen people filled every foot of space in the small living-room and some overflowed to the kitchen. Lyle, the hostess wearing the black velvet dinner dress again, moved from one little group to another and tried to remember all the names because they were Jeff's friends.

Suzanne said to her, "I've been to Jeff's parties before but the food was never as good as this."

Stephen smiled, "She's not only a good artist but a good cook."

Lyle smiled. "Thank you. Jeff and I had fun getting everything ready."

When she left, Suzanne said to Stephen, "And Jeff loves her more than he's ever loved any one in his life. She isn't a passing fancy, a new romance. He's dead in earnest about her."

Since Jeff was taking the sleeper to Chicago, the party broke up early. Stephen drove Jeff and Lyle to the station.

They had only a few minutes. Jeff put his arms around Lyle and kissed her. Stephen, standing a little apart, heard him say, "Good-bye, darling. Be good. You'd think this was a life-long separation, wouldn't you?"

Lyle's voice had a sob in it, "Good-bye, Jeff."

Jeff held out his hand to Stephen. "Thanks. But for you I wouldn't be going." And grinned. "Don't you think I know that? Take care of Lyle."

As the train moved slowly down the tracks, a curtain went up and Jeff was smiling at them and throwing a kiss to Lyle. . . .

Stephen said, "I'm hungry—again." But he wasn't. He didn't want her to be alone just now. "Shall we. . . ."

"I'm not hungry. But I'll go with you, Stephen."

In a small restaurant Lyle and Stephen sat in a corner booth. A waiter came and went away with orders for sandwiches and coffee.

Stephen opened his cigarette case. "This time I'll remember and not ask you to have one."

Lyle folded her hands and looked at him with that unwavering honest look of hers. From the first she had been conscious of his physical and mental strength. But because heretofore Jeff had always been present and her love for him had completely overshadowed all other personalities, she had never before noticed how handsome Stephen Tennant was with his straight, carved features, firm mouth, and intense blue eyes. And suddenly she knew that of all people she preferred being with Stephen on this night that Jeff had gone away. She thought, 'If I were with Bonnie or Suzanne, I'd probably cry because Jeff has gone. But Stephen makes me strong and steady and sensible."

"I think I should thank you, too, for what you are doing for Jeff, Stephen."

"Are you planning to be married soon?"

Then she told him why she and Jeff could not be married just yet.

He squinted at her through the smoke of his cigarette, obviously listening attentively but not listening part of the time for thinking of the softness and clearness of her voice and how white her skin was against the black velvet dress and of the rather unusual shade of her auburn hair. He thought "Jeff has always been lucky. All his lazy, irresponsible life he's always had somebody to come along and give him a helping hand when he needed it. And now this lovely, charming girl who adores him.

Stephen paid no attention to his cigarette burning low. "Would you like to make some extra money, Lyle? I was talking to a woman the other day who was looking for an artist to do some part-time work. She has a small, inexpensive dress shop and she wants some large, colorful fashion pictures to use as a background in the store window. I'll give you her name and address and you can stop in and talk with her."

Her eyes kindled. "I'll stop in tomorrow! Thank you again." That would mean unexcepted money in the new Jeff-Lyle joint bank account. Or, and perhaps better still, a large instalment to Uncle John! Would Jeff mind if she worked at night? But already her artist's mind was creating. . . .

"There's no reason why Suzanne should object," he said. "It shouldn't interfere with your other work. Which is splendid, by the way. And which is being noticed and commented upon most favorably."

"Thank you again. So much has happened to me in the last few weeks I wonder sometimes if it is I."

He smiled. "You mean Jeff mostly."

"Yes. Being in love with him and knowing he's in love with me. It's perfect, you see."

Just then the ashes on his cigarette, long accumulating unnoticed, dropped off and the cigarrette burned the two fingers that were holding it. It hurt, she knew.

Stephen said, frowning. "That's getting to be a habit."

"Let me see."

She took his hand. But she did not know that he was smiling at her concern and thinking, "She's a very gentle person, too. I wonder what Jeff would say if he could see Lyle holding my hand. He'd be jealous as the devil.

"Do you think I'll live, Lyle?"

She laughed at that. Her eyes were shining again. "You must. Jeff and I like you so much."

"And I like you. What do you and Jeff do at night? Where do you go?"

"Well, about this time of night we're riding into the country where the air is clean and cold."

"That's just what we're going to do as soon as you've finished that sandwich."

But out where the air was clean and cold and with the radio in Stephen's car playing soft music, Lyle went calmly to sleep. Seeing her head unsteady at first and then her eyes closed, he put his arm around her and drew her close. She was such a child, he thought, a child who had had a busy day, and he thought how excited and happy she had been as hostess at Jeff's party and remembered the little sob in her voice when she said good-bye to Jeff.

Heading the car toward the lights of the city again, he was thinking that no one had ever loved him, Stephen, like that. No one had ever looked at him with everything she felt shining in her eyes—her love, her faith, her happiness. The supposedly wise game of indifference which many girls played and which annoyed Stephen, Lyle Marsh was not playing with Jeff and had never played even in the very beginning. She had no doubts, no fears. Nor did she try to guard her love from the criticisms of bystanders. The day she had stood in the drawing-room in his Connecticut house and said to Troy, "I can understand their loving him. Because I love him," Stephen had felt a genuine thrill.

Before the apartment house he hesitated to awaken her. And he did not awaken her until he had looked at her face so long and so intently that he knew he would never forget it.

At last he lay his hand firmly on her shoulder. "Lyle. . . ."

Opening her eyes, her mind was clear instantly. "Oh, Stephen, I'm sorry!" Going to sleep while driving with the vice-president; .

He smiled and his eyes mocked her. "I've been accused of a great many things but no one has ever said I had the same effect as a sleeping potion. Young woman, you're going in."

Outside the door of the apartment, she spoke softly and slipped her hand in his.

"Good night. And thank you for—for everything."

"I'll call you up sometime this week while Jeff's away and let you catch up on your sleep. Then you'll be fresh and wide-awake when he gets back. Good night, Lyle."

At the click of the clock, he turned and walked to the elevator not valuing his freedom any more but envying Jeff and feeling utterly lonely.

The next day Lyle worked with a mind divided. Before noon there was a telegram from Jeff which she opened eagerly and read again and again. But often that morning her hand paused and her mind drifted to Stephen. Going to sleep while driving with the vice-president. Those were happy thoughts those of Jeff throwing her a kiss from the train window and sitting across a restaurant table from Stephen Tennant and saying, "You must. Jeff and I like you so much." But at the thought of Bonnie her eyes were perplexed and her mind in knots of pity and alarm. Michael couldn't. . . . That home, which had had so much love and laughter and a child in it, could not be destroyed. She thought, "When you marry, you think you have reached the final goal of love. But you haven't. It is always being challenged."

At noon she hurried to the address of the small dress shop Stephen had given her and asked for Mrs. Nash. A salesgirl led the way to a small office in the rear of the shop and Dorothy Nash, slim and gray-haired and dressed in black, arose and held out her hand. For an hour they talked, Mrs. Nash describing the work she wished done, Lyle contributing suggestions. Coming out, walking back to the store in a raw wind, she felt as if she were walking on air. "Tonight I'll turn my bedroom into a studio and when Jeff comes back and sees our bank account."

That afternoon before she went home, she stopped in to see Suzanne and told her about Mrs. Nash.

"It's a splendid experience," Suzanne said. "But it will take a good bit of your free time, you know."

"Time away from Jeff, you mean," Lyle said. "But we aren't working for ourselves alone. We're working for each other."

Coming out of the building, her high black heels paused abruptly. She could have wept because unconsciously she was headed for the parking lot where she had met Jeff almost every day since she had known him.

Usually the door of the apartment was open. That was Bonnie's small way of sparing her the delay and annoyance of searching through her bag for the key. Tonight the door was locked. Tonight she did not hear little Mike in high glee as he was usually after his nap and with his supper before him. Tonight there seemed to be no life behind that locked door.

Opening the door, Lyle saw Michael sitting on the green divan, smoking nervously. He looked wretched.

He looked at Lyle. And because he had suffered the first shock alone, he said lifelessly, "Bonnie's gone. She left a note for you. It's over there on the table. She—she left me one, too."

Lyle went to the table, picked up the white envelope, took out the note, and read in Bonnie's small and almost illegible handwriting:

"I couldn't wait. I couldn't go on pretending. And I couldn't face Michael. Am I a coward because I can't face him and hear the truth that our marriage has come to an end? But it would kill me for Michael to look at me, not loving me any more and—lost to me.

HEADS ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Montreal — (CP) — Paul A. Cooke of Montreal has been appointed associate general manager of the Quebec Association for the Prevention of Industrial Accidents, Col. Gaboury, general manager, said here.

Assault Might Have Been Work Of A Maniac

Brampton, Ont., March 12. — (CP)—Police last night combed the farmlands in an area eight miles east of this Peel County town for traces of a man said to have slugged a taxi driver Lloyd Prince of Oshawa over the head and left him lying beside his taxi at the brink of a lonely gravel pit.

Indication the assault might have been the work of a maniac was seen in the fact the man took banknotes from Prince's wallet, tore them to pieces and scattered the shreds over the snow. The wallet, still containing 30 cents in silver, was found later near the pit.

Dazed and bleeding, the 21-year-old driver stumbled and crawled a quarter of a mile to the shack of a night watchman at the Malton pumping station, who had him brought to Peel Memorial Hospital here.

Prince told police the six-foot man, about 40, wearing a brown leather windbreaker, breeches and rubber boots, hailed him on King Street in Oshawa and ordered him to drive to an Oshawa garage. On the way the passenger, in th erear seat of the taxi, pressed a hard object against Prince's back and told him to "keep on going".

In the Malton area, the man took over the wheel and drove to the gravel pit.

Washington Spotlight:

U.S. Political Campaign Comes at Critical Time

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, March 12 (CP)—This week saw the beginning in earnest of a political campaign which provides United States voters with most complex and difficult decisions in next November's balloting.

The campaign to pick the next President comes at about the most critical peace-time period in the history of this or any other country.

World events of staggering significance are crowding in on the thinking and planning of United States citizens. Talk of a new war peril is on every page of daily newspapers and constantly on the air.

The 1948 campaign for the presidency was informally launched this week.

President Truman announced his willingness to accept the nomination if the Democrats so decide at their national convention in Philadelphia next July. His announcement comes at a time when surface appearances would seem to offer him little hope of winning.

Second development was the announcement from Tokyo that Gen. Douglas MacArthur would accept the call to service if the Republican Party nominates him for president at its convention in June, also in Philadelphia.

Third development and really the opening gun in the campaign was the primary election in New Hampshire where Governor Thomas Dewey of New York and former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota fought it out for support of that State's eight delegates to the June convention.

Stassen, a navy veteran of the Second World War, elected two delegates, Dewey six, but it was looked upon as a significant showing for Stassen.

MacArthur's first test of popularity will come in the Wisconsin primaries scheduled for early April.

The Democrats have their candidate. In spite of the revolt of Southern Democrats against Truman, the party can hardly fail to nominate him.

The Republicans have, in addition to MacArthur, Dewey and Stassen, a number of other possible choices, including Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Governor Earl Warren of California and Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Three Men Held, Called 'Last Of Polka Dot Gang'

Toronto, March 12 (CP) — 3 men were arrested today on attempted shop-breaking and car theft charges after a chase in which police fired two shots. James Devlin, Bruce Rodden and Thomas Eldridge are accused of trying to break into a store and of stealing a car from a used car lot.

Police described the trio as "the last of the Polka Dot Gang." A group of criminals led by Kenneth Green, which got its name from the fact that, in a series of hold-ups, members masked their faces with polka dot handkerchiefs.

Another alleged member of the gang, Hubert Hiscox, believed by police to be one of the last members, was blasted to death in a nitroglycerin explosion Feb. 28 as he was allegedly attempting to blow up a wall safe in a north-end Toronto office. He was trapped by police and ignored repeated demands to surrender.

Other members of the gang, convicted of various hold-ups in the city, are serving long penitentiary terms.

Truman Asks 55 Million More For W. Europe

Washington, March 12 (AP)—President Truman Thursday asked Congress for an additional $55,000,000 to help tide western Europe over until the European Recovery program is enacted.

Congress voted $540,000,000 temporary aid last fall, including $18,000,000 for China.

It was expected that this money would last until the Marshall Plan was passed.

But in a letter to speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.), President Truman said:

"Events which have taken place in Europe during recent weeks do not permit us with safety or prudence to risk a break in the supply flow at this moment. I therefore hope that Congress will find it possible to make available the needed funds before April 1."

Without the additional $55,000,000 Truman said, "there now is grave danger that break in the supply pipeline will occur" between the end of interim aid and the start of the European Recovery Program.

U.S. Will Continue Using Azores As Military Air Base

Washington, D.C., March 12 — The Azores, where a United States military air base is to continue under a new agreement with Portugal, have served traffic between the New and Old World from sailing days to the air age.

Portugal's nine volcanic outposts, upthrust darkly from the vast expanse of the Atlantic, are known as the "Islands of the Hawks," from the Portuguese word, Acores.

Equally apt, the National Geographic Society says, are other titles: "Midway House of the Atlantic" and "Crossroads of Sea and Air."

During the Second Great War, United States and British stations established on Terceira and Santa Maria helped win the "Battle of the Atlantic."

The airfield where the United States military base rights will continue is at Lagens, Terceira. This island is in the heart of the scattered Azores group.

It is about 2,400 miles east and a little south of New York, with the entrance to the Mediterranean 1,200 miles beyond. The reopened United States base near Tripoli in North Africa is a little over 2,300 miles away.

"Singing Carts"

In the Azores, modern airplanes roar above dirt roads where slow-moving oxen still carry much of the traffic. A familiar sound is that of the "singing carts," so-called because of the solid wheels that cry for grease, and tell the driver, according to local jest, whether he is moving.

Everywhere the volcanic nature of the islands is apparent. In the cities, as well as in the villages, houses are built of whitewashed lava walls, topped by bright-colored tiled roofs and big lava-rock chimneys.

The islands, which now have a population of nearly 300,000, are ruled as an integral part of the motherland. They were acquired by Portugal in the 15th century.

Before the era of airplanes and big ocean liners, gold and silver galleons, windjammers, whalers, and the graceful clipper ships brought the islands trade and wealth.

Horta—which is the meeting point for transatlantic cables — has now become a regular stop for commercial air service between the United States and Europe.

Voters Endorse Sale of Liquor In Lounges

Windsor, March 12 — (CP)—Maldstone township voters heavily endorsed the sale of liquor in lounges yesterday and turned down the serving of beer and wine only under dining room licences.

Township Clerk Achille Mousseau said 475 out of 1,905 eligible voters cast ballots at Woodslee, Ontario, 20 miles east of here.

The ballot favoring the sale of beer and wine only for consumption with meals failed by six votes to gain the two-thirds majority to become law.

Beverage rooms in the township will not be affected by the results of the vote, which will allow the township's only two hotels to make application for lounge liquor licences.

Mr. Mousseau said the only effect of the defeat of the beer and wine only in dining rooms will be to stop sale of bottled beer in tourist camps and similar dining centres.

CUSTOMERS STEAL CHAIRS

Vancouver — (CP) — Some unidentified customers were "loaded" when they left a local beverage room here recently—and the manager is out of pocket. They carried a chromium, leatherette chair — valued at $15 — from the premises.

STATING EXPERIENCE

Bluefield, W. Va., March 12 — (AP)—A liberal-minded reader of the Bluefield Daily Telegraph noted a help-wanted ad which asked applicants to "write stating experience."

Yesterday the mailman brought an envelope bearing this address:

Plane Carrying 30 Overdue at Anchorage

Range Station Says Fire Sighted Near Mount Sanford

Craft on Charter Flight From China With Oil Men

Seattle, March 13 (AP)— The Seattle control tower, checking on a Northeast Airlines plane overdue at Edmonton, reported today it had been informed by the Gulkana range station a fire had been sighted on Mt. Sanford, 200 miles east of Anchorage, Alaska.

The Gulkana station, about 50 miles west of the mountain, said the plane had reported it was overhead at 11:36 p.m. PST. No further radio contact was made with the four-engined craft carrying 24 passengers and a crew of six on a charter flight from Shanghai.

The tower said the flight plan filed by the pilot called for checks at Gulkana and Northway, after leaving Anchorage. The plane was scheduled to arrive at Edmonton at 5:03 a.m. PST.

Mt. Sanford, on which the fire was sighted is to the right of the course the plane would have normally followed.

Northwest Airlines officials here said they had little information about the craft other than it had taken off from Anchorage on schedule and was more than 1½ hours overdue at the Edmonton field.

They had no crew or passenger list, but said the 24 passengers were oil company employees from Texas and California en route to New York.

An unofficial report that the big plane had landed at Fairbanks, Alaska, was discounted by the Airlines who said word would have been received here if it had "set down" in Alaska.

Northwest Airlines said the passengers were seamen who had taken an oil tanker from New York to Shanghai. They were being brought back home by air.

The passenger list was not available here.

Confirm Report

Edmonton, March 13 —(CP)— The office of Northwest Airlines here confirmed today that a flight from Shanghai, due at 7 a.m. CST., is overdue.

The aircraft left China at 10.10 p.m. Thursday CST. It carried 24 passengers, oil company employees from Texas and California, bound for New York.

No other information was obtainable.

NON-PARTISAN DEBATE SHAPING UP IN COMMONS

Members of Commons Becoming More Disturbed by International Situation

Ottawa, March 13 (CP)— A non-partisan debate on foreign affairs is steadily shaping up in the Commons as the session moves toward the Easter recess.

Statement by members of all parties stress that statesmen are becoming more and more disturbed about the international situation.

On the government side, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent told the Canadian Catholic Federation of Labor that the day will come when Russia will have to be told that she cannot go further.

On the opposition side, there are the statements of several Progressive Conservative members calling for a foreign affairs debate and a "frank and courageous" declaration of government policy in the light of developments in Europe.

Special Caucus Held

A special caucus was held yesterday at which Progressive Conservative members discussed Russia's recent actions.

While Mr. St. Laurent said Russia is not prepared to pay the price of war to reach her utmost goals, Progressive Conservative members expressed belief that a straight anti-Communistic declaration by the Canadian Parliament might serve notice that the Dominion is opposed to Soviet expansion.

The members believe that the smaller states are looking to Canada for leadership and might follow steps taken by the Dominion.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said recently that the external affairs department estimates would be called soon and this would open the way for a full-fledged debate on foreign policy.

While the C.C.F. and Social Credit party members have not been as insistent in urging a foreign affairs debate, M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, have made it clear they support the demands of the Progressive Conservatives.

TO BUILD HOSPITAL

Cochrane, March 13 (CP) — An Indian hospital to cost almost $2,000,000 will be built at Moose Factory on James Bay, it was announced last night by Magistrate E. R. Tucker.

The Magistrate criticized the proposed location of the hospital on an island five miles out in the bay. An executive member of the Canadian Red Cross Society, he said the hospital might better be built at Moosonee at the end of steel on the mainland.

The contract for the hospital has been awarded to Sterling Construction Company of Windsor.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto March 13 (CP)—Synopsis: From the Atlantic to the mid-west, the weather is generally clear this morning. Temperatures are moderating, and pleasant sunny weather is indicated for the weekend. A storm from the Pacific is giving rainy weather along the Pacific coast, yes, even in California.

PLAN TO PROTECT CHILDREN FROM RED INFLUENCE

English Conservative Teachers Take Steps

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 13 (CP)— Conservative school teachers, in stout tweeds with pipes and cigarets alight, today laid plans to save Britain's children from Comunism.

At the first annual meeting of the Conservative and Unionist Teachers' Association, bald, erect Maj. F. H. Robinson, chairman, set this keynote:

"All Socialists and Liberals are Englishmen first and Socialists and Liberals second, but the Communist is a Communist first—and I'm not sure whether he is an Englishman at all."

The association was established by Conservative and Unionist teachers to counter the strong Socialist and Communist element among the teaching profession and to advise the Conservative Party on policy matters relating to education."

English Way of Life

Robinson gave the delegates this warning:

"If Communism got into the saddle here, which God forbid, the English way of life will disappear. The villages of England, discussions in the local pub, the crowded football matches, the arguments in trains and buses, and the Englishmen's traditional right to grouse whatever the government, will disappear.

"That will be a bad day for Englishmen, because they like to let off steam."

R. A. Butler, former Conservative Minister of Education, said the association could form a vital breakwater in helping to stem the threatened tide of Communism and every effort should be made to counter Communist attempts to "capture" children in schools.

A resolution before the conference indicated concern with the "steady transference of parental responsibilities to school staffs" and asked "immediate steps to counteract this deplorable tendency which is undermining British home life."

Other speakers said there should be no political or party broadcasts in schools or school broadcasts.

"The Union Jack should take precedence over the Red flag," Robinson told the delegates.

Brussels Agreement Strikes Blow at Red Aggression

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain, France and the Benelux nations (Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg) in a remarkably short time have reached agreement at Brussels on a 50-year treaty for political, economic and military co-operation to counter Communist aggression.

Urgency had been thrust upon the conference by the Bolshevist rape of Czechoslovakia and the further threats to Finland and Italy.

It is a momentous and far-reaching development which, when formally ratified by the governments concerned, is likely to play a major role in the crisis that has grown out of the battle between Communism and democracy.

The other states registered in the Marshall plan are to be invited to join these five to form a union of western Europe. Several already have indicated a desire to participate and we may hear from the rest shortly, since the 16 Marshall plan countries are scheduled to meet in Paris Monday to discuss the program.

Back of the Brussels agreement has been the hope that the United States will promise military aid against aggression. Thus far there has been no announcement from Washington.

We do know, however, that a Western European union has the blessings of the United States, and that talk about military aid from the United States hasn't been discouraged.

Along with the Brussels agreement has come a striking announcement from Holland—perhaps coincidental or possibly impelled by the success of the conference. The Dutch government states that 23,000 men are to be added to the police forces to safeguard public security. The government is to combat extremist activities from any quarter. Minister of Justice Maarseveen says that the fate of Czechoslovakia speeded the Dutch government's decision.

So far as one can foresee, the next great emergency which the democracies will have to meet in Europe will come with the Italian election in April. The Reds have made it quite clear that they intend to gain caontrol of this strategic country.

Italy would provide the Communists with a powerful base for operations against the rest of Western Europe as well as against Greece and Turkey. By the same token it obviously is essential to the defence of Western Europe.

Police Holding Man as Material Witness in Death

Montreal, March 13 —(CP)— Provincial Police today were holding Armand Leroux, 39, as a material witness in the murder of his aunt, Miss Anna Boyer, 52, who was stabbed to death with an ice pick in her suburban Dorval home last night.

"I have just killed Aunt Anna!" Leroux was quoted as saying when he rushed, hatless and coatless, into the home of Police Chief Alderic Noel of Dorval.

Chief Noel took the man back to the Leroux home where he found the woman lying in a pool of blood in the centre of the kitchen. She had been stabbed six times in the abdomen with an ice pick.

The chief said that the pick had been put back in its usual place in a cupboard and that Leroux showed it to him. Provincial Police were called to take over the investigation.

Det.-Sgt. Ubald Legault of the Provincial Police homicide squad said that Leroux and his brother, Raoul had been living with Miss Boyer and her sister, Marie, their aunts, in the latter's home.

The motive of the murder was not known. Police said there were no witnesses to the tragedy.

Raoul left the house with his Aunt Marie at about eight last night, coming to Montreal. Both said everything seemed normal in the house and that Armand and the victim were talking quietly.

Lewis Threatens Possible Soft Coal Strike

Washington, March 13 (AP)— John L. Lewis has hurled an implied threat of a soft coal strike at the government and mine owners.

The United Mine Workers chief said yesterday in a letter to the union's 400,000 members that their employers in the last eight months "have dishonored the 1947 wage agreement and defaulted under its provisions affecting the welfare fund."

That contract, signed last July 8, pledged the miners to stay on the job as long as they are "able and willing." Lewis told a press conference that he did not know how much longer they'll be willing."

The agreement—which runs until June 30—can be ended by either miners or operators on 30 days notice. He said the quarrel would not involve Canadian members.

The fiery mine leader did not say flatly that his miners will stop work. Instead, he asked the public to persuade the "millionaire coal operators" to break a deadlock over how the $30,000,000 welfare fund is to be used.

Money for the fund is raised by a 10-cent royalty on each ton of coal produced.

Operators say Lewis wants a $100 monthly pension for every miner over 60 who has been in the pits at least 20 years. That, they argue, would raise coal prices 40 cents a ton.

"Fantastic," snapped Lewis. The fund alone is big enough to pay for it, he said.

The fund is administered by a three-man board. Lewis is the union member and Ezra Van Horn of Cleveland represents the operators. The third and neutral trustee, Thomas E. Murray, resigned in January with a blast at both sides.

Cornwall Man Burned to Death

Cornwall, March 13 (CP) — Daniel Patrick McCourt, 66-year-old widower, was burned to death only a foot or so from safety last night as helpless neighbors outside watched his frantic efforts to reach a door.

Mrs. Arthur Clement, a neighbor, saw the small frame home flaming and with her husband and Leo Harps, another neighbor, rushed to the scene. They saw the door was bolted on the inside. They broke a window but the flames drove them back.

Mrs. Clement said they saw McCourt near the middle of the room trying to stagger towards the door. Then he disappeared in the flames.

Firemen were called but by the time they arrived the house was destroyed. McCourt's body was recovered only a foot or two from the place where the door of the shack had been.

Commissar, 33-1 Outsider, Wins Lincolnshire

Lincoln, England, March 13—(Reuters) — Commissar, 33-to-1 outsider, today won the Lincolnshire Handicap, first major horse race of the flat-racing season. He won by two lengths from Clarion, public favorite at 100-to-9, with Flaxton, 100-to-7, the same distance back in third place. Fifty-eight ran.

Is Giant Panda Temperamental Or is She Dying of Broken Heart?

London, March 13 (CP) — The case of Lien Ho, the giant panda said by some to be temperamental and by others to be dying of a broken heart, has roused animal lovers to fierce criticism of the London zoo.

Angry letters to zoo authorities insist that Lien Ho is pining for her mountain home in western China. Zoo officials say no, that Lien Ho just dislikes crowds and "it's just a matter of temperament."

The zoo's first panda, Ming, loved crowds but Lien Ho cowers in the rafters of her cage, climbing down only for food. Her usual posture is crouching, with her furry paws covering her face in a protective attitude.

"How cruel!" said A. W. Moss, Chief Secretary of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "She hides her eyes because she suffers terribly from the light, being used to the darkness of thick bamboo forests."

Lien Ho is three years old. She replaced Ming at the zoo after the original panda died at the age of four from the ravages of an unknown germ.

Cousin of King, Princess Victoria, Dies in London

London, March 13, —(CP) — Princess Helena Victoria, a cousin of the King and a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, died in her London home today. She was 77.

Buckingham sources said she had been in poor health for some time.

For some years the Princess lived in a London west end apartment with her sister, Princess Marie Louise. She led an extremely quiet life in her later years and rarely was seen in public.

In the past she had devoted her energies to social welfare wrok and had been a leading figure in numerous charities.

She was a devotee of the theatre, opera and ballet. In recent years however, all these activities slackened and she withdrew into virtual retirement.

'Impertinent' Says Radio Prague Of Chile's Request

Prague, March 13. (AP) — Prague radio described today as an "impertinent provocation" the request by Chile for a United Nations Security Council Investigation of recent events in Czechoslovakia.

(Chile asked yesterday for a U.N. investigation of Russia's role in the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.)

The Broadcast said "Chilean Fascists" broke off diplomatic relations last year with Czechoslovakia without reason and added that "only the security of traitors has been threatened by the February events."

PRICES CONTROLS TO BE EXTENDED UNTIL MARCH '49

Domestic Rental Ceilings Included

Ottawa, March 13 (CP)—Legislation, extending some of the government's wartime controls, was advanced one stage in the Commons yesterday before members bogged down in renewed debate on a three-pronged measure affecting western farmers.

A resolution preliminary to a bill to continue Prices Board orders, including those covering price controls, domestic rental ceilings and evictions—operating until March 31, 1949—was adopted. The bill itself was given first reading after a minimum of debate.

Extended discussion erupted on second reading of a bill that would provide an increase in the initial price of wheat, establish a pension fund for employees of the Canadian Wheat Board and give the Board power to take over the marketing of oats and barley along with wheat.

Progressive Conservative members criticized the latter two features of the bill, but the C.C.F. and Social Credit members said they would support the measure although it was not entirely to their liking.

At the House opening Prime Minister Mackenzie King read into the records a cable from the British Government in which it said it could not agree to release five wartime dispatches on the international situation. These dispatches were missing from the Hong Kong evidence tabled in the Commons Wednesday.

External Affairs Minister St Laurent said there had been no further advances made by Canada to Czechoslovakia in the last three or four weeks on the $1,000,000 balance left of the $19,000,000 loan to that country.

Credits Fulfilled

Finance Minister Abbott said he expected the contracts under which Canada has extended credits to war-devastated European countries will be "fulfilled", although he agreed it would be "false optimism" to expect that there would be no losses.

Seeds of Cancer May be Planted In Very Young and Even Before Birth

Atlantic City, March 13 —(AP) —Evidence that seeds of cancer may be planted in the very young, and even before birth, was reported today to the American Association for Cancer Research.

These seeds are invisible. They appear to be only a tendency that somehow gets into living flesh. They were shown in mice, by Drs. W. E. Smith and Peyton Rous, of the Rockefeller Institute, New York City.

The seeds were sown by injecting mother mice, before the birth of their young, with urethane, a chemical compound known to be able to cause cancer in animals. Why this substance causes cancer is not known.

When the mothers had been injected, many of their young developed cancers much earlier than those whose mothers had not received the cancer-making injection.

There is much evidence that cancers, both in animals and humans, may not show up until years after the mysterious thing known as the cause of cancer has set the stage.

Dr. Valy Menkin, Temple University School of Medicine, Philadelphia, reported a new extract, which he calls necrosin, that destroys cancer in Swiss mice. The extract, obtained from dogs, attacks only one kind of cancer.

One of the risks in human cancer is the peculiar ability of these malignant growths to spread to distant parts of the body. The spread is made by jumps and not by growing like a vine.

A possible explanation was reported by Drs. Dale Rex Cowman and Morton McCutcheon, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. They showed that cancer tissue cells do not stick together as strongly as healthy tissues. The individual cancer cells break apart more easily, and once free, migrate elsewhere.

Pushes Soviet Into Defendant Role Before the World

Many See Possibility Of East-West Showdown

Lake Success, N.Y., March 13—(AP)—Chile's demand for United Nations investigation of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia pushed Russia today into the role of a defendant before the world.

It also opened the way for airing of conditions in at least one part of Russian-dominated eastern Europe. Many saw the possibility of an east-west showdown.

The Security Council put the case on its provisional calendar for next Wednesday. The Russians then must meet the Chilean allegations that the methods of Nazi Germany are being used by "a member state against another member state" and that "the extent and magnitude of the plans of the U.S.S.R." stand revealed.

This was the first time Russia has been called directly to account since the Iranian case in early 1946.

The United States delegation cautiously refrained from early comment. However, on the basis of recent statements by President Truman and State Secretary Marshall, strongest American support for the Chilean case can be expected.

In filing the case yesterday, Chilean delegate Herman Santa Cruz emphasized that he had not discussed the plan in advance with any other delegate.

Action by the government of Chile forced consideration of the once rejected case. Secretary-General Trygve Lie had ruled out the same charges presented by Dr. Jan Papanek, Czechoslovakia anti-Communist chief delegate.

Predictions Made

Informed sources predicted the case would run something like this:

1. Russia will wage a bitter fight, with certain support from the Soviet Ukraine, to kill the charges before the 11-country council can discuss them. However, moving the case from the provisional calendar to the official agenda is a matter of procedure and therefore outside the range of the big-power veto. Chile needs the support of seven delegates to get the case heard.

2. Failing to muster five opposition votes, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko may repeat his walkout of March, 1946, when he left the council chamber in a row over the Iranian case.

3. If Russia stays and fights, one of the bitterest propaganda battles in the U.N.'s two-year history is in prospect with perhaps the life of the organization at stake.

The Palestine problem remained unsolved. Another big-power session in New York yesterday produced no solution on how to divide the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab countries in the face of Arab opposition.

GOVT. FILES CLAIM

Hong Kong, March 13 —(AP) —The Hong Kong government filed a claim against China today for 2,500,000 Hong Kong dollars (about $650,000) for property damage blamed on Chinese troops awaiting transportation from Kowloon last year.

TRIBUTE PAID DR. JAN MASARYK AT LAST RITES

Premier Gottwald Blames Criticism From West for Death of Czech Statesman

Prague, March 13 — (AP) — Jan Masaryk received the last rites of state today as President Eduard Benes wept at his bier.

In the vaulted pantheon of the National Museum, draped in black, communist premier Klement Gottwald made the main funeral ovation, berating the critics of Masaryk in the west and indirectly accusing them of the foreing minister's death.

The frail, ailing president, who helped Masaryk's father mould this republic, dried his eyes as a eulogy by another government official recalled episodes of Jan Masaryk's life.

The president stood with head bowed. He seemed to be trying to maintain his composure.

Then a children's choir sang the favorite folk song of Czechoslovakia's first president, Thomas G. Masaryk. Benes broke into tears.

It was Benes' first public appearance since the government crisis began in Czechoslovakia Feb. 21.

Dr. Benes reached the pantheon of the National Museum at 2 p.m. and a few seconds later the funeral began. From early morning thousands of persons had gathered around the National Museum and parliament, and had crowded the side streets of Prague's Central Square. Yesterday more than 250,000 persons had filed past Masaryk's bier.

Blames Criticism

Gottwald blamed criticism from the west for the death of the Czech statesman, who died Wednesday after plunging from his office window and was officially recorded a suicide.

During the pre - Christmas contests, this youngster was a prizewinner for his renditioning of "White Christmas". Today, he was merely giving a repeat performance. Out of season but still good.

Veterans Plan To Hold More Social Evenings

A well attended meeting of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, was held in their Club Rooms on Thursday evening with President W. J. Ford presiding. Many members from the surrounding district and Trenton were in attendance. Ten new memberships were accepted and initiated. It was decided that a church parade would be held the Sunday preceding Vimy Day, April 9th, in memory of departed Comrades and it is hoped that the young and old Veterans will turn out in mass to commemorate the occasion when so many Canadian soldiers lost their lives.

A motion was passed concurring with the War Amputations Association appeal for increases of pensions to all veterans. A contribution of $25 was granted to the Canadian Appeal for Children.

A general feeling predominated that more club house activities should prevail and an effort will be made by the respective committee to foster entertainment. It is hoped all members will actively support all programs. Moving in this direction in respect to the veterans' wives and friends it was decided to hold a social night on the first Tuesday of each month when the members will be able to bring their friends and will have a chance to know each other.

A woman in the Bleecker Avenue district reported to police that for the past two or three nights prowlers had been seen around her home between three and four in the morning. Police constables were directed to check the district closely with the police cruiser.

A number of minor accidents were again reported on Friday, the majority of them occurring as result of slippery and rutted streets. Damage in no instance amounted to more than $100, it

"I can prove that Jan Masaryk clearly and without compromise agreed with the action program of the new government and already started to fulfill this program within his sphere of influence," Gottwald said.

Hundreds of thousands of people were gathered under leaden skies for the state and military rites arranged by the Communist government. They bought out the flowershops for blossoms to throw at the caisson bearing Masaryk's body from the foreign office. They piled wreaths at the bier.

"Look at them," said one woman, pointing to the Communists. "They do not even have enough decency to stay at home, those hyprocrites. They have to come to sneer at their victims."

Gottwald told the mourners the crisis in Czechoslovakia was engineered by the west.

"I can prove it myself that from the first days of the government crisis, Jan Masaryk distinctly kept away from those who plotted this crisis," he declared.

Then he indirectly blamed Masaryk's friends in the west for the foreign minister's death saying:

"To this comes his illness, and taking together these facts, we get the circumstances that drove him to his tragic end."

The Communist leader referred to Masaryk by an affectionate nickname, "Honza."

"We who are staying have taken a lesson from your bequest that one should always go with the people," Gottwald said. "And we, dear Honza, shall always be with the people and go forward with the people. This is our promise to you."

Fresh Grave Dug

Thirty miles away at Lany, a fresh grave was dug beside the resting place of Masaryk's father, Thomas G. Masaryk, and first President of the Republic.

Members of the family and government officials gathered at Czernin Palace to see the body transferred from the gun caisson to a hearse for th 30-mile trip to Lany and the family burial plot. Crowds lined the route.

A train carrying mourners into the city struck a switch in a yard, and 50 persons were slightly injured.

The government's broadcasting network interrupted its continuous program of hymns during the day only once, for a brief news broadcast. The radio said more flowers had been received at Masaryk's funeral than were received even for his father's rites.

Mrs. Emily Neate Dies After Long Illness

Mrs. Emily J. Neate, widow of John Neate, died at her home, 30 Catharine Street, on Friday afternoon, after an illness of several months' duration.

In the death of Mrs. Neate this city has lost a noble woman; one who was untiring in rendering service to aid others and to advance the furtherance of worthy undertakings. During the First Great War and the Last Great War she gave freely of her time and of her exceptional ability as an organizer in assisting in the work of the Canadian Red Cross.

She was an inspiring worker in the St. Julien Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, of which she was made a Primary Life Member by the members of the Chapter as a token of their affectionate regard for her. The St. Julien Chapter was organized at the time of the First Great War in 1914, but it was not until shortly before the Second Great War that she would consent to assume office, preferring to serve without the responsibility of an executive. However, for the past ten years she filled with outstanding success the office of President of the Chapter.

Mrs. Neate did not confine herself to the work of the Chapter, but gave active support in organizing and carrying through successfully the welfare undertakings of other organizations, such as the work of the Navy League of Canada, the sale of seals for the support of tuberculosis sanitaria, and the outfitting of the Corvette Belleville in the last war. In times of peace Mrs. Neate continued to carry on with the other efficient members of the St. Julien Chapter, in caring for those in need or sickness.

Mrs. Neate was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of Christ Church for many years. In her earlier years she took an active part in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the parish. Fraternally she was a Charter Member of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 and was a Past District Deputy.

Mrs. Neate was born 76 years ago in Adderbury, England, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Austin. Prior to coming to Belleville fifty years ago she resided in Toronto for a time. For a number of years she conducted successfully a fancy goods and children's wear shop here.

Mrs. Emily Neate was in every way a good citizen, a friend to many and for a long time to come she will be much missed and remembered with affectionate regard by many close friends.

Surviving her are one brother, Mr. E. T. Austin, Belleville, and one nephew, Mr. George Watkin, also of this city.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

RCAF Band and Local Artists At New Annual Variety Show Of Y's Men Please Large Crowd

The Y's Men's Club of Belleville presented their third annual variety show "Talent on Parade" last night in the Collegiate Auditorium. Among the guest artists were the members of the Central Air Command Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, under the direction of WO 2 C. O. Hunt, Bandmaster. The band appeared by kind permission of Air Vice Marshal E. E. Middleton, C.B.E., Air Officer Commanding. Local and district talent composed the balance of the entertainment.

Jack Wilson, master of ceremonies, extended thanks to the artists who were participating and expressed a welcome to the capacity audience which filled the auditorium.

The band struck up a rousing air, centred on the theme "Captain of the Clouds" specially arranged by one of their number, Musician Eric Ford. This was followed by the march from Tschaikowsky's 6th Symphony. A trombone trio, "The Three Trombonists" followed, with the band forming a musical background for this entertaining trio. An arrangement of Stephen Foster's "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" concluded the band's first appearance of the evening.

Splendid Variety Acts

A line of little lasses, in beribboned party dresses came next. They sang and danced "Mickey Mouse's Birthday Party." Following this charming group, The Modernettes, three young ladies in chorus outfits, did a tap routine to the accompaniment of "Girl in Calico." Next was "The Wedding of Jack and Jill" with the diminutive groom by Gary Tremaine, and the bride by Gail Tremaine. They sang the song and followed with a pretty little tap dance, receiving a hearty round of applause.

The dance acts were all performed by pupils of Miss Barbara Diment.

Dr. A. C. Locke gave an excellent violin solo entitled "Memories". Two tenor solos, "Life, the Organist" and "I Had a Little Talk with the Lord", were sung by Mr. J. D. Bankier, with Mr. Alec Gordon accompanying on the organ. Miss Leona Riggs and Mr. Alec Gordon, well - known local artists, gave an excellent performance in a two-piano number. In the selections, "Arrival of the Queen of Sheba", "Doll Dance", and "Jamaican Rhumba", they made the two instruments harmonize as one.

Band Applauded

The R. C. A. F. Band took up the rousing fantastic, "Casey Jones", embodying the sounds of the train gathering speed, the crash and the funeral lay of Casey and finally the 'ghost train' starting up. Musician Kenneth Pells gave a rendition of the classic, "Pride of the Waves", with the band supplying an appropriate musical setting. The first part of the show was concluded with the band playing a fast-moving Spanish selection, "La Serella".

Following the intermission, the band continued with the stately "Andante", from Tschaikowsky's 6th Symphony. In a more modern mood, they played "Annie Get Your Gun", a composition containing many of the favorite hits of Irving Berlin. The staccato "Napoli", expertly rendered by Musician Eric Ford as a cornet solo, met with hearty applause. The band concluded its selections with "Festival Overture", a fast-moving selection in the gay holiday spirit of an American carnival.

Recent Contest Winner Heard

Reg Bishop, recent Kiwanis honor-winner, sang two very good bass solos, "Kashmir Song", and "River Stay Away From My Door". In a piano-organ duo, Mr. Alec Gordon and Mr. Clifford Templer were very well received for their expert precision. Mrs. Ethel Smith Laurenson, well-known for her charm and golden soprano voice, gave two excellent vocals, "The Song is You" and "Hills of Home".

For a little ribald comedy, "That Character McGuire" with Frank Hockaday was highly amusing. "Willie" gave out with a few caustic comments and then warmed up with a few bars of "Four Leaf Clover".

The band concluded the evening's entertainment with a lively selection, "Red Rhythm Valley", with a jazz arrangement. The band played the immortal "Oklahoma". In a martial mood, the band was then heard in the "March Past of the Royal Canadian Air Force".

For Service Work

Proceeds of the show are to go toward service work in Belleville and the Bay of Quinte District. The twenty-five per cent originally to be contributed to the Collegiate Organ Fund, is to be donated to the Canadian Children's Aid to Europe Fund. The Organ Fund has already gone well over the top.

IN MEMORIAM

COLDEN—In loving memory of my husband John Colden, who passed away March 13th., 1944.

I love to think of that beautiful home
Where Jack has gone to stay,
Where all his sorrow pain and tears
Are forever washed away.
So we leave him in God's keeping,
His rough road safely o'er,
And the one we love so dearly,
Has only gone before.

Ever remembered by his wife Daisy. M13

They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps one to forget,
But time so far has only proved,

God gave me strength to fight it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose him,
No one will ever know.

Lovingly remembered by his wife Sally. M13

SMITH—In fond and loving memory of my father George Henry Smith who passed away two years ago March 14th., 1946.

Father on the Farm

He Nearly Didn't Become a Farmer

Father could never pass a pig pen, after he retired, without getting homesick for the farm.

His nose would twitch and his face light up and depending on the season he would wonder how the seed was going in or how the hay was making, or if the mangles were thickening out.

Pigs turned father's attention back to the farm simply because it was not easy to ignore pigs. Besides he always felt pig manure had some special virtue, reasoning, like Walter, the off-an-on hired man, who was convinced of the affectiveness of onion poultices for a chest cold, mainly because they smelled strong.

The smell of pigs hasn't hurt any one yet, father had been known to say, but all the same he wasn't permitted to bring his boots into dinner the day he cleaned out the pens.

Farm Smells Pleased Him

Father wasn't insensitive to the noiser smell of a farm, so much as used to them. He could enjoy a field of red clover in blossom just the same as any one else, but he was equally at home with the odor of his own stable when it was shut tight in winter. He liked the smell of his horses and the throat-cutting smell of ammonia in the stable itself.

He didn't like the smell of a henpen or of hens, and he liked even less the strange sweet, unforgettable odor of the remains of a silly hen that had nested in a mow and got buried in hay or grain during the hauling in.

But, by and large, savoring and enjoying farm smells was one of father's little pleasures, even if he did let the other world of town and city in a little when he took lozenges to church. Theoretically these were for the throat, to allow louder and better singing. Actually, these powerful medicated drops, with a bite to the tongue like a weasel and a range of several pews, were to help keep him awake.

Father was not alone in this little subterfuge and on any Sunday morning with the warm sun melting down and the breath of lilacs slipping in at intervals through the open windows, there were a good half-dozen farmers, all, like father putting up a desperate fight against sweet sleep with the help of peppermints, horehound, patent preparations and their wives' elbows.

Father nearly didn't become a farmer at all and as nearly slipped into harness-making for a career. He liked leather, its smell and its feeling. He was far from being a carnal man and took most of his pleasures sadly, but there is no doubt the feel of a fine piece of leather gave delight to his senses. While there was still a harness shop he always made some excuse to go into it every time he went to town, even if only to say good day, and the harness maker respected father for it and would invite him to look over some of his finer pieces.

He Liked Good Harness

"Lookit that one," he would say, and point to harness on its rack, sometimes fancy with brass and sometimes plain as a shoe button, but as good and sound as leather could be made.

Father never felt the same to the factory harness in the general store after the harness maker died and no one came to take his place. It was good harness, correct harness, but it didn't have the finish. But in his mind it still added character to the store.

The general store was wide and divided roughly into departments. The groceries ran down the right with smells of coffee and vinegar and mollasses and spice, and in the centre, broadening out to the back, was the hardware section, harness, stock feeds and coal oil, and on the far side was general dry gods with their low and flat smells of glaze and fabric.

The greatest struggle for domination was between the harness and coal oil and the groceries and soap, and the result was a blend that had no description other than general store.

Mother, who always made father clean up to go into town ("the least you can do is look respectable"), used to say it smelled of more than general store after a half-dozen men sat too close and too long by the pot-bellied stove in the winter. But the men never permantely affected the basic general store smell.

The smell of spring itself and the even more demanding odor of steam rising from the sap kettle really started things off for father. It was a fine thing to watch him standing on the back stoop sniffing into the soft wind and getting the first sour smell of the wet land. After that new smells tumbled one after the other, the sweat of horses on the cultivator and apple blossoms and skunks, passing in the distance.

The "big skunk" came late one hot evening early in May and was first discovered at the back side of the house by our beautiful collie who was so addled that he always ran in circles. It didn't take much effort on his part to discover the skunk because even father, who had an uneasy spring head cold, knew a skunk was around by the time the collie gave tongue.

But Skunks Were Different

The dog got circling round his prey and closed in. He was so surprised by its first contract that for the first time in at least four years he ran in a straight line. Walter, the hired man, came up behind with a hoe in his hand and started to thrash about. When father got there with the lantern, the skunk was backed up to the open cellar window, groggy but gamely pouring his defense, not at his enemies, but into the cellar and directly onto father's certified seed potatoes.

Father was able, finally, to persuade Walter to back off and, in time the skunk was moved out of the window. No one could sleep that night and next day the cellar had to be cleared out and got its first coat of whitewash. None of the potatoes could be sold and even the pigs gagged when some were put down before them. Some were cut and planted and they grew well but neither father or mother felt the same about potatoes for a long time.

In early summer there was the pasture-field after a shower, suddenly speckled white with small, firm mushrooms, and the mustiness of the barn before the first hay went in; and freshly cut alsike and the too sweet smell of sweet clover and of hay mows cooling in the breezes pouring through the big open barn doors.

On a sultry night the smell of hay mows with the doors shut against the threat of storm and the hay warm yet from sun heat or moistly hot with heating from under cure was something to remember—or wild strawberries on a sun baked pasture late in June.

Father liked them all, but let him get a lot of machine oil or grease on his hands and face and he was just as happy. He always slathered oil on the binder so in harvest he got at least one part oil blended with three parts stubble.

Fall Days Brought Contentment

In the fall there were smells of ripened apples and the earth took on a pleasant taint of decay and mould. On perfect days with a haze over the dying reds of sumac and maple, father followed his plow and was filled with contentment.

He was not always alone in his pleasure. One fall day, the wind being right the cattle in the bush on the other place sniffled the air and went travelling. And of course, Rosie, the three-teated brindle cow was in the lead.

Rosie was like some women. She was always bustling and being important. She wasn't liked by the other cows but she thrust herself forward, viewing fences, knocking down rails, getting into the orchard, or being the first to discover that father had left the barn doors open. In that way she kept a lead over the bigger, better and dumber cows. Besides she was fast and evaded too much punishment.

This day she led them over the line fence, through a copse and onto the road, then into the yard behind the apple butter and cider mill, simply by following her nose.

The pile of apple pulp was warm and yeasty and Rosie and the other cattle were greedy Inside of half an hour every cattle beast belonging to father, older than the calves penned in the home orchard, were as intoxicatd as little red wagons, staggering and falling and some were even lying full length and sleeping it off

Father was scandalized and, with the help of mother and the addled collie, he drove them back. The collie didn't help much, because every time he cut a circle it added to the confusion against a backdrop of weaving cattle.

Baked Bread Smelled Good

Father was never tempted by liquor, but the crisping fall days fortified his appetite, and he was a weak man—weak as the cattle in a way—before the fragrance of fresh-baked bread with the crust glazed with butter, oven-baked beans or a sugar-glazed ham. About the time the snow was due to fly the pig was killed, and on cold, dark nights for supper there were fried pieces of tenderlion or spareribs or a piece of fresh roast with the crackles crisp and spitting from the heat.

On an unusually warm fall day father got his comeuppance from mother. Mother had her turn for the Ladies' Aid, and the food, the cakes and tarts and the desserts were stacked high, and as Walter, who didn't believe in the Ladies' Aid—or in women, for that matter—described it, the house sounded like a tree full of birds.

Mother hadn't paid much attention to what was going on outside that morning. She was too busy. But just around 4.30 the wind took a vere around from the west to the east. About the same moment the minister's wife, lately come from town, was moved to speak of the lovely clear country air.

Several women reared back and sampled the air—and there was no doubt about it—freshly spread pig manure.

Father pleaded after how was he to know the blamed wind was going to change. It made little difference. Again mother was never so mortified in her life.

Prevent Drownings

The great bulk of drowning casualties in Canada occur in the age-group between 10 and 30 years and in areas isolated from crowded bathing beaches, Dr. Harvey Doney, national director of Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety, said in a statement pointing out the need for the continuation and expansion of the Red Cross program.

"More than 1,000 people are drowned in Canada each year and the vast majority of these deaths occur because people ignore the common basic rules of safety when in, on or around water," said Dr. Doney.

"The Red Cross is prepared to teach Water Safety anywhere in Canada through its widespread organization and distribution of branches. Its system is particularly adapted to teaching the small centres and outlying areas that are not being touched by any other organization."

Nearly 24,000 people have passed Red Cross swimming examinations and another 10,000 have received instruction since the inauguration of the program two years ago. A total of 2,100 instructors have been qualified.

The Swimming and Water Safety program is supported through contributions to the national Canadian Red Cross Campaign, being held this month with an objective of $3,000,000.

West European Nations

The five Western European nations, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg have agreed upon a fifty-fifty treaty for political, economic and military union, the documents for which will be signed in a few days. The whole trend of events has shown the urgent need of such a Western European Union. This was proposed some time ago during the discussions on the Marshall plan for European recovery. Late events, such as the seizure of power in Czechoslovakia by the Communist minority in the Czechoslovakia Parliament and the Russian approach to Finland to sign a treaty of defence with Russia have helped to make the present conference at Brussels of Britain, France and the Benelux nations swiftly take form of military, political and economic alliance or union. It was stated a few days ago that there was the possibility of other nations, who will be receiving the benefits of European Recovery Program being asked to join in the union which was then being proposed.

The avowed claim of Communism to overthrow authority constitutes a threat to organized states. Then the seizure of power against the laws of the state in Czechoslovakia by the Reds served to strengthen the hands of the Western nations discussing this union.

Severe Weather

March came in mildly and soon after its arrival put on a storm, somewhat emblematic of storms of the March in other years when there was a great deal of blustery weather. While there have been some days fairly mild, there has been many a night of cold and Thursday night and Friday morning with the zero weather of three and a half degrees below zero impressed people with the fact of the kick that can lie in the dying of winter. For instance, some other winters have brought early freshet. Now the river which looked several weeks ago as if it might break up soon remains fairly solid as far as casual observation shows.

Twelve years ago Friday, March 12, the last great flood swept down under the urge of continued rainfall for more than a day, the swollen waters in the Moira lifting the ice and precipitating one of the worst floods in recent history. In that twelve-year period the crack-up of the ice has been marked by moderate freshets, which caused little or no interference with the routine of the citizens, but the 1936 flood caused damage and caused enough upset in the routine of the lives of a good many people in the business and residential sections, bordering on the lower sections of the stream.

This year the spacing of milder and severely cold weather has prevented an early break up, and at the same time has permitted quite steady but undamaging melting of the snow in the area traversed by the river in its lower reaches.

Now March is quite far advanced, St. Patrick's Day is only a few days off and next Saturday brings the long-looked-for first day of spring. Still the weather as it has ever done keeps its secret locked despite the thoroughness of modern data-collection of weather conditions and air currents and other factors which make the weather. Perhaps that is one of its attractions for it can still surprise even a weather prophet.

Keepers of the Flame

The list of exiles grows daily. Recently it has been swelled by the Czech embassy staffs in Washington and Ottawa.

As described in cold print, it seems so easy for a diplomat to say "I quit" and then walk out of the comfortable embassy quarters. But for ministers of countries which have become victims of the new aggression, it's not so easy as just walking off a job. What they are doing, actually, is sacrificing themselves on the altar of freedom, giving up office, income, family security and personal safety. In their native lands, their reputations, too, will be torn to shreds, because the aggressors will use every means in their power to slander, vilify and destroy the good names of the patriots.

The exiles are being called "men without a country." In the narrow sense, that is a true description. But they are citizens of the realm of free men. In the fine phrase of the New York Times, "they are caretakers of a fire that does not die." — Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Playing for Keeps

Human nature is odd. Some people who would never dream of cheating at cards or in business think nothing of cheating traffic laws. They will, when they think they can "get away with it," drive past stop signs without stopping, step on the accelerator because they see others doing it, ignore railway warning signals, infringe local traffic regulations and indulge in various other foolhardy actions, just because they do not see a police officer in the vicinity.

This condition is not peculiar to Brantford by any means. The Ontario Department of Highways says it is generally observable — and altogether too prevalent. Such carelessness, or "cheating" as the department more bluntly calls it, accounts for a considerable part of the deplorably high toll of traffic injuries and fatalities week after week.

The way to win in the game against maiming or death, the department emphasizes, is to respect all traffic laws and safety rules.

"Don't get caught dealing from the bottom of the deck!" the department advises. "Accidents play for keeps!" — Brantford Expositor.

Blindness From Worms

Among the hazards of developing Africa, there is the danger of blindness from the bite of a worm. These worms are transmitted to the human being by the bite of a fly. Scientists are hoping to eradicate the fly by chemicals and so wipe out the menace of loss of sight.

There are so many obstacles in the path of the pioneers, who would open up any country. Canada was not opened without men dying from various epidemics and plagues. Typhoid was a bad curse in the early days in Western Canada, where men died like flies. The summers are so hot and there was not sufficient good water to drink. Men drank from wells that carried typhoid germs.

That is all part of the making of a country. The pioneers endure hardships that the others may enjoy life in a new land. — W. L. Clark in Windsor Star.

If your food is becoming tasteless, and always seems to consist of the same old thing, nutritionists suggest you try something new—fish, for instance. They suggest that Canadians often overlook the fact that the protein in fish is as good as it is in a filet mignon or a hamburger.

WORTH THE PRICE

To know spring and summer well,
And the glories of the fall,
Makes it worth man's while to dwell
On this old earth, after all.

And to know and brave them through—
All the stings of winter drear—
Is the payment that is due
For the purchase of a year.

Looking back through good and ill,
Storms and days of sunny skies,
Life appears a bargain still,
Worth its price in sacrifice.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Four counties encircling London — Kent, Surrey, Essex and Middlesex — are known in England as the "home counties."

"Old Glory" was the nickname of Sir Francis Burdette (1770-1884), member of Parliament, reformer and stormy petrel of British politics.

"He that passeth by, and meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."—Proverbs 26:17.

Twice the United States has had three different Presidents within the same year — 1841 and 1881. William Henry Harrison succeeded Martin Van Buren March 4, 1841, and was succeeded by John Tyler, April 30 of the same year. James A. Garfield succeeded Rutherford A. Hayes March 4, 1881, and was succeeded by Chester A. Arthur, September 19 of the same year.

General William T. Sherman is supposed to have said in 1884: "If nominated I will not accept; if elected I will not serve." Sixty years later Franklin D. Roosevelt used Sherman's language in reverse. On July 11, 1944 the President, making known his availability for a fourth term, said: "If the convention should nominate me for the Presidency, I shall accept. If the people elect, I will serve."

William T. Sherman was superintendent of a military college in Louisiana when the State seceded and he was offered a high commission in the Confederate Army.

While commanding in Kentucky in 1861, General Sherman incurred the enmity of the newspapers by keeping reporters out of his lines. Rumors were spread that his mind was giving way. These rumors were readily believed because at the time the General was nervous and frail in health. So seriously were these rumors taken in official circles that when General Sherman reported for duty under General Halleck at St. Louis the latter received him coldly and suspiciously. Sherman was so depressed that he contemplated suicide.

The next year rumors were circulated that General Grant was frequently incapacitated by strong drink. It is said that many years later, when General Sherman was pressed to reverse one of President Grant's policies, he refused, saying: "Grant stood by me when I was crazy, and I stood by him when he was drunk, and now we stand by each other."

Cheese Producers Want Information From Government

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — The Ontario Cheese Producers Association here yesterday asked the federal government when requisitioning will begin for some 50,000,000 pounds of cheese to be shipped to the United Kingdom. Such information is necessary, directors said, because of its bearing on domestic markets. If early notice of requisitioning is received, the association will have opportunity to prepare the domestic market before cheese is diverted for export sale.

In another resolution, the association asked that all cheese made in Ontario be sold to consumers on grade. It hopes that provincial legislation to this effect would assure consumers the grade they desire.

President John L. Ballantyne earlier said Canadian cheese producers may soon "sit up and take note" of rising production costs.

"Cheese is being sold at less than cost," he said, and if continued, government subsidies will not be enough.

"Prices must be raised. Compared with last year, production has gone down 40 per cent."

PRICES CONTROLS

In introducing the control resolution, Justice Minister Ilsley said 23 of the 50 wartime orders-in-council contained in the transitional Measures Act passed at the last session have since been partially revoked.

In the brief debate that ensued, John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said his party would debate controls on second reading of the bill. His party favored orderly decontrol and did not think that some orders, such as those on rents, should be "abandoned precipitately".

C.C.F. members asked nothing more than assurances that they would be given opportunity to move amendments to the legislation once it was brought to a more advanced stage.

Generally Opposed

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said his party was generally opposed to controls, but it was ready, in times such as these, to grant extensions to such controls as the government could justify.

J. F. Pouliot (Ind-L-Temiscouata) said he was opposed to controls because they were an infringement on the liberties of the people.

In the wheat debate, John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) charged the government had no intention of bringing the marketing of oats and barley under the wheat board. A year ago, the government had opposed opposition efforts to have the coarse grains brought under the jurisdiction of the wheat board.

When the efforts were made, Justice Minister Ilsley had stated such a move was unconstitutional and dangerous.

Answers Own Question

Mr. Diefenbaker asked what change had occurred since then, and answering his own question said:

"The only change is that there was no provincial election coming up in Saskatchewan in 1947 but there is one in 1948."

In a cross-floor exchange which followed, Trade Minister Howe accused Mr. Diefenbaker of being a "cheap lawyer speaking to the gods". Mr. Diefenbaker said he was not going to ask for a withdrawal of the charge because "it indicated the measure of the man who made it."

Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern) accused the opposition of trying to delay the legislation so that western farmers would not receive their cheques on time. This was denied by Percy Wright (CCF1 Melfort). Mr. Wright said he did not think the legislation went far enough but his party would support it.

SAME OLD WORDS AND SAME OLD MUSIC

Were it not for lawn bowling I just couldn't stand it any longer—this yahbut-yakety-yak song molly coddle, chimney corner authorities without variation, every time I reassure the young ones that they may wear what they please or find comfortable or else go without in any circumstance of climate, season or weather so far as health or hygiene is concerned.

"Years ago he" (Brady) "recited that Viljhalmur (sic) Stefansson never caught colds in the North Polar regions." So writes one of the Yahbut boys to a metropolitan paper that commented editorially upon my teachings about everyday "exposure" here in the temperate zone. Yes, it took me many years to learn how to spell that name, so I don't blame anyone for muffing it now. For that matter I'm not sure how to pronounce it, and my Scandinavian friend on the bowling green actually ducked it when I painstakingly spelled it as Stefansson spells it. Stefansson is a Canadian, born in Manitoba. Of his many books, The Friendly Arctic, a most absorbing story of his party's five years sojourn there, where other polar explorers thought white men could not live the year around, would, I think, enlighten readers who can still learn anything as much as it would irk old fogies who are past receiving new impressions.

"It is easy for Doc Brady to tell us in the depth of winter how to keep warm without bundling up and how to avoid the 'C R I' by keeping beyond range of conversational spray, etc., etc., but..."

Then the yahbut-yak-yak singer goes into his dance—you know, polar explorers have "resistance" and are "acclimated" or accustomed to exposure where as we nice refined people here at home have none and as for becoming accustomed or acclimated, no sir-ee, we know better—we duck for cover at the very suggestion of a draft, change of weather, dampness or whatever it may be that frightens us.

What better authority could I cite or recite than Stefansson? What fireside philosopher has had as much experience with cold, wet, exposure? It is absurd to oppose the actual experience of polar explorers, sailors, soldiers, fishermen, hunters, woodsmen, surveyors and the like with childish fancies.

And I served time in country and city practice in New York State for eighteen years. Indeed I could tell you mollycoddles some experiences I had with exposure, as a one-horse-and-doctor, that would curl your hair if you had any left.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Growing Pains

Our little boy, three and a half, suffers from a leg ache at night and often cries with it. It seems to me you offered some advice about growing pains. (Mrs. B. E.)

Answer—That most children and adults too get insufficient calcium (and phosphorus probably) from the refined modern diet which is standard American fare, to maintain good nutrition, is not my assumption but the view of recognized nutrition authorities. But I admit I have no satisfactory explanation for the nocturnal character of so-called growing pains in children and the cramps of tetany in mature adults — in most instances these pains occur at night. No matter. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for the pamphlet Adult Tteany and Growing Pains.

Fool Proof

Accept my hearty thanks for your "Foolproof Cough Medicine." Inasmuch as I am diabetic, this is the only cough medicine I can safely take. It has been most effective. (B. H.)

Answer—Detailed directions for preparing and using Old Doctor (if you don't mind, in this instance) Brady's Home Made Fool Proof Cough Medicine—and please don't change the name to mixture, syrup, remedy or cure unless you leave my name out of it too—are given in the booklet Call it Cri. Ask for the booklet in writing, not with a clipping, and inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Incidentally at least one other cough medicine suggested in the booklet may be safely taken by persons with diabetes.

DARE SCHOOLS BE REALISTIC?

(Taken From "Ediphone Educator")

It is the thesis of this editorial that one way for the schools to meet the needs of today is to be realistic in what they teach and what they do. "Realistic," as used in this discussion, means "applicable to the conditions of the present." Webster says realism means "fidelity to real life." And it is our contention that the schools should do just that; i. e., demonstrate in all they do that they have fidelity to real life needs, conditions and situations.

Such an interpretation of the work of the schools means that all their work should be aimed at the improvement of the lives of all the people the school serves. If such a purpose be accepted, many schools— indeed, most schools— need to reorganize much of their programs and services if the goal is to be realized.

Must Improve Living

For a school to be realistic, then, it must accept as its primary function the improvement of living in the community it serves. In the achievement of this function, it will do many things. It will teach knowledge, not for knowledge's sake, but because the knowledge taught is important to better living for the people in that community. It will teach understanding of conditions and situations, why they are as they are, and what must be done to improve them. It will teach what is necessary to improve conditions, keeping in mind what schools are prepared to do and what should be left to other agencies. It will provide services which the community needs and which it is peculiarly competent to provide. It will recognize that the school is only one of the agencies society has created and will therefore use intelligent understanding and effort to work co-operatively with other agencies and groups.

Direct Useful Tasks

In its more formal work the school will direct its efforts toward a variety of necessary and useful tasks. It will teach the three R's with renewed vigor and appreciation, for mastery of the mechanics of the tools of learning is a requisite for understanding and successful performance. It will make use of the human and natural resources of the community to the largest extent possible. It will at all times be alert to teach what is helpful and necessary in a rapidly changing society.

In its efforts, the school will recognize the need to teach much more about the out-of-doors and provide children and adults the opportunity to get acquainted with nature and its ways. It cannot remain complacent when young adolescent boys and girls drop out of school, but will seek unceasingly to discover their needs and develop a program which will give them a sense of successful achievement. It will demonstrate through its organization and performance the highest and best types of democracy in action.

The school of today which is realistic will serve the whole community. It will redouble its efforts to aid children; it will provide a program which will be helpful to the adults of the community. It will direct its energies to serving people. Through its performance, the people of its community will turn instinctively to the school for guidance.

Wreckers Demolish 112-Year-Old Hotel

Halifax, —(CP) —The 112-year-old Halifax Hotel, long one of the city's outstanding landmarks and one-time mecca of commercial travellers from across Canada, is fast disappearing under the wrecker's hammer.

In its place the federal government will build a Dominion public building annex at an estimated cost of $1,500,000.

Wrecking crews say the old builders did their work well. They claim it's a tough job to break down the solid brick walls and tear out the huge timbers some of which are 40 feet long and in good condition even after a century of service.

At one time the building served as an officers' mess for the Halifax Imperial garrisons. In the Second World War it was used as barracks for a large detail of R.C.M.P. constables stationed in Nova Scotia

BRITAIN'S COTTON INDUSTRY

London, March 12 — (CP) — The House of Commons today gave second reading without a vote to a bill to subsidize the modernization and re - equipment of the cotton spinning industry, a mainstay of the drive to earn more life-saving dollars in Canada.

Government spokesmen, including Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, said the cotton industry is in the van of the export drive. Its known objective is to increase exports to Canada 10 times to facilitate the financing of purchases of essential foods.

Line of Weeping Mourners Fills Czernin Palace

Prague, Mrach 12 —(AP)— A line of weeping mourners nearly two miles long filed through Czernin Palace today to place flowers on the bier of Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk.

Masaryk's body lay in state from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., but the throng was so vast the doors of the palace opened an hour early to permit school children to pass through.

As the mourners filed through the huge square in front of the palace where Masaryk fell to his death Wednesday, others queued up below for the walk up Hradcany Mountain.

Meanwhile, the Communists were strengthening their control of Czechoslovakia with a program of reorganization and legislation in a dominated parliament.

The Communists also claimed new evidence of opposition plotting against the government in a report of the confession and suicide of a non-Communist political leader, Josef Herod.

This was the second suicide reported in political circles this week. The other was Masaryk's.

Parliament was slated in today's session to go ahead with committee organization giving Communists powerful posts and to legalize the work of action committees which prepared the way for the new government, sworn in just two weeks ago.

Build Trunk Sewer Under Busy Street

Toronto, —(CP)— Toronto has an underground—an active 24-hour underground—where men do not plan resistance against oppression but battle against natural obstacles to build a new main trunk sewer 20 feet under surface of busy city streets.

Electors of the city last Jan. 1 approved a rapid transit system to speed Toronto's overworked transportation facilities. The plan called for the diversion of some main sewers to make way for the underground railway tunnels.

A few months ago regular habitues, of the downtown business and hotel section were surprised to see heavy machinery and temporary huts in a side street near one of the larger hotels. At two points in the street wide shafts were dug and men and materials started to go down the holes. From then on the activity was out of sight and the show finished as far as "sidewalk superintendents" were concerned.

Lay Narrow-Gauge Tracks

But the real job had just started. A complete narrow-gauge railway was laid and small cars pushed by hand took loads of blue clay to the shaft where it was loaded into trucks for disposal. Whenever the clay gang finished driving ahead for a distance, the concrete gang moved in, assembled steel ribs and poured a 15-inch thick wall called a horseshoe section.

This phase of the sewer system's alteration will be completed in about five months and the way will be cleared for other underground operations connected with the rapid transit project.

The workers, most of whom are former hard rock miners, work in temperatures much higher than at the level. Often they go aground in the workings stripped to the waist. The physical labor is hard and in many cases the workmetn have been working in spots with only five feet headroom.

The new sewer is designed to carry water at the rate of 2,340 gallons per second. When a heavy rainstorm is in progress the big concrete tunnel will be full.

Use it to save time and money when you mow, plow, cultivate, disc, harrow, or plow snow.

Petroleum Export Ban Asked in U.S.

Senator's Bill Would Put Embargo on Shipments To Canada

MOVE TO EASE SHORTAGE

Washington, Jan. 26 — (AP)— Embargoes on all oil exports, including shipments to Canada, and restoration of war-time automobile speed limits were proposed today to fight the spreading fuel oil and gasoline shortage in the United States.

A bill to prohibit petroleum exports for one year, was introduced by Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.-N.H.) as the oil shortage —both present and prospective— zoomed into the Congressional limelight.

Bar Canadian Supply

If enacted into law, the embargo would include transportation of petroleum or its products into Canada, an aide to Senator Bridges, said, adding:

SUPPLY: Coal users of Belleville have never been out of coal even when the industry has been confronted with transportation and labor difficulties. Coal has kept homes warm and the wheels of industry turning throughout two wars without coupon rationing.

EQUIPMENT: Modern coal burning equipment such as hopper or bin-fed automatic coal stokers offer the most comfortable, automatic, clean heat. They are available today and for immediate installation. You can have yours tomorrow

TEMPERATURE: Coal Users do not have to turn back thermostats or close off rooms. They can enjoy unlimited comfort. Who says 70 degrees, or even lower, is the right temperature? The right temperature is that at which you are comfortable. Pits constructed under furnaces to hold several months or years ashes.

ECONOMY: With the current cost of domestic fuel oil at approximately 18 cents a gallon domestic stoker coal at approximately $15.50 a ton represents a real saving to the domestic consumer. To produce the equivalent number of heat units, when domestic fuel oil is 18 cents a gallon then the value of domestic stoker coal is $28.58 a ton. Present retail prices of domestic stoker coal are only approximately $15.50. The saving is thus most substantial.

Cancer Neither Hereditary Nor Contagious, Dr. R.C. Burr Tells Guests at VON Meeting

"In America, according to statistics, one out of every eight persons has cancer," said Dr. R. C. Burr, Director of the Cancer Clinic in Kingston, Ont., when addressing more than one hundred interested guests at the V.O.N. banquet and the 23rd. annual meeting held last evening in Tabernacle United Church Assembly Hall. Mr. C. B. Morgan, president of the local branch of V.O.N. was Master of Ceremonies and proposed a toast to "The King", and welcomed the members of the organization and their friends.

Alderman M. J. Vanner, speaking for His Worship, Mayor D. L. Storey, who was unavoidably detained elsewhere, brought greetings, congratulations and good wishes for a successful year in this community. Minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Mrs. H. M. Francis, and adopted.

Dr. J. McKay introduced Dr. Burr, and said that one way to assist with cancer control is for individual citizens to make a point of getting all the information obtainable on this subject. Reolving, Dr. Burr said it was a privilege to speak at the annual V.O.N. meeting since the work of these nurses is often closely linked with cancer cases.

A Serious Matter

"The subject of cancer," continued the Dr., "is a serious matter and I hope that from a talk on the subject something which may help may be learned. People are usually hesitant to inquire concerning this disease; people are fearful of examination; they dread the doctor's verdict, but cancer is not a hopeless disease if treated in the early stages. Cancer is simply an abnormal growth composed of body cells which, without reason, leave their natural environment and grow somewhere else 'on their own', anywhere in the body. There are two types, first, the slow growth which is a non-cancerous tumor; second, the rapid growth which is a malignant tumor. But any unusual growth of tissues may become malignant if the central cells break down, die, and form an ulcer.

People Dread Surgery

"Skin exposed constantly to wind and sun may become roughened and easily infected. Small growths may appear on the lip, on the face, or inside the mouth, the infection having been carried from any surface infection. Not every 'mole' becomes a cancer, but if there is a noticeable change in color or size, or if its growth continues over a period of weeks or months, a physician should be consulted, even before there is any pain.

"People generally dread surgery, but radium is the treatment frequently used now, and although painful to some extent, is usually effective. Delay may make surgery necessary.

"Cancer" said the speaker, "is neither contagious nor hereditary, although in some families there is an apparent tendency to develop malignant lesions. Cancer in men and women develop differently. This is especially true in the symptoms and cites of internal disease. A patient's feeling of fear is a great detriment to a doctor, who, in order to give his best service, must know the case history of his patient. In internal cases X-ray examinations are necessary to determine the extent of the infection and growth, but whatever the symptoms, measures for discovery should be taken at once to decide the nature of the lesion. No cure can be promised, in spite of the fact that both doctors and scientists are working in research to discover a cure. So far, no substance known can be called a definite cure.

Affect Body Cells

"The process of irradiation is the change of radium from one substance to another, and the rays which radiate during this change affect the body cells through which they pass. Malignant cells are more easily destroyed than are normal cells; therefore radium may be used effectively against malignant growth.

"One thing can be done to decrease developed cases of cancer. People must be educated to act before the growth has developed extensively, and precautions taken to prevent any advancement."

Dr. Burr showed colored slides depicting actual cases of cancer treated and healed by radium without surgery. A film "Time Is Life" was also shown.

The film is a project of the American Cancer Society. There is now a sister organization known as the Canadian Cancer Society, composed of persons interested in spreading knowledge about cancer, through Cancer Society units and clinics. Soon there will be a drive for membership in a Belleville unit. The object is to spread information through Ontario, outside of the larger cities where units are already organized.

Dr. Reg. Anderson expressed appreciation for this opportunity to learn something about cancers and their cure, and said he hoped Belleville people will not fail to support the organization of a Cancer Society unit here.

Report Presented

Mrs. H. M. Francis presented the annual report, in which she referred to the loss, during last year, of three of the Order's outstanding members, i.e. Mrs. C. A. Cameron and Mrs. K. Colling by removal to Ottawa and Kingston respectively; and Mr. H. B. Fetterly, deceased. Miss Harriet McGeary has replaced Miss Adair as nurse-in-charge, and is ably assisted by the Misses Dorothy and Grace Connor. The tag day was a successful project. This report was accepted.

Mr. K. L. Reid, treasurer, presented a financial statement showing a bank balance of $7,-413.87 for 1947, as compared with $6,586.96 for 1946, an increase of approximately $850.00.

Miss Elizabeth Reed, National Office Supervisor, was introduced by Mr. Morgan and spoke briefly in appreciation of the splendid work done by the local branch and by the nurses of the Order here.

50 Years of Service

In her report Miss H. McGeary said the V.O.N. organization has given fifty years of nursing service, through years of war and years of peace. The Order is the 'only' service giving national service on the North American Continent. There are now 103 branches. The V.O.N. has steadily grown both nationally and locally. In Belleville 5,199 visits were made last year, 2,833 of which were free. School children now attend a mental health clinic at the hospital, and Dr Jack Marshall has assisted the nurses by holding monthly dental conferences. There are no remedial treatments, but advice is freely given re the proper treatments at any early age.

Miss McGreary paid tribute to her predecessor, Miss Adair. She expressed appreciation for ample quarters in Kiwanis Centre; to the Medical Association and to the Board of Health for assistance and co-operation; to the press reporter, and to The Ontario Intelligencer for space given to V.O.N. notes; to the Belleville Registry and Telephone service; to the men who have been kind Roman Catholic Nuns believed and courteous when servicing cars, and to all who have helped during the year in making the duties of the nurses more pleasant and lighter than they might otherwise have been. Miss McGeary said she wanted to pay special tribute to the able assistance of the Misses Connor, who are her V.O.N. colleagues.

Thanks to Convener

In accepting this comprehensive and interesting report Mr. Morgan said that although Miss McGeary has been here only during the past six months she has already won for herself a place in Belleville. He expressed appreciation to Mrs. Ray Grant, who convened all arrangements for the banquet and annual meeting and to the ladies who had served the delicious dinner.

Mr. T. D. Ruston presented the report of the Nominating Committee which was adopted as read. The following Executive Officers were accepted:

Hon Presidents—His Worship Mayor Denzil Storey, His Honor Judge Anderson, Mr. G. H. Stokes, M.P., Mr. R. Robson, M.P.P., Mr. F. Wilson, M.P.P., Mr. Geo. West, warden.

1st Vice President—Mr. Douglas Burr.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. F. Foley.
Treasurer—Mr. K. L. Reid.
Secretary—Mrs. H. M. Francis
Medical Advisory—Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.H.O., Dr. Anderson.

Advisory members on the board include representatives from different organizations and churches of the city, as well as other interested citizens .

In closing and presenting his report the president said, "I would like to express my appreciation to the Board and to all outsiders who have lent a helping hand to this worthy cause during 1947, and particularly to a very efficient staff"

Mr. John Deacon, soloist for the evening, generously contributed three delightful solos, with Mary Conner Deacon as accompanist, adding much to the evening's enjoyment.

"O Canada" was the finale to a profitable and pleasant occasion.

ve a letter from a young who wants to make a complaint about wolves in d men's clothing.

he is very anxious to have ter printed, I suspect that s in mind some particular he hopes will read it. Here she says:

ork in a large department and there alone I've met married men who cheat r wives and really go out inds. Not only that, but, go to a party, two out of imes there will be a marhan around without his Igam not looking for the n people, Miss Fairfax, but it is disgraceful when I e older married men alin the 'make' for younger I have read about such and heard about them but think so much about it bout two months ago when ne one of the victims.

I for one like to go out ve a lot of fun. I'm not oks, money, or a man, and I'm pretty regular. But t comes to dating married want nothing to do with about it, People? You women ask yourselves ou are lacking. Why do usbands go out and look oyment with girls who are king for trouble? And you hy don't you make sure ean 'I do' when you say if my suspicion is true and iter of this letter is mereking an indirect way of off some husband who has nnoying her, I think it be a great deal more effec she would make her redirectly to the person in n ,instead of asking to have out in print. And that be my advice to any other girl who has the same trouble—that is, tell the d man who is annoying t you want to be let alone. ns to me it's as simple as type of married man who king for a little extral diversion is usually internly in the type of girl who y to co-operate, and who eep the whole thing disunder cover. He definites not want to cal lattenp his wandering ways by passes at a girl who be likely to show him up. ost cases, therefore, the d wolf will take a hint is attentions are not welvery quickly, lest if he them on a girl, she might trouble for him in one another.

nk it should be a very matter for the girl who no part of this sort of s get rid of it, if she goes the right way. And the way is to stand quietly on nity and make it perfectly hat she is not that sort of girl. The wrong way is to act coy, or to overplay the role of outraged womanhood. In other words, don't put on an act; simply be yourself .And if "yourself" has the right standards, she can put the man who, steps out of line in her direction back in his place with very little trouble.

Try this some time, "Slim"—that's my correspondent—and see if it doesn't work better than writing letters to newspapers.

Battling For One's Rights

Sometimes I think the chief cause of unhappiness among wives is the failure of their husbands to give them the companionship they want and need. Letter after letter comes to my desk from women who complain that their husbands come home at night, eat their dinner, and then do one of three things: Retire behind a book or newspaper(turn on the radio and want to listen in silence, or go to sleep.

The following paragraph from one of the letters in this morning's mail is typical of hundreds of others:

"My husband doesn't care to have friends. He doesn't want me to have friends or go any place. He is very silent and irritable and not a companion to me at all. He just comes home, eats his supper, turns on the radio, and one doesn't even dare to talk to him. He never wants me to invite anybody in, nor do I go anywhere. This goes on evening after evening.

It is easy to understand, of course, that most wives hesitate to assert themselves and act contrary to their husbands' wishes, even when they would be right in doing so, because they fear scenes. But there are times when a scene or two for a good cause can clear the air and end by introducing a much more wholesome atmosphere in the home. A wife who continually airs her grievances in silence may avoid trouble, it is true. But she is not making anything any better for herself by doing so. If she wants to try to remedy an unsatisfactory state of affairs, she usually has to be adventurous enough to risk stirring up a storm. But in a great many cases, such storms subside if the wife has the courage to stick to her point. And, when they are over, she is likely to find herself in a vastly better position than before.

Of course, it all depends on whether she values her objective enough to want to take the risk. I should think that when a wife is forced to spend evening after evening alone with a husband who pays not the slightest attention to her, she would be ready to risk almost anything if there were the least chance of improving her situation. If he wants to sit home with his radio, I think she should assert her right to invite friends of her own in, or to go out with them. And I believe, in most cases of this kind, if the wife did this, she would in time win her point. She might not get any more companionship from her husband, but at least she would get some from her friends.

This particular wife asks if I think there is any possibility that her husband's personality could be changed. She thinks his childhood wih an unsympathetic mother is responsible for his taciturnity and irritability, and says she has been told that childhood environment has a lifelong effect on personality.

I think I am right in saying that this is true for people who do not realize the necessity of counteracting the effects of an unfortunate childhood by doing something to change their own personality. If she could get her husband to see that he were in need of change, and he really wished to do so, he certainly could. But the realization would have to come from himself before anything could be done.

In the meantime, unless she prefers accepting her unhappy home life to having a little battle over her rights, this wife had better decide to take steps to break her present deadlock.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Their Wedding Attendants to be Guests at Their Silver Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning to celebrate our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary by giving a dinner in a restaurant that specializes in catering for such occasions. Among our guests will be our pastor, our son, our maid of honor and best man, and my husband's mother. Will you please suggest the correct seating-arrangements for our guests? Will you also suggest table decorations?

E. T. J.

Since you and your husband are so fortunate as to have your two wedding attendants with you on this important occasion, I suggest that you use the same seating arrangements you used at the wedding: you and your husband seated next to each other, you at your husband's right; on your right, the best man, and at your husband left, the maid of honor. Your pastor might sit at the right of your husband's mother, your son at her left and the other guests according to compliment to them and congeniality.

As the centre decoration for your table you might have the so-important wedding anniversary cake, as elaborate a cake as you wish to have, a white cake artistically and appropriately decorated—with the dates (1923-1948) and your and your husband's initials outlined ,if possible, with tiny silvered candies. The cake-cutting ceremony should be the significant one you had at your wedding reception; when you, the "bride", are ready to cut the cake (to be served alone as dessert or with ice cream), the cake is set in front of your place, and you cut the first slice and share it with your husband, the "bridegroom". If there is ample table space, there might be candles flanking the cake, or vases of white flowers, or of vari-colored Spring flowers.

When Girls Go to a Dance Without Partners-for-the-Evening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Soon there is to be in our town a public semi-formal dance, "dress optional". We are a group of several girls who are planning to go together to the dance; that is, we are not going with men partners. We would like to know if ,under this circumstance, we can wear evening dresses. What is your advice?

A. B.

When for this kind of dance it is announced that the type of dress is "optional", you usually find that the majority of guests dress informally. And I believe that you girls will be more at ease when you arrive, will feel less conspicuous at the dance, without escorts if you wear simple, street-length afternoon dresses, rather than to give the impression of being "all dressed up" in floor-length evening dresses.

To Small, informal house wedding, guests are invited informally

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A widow of thirty-ish age, with one child, is marrying a man who has not been married before, also in his thirties. They are to be married informally in her home, by her minister, and to the ceremony and gathering afterward they are inviting about thirty-five guests, relatives and close friends. Will you please tell me what kind of invitation to send for this occasion?

M. L.

For such a small, informal wedding it is entirely proper, and quite customary, for the prospective bride to invite the guests by word-of-mouth, or by telephone. Or ,if she prefers, or if some of the guests live at a distance, she may write cordial little notes of invitation, giving the occasion day, date, hour and place.

Fashion Flashes

A WEALTH of novelties in the accessory field! For instance, one bag, designed in leather, has a clasp that holds nickels and dimes for easy dispensing. Grand for busy women!

STILL ALIVE, indeed, very much in the fashion picture, is the side-drape skirt, ideal for the figure, with heavy hips since it bestows grace and movement. Black silk crepe, with a splashy design of large roses and apricot yellow rose clusters, makes a dress with a high boat neckline, bracelet sleeves and a pretty skirt drawn to one side with graduated draping that softly cascades across the skirt.

A LONG SEASON seems ahead for muskrat, that popular winter fur which now emerges in nice little sling capes for wear over Spring suits and full-length coats. Nice in silver-blue dyed muskrat.

JUST NOW, little rolled - brim off-the-face sailors of felt, trimmed with big splashy bows of plaided or checked taffeta, are liked for between-season wear. Some have big looped bows in front while others sport back bows finished with long streamers.

EQUALLY IMPORTANT in a successful suit this year is the fabric and the styling. Gray worsted — striped in misty pink, gunmetal and white — is used for a pretty suit. The belted jacket is buttonless, has a short, full collar; a modified, easy sleeve; and a slim skirt.

COLOR RUNS with authority and interest in every fine hat collection. Nude beige felt with a pale pink undercast is used for a deft little hat combined with pale yellow and pale pink roses, heightened by bows and short streamers of deep American Beauty velvet ribbon.

STAY AT HOME and wear a handsome negligee, and a Winter storm isn't so bad. Beige satin is used for a handsome robe, made with a wide front skirt panel of soft green satin that matches the wide green belt with its gold kid scroll appliques.

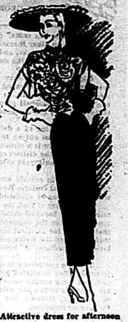
BEAUTIFUL for informal but big evenings is an ankle-length dress of fine lace in cocoa brown posed over deep bronze brown satin.

AS A CHANGE from the usual printed crepes, the shops are showing printed satins. Black satins, with a print design of pink and yellow butterflies, is made up into a smartly simple frock with deep neckline and softly gathered skirt. Another is of black satin with a yellow tulip design, made up on similar lines, but with slit pockets on the skirt.

EASTER IS EARLY, and that is helping the cause of the full-length fitted coat, so nice with a fur jacket or cape. A beautiful Spring ensemble consists of a gray wool jersey redingote worn over a lighter gray wool jersey high-waisted skirt and a blouse of light lemon yellow silk chiffon detailed with all - over fine tucking. Deep neckline ties in a big self bow.

THE WHISPER OF SPRING is undoubtedly caused by the rustle of taffeta. Taffeta for suits, afternoon frocks, separate skirts, dinner clothes and evening clothes appeared in almost every Spring collection. Black taffeta is used for a slim jacket and full skirt; the jacket revers are trimmed with jet and tiny pearl bead embroidery, with similar detail for pocket flaps.

Fine Figure Flatterer



Attractive dress for afternoon wear.

By VERA WINSTON

FOR RESORT wear, for afternoon functions, or for stay-at-homes, this is a nice dress,for the woman who goes places and who likes to be well dressed but not over dressed. The skirt, of black crepe, is draped over the hips, with nice detail in the looped effect through which the drapery appears to be pulled. The pretty bodice is of white crepe which has been hand painted in vivid colors.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

The driving woman must relax!

Is Time ever at your heels, pushing you nagging you to get through the day's job? If you are a home body, you know all about that. Dishes to wash, meals to get, children to amuse and comfort, letters to write, marketing to do, bills to pay, mending, phone calls to answer And some men fancy that their wives have easy lives, do nothing but gab and gad! If a man undertook home management, he'd go crazy in a week.

Are there times when you get panicky? You look into the mirror and a strange, tired, distraught face stares back at you. Right then and there you had better rearrange your hair, put on some lipstick. If you look better, you'll feel better. Anyhow, a little bit better.

Keeping one's house in order, feeding and caring for the family, is important. Say what you will, there is no more worthy occupation. But keeping oneself strong and cheerful is just as important. Usually the mistress of the home is the balance wheel. Everything revolves around her. She mustn't let her disposition curdle. If her face is clouded, so also will be at the atmosphere of the home. Children, even very young ones, realize when mama is worried or tired or discouraged. That won't do. It isn't fair to the kids.

The wife and mother who has no household help knows nothing about the eight-hour day or te five-day working week. She gets up at daylight, keeps on the treadmill until the children are asleep at night, after which she may stand at the ironing board or mend her old man's socks. She is entitled to a daily rest period and she should get it.

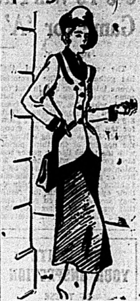
During this period she should learn to relax completely. She should lie down with a small pillow under her head, the head tilted slightly backward. The idea is to ease up the strain at the back of the neck where one usually feels the first signs of fatigue. Arms and legs must be limp, down to the last little finger and the last little pig that said wee-wee all the way home.

So much for the physical state. Now for the mental. Our tired lady should close the doors of her mind. It can be done. One way to do it is to repeat the word 'rest" in your mind, very slowly, over and over again. You can hypnotize yourself. With each word ,take a long, deep breath. The heavier the breathing, the more likely you are to fall asleep as the blood streams receive more oxygen.

At night a warm bath and twenty minutes of beauty care before the dressing table will be found refreshing.

If a man undertook home management, he'd be crazy in a week.

Two-Tone Spring Suit



Beige and black combination

By VERA WINSTON

THE TWO-TONE suit has appeared in nearly every Spring collection, and the stores report it a good seller. Various and interesting color schemes are featured, but this model goes in for that old favorite, beige and black. The jacket, of beige smooth wpollen, has slot seaming to describe a semi-yoke, which, with the pockets, reveals touches of black seams terminated in embroidered black arrows. The rolled collar and cuffs are of black wool. The slim skirt is of black wool and is very slightly flared.

of TWO who came back

by Lotta Dempsey

Of course, quite a few air force personnel got their faces smashed in crack-ups. But a girl . . . well, girls have a very special feeling about their faces. And when they brought the tall slender WD corporal into hospital—one of the eight of twenty-seven left alive out of a flight that crashed between Vancouver and Prince Rupert—she was about the most unrecognizable Airwoman still breathing in this country.

They flew Helen—and Mary, another WD with a badly burned back—to Toronto's Christie Street Military Hospital, for skin grafts and burn treatment. A Red Cross worker told me she'd never forget it. The Red Cross room is in the heart of the wards, next door to the room those girls had.

For weeks workers just tiptoed in and out on their rounds—writing letters, supplying stamps, cigarettes and chocolate bars to the patients.

'No Visitors'

One operation followed another through the weary months in which doctors built a new face for Helen and treated Mary's back. The girls became great friends with the Red Cross workers. But they didn't want to meet people from the 'outside', right then. Even when the 'No Visitors' sign went down and Air Force boys and other vet. patients wheelchaired and crutch-tapped in, they were still shy about seeing 'just people'.

The Red Cross was different. Those women in the deep blue smocks were part of their own submerged world of pain and illness, yet attached to the country outside. They did the little things the girls needed—feminine bits of shopping, letters and messages, planned small celebrations.

New Trades

As the girls progressed, going from one hospital to another for treatment, the Red Cross was always there. Supplying ambulances, at first—later, escorts to hockey games, concerts, plays. Offering quiet practical assistance whenever it was needed.

Today Helen and Mary are learning new trades. Helen can no longer teach physical education or model. Mary cannot continue her typing, because of permanently stiffened fingers. But while DVA prepares them for their new lives, the Red Cross still stands by as they do with all our Canadian veterans in hospitals everywhere. In proof that we, the people, have not forgotten.

Red Cross Services include: Blood Transfusion, Outpost Hospitals, Aid to Sick and Disabled Veterans, Treatment for Crippled Children, Disaster Relief, Nutrition Services, Home Nursing Courses, Swimming, Water Safety, etc.

Flyers Defeat Trenton Squad 8-5 To Win Fifth and Deciding Game for 'A' Group Title

By C. D. T.

The very largest crowd that has gathered in the Memorial Arena this winter and in fact for some years was present last night, when the Trenton Flyers defeated Trenton Hockey Club 8-5 in the fifth and deciding game for the Intermediate "A" group playoff. It was a fitting setting at the opening of the third period with the teams tied in games and also goals and with the last 20 minutes for either team to be a hero or goat. The Flyers came out fighting and carried the play to their opponents with the result they scored the three goals and that was the ball game. On the night's play the Flyers deserved their win for they fought for the rubber, played better combination and had a sounder defence when the going was tough.

It is likely that the Flyers will meet either Collingwood or Markham in the next round and this should be a series worth going a long ways to see. In the game last night, the crowd was nearly evenly divided in favoritism, both the Flyers and Trenton having large contingents at the game while the local hockey fans helped to swell the attendance. The crowd was most orderly and the referees handled the game most satisfactorily. Both squads realized that to win the players would have to stay on the ice and petty peeves were forgotten with the result the contest was one of the cleanest of the series, only five penalties being handed out with Trenton drawing three. One of them was disastrous for Trenton. They held the opposition out on the first penalty but the second one put the Flyers in the lead while B. BBastedo was sitting it out.

Played Sounder Hockey

The Flyers won the game by better backchecking and having more system to their attack when in close. They started their plays a great deal faster than Trenton and generally the forwards were left trailing and the load was imposed on the defence, which in spots cracked at the critical times. Trenton outshot the Flyers but their drives did not have the same force as the opposition and they bunched too much in the attacking zone. For two periods it was a battle of goalies with Bridgman having a slight edge.

In the third frame McKenna, who replaced Robertson for the important tilt, played spectacularly and he was not only good but lucky. Several of the shots that were turned aside could easily have gone in but he seemed to move into position at the exact time and other times he would smother the rubber before the Trenton players could get it. Bridgeman was beaten cleanly on the three goals of the third frame but he could blame his defence on two of them because they backed in and the d rives were screened. Middleton, the lanky defenceman of the Flyers was a driving force all night and he played a stellar game both going and coming. He was in on every play and had to retire near the end of the pastime from sheer exhaustion. The line of Edwards, Prot and Sargent was hard to stop and Edwards performed the hat trick with his teammates in on every goal.

Played Entire Game

Miller played a hard game and Brackenbury did a lot of useful checking besides helping himself to a counter. For Trenton Schmidt played the entire contest and was easily the best man on either side although he was credited with only one assist. He carried the p lay on numerous occasions, passed well and was a tower of strength back of the blueline. Up front Bob Johnson was heads above any forward thrown over the boards. He was deadly in front of the twine and he helped himself to two goals. Watson was closely watched all night but his bullet drives had McKenna hopping on many occasions. The play opened at a fast clip and it was easy to see both teams were gunning for the first counter. It was rush and counter rush until Bridgeman was beaten on a passout from Brackenbury to Ault.

Trenton Evens Count

Trenton evened the count when Schmidt started Watson on his way and that worthy made no mistake. Johnson came right back to shove the rubber under McKenna on a scramble and the Flyers put up a holler on that one but St. Louis was standing directly over the play and allowed the counter. Miller evened the count again when Brackenbury and Ault assisted in the play, Bridgeman being beaten all the way. Johnson scored again to put Trenton in the lead but the winners came back with two quick ones by Christie and Prot. Starting the second frame Trenton again came into the picture when Watson got his second goal of the night on a nice setup by Johnson.

Had Better of Play

Doug Bastedo, who did a lot of useful checking, put Burtt into the clear and he made no mistake to again tie up the contest. Near the close of the period, Edwards took Middleton's pass and Bridgeman was beaten cleanly. The third period was all Flyers and soon they went ahead never to be overtaken. Edwards with two and Ault with one put the finishing touches to the hopes of Trenton. They outshot the Flyers but certainly did not have any of the breaks around the nets. In the first period the Flyers outshot the losers 20 to 12 and in the second 14 to 13 but Trenton nearly drew even in this regard when they poured 15 drives at McKenna with the Flyers only replying with nine. It was a hard fought series but on the whole the Airmen deserved their win because they played sounder hockey and took advantages of the breaks. They have a better balanced team than the Trenton squad and will be worthy representatives in the playdowns that are to come.

The teams—

Trenton H.C.—Goal, Bridgeman; defence, Parker and Schmidt, centre, R. Johnson; wings, Beale and Watson. Alts.—Fillon, C. Johnson, Barr, D. Bastedo, B. Bastedo, Burtt.

Former Champion Of Ring Survived Lusitania Sinking

By ERWIN FRICKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, —(CP)— His immigration papers say that Matt Freeman is a "landed immigrant" from Charing Cross Road in London, that he is 53, five foot four inches tall and has grey hair.

But there is more of a story behind the pince-nezed, sturdy newcomer to Canada than his unrevealing documents disclose.

A glimpse of the personality of the former amateur bantam, feather and lightweight champion of Great Britain is seen in his smiling appraisal of life as "a glorious uncertainly that makes it worth living."

Nearly 35 years ago, he was a passenger on the Liverpool-bound liner Lusitania. "We were sitting at the second lunch—I remember had only begun our soup—when suddenly there was a terrific crash which made the ship shake like a leaf and then take a heavy list to starboard."

Freeman dived 60 feet from the stern of the stricken vessel, saved five men and two women from drowning and then, because the lifeboats were filled, swam around for seven hours until he was picked up by a minesweeper.

His action earned him a hero medal from the Royal Humane Society of Great Britain, a telegram from King George V commending his bravery and a one-inch head scar he suffered when he struck frogaments of a wrecked lifeboat. Later as the "Lusitania hero" he toured the United more than $500,000 worth of Liberty and War Savings Bonds."

Now after 36 round trips across the Atlantic, Freeman says he'll sail no more. He hopes to settle down here as a theatrical outfitter.

While nothing of a definite nature has been decided on yet, we might go out on the well-known limb far enough to report that there is a strong possibility of senior baseball being revived in the district come Spring and the good old summertime, all contingent of course, on a number of things.

It is felt in certain quarters, that a revival of the once famous Central Ontario Baseball League, would be welcomed with open arms by diamond fans of this part of the province.

As a matter of fact, the germ of the idea was borne in the minds of two baseball-minded gentlemen whom we shall keep anonymous for the moment, several weeks ago. Longer than that in fact, for the first idea was created when the Chatham team defeated the Batawa Shoemen here last fall for the Ontario Intermediate "A" baseball title.

The two gentlemen in question nursed the idea, and went to work. They contacted players in various parts of the district, and were mildly successful in this effort. But early winter attempts to fan the dormant baseball spark in the minds of Kingston, Oshawa, and Peterborough interests met with little or no response.

• • •

The more or less disappointed duo, however, were not licked. They felt that a senior baseball team wearing the Belleville colors, even if forced to play exhibition games during the schedule season, would be a welcome addition to whatever local baseball magnates have in mind for the coming season. They felt, also, and we agree, that this city is ripe for baseball of senior calibre, and since the installation of floodlights, and the overnight success, so to speak, of floodlight ball here last year, that the venture would meet the approval of fans.

But don't go yet. There's more to come. Within the last few days we have learned that the Ontario Baseball Association has cast its eyes eastward, and if met with some co-operation on the part of responsible business men and others of principal centres in Eastern Ontario, would stretch out helping hands to assist with the organization.

• • •

In fact, we are informed by Ken J. Colling, member of the OBA executive body, that his organization would go farther than that. It would, Mr. Colling writes us, send two, three or more of its best organizers down here to get things under way, if, and if only, responsible men would be willing to accept administrative positions in their various cities.

For, as the former sports editor of this newspaper repeats, he has always said it, "A baseball league is just as strong as its executive. Show me a weak parent body, and I'll show you a weak league.'

• • •

Mr. Colling goes on to say, that while the OBA is willing to assist in organization of the proposed league, "I am not prepared to send busy men into the Old Central Ontario League area if responsible business or industrial men in places like Belleville and Peterborough will not accept league executive positions."

• • •

We agree with Mr. Colling's statement. Sports bodies, especially those in the state of reorganization, should have strong purposeful, reliable men at the helm. With an executive foundation composed of men of this calibre, senior baseball would, we feel, come back into its own not only in this city but in the district.

• • •

Professional baseball has been shelved both here and in Peterborough for the nonce, and a number of baseball men whom we have contacted in the last few days, are of the opinion that a senior loop "would go over big" with fandom here. The suggested loop is not intended to replace nor interfere with the Belleville Baseball Association set-up of the last two or three years. There is plenty of room for everybody. Teams from centres just outside the city have as much right to play baseball as others, and the advent of senior team here, would not interfere in any manner with any proposed activities they may have in mind.

Peterborough, always a strong advocate of better-class baseball has fallen in line with the idea. Eddie Murphy, one of the Liftlock City's diamond impresarios, called a meeting on Saturday, and although at the time of writing, we do not know what happened, it is assumed that something more or less definite was done.

Up in Oshawa, the near-venerable but still sprightly "Moose" Matthews, COBL veteran is dreaming of his favorite game. Nothing has been reported of Oshawan activities along the proposed COBL revival as yet, but if the Motor City crew gives the idea the frigid shoulder, and the "Moose" is available, Belleville baseball interests could do a lot worse than secure the services of the big coach-player. Personally, we know that the "Moose" has a soft spot in his heart for this village, and unless he has changed his mind fairly recently, would like to sink his baseball roots here.

• • •

It has been sugested, and not by this desk, that two loops be formed in the district. In the eastern loop could be Belleville, Oshawa, Batawa and Peterborough. In the eastern set-up, Kingston, Smith's Falls, Perth and Brockville, with the possibility of an inter-locking schedule, although each league would operate independently.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — A glance over the comments of Canadian sports columnists on the National Hockey League betting affair must reassure N. H. L. president Clarence Campbell that there wasn't much wrong with the way he handled the incident.

Sports writers dealing with the case have varied in the seriousness with which they regarded the offence that sent Billy Taylor out of professional hockey. Some have expressed sympathy for the young Boston winger who was indefinitely suspended pending further investigation of charges against him.

But with rare unanimity the columnists praised Campbell for a thorough job of cleaning up a potentially ugly situation.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson echoes the president's statement that there is no indication of an attempt to "fix" a game and adds the belief that any player or outsider would try it at considerable physical risk.

"What would hurt, though," adds Elmer, "is association of players with crooked hoodlums . . . seeking a little help, a little edge, in the way of what a player will do for them, or tell them, so they may have the better of the average fan who is merely betting on opinion or loyalty."

It is with this in mind that Campbell takes a serious view of players associating — even innocently — with known gamblers, and Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan suggests that the president won't consider his job finished until he has run the under-cover gents out of every NHL rink.

Another Meeker

Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel is showing understandable pride in young George Armstrong, the Stratford Kroehler forward who cleaned up all the silverware in sight in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A loop, copping the most valuable player award as well as the league scoring championship, even though his team barely made the playoffs.

Chick noted that the 17-year-old Northern Ontario product is on the Toronto Maple Leafs' negotiation list and wonders if George will turn up in a couple of years to fill the spot vacated by Meeker, who graduated from Stratford Seniors to the Leafs and the N. H. L.'s prize rookie award last season.

N.H.L. Weekend Games May Place Playoff Teams

This is the weekend that will probably tell the tale in the National Hockey League's scrambling drive to the finish.

It's the last but one weekend of the 60-game schedule and the two games tonight and three on Sunday night may straighten things out.

As they stand now, Detroit has 71 points, Toronto 69, New York 53 and Boston 52. Montreal has 45 and Chicago 44, and both Montreal and Chicago are automatically out of the Stanley Cup playoffs as soon as they lose one more game.

Tonight the Boston Bruins are at Toronto Maple Leafs, while New York Rangers play at Montreal Canadiens. On Sunday with all six teams in action Toronto are at Chicago Black Hawks, Montreal at New York and Boston at Detroit Red Wings.

New York Rangers announced yesterday they'e using two amateur recruits in the series against Canadiens. They are Larry Kwong 24-year-old Chinese - Canadian from Vernon, B.C., and Ronnie Rowe, who have both been playing with New York Rovers of the E.U.S.A.H.L. That means the Montreal Forum tonight will see the first Chinese player in the National Hockey League, provided Kwong is thrown in by Coach Frank Boucher.

Detroit Sitting Tight

In the league title fight the pace-setting Detroit Wings made no announcements. They're sitting tight. From the Toronto Leafs headquarters however came two announcements. First, Sylvanus Apps, veteran centre and team captain, will definitely retire from hockey after the playoffs, and Ted (Teeter) Kennedy will become captain of the Leafs. Second announcement was that Leafs would go back to their St. Catharines pre-season training quarters next week in order to work into top shape for the Stanley Cup grind. The Leafs' boss, managing director Conny Smythe, who saw them beaten 3-1 by Canadiens in a dismal effort at Montreal Thursday, said his team is really playing badly.

No Bombshell

Announcement of Apps' retirement was no bombshell. The big, fast centreman was going to retire last season. Since then he's been appointed Ontario Commissioner of Athletics, and he says the present season is definitely his last as an active hockey player. Incidentally he's still five away from the coveted 200-goal mark in National Hockey League records, but he has four games left to pick those up.

Apps isn't interested in coaching a major league team, he said. He's been coaching a secondary school outfit this winter and he said "I find it harder coaching my Upper Canada College kids than playing in a game." He turned professional with the Leafs in 1936, and in every season since has been a top contender for the Lady Byng trophy for gentlemanly play, which he won in 1941-42.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Plan a squeeze play by first looking for two promotion cards. What are promotion cards? Seeming losers, either of which has some chance of being promoted into a winner.

Why is each a seeming loser? Because opponents have one or more higher cards in that suit. As long as opponents hold the higher cards, the seeming loser is unable to take a trick.

How do you expect to promote the seeming loser into a winner? By squeezing the opponent who has the higher card. By forcing the higher card out of that opponent's hand.

How do you know such opponent will give up that higher card? If he is protecting two suits he must unguard one of them when he is squeezed. In that suit is your seeming loser promoted.

There was this deal:

NORTH
♠8 7 6 4
♥A K 9
♦K 3
♣8 6 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠10 3 2	♠None
♥Q J 10 8 5	♥7 6
♦A Q J 6 4	♦10 9 8 7 5 2
♣None	♣10 9 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 9 5
♥4 3 2
♦None
♣A K Q J

South is declarer at a contract of seven spades. He must take all 13 tricks. But it looks as if he must lose a trick at the third round of hearts. That does it.

No chance to sluff the third heart. Or to ruff it. Or to save it in any other simple manner. Only a squeeze can hope to rescue it.

West leads heart queen. If west has jack and ten he will have to protect that suit. And if west also has the diamond ace, he will have to protect both red suits.

Dummy nine of hearts and king of diamonds are seeming losers. The diamond king could be trumped in south. But if it is, dummy will not have two promotion cards.

So, to squeeze, dummy must hold these two promotion cards. They are threats against west. If west is squeezed out of control of one suit, the seeming loser in that suit will become a winner.

If you know how, you know when.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 13. (AP)—If you think that a Hollywood star is created by the touch of a producer's wand, you can take another guess.

With only a few exceptions, the road to stardom is a long and rocky one, with many detours. Let me illustrate with the career of an ambitious 24-year-old named Peter Lawford:

Stage One—The bit player. Having played small roles in British films, Peter came here and had a minor part in "Lord Jeff" in 1938. For three years he was out of movies and even served as a parking lot attendant in Palm Beach, Fla.

On The Way

Back in California, he was ushering at the Westwood Village Theatre when an agent landed him a bit in "Eagle Squadron" in 1941. He got a contract at M.G.M., where he was handed a few minute roles. Up for the role of Irene Dunne's son in "White's Cliffs of Dover" (with a meaty death scene), he studied voluntarily for three weeks with M.G.M. coach Lillian Burns. He got the role and that brings us to—

Stage Two—The featured player. Lawford was tabbed for the bobby sox trade. The studio started to toss some publicity his way and he began to have himself photographed at nightspots with photogenic starlets.

Small But Important

His roles were small but important, in such films as "Mrs. Parkington" and "Dorian Gray". Finally, the studio decided he was ripe for bigger things and he was handed a lead in "Son of Lassie".

Stage Three—Leads in small pictures, second leads in biggies. The Lassie picture clicked and Lawford received more attention. He began hitting the spot with bigger names, fan magazines gushed over him and columnists kept track of his dates. He played secondary roles in big films like "Cluny Brown" and "It Happened in Brooklyn" and a lead in something called "My Brother Talks to Horses". His biggest break came with June Allyson in "Good News".

Stage Four

Stardom. Pete hasn't yet made the M.G.M. star list, but he'll get there, if all goes well. He is still being fitted into scripts designed for bigger names ("Julia Misbehaves", and "Easter Parade"), but he hopes in a few years to have stories tailored for him. He wants to be like Cary Grant, and no wonder —Grant's latest price is around $250,000 a picture.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

Bradenton, Fla., March 13 — (AP) — When Boston Braves opened spring training here, the local newspaper made quite a splash about it, including a big picture of manager Billy Southworth . . . Earl Torgeson, the solemn - looking, bespectacled first baseman took one look then offered Southworth congratulations . . . "Kid," he said, to his 55-year-old boss, "you're coming along all right. I think maybe you'll make the grade . . . of course, when you've been in baseball as long as I have, you'll be used to such things, but that's pretty good for a youngster" . . . "How long have you been in baseball, Torgy?" inquired a teammate . . . "Four years," Torgeson replied.

Howard Coward

The Braves have another far comedian, pitcher Red Barrett, but as a Boston writer explained: "Red is a good song and dance man; Torgy is natural . . . Barrett worked for a few weeks once as M. Cue at a Boston night spot, then received a $500 weekly offer to appear at the old Howard Theatre, Boston's famous burlesque house . . . Red turned it down flat with this explanation: "If I worked there, all next season the fans would be hollering, "Take it off, take it off, take it off."

Odds and Ends

When Rudy York, whose neglected cigaret caused a fire last summer, appeared at the Athletic clubhouse, the other A's presented him with a hand fire extinguisher . . . Dick Wakefield has been running around Lakeland with a "for sale" sign on his big, new automobile. "After the pay cut I took, I can't afford to keep it," Dick explains.

BURNED TO DEATH

Cornwall, March 13 — (CP) — Haley McCourt, 45, sole occupant of a small one-storey frame dwelling on the outskirts of this city, was burned to death last night when his home was destroyed by fire.

Fire Chief Cory Moore said no one apparently knew how the blaze started. Flames had progressed rapidly by the time the glare was first noticed by nearby residents, but the small building was a mass of glowing embers by the time fire equipment arrived at the scene.

Cornwall police said McCourt had no known relatives.

RUSSIAN CARTOONIST

Winnipeg — (CP) — Bohdan Bociurkiw, 23, a Ukrainian art student at the outbreak of the Second World War who spent four years in German concentration camps, now is in Winnipeg studying English. He hopes to earn a living by selling cartoons.

TO BUILD SHELTER

Sault Ste. Marie, March 13 — (CP)—The Humane Society plans to build a $2,000 animal shelter. It will have a veterinary office, operating room, feeding room and kennels.

Movie Star's Wife Member Of Congress

Hollywood, —(AP)—Melvyn Douglas is the only movie star married to a member of the United States Congress He views this distinction with pride, and with some misgivings, too. They seldom see one another.

Douglas works in Hollywood, Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Cal) in Washington. Both are deeply serious about their careers. Boh are avowed liberals. Conservatives were sticking the harpoon into Douglas 10 years ago—long before the Thomas committee went to work on Hollywood.

"Maintaining a household has its difficulties, in our case," said Melvyn. "The children (Peter, 13; Mary Helen, 9) are here with me, because they're in school. Mrs. Douglas manages now and then to arrange a weekend long enough for a flying trip home, but when she gets here official duties often keep her busy. We practically have to go out of the country to see each other."

"Out of the country" was two weeks spent in Mexico City, just before Douglas started his role in "The Long Denial." He definitely doesn't hold with visiting with her in Washington.

"I did once, but I couldn't take a steady diet of congressmen," he explained. "They acted like a pack of schoolboys."

Douglas thinks too many Americans are distressingly ill-informed about politics and the American systemn.

"In Japan, where the people are getting their first taste of democracy, I heard Japaneses ask American troops the simplest kind of questions about legislative and other procedures. It was appallinfg how often our boys couldn't answer them."

Douglas has directed and produced, as well as acted, on the stage. In 1946 when he finished four years in the army, he announced that he'd like to direct and produce for the screen. His first film project is indefinite, but he says it won't be a period piece. He doesn't like period pictures.

He also doesn't believe in financing ventures in which he works. Douglas was co-producer of the Broadway success, "Call Me Mister," but he says he didn't put any money into the show. "I figured my services were enough. A percentage deal—that's a different matter. I'm in favor of 'em."

AT THE BELLE — Cute Luana Patten, Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd in Walt Disney's comedy musical, "Fun and Fancy Free," in color by Technicolor. R.C.M.P. File 1365, "The Connor's Case," is the added feature attraction.

Played Roarin' Game By Light of Lantern

Yorkton, Sask., —(CP)— With bonspiels all over the country breaking entry records, curling is enjoying a popularity that has never been exceeded, but it is hard to imagine modern curlers having enough enthusiasm for the "roaring' game" that they would use wooden curling rocks or curl by the light of a stable lantern.

Yet that is just what was done back in 1907 in the small Saskatchewan town of Saltcoats.

At the official opening of the Yorkton, Sask., bonspiel recently Alderman Art McBurney heaved a five-pound, 41-year-old wooden rock down the ice and lost a nickel bet for failing to make the button.

Frank Garstone, who brought the wooden rock from Saltcoats, relates that it was washed up on the nearby lakeshore last spring and that it was one of 16 made in 1907 when the Saltcoats rock tossers curled on the lake by the light of stable lanterns.

Garstone says that the rock was made with a draw-knife and rasp by Jim Kerr, the village blacksmith. Kerr and two brother Scots made an after-dark raid on timber which the railway was using for bridge pilings.

The wooden rock was originally faced with a tin plate and to give it a keen surface was polished with stove lead.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, It's time for 3 cheers, William; the price of food has started down.

Three cheers, pop said, and ma said, I suppose it was bound to happen, because after all there's a scientific law that says whatever goes up must come down.

True enough, but the law doesn't say in whose lifetime the drop will occur, pop said, and ma said, Anyway, the tide has terned, and food is getting cheeper. I must say I was beginning to despair, but it just goes to show that everything is bound to come out in the end, she said.

But which end, that's the joker, pop said, and ma said, I must admit that for a long time it looked as if the upward spiral was here to stay. My barometer was Sunrise Blend coffee, and I watched it go up and up by proverbial leaps and bounds. The cashier at the market was as baffled as anybody elts. He assured me that he would mutch prefer greeting a row of smiling customers instead of avoiding a steddy procession of accusing glances. He kept saying that food was bound to come down, but I kept my eyes on Sunrise Blend coffee, and it didn't indicate anything of the kind. Day by day it soared, 2 and 3 and even 5 cents at a time, she said.

Maybe we should of tried some other brand, pop said, and ma said, Oh, they all told the same sad upward story. Why, I remember when Sunrise Blend was only 33 cents a pound, and do you know what it was yesterday? she said.

You better not tell me, pop said, and ma said, it was sixty two.

But yee gods. you said food was coming down, pop said, and ma said, And it's true. That was yesterday? But what do you think it was today? Only sixty one, she said.

Yee gods, give me air, pop said.

And he got behind the sporting page and stayed there.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BOHEMIAN WAXWING

Few of our birds are as irregular in their travels as the Bohemian Waxwing. The second word applies to the scarlet tips to the wings, that look exactly like tiny bits of red sealing wax. Therefore the entire name is most appropiate. Some people call it Wandering Chatterer, which suits equally well. Its presence is often betrayed by its lisping squeaks.

This is the Cedar Waxwing's slightly larger cousin, differentiated from the better known species by greyish rather than yellow underparts, white and yellow lines showing on the closed wings, and chestnut instead of cream at the tail roots; markings not noticeable except when the bird is at rest. Otherwise, the slick, fawny-brown coat, conspicuous crest, black bill, feet, and streaks about the face are identical.

The Bohemian Waxwing is to be found in the northern parts of our hemisphere in both the Old and the New Worlds. Northern Manitoba, the Mackenzie district, northern British Columbia, and the eastern slopes of the Rockies are its Canadian breeding grounds, and there it remains as long as the weather is not too cold and food is available.

When forced to move on, the wanderer follows the line of least resistance—appearing in flocks wherever the happy combination of moderate weather conditions and sufficient food to its taste may be discovered.

Its customary diet in summer is destructive insects and ripe fruit, mostly wild. When the wild varieties are not obtainable, the Waxwing gets into trouble with fruit growers, because although it does good service in ridding their farms of noxious insects, it steals the berries, and the cherries, its favorite fruit.

In winter flocks, sometimes numbering hundreds, suddenly arrive on the scene. But these visits are intermittent: it is impossible to forecast where the next mass invasion will take place. We can only say that it is usually settled sections of the country, where there are trees still carrying dried summer fruits, rowan berries, haws, choke-cherries, or the remains of apples.

In the last two years a few have been idenified mixed in with hundreds of Cedar Waxwings as far south as Maine, in July, feeding on red honeysuckle berries, and Nebraska in March, when hackberries were plentiful. Denver had a record number of 10,000 seen in February 1917. It is a common winter visitor in Alberta.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Oh, I'm so lost and bewildered myself. It's as if I'm in the world all alone. And so I'm going to my parents in Baltimore and taking Mike with me, of course. But I'll be back in a week. And if Michael wants Helene Kent, I neves want to see him again.

"I'm not angry, Lyle. Isn't it strange that I'm not angry? When you are torn and crushed, you haven't the strength to be angry. Forgive me for running away. And please write."

Slowly she put the note back in the envelope and looked around the living-room, her vision distorted by her tears. This room — Bonnie loved everything in it and every piece of furniture had been bought through struggle and sacrifice and then lovingly cared for. Funny that at a time like this she should notice the thin layer of dust over the tables and chairs. Bonnie had not been here today to dust....

Moving heavily, Michael gave her the note Bonnie had written him.

Lyle's heart was still wrung by the pathetic note Bonnie had left for her. Tears blinded her. When her sight cleared, she read:

"I know about you and Helene Kent, Michael. And I can't face you with it. I couldn't bear your pity for me.

"Did I fail in some way? I've searched myself and I can't see where I have. I've tried to be everything you wanted in a wife. No girl ever went into marriage with more faith and love and determination to make it a success than I. There are so many things I could say to you, bitter, accusing things. But I won't. They'd be futile. I didn't change. You did.

"And now you must make up your mind between us. Don't send for me to come back to you because you wan to be loyal. I don't want you unless you can be completely mine as you once were.

"I'm taking the baby with me, of course. You may write to me at my mother's. I don't want any scenes between us, Michael. If this is over, then I never want to see you again."

Lyle was proud of Bonnie. Thought there was heartbreak in every word of the two notes, there was dignity, too. No mention of money for Mike and herself. No words screaming injustice and infidelity and self-pity and hate. No reminders that she was the mother of his son and of her sacrifices and denials and work.

Lyle thought, "Bonnie who is so tiny is really so big."

Michael had lighted another cigarette.

"How did she know? Or is this the first time you've heard of it?"

"I knew. She had to tell somebody she trusted. She found a note in the pocket of your suit that she was sending out to be cleaned."

"Lyle couldn't believe yet that Bonnie was gone. Any moment now she expected her to step into the room, any moment she expected Mike to awaken and whimper and ask for water.

Michael said, "I'm in love with Helene, Lyle. You'll hate me for this. Everybody'll hate me for it. She came into the office one day to see her father and left at the same time I was going to lunch. We talked going down on the elevator and walked down the street together. We were both on our way to lunch and so we went together, That started it. I never meant for it to go far—to get beyond me. But it has...."

"But Bonnie...."

He winced. "I know. You don't have to remind me of my duty to her...."

"Duty? You loved her and married her and had a child, and now all you feel for her is duty! You're mad, Michael. No, not mad, blind. You can't break the ties of marriage as easily as this. They're the strongest ties in the world. You can't be selfish and think just fo your own emotions. I suppose all the time men see beautifully dressed, sophisticated, rich girls and are attracted to them. But they don't break up their homes for them! You and Bonnie are responsible for Mike. He's just a baby now but he won't always be. Do you want Mike to be sorry you're his father?"

"I have my own life to live, Lyle."

"But when you marry, you take another life into yours. Bonnie lived for you and thought for you. She didn't tell you she had her own life to live when you begged her to marry you."

"You won't be happy if you do this, Michael. You can't forget the years you and Bonnie have put in together. You can't forget Mike. Your love for him will defeat you if nothing else does. You won't be hurting just Bonnie In the end you'll be hurting yourself most. There are deep roots to yours and Bonnie's marriage, Michael."

"I know." Impatiently, shrinking at the truth...."Don't you think I've thought of all the things you're saying? Don't you think I know what Bonnie has been and what she's done?"

"And what she's done without uncomplainingly! She gave everything. In return she asked only that you go on loving her." Her voice stopped abruptly. It was tired when she spoke again. "She wouldn't want me to talk like this to you. She wouldn't want me to argue in her defense. In her note to you she said she didn't want you back unless you could be as completely hers as you once were. And you aren't. I haven't said anything about Helene Kent because I don't think she's very important. There are so many girls like her and so few like Bonnie."

Without a word or a glance Michael left her and went into the bedroom. Lyle stood very still. Bonnie's dresses were in the closet. Could he ignore them, feeling nothing? Could he ignore Mike's little bed and his toys. He was packing his things, she knew. Oh, he knew where to find everything. Bonnie lived in beautiful order.

He came out, carrying a heavy brown bag. At the door he paused and said ,"I'm going to a hotel," and named the hotel. "It's no use, Lyle. I'm prepared to face anything that comes. Tomorrow I'll see a lawyer."

"And take Bonnie into the divorce court. She'll go. She won't fight you. She won't ask for anything except Mike. She doesn't want you if you don't want her." Suddenly she wanted to scream at him and shake him....

"I'll write to her. And — and stick by her, Lyle. I know you will."

"You'll eat your heart over this, Michael."

He closed the door. She heard him walking down the hall. For quite some time she just stood, shaking. She wanted Jeff. And tonight was the night she had happily planned to turn her bedroom into a studio and begin the work for Mrs. Nash. She thought, "I can't work tonight. Not tonight."

Later she tried to write to Bonnie but it seemed hours before the letter was finished. She wrote, "I'm sorry but it is true. Michael left tonight and said that he would write to you," and added words of comfort which she knew would not comfort. And thought of Bonnie at her mother's home in Baltimore staring wide-eyed and dry-eyed into darkness and emptiness with Mike curled up beside her, sleeping sweetly.....

In the morning she hurried from the silence of the apartment. Her hand shook and her head throbbed all through the long morning.

Late that afternoon Suzanne sent for her.

"Stephen wants to see you in his office at once, Lyle." Stephen's voice had been clipped and sharp when he had called, saying "Send Lyle up to my office immediately."

Outside the door of Stephen's office she hesitated, puzzled. But it was absurd to fear that something was wrong. Looking down at herself, she was glad she had worn the green wool dress, her newest dress, and the tall-heeled brown pumps. As if Stephen would notice....

She saw Stephen first, sitting at his desk. Then she saw Jeff, standing by the window. Jeff! But there was no joy in his face when he saw her. And Stephen's mouth was stern.

Stephen said, "Sit down, Lyle."

It was a command. Lyle sat down, unable to see Jeff now. Why didn't he speak to her? Why had he come back so soon?

Despite his anger and disgust. Stephen saw the questions in her eyes. But she was not appealing to Jeff to answer them. She was appealing to him. And he would answer them, every one of them, difficult as it would be.

He leaned forward. "This is bad news for you, Lyle, I'm sorry."

Jeff stepped before her.

"I'll tell you, Lyle! I've just been fired! Steve's just fired me. For drinking in Chicago."

Stephen's blue eyes blazed. "For drinking and for breaking up hotel furniture! For making a spectacle of yourself and disgracing your self and the organization you work for! You misunderstood your mission to Chicago, Jeff. You weren't to go on a spree! You were sent there on business. And I pulled strings to get that assignment for you. I talked you up! You've failed me and you've failed Lyle."

Lyle caught Jef's hand. "Jeff, you didn't...."

"I did. I—I went haywire. Too happy, I guess. Had to celebrate. I didn't realize." His eyes begged her not to be harsh with him. "I made a fool of myself. I've told Steve I was sorry, that it wouldn't happen again. He won't listen." He bit into his lip angrily. "Stephen, our good friend, who's just fired me, who won't give me another chance!"

Stephen thought, "Another chance? I've lost count of the chances I've given you, the excuses I've made for you, the lies I've told for you. You think you can get away with anything and I'll make it all right. But this time I'm not going to make it all right. This time you're out on your own."

Still Stephen spoke with heat. "No. I won't give you another chance. Even if I wanted to, I don't think I could. This goes beyond my power. If there had been the faintest excuse for your going haywire....If there had been a party....You're not a college boy Jeff. You're a business man. I won't change my mind." He saw Lyle still holding Jeff's hand. "You're finished here. Go out and get a job and be worthy of her." He thought, "You'll never stand alone as long as you depend upon our old friendship."

Jef gripped Lyle's hand, said coldly, "Very well. There are other jobs, better jobs. But if I'm finished here, you and I are finished as friends, Steve. In the showdown you proved that the store means more to you than your friends."

"You're talking like a child."

"Oh, am I? And when I go, Lyle goes with me. The organization that won't have me can't have her. She's not going to work for you!"

They gave Lyle no opportunity to speak.

Stephen said bitingly, "That's brilliant of you, Jeff, very brilliant, taking her into unemployment with you. It's a small and spiteful gesture. Here she has opportunity and friends, people who are really interested in her. She's young and inexperienced. Such an opportunity isn't likely to come to her again. Don't cripple her because you've crippled yourself. Taking her is a poor way of getting back at me for letting you out. Don't hurt what you love."

He wondered if she would leave if Jeff insisted. Her face had told him nothing except shock at first, then bewilderment, and now sadness at two friends parting. She thought he was being harsh with Jeff. Would they, too, he and Lyle, cease to meet as friends after today? Perhaps she would never come again to the Connecticut house. And last night he had planned to call her tonight and take her dancing one night this week....

"Suppose you let Lyle speak for herself, Jeff."

Her heart stood still. Jeff gripped her hand again, more tightly. And because lal during the trying interview she had not once looked at him, she tilted her head and looked at him. He smiled.

Stephen thought, "What are you going to do with a girl like that? She lets her future hang in a balance while she smiles at him and in that smile shuts out everything except him?"

Here was Stephen, Lyle thought powerful and important. And here was Jeff whom she loved — defeated. And here was the job she loved and on which so much depended—not only her living but the small deserved luxuries for her mother and her debt to Uncle John. And the memory of last summer's search for work, the endless walking, the indifference and rudeness, was still too vivid.

DO YOU NEED A CHECK-UP?
Most machinery and most people need to have a check-up periodically. Those who take good care of themselves and their property feel responsible, and that responsibility extends to protection in the event of loss. Insurance needs to have a "check-up" periodically too.

Solunar Tables:
Spring Nature Study

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(noted sportsmen, auther and crealer of Solunar Tables)

While March weather is notoriously bad in most parts of the United States and Canada, at least the bitterly cold days are behind us, except in the more Northern latitudes. In the South, a great many of the States are beginning to recognize the fact that there is such a thing as spawning season, and the black bass is being given some protection when he needs it most. Those who are fortunate enough to live within reach of salt water have no problem in finding outdoor activities during March, but the inland sportsmen are pretty much at loose ends this time of year.

Of course, trout season is just around the corner. In Tennessee and Missouri the season comes in early, March 1st, and in Texas you can fish for rainbow when you wish, there being no closed season (at least, there wasn't in 1947) but most of us must be content to get our tackle in shape and count the days on the calendar.

We, my son and I, have our annual spring job on our hands—checking the Solunar Tables. Of course, the schedule is calculated by using a set formula, but we feel that it is wise to check our figures against the behavior of animals, birds and fish to make sure that our forecasts are accurate. We do this, to some extent, during the winter months, but March is a better time. The occasional warm days of March bring the early migrants from the South. The smaller animals no longer spend so much time in burrows. Now and again the warm rays of the sun bring out early insects hatches and the trout in our streams respond in great shape, regardless of the low water temperatures.

Usually we take our shotguns with us. We are strong believers in vermin control and one day is a good as another for the elimination of predators. Then,too, we feel that a man is more alert and sees a great deal more if he carries a gun. Aimless wandering in the woods and fields generally is not very productive.

It goes without saying that you can see a great deal more of wildlife if you don't move about too much and make little or no noise. We try to find good vantage points where we can sit comfortably and watch what goes on about us. Even though you make a considerable racket going to your chosen spot, as soon as you are quiet the small animals and birds will forget about you and take up matters where they left off when you alarmed them.

It must be remembered that in the spring wildfire is far less active than it is later on in the summer. The hibernators, such as the woodchucks and chipmunks, are just emerging from their long winter's sleep. Having been dormant all winter, their excursions above ground are brief. Thus, it is during the Solunar Periods, when all Nature is most active, that these little fellows are likely to be in evidence. In the trees, a great many of the insects are still in winter quarters under the crevases of the bark and it is interesting to watch the birds who are winter residents finding and making a meal of this ready food supply.

If you are lucky, you may find a rabbit's nest. Contrary to a surprisingly common opinion, cottontail rabbits do not raise their young in burrows in the ground. Instead , they choose a well-drained area, as a rule with Southern exposure so the nest will have plenty of sun, and there, in the shelter of some convenient grass or shrubbery, the female makes a hollow excavation, lining it with fur and dry leaves and keeping it carefully covered with dried grass. While she visits her nest as a rule only at night, she will show up now and then during the major Solunar Periods.

In the air the winged predators are searching out their prey. Once in a while you can spot a fox busily working out a meadow in search of field mice and meadow rats. If you sit quietly, there is always the off chance that you may be fortunate enough to use your shotgun in the elimination of one of the harmful hawks.

Now and then the unexpected will happen during a Solunar period in early Spring. One March evening my son and I were seated on a high bank overlooking a pool in one of our larger trout streams. The singing grounds of several woodcock were nearby and we wanted to watch the aerial acrobatics of these little birds. As the Solunar Period became established, a surprisingly heavy hatch of insects began to drift down out of the riffle and the trout, in water that was still under forty degrees, fed to that hatch with mid-season enthusiasm —and trout season still a good three weeks away.

Things are apt to be pretty quiet in the outdoors on a day in early Spring unless there is a Solunar Period in progress. However, it is on such days that the effects of the Solunar Periods can be seen most clearly because the contrast between inactivity and activity is so much more sharply defined than it is later in the year. Look over your Solunar Tables and choose a day when a major Solunar Period occurs shortly after midday, while the sun is still high. Take your gun or your field glasses or both and find a comfortable vantage point along the edge of a wood lot. Be sure to arrive there and get comfortably seated before the Solu- watch what goes on. You will find it an extremely pleasant way to spend the afternoon.

Toronto Blues Meet Dartmouth For Hockey Title

Toronto, March 13 — (CP) — University of Toronto Blues, Canadian senior college champions, leave today to meet Dartmouth University Monday for the International Intercollegiate hockey title in Boston, where their coach's life once hung in the balance for days in one of the game's most serious accidents.

Coach Irvin (Ace) Bailey takes his powerful Toronto squad to the scene where he suffered a skull-fracture when accidentally tripped by Boston's former defence star Eddie Shore in a National Hockey League game between the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs in 1933.

Bailey lay unconscious for several days while doctors operated twice before pronouncing him out of danger. That ended his hockey playing days but he returned to take part in the game when he became coach of the Blues seven years ago.

In 1940, his first year as pilot of the Blues, they won the Canadian title and then went on to take for the first time in the school's history, the Thompson Cup — emblematic of Canadian-United States college hockey supremacy.

A United States college team has yet to hold the title since the competition first began in 1937. Last year, in the renewal of the pre-war competition, the international game ended in a scoreless draw leaving Toronto holding the title since its 1940 win.

Confident of Victory

Ace hopes the present sudden-death game between Canadian and American college titlists will develop into a seven-team international loop. The present four Canadian outfits — University of Toronto, McGill, Queens and University of Montreal — would join with Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth.

With the five scoring leaders of the intercollegiate loop on his roster, Bailey is confident of victory against Dartmouth on Monday but doesn't expect to see any more two-figure pre-war scores that were once common against U. S. college clubs.

The Blues will be playing under American college rules which eliminate the centre red line and blocking in centre-ice

Canadian senior intercollegiate titlists in 19 of the league's 37 years, the Blues have an imposing record this year with two losses in 12 league games and 98 goals scored while holding the opposition to 4. Bob Henry and Don Bark, wings on a line centred by play-maker Cec Turcott, led the loop with 29 points each while team - captain Ed Cryzanowski was high-scoring defenceman.

Bob LaRose pairs with Cryzanowski and Don Saunders in goal to complete Toronto's best defence combination. Centre Harry Boyd teamed with Warren Winslow and Harry Johnston comprise the second line and Gord Ecclestone working with Wilf Digby complete another powerful defence duo.

Jack and Greco Meet in Montreal In Ten-Rounder

(By The Canadian Press)

Beau Jack and Johnny Greco who have tangled twice before, will meet in a 10-rounder at Montreal Forum April 9, promoter Raoul Goddbout of Montreal announced yesterday. He said Jack, making his first Canadian appearance, has been given a $17,500 guarantee.

Decision on admitting the Pacific Coast Hockey League to full professional league status was reserved yesterday by the three pro leagues operating in Canada and the United States. The P.C.H.L. comprising 10 teams—eight in the United States and two in British Columbia—made its application "for full recognition" to the National, American and United States Hockey Leagues at a meeting in Pittsburgh.

Variations in United States state laws make it difficult to enforce rules barring gamblers from hockey arenas says Clarence Campbell, President of the National Hockey League.

However, the N.H.L. executive said in an interview at Pittsburgh yesterday that everything will be done to prevent recurrence of the recent gambling scandal which resulted in expulsion of one player and suspension of another.

"I am satisfied that the league's regulations are adequate and absolute in providing for expulsion for proof of gambling by players," said Campbell.

The top indoor track event in Ontario—the 23rd annual games sponsored by the 91st Highlanders of Hamilton—takes place tomorrow night with 462 entries, the largest list in its history.

Guelph city council yesterday decided to expend $35,000 for installation of floodlights at Exhibition Park, home of the senior baseball Guelph Leafs. Installation of the lights will be made in such a way that football, soccer and other events may also be made night attractions.

Rewards for the safe return of Calgary-born Jockey Al Snider and two fishing companions one a Toronto man, missing in the Florida Keys since Friday, reached $15,500 yesterday. Earlier, three friends had offered $5,000 if they were found alive and an additional $500 was offered to anyone locating the 16-foot boat they were using when last seen.

They had to revise the record books of the Industrial Bowling League at Woodstock Thursday night following the record-smashing pin performance of Jim McKay, sports editor of the Sentinel-Review. McKay put together scores of 386-299-368 for a new local mark of 1,053 for three games.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night that Barbara Ann Scott—figure skating champion and ambassador at large—provided the expression of the people's freedom of Canada.

Guest at Ottawa's Minto Skating Club dinner for Barbara Ann, the Prime Minister likened the 19-year-old beauty to Kipling's "Lady of the Snows" and said she presented what was highest and best in the world.

Mrs. H. W. Meikle's Morrisburg, Ont., rink and a quarter from Hamilton, led by Mrs. S. C. Douglas forged ahead in opening round matches of the annual mixed bonspiel at Seigniory Club, Que., each foursome took the maximum plus score of 10 points.

5 Lives Lost in Weekend Fires in Montreal

Worst Outbreak In Thirty Years, Says Fire Official

Liquid Air Plant Undamaged Damage Over Million Dollars,

Montreal, March 15. (CP)—A series of weekend fires in the Montreal area cost five lives and the damage soared above the $1,000,000-mark today as flames destroyed a northeast end paper box factory.

No lives were lost in today's blaze but one fireman was slightly injured. The fire destroyed E. Talbot's factory on Rouen Street and for a time threatened an adjoining plant of Canadian Liquid Air Company.

A third alarm was turned in before the factory fire was brought under control. A fire department official said, "if it had ever touched that liquid air the whole Maisonneuve district would have been gone".

The series of seven fires, all but one within Montreal proper, was described by Acting Director Anselme Fillion as "the worst weekend in my 30 years of fire-fighting".

Three Children Die

Three children were burned to death in a fire at Coteau Rouge across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, Saturday morning while two firemen were killed and four injured in a fire in the downtown part of the city early Saturday night.

The fires with estimated loss were:

E. Talbot Paper Box factory, $200,000.

Victoria Tire Shop, two firemen dead, four injured, $100,000.

Jacques Cartier Normal school $500,000.

Latreille Garage, a plastic factory and five homes, seven persons injured, $200,000.

A home in suburban Coteau Rouge, three small children dead.

A three-storey house on Colonial Avenue, $25,000.

Five sheds on east-end Orleans Street, $25,000.

Dead were: Fire Lieut. Ernest Cyr and fireman Alphone Hamelin, who were caught under a crumbling wall at the tire shop fire; and three children of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Collard, Huguette 5, Pierre, 3, and Cyrille, 1—who were trapped in their small frame Coteau Rouge cottage.

About 10 persons, including four firemen received minor injuries.

Tweed Beverage Room Vote Ruled Invalid

Residents of the village of Tweed today face their second local option vote in months as Judge J. C. Anderson in giving judgment on the application of Ed. J. Courneya, Tweed hotel proprietor, for a second vote on the beverage room question, ruled the vote of last November as being invalid.

Court hearing on the application was held several weeks ago with Judge Anderson reserving judgment which was given on Saturday. The matter of holding a second vote will be decided by Tweed municipal officials.

As a result of the vote last Fall the liquor store and beer warehouse questions were carried but the question of the beverage room failed by only six votes to obtain the necessary majority to carry.

In the application for a second vote on the beverage room question the applicant charged irregularities in voting procedure, but in his reasons for judgment Judge Anderson found the vote invalid because of a number of voters whose names were not on the voters' list who had cast their ballots without being first properly sworn.

Irregularities found in voting procedure, with the exception of Section 95, sub-section 2 of the Election Act, were found would not, taken individually, violate the principles of the Act.

"However these acts of irregularity taken together with the fact that the evidence clearly establishes that a number of votes were cast by persons whose names were not on the voters' list and who were not required to comply strictly with the requirements of Section 95-2 of the Election Act before being allowed to vote, makes me have no hesitation in finding that the vote on the question "Are you in favor of the sale of beer under a public house licence for the consumption on licenced premises to which men only are admitted is invalid and therefore must be set aside."

There were no costs assessed in the application.

Explosion Kills Six Workmen

Louisville, Ky., March 15 — (AP)— Six workmen were killed and at least 26 others were injured here today in an explosion at the big plant of the International Harvester Farm Equipment Company.

Cause of the explosion had not been determined hours after the blast demolished a 150 by 75-foot brick and steel building in which engines made in the nearby main plant were tested.

Normally about 56 of the company's 4,000 employees worked in the test building but the explosion took place just as the night shift was leaving and the day shift was arriving so officials were not sure how many men were in the building at the time.

Fire followed the blast but was soon extinguished by firemen. Police and volunteers aided the firemen in rescue work which was hampered by intense heat and the fact that the basement of the building was flooded.

There were two 5,000 gallon fuel tanks under the test building but firemen said they apparently did not explode as first reported.

Couple Flee Czechoslovak Homeland, Wife Tells Thrilling Story of Journey

(Editor's Note: Scores of Czechs fleeing from the Communist-led regime in their homeland are turning up in the American occupation zone in Germany in the area of Hof. This is the story of a woman refugee, written under a pseudonym to prevent possible retaliation against her relatives still in Czechoslovakia. She related it to Associated Press Correspondent James Devlin.

By MLADA CZECHOVA

Hof, Germany, March 15 (AP) —I am a Czech refugee. My husband and I fled to the United States zone of Germany at the risk of our lives rather than live under the new Communist regime.

We crossed the border at night. It was an experience we never will forget. We might have been shot by border guards. If we had been captured we would have been subject to prison terms of from five to 20 years. From our home in central Czechoslovakia, far from the border, we journeyed to Prague by train, and then to Asch, near the U. S. zone border, by automobile.

From Asche, we had to take a bus to another place which I think it best not to name. A policeman boarded the bus and wanted to see everybody's identity papers. My husband said he had come on business, and gave the name of a nearby factory. The policeman hesitated a moment. Then, apparently convinced, he moved on.

When we alighted from the bus it was dark. We met somebody who was to show us a secret way across the frontier. As we walked stealthily across a field in the dark we saw the rays of a flashlight. We all dropped to the ground until the light disappeared.

A short time later in a wooded area, we heard the clicking noise of somebody loading a gun. Again we dropped to the ground.

Finally our guide told us we were in Germany. But our worries had only begun.

We walked up to a window of a farmhouse and heard a radio. The announcer's voice was Czech.

"All this trouble and we are back in Czechoslovakia," we told each other.

We walked quickly away and started down another road. Then two men challenged us. We gave up hope but they turned out to be German frontier guards.

The Germans turned us over to some American soldiers, who sent us to Moschendorf refugee camp at Hof.

36 FATALITIES IN THREE-DAY ARAB-JEW BATTLE

Jews Strive to Lift Siege of Gath

Jerusalem, March 15 (AP) — The fiercest battle yet waged in the sands of southern Palestine was reported in its third day today with Jewish and Arab fatalities already 36.

Mired by mud and slowed by driving rains, Jewish forces were said by a Hagana informant to have driven a wedge to the aid of the beleaguered settlement of Gath.

The death toll in the battle so far, a Hagana version quoted by the Palestine Post said, is 28 Arabs and eight Jews.

Hagana is the militia of the agency. The Palestine Post is an English-language daily published by a Jewish firm.

Hagana sources said forces rushing to lift the Arab siege of Gath had blasted the municipal building, post office and eight stores and houses in the Arab village of El Faluja. This is about 20 miles northeast of Gaza in the Negeb—southern desert.

$120,000 Damage

The Palestine government estimated damage from the El Faluja bombings at $120,000.

Arab-Jewish clashes during the weekend ranged from the southern desert to the northern domain claimed by Fawzi Bey Al Kaukji's Arab volunteer army.

Such clashes have been frequent since the United Nations Assembly recommended last Nov. 29 that Palestine be split into Jewish and Arab states.

Police said Jews blew up a bridge yesterday on a road linking Haifa, Jenin and Tiberias, stopping traffic among the cities. They placed the blast only a few miles from Kaukji's headquarters, for which he has proclaimed martial law in effect over all Northern Palestine.

A correspondent with the Arab volunteer army reported its new military courts began a purge yesterday of Arabs charged with dealing with the Jews. He said 100 Arabs are on a list to be hunted down tried and, if convicted, hanged.

Check Departing Jews

A Jewish agency spokesman, reporting on Hagana efforts to keep Jewish manpower in Palestine for defence, said Hagana guards watch travel agencies for Jews 17 to 45 trying to book space on airplanes leaving the Holy Land. If they can not persuade the prospective travellers to stay in Palestine, he said, they use "stronger measures".

"We consider the Jews in Pal-

Ilsley Protests Editorial On Hong Kong Findings

Ottawa, March 15 (CP)—Justice Minister Ilsley last night issued a statement of protest against a front page editorial published by the Toronto Globe and Mail on March 12 which criticized the 1942 Hong Kong Royal Commission report of Sir Lyman P. Duff, then Chief Justice of Canada.

Mr. Ilsley's statement said that if newspaper editors "are to use language like this with reference to judicial finding the effect will be to weaken respect for the administration of law and bring the judiciary into contempt."

The 600-word Globe and Mail, prominently displayed on its front page and headed "Guilty on All Counts," commented on the tabling in the Commons March 10 of evidence taken at the Hong Kong inquiry.

It said the evidence was "directly contrary to the findings of Commissioner Sir Lyman P. Duff," and added: "The case is perfectly clear. The Prime Minister of Canada, and those of his government who have known the facts, are guilty of sending into a known theatre of possible war a force which was untrained for war and unequipped for active service, no matter how well trained it might have been. The Prime Minister and his government are also guilty of using emergency powers to hide the truth for nearly six years."

The Statement

Mr. Ilsley's statement follows.

In an editorial last Friday on the Hong Kong inquiry, the Toronto Globe and Mail, after referring to what it calls the "facts," said: "All these facts were disregarded by the commissioner in his report, and his findings were false on the four points at issue." It is hard to conceive of a more irresponsible and reprehensible statement.

With incredible assurance and conceit the writer of the editorial pits his capacity as a judge against that of the Royal Commissioner, who, as everyone knows, was the right honorable Sir Lyman Duff, Chief Justice of Canada. At the time of the inquiry, Sir Lyman, had been 38 years on the bench. One can say without fear of contradiction that he was the most distinguished jurist Canada had ever had. He was a member of the judicial committee of the Privy Council. His reputation extended far beyond the limits of Canada and he was held in the highest respect in every country where the rule of law obtains.

To say that the report of such a man is false is irresponsible. Who was likely to weigh the evidence more competently, to draw the sounder conclusions from the evidence, a commissioner of this calibre or the writer of The Globe and Mail editorials? But apart altogether from the weight to be attached to the editor's conclusions, is he entitled to accuse the commissioner of falsity in his findings? In newspaper editors are to use language like this with reference to judicial findings, the effect will be to weaken respect for the administration of law and bring the judiciary into contempt. It is this consideration which prompts me as minister of justice to protest. Fortunately the newspaper attack in this case will do little harm. The position and reputation of Sir Lyman Duff is so secure in the minds and hearts of Canadians as to be unassailable. The intemperate and discreditable attack on him by The Globe and Mail defeats itself.

Houses of Parliament And Whitehall Offices Affected by Strike

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 15 — (CP) — Portly Members of Parliament and elderly peers today puffed up the wide stone stairways of the Houses of Commons and Lords because all but two elevators in both buildings had been rendered idle by a strike of 1,200 engineering attendants in government buildings.

The strike additionally affected elevators, hot water and heating systems in all Whitehall offices. Mild weather, however, dispelled discomfort in the ministries.

The strike was organized by a central committee including members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, the Transport and General Workers Union and the Enginemen's Firemen's Union. But none of the unions has given official support to the strike so far.

The workers are pressing claims for a wage increase from £ 17s 6d ($19.52) to £5 10s per week. They say negotiations for this increase started 18 months ago, have been foiled by treasury officials.

Wash in Cold Water

Besides the peers and the M. P.'s, high - ranking officers of the Admiralty and War Office as well as officials of all ministries had not only to trudge up flights of stairs but wash in cold water.

The strikers claimed that heat and hot water were cut off at Buckingham Palace but this was denied by palace employees who also said that elevators in the palace could not be affected because they are automatic.

"Whatever happens," an elderly white-haired retainer told The Canadian Press, "you can be sure there are very few people at the Palace which would walk out on the King and Queen . . . They're much too nice to be mixed up in this sort of thing."

14 Stokers Fail to Report

At headquarters of the central strike committee, however, it was stated that 14 stokers had failed to report for duty today at the palace. The King and Queen and Princess Margaret have not yet returned from a weekend at Windsor and Princess Elizabeth since her marriage has been living at Kensington Palace.

"In any case we are not anxious to cause any hardship to the Royal Family," a strikers official said.

"We regard them as being above politics. Our action is directed solely at government officials and we've already made some of them pretty uncomfortable."

Pickets parading outside the House of Lords displayed yellow banners inscribed "M.P.'s £1,000 per year, engineer attendants four pounds 17 and sixpence," "End tyranny in the treasury," and "Stop freezing the poor man's wages.

The men struck yesterday at the Palace, both Houses of Parliament and other government buildings in protest against a treasury refusal to increase their present weekly wage of £4 17s 6d ($19.50) to £5 10s ($22).

Pickets were posted at government buildings. Generating plants stopped at the law courts, and boilermen at the War Office joined the strike early today. Fourteen assistant engineers failed to turn up for duty at the Palace.

King and Queen at Windsor

The King and Queen were not in residence, but were expected back later today after spending a weekend at Windsor Castle in Berkshire.

The stoppage so far is unofficial. Most of the men belong to the power workers group of the Transport and General Workers Union, which put forward claims for a wage increase.

The men's leader, J. Glenn, declared that the treasury was "hiding behind" the recent government announcement calling for the pegging of wages. He estimated that about 1,200 men were on strike.

PAPER BOX FACTORY DESTROYED

Montreal, March 15 (CP)—Fire destroyed the three-storey paper box factory of E. Talbot on northeast end Rouen Street today causing damage estimated at $200,000. One fireman suffered slight injuries.

The blaze, for a time threatened the nearby building of Canadian Liquid Air Company but firemen were successful in preventing its

EUROPEAN AID BILL PASSES U.S. SENATE

Bolsters W. Europe Against Collapse

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, March 15 —(AP) —Safely through the Senate, the $5,300,000,000 European Aid Program today moved toward quick challenges in the House of Representatives.

The pressure for speed is on— to bolster Western Europe with billions against Communism and collapse.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is in good shape to put on speed. While the Senate has been arguing and voting, the committee has been digging deeply into the whole foreign aid problem.

Now it is all set for a series of showdown tests. It assembled today for its first official look at the Marshall Plan bill which the Senate passed by a 69-to-17 vote early yesterday morning

Influential members see a possibility the Foreign Affairs Committee may approve a bill by Wednesday and drive to House passage by Easter, March 23.

April 1st is Date Planned

The Truman administration wants to start the European program April 1, for the 16 countries which have agreed to help themselves and each other. What the Senate voted was authority to spend $5,300,000,000 the first year. The money has to be supplied later in a separate appropriation bill.

However, the Senate measure would let the Reconstruction Finance Corporation put up $1,000,000,000 to get the Marshall Plan into immediate operation.

The administration particularly wants to have the program going by the time the Italian election campaign gets well under way. The Communists are determined to make a show of strength in the voting there April 18.

There is general agreement in the House that the Foreign Aid Bill can be passed with time to spare before the deadline in Italy. Yet there are possibilities for delay.

Attempts probably will be made to cut the amount of aid and to set up a different system than the Senate proposes for managing it.

In addition to the European recovery program, the administration has asked for $275,000,000 in additional military assistance for Greece and Turkey.

Marshall also has asked for $570,000,000 in economic — not military — help for China.

Game and Fish Groups Present Many Resolutions to Preserve Wildlife

Toronto, March 15 — (CP) — Recommendations from various Ontario game and fish organizations, chiefly with a view to preserving and increasing fish population, were presented today to the legislature committee on fish and game, under chairmanship of John A. Pringle (PC — Addington)

The gist of many of the resolutions was covered in one from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters:

"This federation eyes with alarm the future of our wildlife resources and calls upon the government to adopt without delay every possible safeguard against a threatening calamity."

It asked legislation to keep the annual issuance of non-resident fish and game licences within reasonable limitations so as to conform with the supply of fish and game.

This, it said, should be ascertained as nearly as possible by a general census.

Areas already depleted should be closed along with areas threatened with depletion.

Presented by H. V. Sutton of Windsor, president of the federation, the brief also suggested that game overseers be moved periodically to new districts in order that they will not be faced with the embarrassing position of having to prosecute relatives and friends.

Uncontrolled use of aircraft for hunting and fishing was deplored. It was suggested that no aircraft be allowed to proceed beyond Moosonee or Moose Factory for the purpose of hunting wild water-fowl.

Other suggestions were for uniformity of angling regulations on both sides of the St. Lawrence in New York State and Ontario, and banning of any airplane travel into Ontario provincial parks except on official duty.

The North Bay - Sudbury - Sault Ste. Marie zone of the federation asked for clarification and strengthening of laws governing pollution with a view to preventing spread of this "injurious practice."

The brief, presented by Ken Clarke of Copper Cliff, president of the zone, suggested that research be extended to include yearly studies in waters within areas in which long-term cyclic pulp-cutting operations are being practised. This would be to determine the effect of such operations on fish life. Mr. Clarke said black bass numbers were dwindling in some areas and the research might determine the relation between cutting and the depletion.

Applies to Those Deemed Unsuitable For Secret Work

Members Fascist Groups Also Included in Order

London, March 15. (Reuters) Prime Minister Attlee announced in the House of Commons today that the British Government had decided not to employ anyone known to be a member of the Communist Party in work "vital to the security of the State".

"The same rule will govern those known to be actively associated with Fascist organizations," Attlee said. A person in any way associated with the Communist Party "in such a way as to raise legitimate doubts about his or her reliability" would also come under the order.

"As far as possible alternative employment on the wide range of non-secret government work will be found for those who are deemed to be unsuitable for secret work".

Minister's Responsibility

He declared that the various ministers "must take responsibility for their departments in this matter" and added:

"The general principle covers all those in the service of the state where secrecy is involved."

John Platts-Mills, an extreme left wing labor member, interrupted to challenge the government decision, asking:

"Beginning this purge with Communists, is there any reason why you should not go on to Jews and Socialists?"

"Yes," Attlee replied, "every reason, because Jews and Socialists have a loyalty to this country. It is not so with many Communists—and some fellow travellers."

If jobs within the civil service could not be found for persons with specialist qualifications. Attlee continued, "there may be no alternative to refusal of employment or dismissal."

"It is not suggested that in matters affecting the security of the state all those who adhere to the Communist party would allow themselves to forget their primary loyalty to the state."

Roars of Protest

There were angry roars from members of both sides of the House when during Attlee's statement, William Gallagher, one of the two Communist members in the Commons, began to sing "The Red Flag."

Attlee said experience in Britain and elsewhere had shown that "membership of, and other forms of continuing association with, the Communist party may involve the acceptance by the individual of a loyalty which in certain circumstances can be inimical to the state."

Barbara Ann Will Visit Legislature During Visit

Toronto, March 15 — (CP) — Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's figure skating queen, today was scheduled to make her second appearance as an honored guest in the Ontario Legislature.

The program called for her to be greeted at the provincial parliament buildings by Premier Drew and members of his cabinet and to be introduced to the House by the Premier.

The 19-year-old Ottawan rested after a triumphant weekend during which she acknowledged the cheers of 50,000 persons at a civic reception and later received the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy for the second time.

The Olympic champion will be here until Thursday for appearances at the Toronto Skating Clubs' annual carnival.

The little skater appeared greatly moved by the warmth of citizens' acclaim Saturday and she gave one indication of her appreciation by planting a big kiss on the cheek of Mayor Hiram McCallum.

"I feel Toronto is my second home," she told crowds who gathered to cheer her at city hall after she drove under a shower of ticker tape through sunlit downtown streets. "I appreciate very much the fact that you all came out today."

Greater formality marked the dinner at which she received the trophy awarded annually to Canada's outstanding athlete in memory of the late sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star.

"I can't think of any other trophy I would rather win," she said in her speech of thanks. "I hope the spirit of Lou Marsh will follow and guide me always."

FLOCK OF WILD GEESE SEEN OVER CITY

Even the wild geese are slightly undecided as to whether it is actually spring!

At least that is the inference taken by a number of city residents who this morning noted a flock of wild geese, numbering 33 birds, which for approximately 15 minutes was seen to circle over the city and the Bay of Quinte. Old timers stated the geese may have been searching for open water.

Police Blotter

Two Radios Reported Stolen From Cars

Car radio thieves were active over the weekend according to complaints received by police from two different parties who lost radios from their cars.

Richard Burrows, operator of a Front St. used car lot reported that a radio had been stolen from one of the vehicles parked on the lot, while Harry Irvine reported he had left his car parked on Pinnacle Street while he went to the arena. The next day he noted that his car radio had been stolen.

Splasher Licence Noted

Splashers were again active over the weekend with two residents protesting that their clothes had been ruined as passing cars splashed muddy water on them. One of the complainants noted the licence number and the driver of a local taxi firm will be called upon to pay dry cleaning charges. The other complainant, a Charlotte Street woman, was not so fortunate as in consternation over her splashed clothes she omitted to note the licence number of the offending vehicle.

This morning a College Street resident reported a dog stranded on a floating piece of ice in the Moira River near the College St. bridge. Firemen were contacted but on their arrival at the scene the dog in question had disappeared, apparently having made his way unaided to the river bank.

46 Confirmed By Bishop Lyons At Christ Church

The rites of confirmation were administered at the evening service in Christ Church yesterday by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, in his annual visitation to the church.

Forty-six persons, most of them adult, were confirmed in this pre-communion service. Prior to this service, the confirmees had received instructions from Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

The Rector was assisted in the very appropiate service by Rev. Everett Smith and Mr. George Meades. The choir sang a chorale from "The St. John's Passion" for the anthem.

Bishop Lyons delivered the sermon in which he dealt with the Confirmation service and the duties of those newly confirmed to the church.

Following the service, Bishop and Mrs. Lyons were entertained by the Rector and his wife at the rectory, 44 Everett Street.

Mock Parliament Features Meeting

A mock parliament featured the regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association held in the auditorium of the school when "Fathers Night" was observed. The program was in charge of Mr. Taylor Franklin. There was a large attendance of parents and teachers.

Short business meeting was conducted by president, Mrs. Taylor Franklin with reports of the secretary and treasurer being heard. Mrs. MacDonald gave a report on the services made possible by the Homemakers' Service of the Red Cross.

Members of the board of education formally accepted from Mrs. Franklin a number of items which had been purchased by the Home and School Association for use in Queen Mary School. Miss Tickell, representing the Board of Education, expressed appreciation to the association and wished the organization every success.

Those Taking Part

Taking part in the Mock Parliament were Arnold Campbell as Governor-General; Russell Wotten as the Speaker of the House; Harold Mott as Prime Minister and Alex Nathan as leader of the opposition. Clerk of the Assembly was Arthur Clare; Sergeant-at-Arms, Don Ferguson and chairman of the committee of the whole House, Dan Stewart.

Other members of the association participating include Mrs. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. Harold Croll, Ray Poste, Arthur Burke, Larry Hopkins, Oscar Wagar. Lyle Pringle acted as Minister of Supply.

The various debates and reading of the different parliamentary bills provoked considerably humor —and were greatly enjoyed by members of the association attending the meeting. A short film entitled "After Six O'Clock" was shown. Attendance banners were won by Miss Chapman's room and by Miss Hillis' room. The program was concluded with a social hour followed with refreshments served by the fathers.

SUGGESTS METERING WATER

Owen Sound, Ont. — (CP) — Owen Sound — population 14,000 —will have to spend more than $328,000 on capital equipment during the next five years, or institute metering of water, chairman A. A. Kennedy told the utilities commission. Metering would discourage wasteful use of water, he said.

Pembroke Taxi Driver Found Shot to Death

Pembroke, Ont., March 15 — (CP)—The slaying of James Edwards, popular 35-year-old taxi driver, stirred this Ottawa Valley town today. He was found last night in his taxi on a lonely stretch of road 16 miles away, a bullet wound in his right temple.

Edwards, the father of two young children, was found by a fellow taxi driver, William Perkins, 29, also of Pembroke. His cab stood motionless in the darkness, its headlights glaring.

Believing there might be mechanical trouble, Perkins approached the vehicle. He found Edwards in the front seat of the car "in a pool of blood" Perkins telephoned police.

Two Provincial Police constables who guarded the vehicle pending the arrival of Inspector T. W. Cousins from Perth, Ont., would not say whether murder had been committed. They said no weapon had been found.

The news of Edwards death immediately swept through the town and search parties were being formed early this morning.

Edwards' employer, Len Murphy, said that the dead man had been "amiable and popular." He said he would give $500 as a reward for the "apprehension of the killer."

Taft, Brewster, Pilot Safe As Plane Plunges

Vassalboro, Me., March 15.—(AP)—An airplane carrying Republican presidential aspirant Robert A. Taft and Senator Owen Brewster (Rep.-Me.) plunged today into the Kennebec river but Brewster said neither he, Taft nor the pilot was hurt.

Brewster said John T. Clark, pilot of the Maine Aeronautics Commission plane, "did a great job" setting the craft down when it developed engine trouble en route from Augusta to Bangor.

The plane was slightly damaged.

Taft, Brewster and Clark made their way with some difficulty, Brewster said, to the snowy river bank and telephoned to the State House where Governor Horace Hildreth dispatched his official automobile to help Taft keep Bangor speaking appointments.

One-Third U.S. Soft Coal Miners Have Quit Work

Pittsburgh, March 15. (AP)—More than one-third of the United States' 400,000 soft coal miners stopped work today to support the demand of John L. Lewis for miner's pensions.

An early tabulation showed more than 155,000 miners were idle in eight states as follows: West Virginia, 60,000; Kentucky, more than 40,000; Pennsylvania, 27,800; Illinois, 13,000; Ohio, 6,500; Alabama, 6,000; Indiana, 2,000 Tennessee, 300.

The United States Steel Corp. reported nine of its 14 western Pennsylvania pits were closed, with 7,000 miners idle. The corporation expected its coal output would drop today to about 20,000 tons, or one-third of capacity.

The Jones & Lauchlin Steel Corp reported all its Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines were closed, and 4,600 miners idle.

At the Frick Company's mine near Hughes, Pa., between 300 and 400 day shift miners showed up at the lamp houses but made no attempt to obtain their working lights.

Throw Water Away

Then as one of the miners "threw away his water"—the traditional signal of a work stoppage in which the miner pour his day's supply of drinking water on the ground—the men walked away toward their homes.

Lewis sent word to Union locals Friday that operators had "dishonored" the 1947 wage agreement by not agreeing to pay pensions out of the Union's Welfare Fund. He asked the locals to meet and inform him of their reaction to his stand.

The bushy-browed labor leader gave the first hint of possible trouble over pensions when last Feb. 2 he served notice on the operators he felt free to take "independent action". He never elaborated on what he meant—and didn't elaborate either last Friday when he asked his rank-and-file for their "reacion" to his latest action.

The current contract does not expire until June 30 but it contains the meaningful phrase that miners will work only so long as they are "able and willing".

$100 Monthly Pensions

Lewis has demanded $100 monthly pensions for miners 60 years of age or more who have 20 years' service in the pits. The operators contend "it's too expensive". At present the Welfare Fund, made up of 10-cent-a-ton-royalty on coal paid by the operators, contains $30,000,000.

John Busarello, president of the U.M.W. District 5 embracing the Pittsburgh area, described the miners as "bitter at the refusal of the operators to grant them pensions". In Central Pennsylvania many locals voted to work today as usual.

Several hundred U.M.W. members in two Illinois mines voted to stay away from the pits. Reports from Ohio, Indiana, Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia indicated most miners were expected on the job as usual. In some cases, this was because Union officials had not yet received copies of Lewis' letter and no meetings were held.

The steel industry would be first to feel effects of a prolonged coal stoppage.

Republic was another steel corporation affected, with three Pennsylvania Mines down. The output of steel company-owned pits is used in making fuel for steel mills.

Commercial mines, Tood, whose production is sold on the open markets, began to shut. The giant Pittsburgh coal company reported at least nine of its mines closed. Owners of some independent mines expected the movement to spread.

GAME AND FISH

The association also suggested that research be extended to yearly studies on waters around highway 17 between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie with a view to maintaining higher fish population in these "heavily fished waters."

The Kent County Sportsmen's Association said it views with alarm the "terrific pressure being put upon our fish in the waters of Kent and Essex."

It suggested that the number of non-resident fishing licences be limited.

Graydon Gregory, who read the resolutions, said the district was close to one of the largest points of entry from the United States. Lake St. Clair constituted a small fishing aea in comparison to others in the province and the association wanted to preserve it to some degree for local fishermen.

A resolution asking that all persons charged with game and fisheries violations be required to appear before a magistrate was also presented to the committee by the association.

Should Appear in Court

It was stated that many sportsmen leave $12 to $15 with the local warden which is confiscated for failure to appear in court. Mr. Gregory said it was not the money they wanted but to cut down violations. It was felt this could be done by requiring the sportsman to undergo the inconvenience of appearing in court.

W. P. Shields of Schumacher, president of the Northern Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters presented resolutions including a recommendation that the bag limit of pickerel and pike to be changed to allow eight per day regardless of species.

He said that at present the limit in six and six, resulting in many injured fish being thrown back after fishermen had gained the limit for one species and was attempting to bag the limit for the other.

Another resolution expressed fear that many streams would be completely fished out of speckled trout under present regulations. It suggested reduction from 20 per day or 10 pounds in weight to 15 a day or 10 pounds.

The Federation also asked that consideration be given to prohibiting fishing through ice in waters known to contain speckled trout. It noted that owing to the lateness of the spring break up in Northern Ontario, the May 1 opening date finds most lakes covered with ice.

"Many people naturally take advantage of this condition to make large catches through the ice, including small fish which even if put back may be injured and die."

Finns Express "Doubts" About Military Pact

Helsinki, March 15 — (AP)—Finland has informed Russia there are some "doubts" about a military agreement between the two countries. The Finns expressed hope of staying out of international conflicts.

President Juho Passikivi advised Prime Minister Stalin that Finland expects the Russian-proposed treaty of co-operation to be freely considered in the negotiations which open in Moscow next Monday.

These statements were made in Paasikivi's reply to Stalin's invitation to negotiations. It was published today by the Foreign Office, a day after the Moscow press had printed excerpts from it. The letter was sent to Moscow last Tuesday.

Paasikiv's letter emphasized that conclusion of a Finnish-Russian treaty requires the Finnish parliament's approval.

Locomotive Goes Out of Control As Mishap Occurs

Brockville, March 15 — (CP)—A speeding 70-miles-an-hour locomotive hauling a seven-car pool train from Toronto Saturday night heeled over dangerously during a one-mile brake slide 13 miles west of here, threatening the lives of some 400 passengers.

Its baggage car ablaze, the eastbound train lurched and plunged as air brakes were applied to throttle the speed and passengers said they were flung from one side of the train to the other.

Flying metal from a shattered piston rod, which started the near crash, sheared off the flange of a main drive wheel and pierced a tank of illuminating gas under the baggage car, setting it on fire while a dangling engine rod rammed into railway ties causing the locomotive to lurch and heel over from the track.

Passengers acclaimed the train crew for its coolness and efficiency in averting disaster. Engineer J. Tamlin of Belleville said it was his closest shave in 30 years of railroading. He said the entire train would have left the track if it had not been on a straight stretch.

Maj. J. F. McLennan, of Ottawa, said:

"We were just leaning back in our seats idly watching the scenery as the train neared Brockville, when suddenly the coach gave a lunge and there was a hissing of air brakes. I was thrown to the opposite seat . . . the train continued to slide along the tracks in a series of sickening lurches. It came to a halt and almost immediately trainmen dashed into the coach, smashed emergency cabinets and grabbed at fire extinguishers. They soon had the fire out."

H. Stanley Higman of Ottawa said: "I think the train crew saved us from serious injury by its quick intelligent action."

A. R. Wilson, C. N. R. divisional superintendent at Belleville, said he believed a mechanical failure in the engine was partly responsible for the accident and the sudden thaw following prolonged cold probably played its part.

(In Montreal a C.N.R. spokesman said that at no time was the train in danger of leaving the rails and the lives of passengers were not endangered. He said the fire in the baggage car started after the train had stopped when the lantern of a trainman examining the damage ignited escaping gas.)

Bread Shortage Hits Moscow

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Moscow today was reported gripped by a bread shortage so severe that Russians are lining up a dozen abreast for scarce supplies. On the black market — what Soviets call the open market—the shortage was reported to have pushed prices to near $3.60 a pound.

He emphasized that while it was not suggested that all Communists would forget their loyalty to the state "there is no way of distinguishing such people from those who, if the opportunity offered, would be prepared to endanger the security of the state in the interests of another power."

Attlee said he wanted to emphasize that the government's action was being taken solely on "security grounds."

"The state is not concerned with the political views, as such, of its servants."

No Estimate of Number

Relying to questions, he said he could give no estimate of the number of people, likely to be affected by the new order.

Gallagher accused the government of "grovelling to the Tories and the big dollar boys of America."

Asked whether the regulation would extend to key telephone exchanges, Attlee replied that it would cover "everywhere where important secret matters have to be guarded."

An independent member, W. J. Brown, commented that the new attitude was "very much more restrained and gentle" than that of the Communists in Europe to civil servants who were not members of the Communist party.

Replying to a question, Attlee said there was no need for a government appointed body to investigate the activities of the Communist party. Ministers must take the responsibility for their departments in this matter.

A Conservative, Henry Strauss asked Attlee to consider carefully whether the order should not also apply to the British Broadcasting Corporation, but Mr. Attlee replied that that was the responsibility of the governors of the B.B.C.

Missing Plane Found on Side Of High Mountain

Anchorage, Alaska, March 15—(AP)—Bodies of 30 persons in the wreckage of an airliner which crashed into the face of a rock cliff and then tumbled 2,500 feet down the steep slopes of Mount Sanford may never be recovered.

Authorities said today rescue parties would be up against great odds in trying to reach the scene on the glacier spotted 16,208 foot mountain.

The chartered Northwest Airline 'plane, which vanished Friday night on a flight from Shanghai to St. Paul, was sighted yesterday at the 8,500 level on the glacier laden mountain 190 miles northeast of here.

The plane's next scheduled stop was at Edmonton.

The plane carried a crew of six and 24 seamen flying from Shanghai to New York. They were members of the crew of the tanker Sunset, of the Overseas Tankship Corporation.

Jim Gale, civilian expert with the United States Air Force said "it isn't impossible to get to the wreckage but there is little hope of reaching it."

Six Die in Fires In East Canada, Taximan Shot

By The Canadian Press

Fires took six lives in Eastern Canada during the weekend and a taxi driver was found shot to death near Pembroke, Ont., a Canadian Press survey showed today. In all, 12 fatalities were reported.

The taxi driver, identified as James Edwards, 35, of Pembroke, was discovered slouched over the wheel of his cab on a lonely stretch of road 16 miles east of Pembroke. Police launched an investigation.

Of the other violent deaths, two were in a plane crash in the Maritimes, two in separate automobile accidents, and an Ontario man was asphyxiated.

Five of the fire deaths were in the Montreal area. Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Collard — Huguette, 5; Pierre, 3; and baby Cyrillen — were trapped in their small Coteau Rouge frame home after an oil stove exploded. Two firemen, Lieut. Alphonse Hamelin and Ernest Cyr, were caught under a crumbling wall as they fought a two - alarm fire in a downtown fire shop.

Haley McCourt, 45, died in his flame-swept frame home on the outskirts of Cornwall. He was sole occupant of the little dwelling.

Two Maine men died in a plane crash near Bath, N. B. Wavel Broad, 26, of Houlton, and George Pendexter, 21, were the occupants of a light aircraft which struck a hillside and burned.

Frederick B. Jones, 48, was asphyxiated by coal gas in a trailer at Oshawa, Ont.

Peter McCabe, 62, of Athlone, Ont., was killed when his automobile overturned on an icy road. His son, Jimmy, 12, and eight-year-old Ronald Horne escaped by kicking out the windshield.

Mrs. Charlotte Taylor, 33, was fatally injured when she fell from the cab of a moving truck at Chatham, Ont. Police charged her husband, Edward Taylor, with drunken driving.

WORST OUTBREAK

$2,500,006 in 16 major fires and explosions in the Montreal area since Jan. 1. The injured list for the same period was 43.

Most spectacular blaze gutted 50-year-old four storey Jacques Cartier school. Police estimated that 40,000 persons watched flames roar through all but one wing. Fifty boarding students escaped. The fire apparently was caused by a short-circuit.

Lieut. Cyr and fireman Hamelin were among the first group of firemen to reach the Victoria Tire shop, on downtown St. James Street, Saturday night. They were entering the building when a terrific explosion sent the front wall tumbling into the street.

The two firemen were dug out from under heaps of smoldering debris.

An oil stove explosion set the frame HRDLU DLU DLUUUU Rene Collard home ablaze. Mrs. Collard had gone to get milk at the store. The flames raced through the dwelling and trapped the three collard youngsters whose cries of "Mama! Mama! come and get me!" could be heard by helpless neighbors above the roar of the flames.

Mrs. Collard collapsed on returning from the store and was taken to hospital suffering from shock.

U. K. Producing More

Figures recently quoted by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, clearly reflect the steady progress made in the United Kingdom production drive during the past two years. Some industries advanced well beyond the 1947 average increase of 9 per cent, building being up 21 per cent above '46 while metals, engineering and vehicles show 11 per cent rise. If the first half of the two years is taken the improvement is still more striking. Building — again at the head — shows an increase as high as 56 per cent. Miscellaneous manufacturing industries have recorded an increase of 29 per cent; textiles and clothing 15 per cent and chemicals 11 per cent. At the lower end of the scale are the food group, 4 per cent and quarrying, 3 per cent.

This progress in 1947 was achieved despite setbacks early in the year by the unprecedented Arctic weather and fuel and transport holdups.

The production increase was due, said Cripps, only partly to switchover from the Forces to civilian work, for, by the end of 1947 the total industrial output had risen distinctly more than the numbers in industrial employment.

The production figures are contained in an interim report on the new official index of production, based upon some 400 series of industrial production statistics. Next year, however, the national census of production will make it possible to provide still more accurate statistics and to indicate whatever changes that will have then taken place in individual output, compared with pre-war.

But new targets are set for the present year. Already records were achieved in January last in textiles, machinery and motorcar shipment. The Chancellor has made it clear that there are no grounds for complacency. January exports, 28 per cent above pre-war, did not reach the goals set and such targets must be reached, Cripps made clear, if pre-war living standards are to return to Britain.

Such is the great load Britons are bearing for themselves and others. Their will is in the work as it was in the days of war and that it will achieve is expected.

Change in price levels since before the war was the cause of sixty per cent of the worsening of Britain's position and forty per cent was due to physical and financial losses due to the war.

Touch of Spring

Ideal weather on Sunday broke the spell of severe changes in temperature of the past few weeks. There was a feeling in the air that suggested the approach of spring. The bright sunlight, the gradual disappearing of the snow and ice from the walks which have been rough and difficult to use of late put a spirit of pre-spring in the air. Many were driving or walking in response to the urge of the springlike weather.

February and early March have been colder than usual. Frequent dips of the mercury to indicate zero temperature have been experienced in the past few weeks. These will be remembered as marking a winter seeming to be very long because of the amount of severe weather, though there have been other wintry seasons more violent than the present winter has been up to date. The month is yet not half gone and what sort of weather the next weeks will bring forth is hidden by nature. What storms will yet brew, what fine weather come this month will remain a secret until the weatherman unfolds the readings of the charts.

Outpost Hospitals

Canadian Red Cross Society's Outpost Hospital Service is one of the most advanced steps in providing hospital care, nursing and public health services to the men, women and children, who in large numbers live on the frontiers of this vast country and in other remote parts of the country. Through this agency to people who are far removed from other medical help, the Outpost Service represents a necessary security at times of sickness, accident or childbirth.

Nurses in this part of the Red Cross program travel many thousands of miles every year in every sort of country and in all sorts of weather to bring healing and mercy.

A sign of the greatness of the extent of the effort is shown in the number of these outpost hospitals, there being seventy-one of these outposts and nursing stations in which the needs of the people are served. More of these hospitals are needed, it is pointed out.

A donation to the Canadian Red Cross campaign for $3,000,000 will support these and all other philanthropic and mercy efforts of this great humanitarian organization in all its efforts for humanity.

Britain Paying for All of Us

Comes Sir Stafford Cripps to tell the British people that if their living standards were low in 1947 they must be still lower in 1948. Also that even with Marshall Plan aid unemployment may rise from 300,000 to 450,000 with "reduction in food and clothing consumption."

Sir Stafford exhorts the country to increase production. He adds, however, that the problem of finding markets becomes increasingly hard. "Important foreign markets are becoming saturated with goods."

For a people who endured agony through the war, who have had to face grey monotony and shortages ever since, this is indeed trial.

Let no one say that it is the fruit of mismanagement, or of improvidence, or even of the "planning" of socialists mistaken though that may be. The core of the thing was put honestly by the London Economist.

"Alone of the belligerents (except the German aggressors) Britain fought in two World Wars from the first day to the last. The income from overseas investments which nearly bridged the gap between imports and exports in 1938 disappeared in the struggle."

In other words Britain pays for her survival — and the survival of the rest of us. Not the least of the great chapters of her story. — Ottawa Journal.

Play-Rooms for Cows

Some authorities on cattle out west have made an important recommendation. They have urged that "play-rooms" be constructed for cows. It is their belief that much discontent and an incalculable impoverishment of the supply of milk have resulted from the way cows are rigidly confined in the long months of winter. They strongly advocate that no barn be without its play-room.

The recommendation of the western experts will appeal alike to common sense and to humanitarianism — if the latter word is applicable. After all, it must be rather drab and dreary to be shut up in a stall all winter and to have life reduced to the essentials of eating, sleeping and producing. This is asking too much for too little. The whole movement now is towards improved humanitarian relations. There is no reason why this movement should not go into the barn.

In the new play-rooms the cows may kick a leg or two, and gambol a little, and almost imagine they were out in pastureland, looking over a fence at far horizons. These new facilities for recreation would give the cows a keener zest for work and broader outlook on life and its problems. They will begin to feel that, after all, they are to be treated like cows.

In the long wintry months the lowing herd, though it may not wind slowly o'er the lea, will be able to step briskly into the play-room. The life of a cow may soon have much to be said for it. — Montreal Gazette.

JUST FOLKS

TRAINING BY EXAMPLE

The children come and ask us, how and why, and where and when,
And we say: "You'll learn the answers
when you're women grown and men.
Just do the way we tell you, and the rules we make obey."
But, too oft, our own behavior doesn't square with what we say.

Oh, it's seldom: "Do as I do," for there never was a lad
But his father wished the youngster to be better than his dad.
And there never was a mother but along the years could see
The lady that her daughter would, in time, grow up to be.

We are glib enough with counsel;
what is best we're quick to tell.
If the ears have paid attention, then we fancy all is well.
But, the eyes are better pupils, and we ought to train them, too,
By never doing anything we've told them not to do.

The task of training children isn't merely one of speech.
The example we must set them, if it's character we'd teach.
And there's none so wise with precept who can honestly reply.
If his acts betray his teaching and the children ask him: "Why?"

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When did the Government quit distributing free seeds?

Members of Congress and the Department of Agriculture still receive requests for free seeds, notwithstanding all free-seed distribution was discontinued in 1926.

Distribution of free seeds was begun in 1836 by Commissioner of Patents Henry Leavitt Ellsworth, who was interested in promoting Government aid to agriculture and who, at his own expense and without Congressional authorization, distributed seeds and plants given to him for the purpose. Original idea was to improve agriculture and horticulture by introducing new and improved varieties of garden, orchard and field crops, and at first most of the seeds distributed free were from foreign countries. Within a year or two Ellsworth was able to get a small appropriation for free seed distribution and he continued this work until 1862 when the Department of Agriculture was created.

One of the special functions of the new Department was "to procure, propagate and distribute among the people new and valuable seeds and plants." Beginning in 1896 Congress so worded the seed appropriations acts that the Department had to allot five-sixths of all its seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants to Senators, Representatives and Delegates for distribution to their constituents. The other sixth was distributed directly by the Department.

In time the "Seed Division" became a big business. It became impractical to fill all the orders with strictly new varieties of seeds and the tendency was to lose sight of the original intention of the service and to send out more and more seeds of common varieties. For years most of the Federal funds appropriated for agriculture were used to buy and distribute seeds, which were bought by the Department through competitive bids in the spring from commercial seed growers and dealers.

When the "Congressional seed distribution" system was at its peak each member of Congress received 20,000 packages of vegetable and 2,000 packages of flower seed. Each package consisted of five packets of seed of different varieties. At one time the Congressional seed amounted to nearly a million pounds a year —about 500 tons, or enough to fill 20 freight cars. The seeds were assembled and packeted by the Seed Division and a member of Congress could have them sent directly to him for distribution or he could have them mailed by the Department under his "frank" to designated persons. Weeds were sent out much as yearbooks and other free documents are now. Congressmen were permitted to "swap seeds" to adjust their quota to the demands of their constituents.

Although some new and valuable plants were introduced by this method, most of the seeds were of the standard vegetable and flower varieties and the whole system degenerated into a "racket." Several Secretaries of Agriculture pronounced the free seed business as little short of a disgrace. After the system had been the butt of criticism for nearly a quarter of a century the annual appropriation for Congressional seed distribution was discontinued June 20, 1923, and that for new and rare seed distribution June 30, 1926, and since then the Department of Agriculture has had no seeds or plants of any kind available either for free distribution or for sale.

Negotiations Under Way for Sale Of N.Y. Paper PM

New York, March 15 (AP) — Negotiations are under way for the sale of the New York newspaper PM by Marshall Field III, to a west coast publisher, it was reported today.

The prospective sale, to Clinton D. McKinnon of San Diego Calif., was disclosed by Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice-president of the New York city charter of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.). Murphy said its completion hinges on acceptance by PM's editorial employees of terms under which McKinnon would continue operation of the afternoon tabloid.

"The Guild's answer will be arrived at with utmost caution," the Guild official said.

PM's 170 employees represented by the A.N.G. were notified yesterday that their employment was being terminated as of March 26. The notices added:

"The proposed new owner and publisher of PM has made a proposal for your future employment to your Guild representatives who already have communicated it or will communicate it to you."

Murphy said McKinnon proposed that he resume publication on March 28 for a three- month trial period. One of the conditions of his proposal was that during that period, any employee could be dismissed without recourse to grievance machinery.

The PM Guild unit will meet Monday morning to consider the proposal.

Taxi Driver Taxed 10 P.C. for Tips

Winnipeg, March 15 — (CP)— Taxi driver Charles C. Charney said he had received a letter from the Income Tax Department setting his tips for 1946 at 10 per cent of his annual salary. Charney said he had not reported income from tips in the return for that year.

The letter reads as follows:

"With reference to your return for the year 1946, it is noted that you have reported no income from tips. Tips are income under the income War Act and your income tax return is not a true disclosure of your income unless all tips received are reported therein.

"'Since you did not keep a record of tips received in 1946, recommendation is being made to the deputy minister (taxation) that your income from this source for 1946 be fixed at $142.

"'This recommendation, based on all the information available to this district, will be submitted following a delay of 15 days during which any additional information which you might wish to submit may be considered.

"A complete record of tips received should be maintained from now on, so that all income from this source may be reported in your income tax returns."

A senior income tax official here said that "insofar as we can find them, we are trying to assess every one receiving income from tips." The official said this would include waiters and waitresses, porters, bellhops, dining car conductors and barbers as well as cab drivers.

NAL THE NAILS AND NUTRITIONAL DEFICIENCY

One of the finest teachers in medical school used to take a few interns on a ward walk for a lesson in observation. He would talk with a patient, feeling the pulse and inspecting the patient's hands, then tell the patient that he or she had suffered a serious illness two, four or six months ago, or a serious injury perhaps. Generally he hit it right. To the interns he explained that transverse depressions or ridges in the patient's nails marked the time when the patient's nutriton had been impaired, for it takes five or six months for the nails to grow, toe nails require eight or ten months to grow.

Thansverse ridging; pitting, brittleness or fragility, thinness and spooning of the nails are the common manifestation of nutritional deficiency.

A great many readers have assured me that since they began supplementing their regular diet with suitable daily rations of calcium, phosphorus, iodine, vitamin D, thiamine and riboflavin —the elements generally deficient in the everyday diet of Americans, young or old, requires such supplementing, it is an indication of the improvement in health and vite that most Americans, young or old, may expect to enjoy if they follow this way of improving nutrition.

In many instances, particularly in women who are fortyish, feel fiftyish and look sixtyish, cracked, flattened, brittle, sometimes concave nails at least the index finger nail becomes concave instead of convex, are at least partly a manifestation of deficiency anemia—the gray sickness. Technical name for this type of anemia is hypochromic anemia, denoting that there is a greater reduction in the hemoglobin, the iron coloring matter, than in the number of red blood corpuscles.

Along with this condition of the fingernails in hypochrosis or the gray sickness the poor girl complains of sore tongue, cracks at the corners of the mouth, perhaps numbness of tingling of finger nail tips, and rapid graying of her hair. But just the graying of the hair is not all—to my eye, which is not artistic at all, hypochromic anemia looks gray, just as pernicious anemia looks lemon yellow and chlorosis (which was still fairly common when I practiced in Penn Yan) looked green —the common name for it was the green sickness. I'm truly sorry about this, girls, but who knows? Maybe be talking about it here in the paper I'll show you how to stage a come back.

Right now I want to say that I have nothing more to tell any one about the nails, so please don't ask for my remedy or treatment for such and such nail trouble.

But you girls with the gray sickness may learn something to your advantage if you'll write and ask for the pamphlet Deficiency Anemia—The Gray Sickness, and please inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

They are not Silly

We enjoy your articles very much and would like the pamphlet Piles Are Silly.

(H. J. S.)

Answer—Boy, they tell me, they're not so ridiculous. What I call the pamphlet is different: It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles. Any reader who provides a stamped self addressed envelope and asked for the pamphlet in writing (no clipping, please) may have it with my best wishes.

Coaches Are Tee Tee

Track coaches at high school told us that we should not drink milk while in training.

(C.J.)

Answer —One of the weak spots in our national school system is the unfortunate practice of subjecting school children to the influence of such outsiders who pose as "coaches" or athletic managers". Training or no training, you had better drink your daily quart of milk, son, and pay no attention to any further advice you may get from the coach.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang

I'm almost afraid to ask a question—I picture you as roaring and snorting.

Mrs. A. M.)

Answer— Come, come, now, as Pat Kelly used to say when we kids dawdled too long before the candy case, say what you want, spend your nenny and go along about your play. I don't roar, I squeak; and I don't snort. I just sniffle. If you had to sit here and take it, 365 days in the year, I bet you'd rip out an occasional—— —— blankety blank too.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

4 HOUSES BURN EVERY 5 MINUTES

Did you know that every time the clock ticks off a minute and a quarter, someone's home catches fire? It's true, and figures reveal that the third biggest cause of these residential fires is sparks falling on inflammable roofs.

But roofing which can't burn, can't start a fire. That's why so many wise homeowners are choosing Johns-Manville Durabestos Shingles. For an over 35 years not one of these asbestos-cement shingles has ever burned — not one has ever worn out. They're as permanent as stone, yet distinctively styled with all the charm and grained appearance of fine weathered wood.

SOCIAL WORKER PREDICTS JOBS FOR OLD FOLKS

Ottawa, —(CP)— In a country where old age is increasing "by leaps and bounds" Canadian employers may soon come to realize the advantages of hiring persons in the upper age brackets.

Bessie Touzel of the Canadian Welfare Council, warns that eventually it is going to become an "economic necessity" to keep these persons longer in jobs.

"With the extending expectancy of life, our old age group is increasing, and the birth-rate is becoming proportionately less," she said in an interview here. "It is going to become a challenge for us to see that these people contribute to society longer than they do now."

Nor does Miss Touzel believe that employers realize the value of older workers.

As well as having years of experience behind them, these older men and women often display a greater stability toward their work than a younger person, said the welfare worker.

Pensioner's Income Limited

Confronted with housing and cost-of-living problems, these days the average Canadian finds it hard enough to get by. Miss Touzel pointed out how serious the problem has become for the old age pensioner on his limited income.

When it came to food prices, she debunked the idea that old persons could get along on a diet of tea and toast.

"While they eat less bulk, they need food of high protien content," she said.

Housing had become a real problem. For a tiny basement or attic room, the pensioner gratefully had to pay the highest price.

"Landladies don't like to rent their rooms to pensioners who usually are in the house all day," said Miss Touzel. "They say the old people are too fussy; often they become ill or need care."

She praised co-operation ventures in Vancouver and Toronto, which provide housing accommodation for pensioners at a minimum of rent.

A small house in downtown Toronto, owned by St. Bartholomew's Anglican church provides shelter for about eight pensioners, each paying $8 to $10 a month for his room. Here these old people have the companionship of others in their own age group. At the same time they are free to lead their own lives.

Will Ask Council For Committee On New By-Law

City council in the near future will be asked to appoint a committee to draw up a new restaurant by-law which would be workable both by the local board of health and by restaurant owners.

This was decided at a meeting of members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association held Friday evening at the Chez Henri. The meeting was attended by members of the Kingston branch, and also by members of the local board of health.

National director of the Association, Mr. Steel Bassell of Toronto, addressed the meeting on restaurant management and on the importance of the restaurant industry which he declared rated third in the Dominion of Canada. "The tourist industry was largely dependent upon good restaurants," he said.

Mrs. F. G. Montgomery, executive secretary of the Association, spoke briefly and later with Mr. Bassell answered questions regarding restaurant sanitation and licencing.

The opinion was expressed that the local board of health were not entirely conversant with the provision of the new provincial restaurant by-law which went into effect in January and in order that the local board may be given a better interpretation of the act Dr. Beary of the provincial health board will be asked to write the local board of health.

Bruce Lattimer acted as chairman for the meeting while President George DeVuyst welcomed the guests. The guest speaker was introduced by Secretary Ted Myers.

Yugoslavs Charged With Collaboration

Belgrade, March 15. (AP)—A group of erstwhile officials in Premier Marshal Tito's Communist state face charges of collaborating with Britons, a high government source says.

He did not name them in reporting last night that they have been arrested.

The government informant said the arrests were not a purge of "diversionists" (Party members who have fallen into Bourgeois ways).

This is the story he told:

Nearly all arrested were prisoners together at Dachau, Germany, during the war. There they signed an agreement with the Germans to be spies for them in Yugoslavia, "to save their skins."

They returned to Yugoslavia and became members of the Communist party.

The Britons learned of the pact and found the papers. Later they used them to blackmail the officials into giving them important economic information.

Britain Will Become Mistress Of the Seas in Atomic Age

By RONALD MacLURKIN

London, March 13 — (Reuters) — Many British naval experts believe that behind the screen of recent parliamentary storms and government reticence on the apparent decline of the Royal Navy, Britain is looking on a great blueprint by which she will again become Mistress of the Seas in the atomic age.

Protests by the opposition Conservative party on recent decisions to scrap capital ships have been fierce. The government has consistently refused, however, to provide figures on Britain's present naval strength and has been equally secretive about future plans.

No Battleships

But the navy, magazine of the alert Navy League, self-appointed watchdog of Britain's seapower, published this estimate of present naval strength: Battleships, nil; Aircraft carriers, two; cruisers, 11; Destroyers, four with Home Fleet, 24-32 in Mediterranean and Pacific; submarines, 12; sloops, 4; frigates, 10.

The estimate was thought to be fairly near the mark, although no official figures have been available since 1939 when the official "return of the fleet" was last published.

With the decision to scrap the battleships Nelson, Rodney, Queen Elizabeth, Valiant and the battle cruiser Renown, Britain is actually left with five battleships — Vanguard, Duke of York, King George V, Anson and Howe. But none of these is in operational service, and all are immobilized. The last two are being used as training ships.

In 1939 Britain had nine battleships, two battle cruisers, four aircraft carriers, 26 cruisers, 70 destroyers anl 39 submarines.

Naval Strength Now Low

According to unofficial estimates, therefore, it is true to say that never before in modern times has the seagoing strength of the Royal Navy been brought so low. The Navy League goes further and declares angrily: "The British Navy today is completely powerless to maintain the national prestige, or to protect in any way the national home."

Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime prime minister and a former First Lord of the Admiralty, has hit out at the government for the present apparent weakness of the navy. But government spokesmen have stolidly blocked all questions.

The only glimpses allowed have come from the Admiralty itself.

Last month, Vice-Admiral D.C. Ford, Engineer-in-Chief of the fleet, held a press conference which received little mention. He told correspondents of experiments in installing a gas turbine engine in a motor gunboat—making BBritain the only country in the world with a vessel at sea incorporating this development — and declared: "We cannot tell where this invention is going to lead us, but I feel that it may be the start of a new era, cetrainly at sea."

Turbines in Destroyers

Next step, it is understood, will be to install gas turbines in a destroyer, thus bringing jet propulsion to the water and opening up far-reaching possibilities of naval speed and manoeuvrability.

Such a development, applied to an entire fleet, would remove the navy's great dependence on oil — a headache in war, and a headache also in Britain's financial crisis of today when oil means dollars.

A recent official Admiralty statement on atom power also received little publicity. It said: — "The implications of atomic energy, in the long view of the situation, are by no means limited to defensive aspects, and may ead to enhancement of naval power in a highly modified form and with wide offensive and defensive commitments."

Scientists Irk Senator so He Would Close Universities for Two Years

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 15 (CP)—Things that sneak into a parliamentary notebook:

One minute quote from Senator William James Hushion (L-Quebec) on higher education: "If I had anything to do with the running of the educational system, I would close all the universities for two years, clean them out and look around. Why, in the City of Montreal we have not enough money to pay our teachers a decent salary. Is there any sense to that? Economists and scientists are telling us what to do, and we are going crazy on many matters. Yet thousands are going to universities and are being turned out as scientists...."

Incongruities

Burly Cecil Merritt (PC-Vancouver-Burrard), Dieppe V.C., ordering a cream puff in the parliamentary cafeteria. And with jam.

Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, Commons' clerk and Mr. Rulebook himself, caught breaking one of his own decrees: No reading of newspapers in the house. It's probably the most shattered of all rules... Urbane, wealthy Philippe Picard (L-Bellechasse) sporting the first goatee the house has seen in moons....

Diplomats' Row

Has anyone noticed the quiet irony of the location of the Russian Embassy, Canadian outpost of the iron curtain, on the Rideau River? Rideau means curtain. French voyageurs named it centuries ago for the falls that carry its waters into the Ottawa.... Someone suggested the name might be changed to Le Rideau Ironique or "the ironical curtain."

How Broad Are Her Shoulders?

WOULD you willingly place too heavy a burden on your wife's shoulders? Care of the family and management of the home are tasks that are naturally hers as a partner. Yet if she were suddenly left without you, burdens that are heavy when shared by both would be hers alone. How could she face them without an income?

There is a way to make sure that she would not have the added, crushing responsibility of earning money to provide the family with food, clothing and shelter. It is to put as much of your income as you can into Life Insurance and to increase the amount as your circumstances permit.

Life Insurance can be arranged to provide a non-cancellable monthly income that will never be uncertain — that fluctuating values or market upheavals can never reduce. Thus your heaviest burden will not fall on shoulders ill-fitted to carry the load.

Border Closed To Fleeing Czechs

Hof, Germany, March 15 (AP) —Czechoslovakas fleeing their Communist homeland said today the Czech border region has become a huge hunting ground where reinforced frontier guards attempt to block the escape of refugees.

The sound of gunfire is heard day and night on the Czech side of the border, they said. Militiamen have been called up to swell the ranks of the regular border guards.

Nevertheless, the informants said, scores of refugees are getting through to the United States occupation zone of Germany.

An unshaven man who reached this border city said an 18-year-old boy was killed and a woman was wounded Thursday when Czech border guards spotted them.

He said persons captured trying to flee from Czechoslovakia are sentenced to five to 20 years in prison. The refugees, he added, are becoming increasingly desperate.

Some carry revolvers and rifles, ready to fight it out with any one who attempts to stop them. Several refugees literally crashed into the American zone when they smashed their automobiles into control point gates and drove on through showers of splinters. The group is reported to have included a Czech general. The guards now have set up heavier road blocks.

A trainload of 137 Czechoslovaks who reached the United States zone in the Hof vicinity during the last few days left the Moschendorf refugee camp here today for Schwabach. There they will join 200 other refugees who preceded them.

The latest group of refugees told reporters that hundreds of thousands of Czechoslovaks want to leave their homeland.

One refugee, Karl Marcinek, said he wanted his father, Karl Mercinek Sr., reported to be a resident of Toronto, to know that he has escaped safely from Czechoslovakia.

Evangelist Stresses Need for Revival Of Spiritual Awakening

Large congregations at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday heard the Rev. C. H. Schutt, D.D., former Home Mission Superintendent of the Ontario-Quebec convention, as he opened a week of special services for evangelism and deepening of spiritual life.

I do not need to emphasize the need for a spiritual awakening," said Dr. Schutt. "Today there is widespread disbelief in the world. Sin has been on the increase since the war. Everywhere, those who are interested in the salvation of people are hoping and praying for a revival. There are heavenly conditions favorable to revival, which must be met if we look for a blessing.

Need Christian Experience

"First, God's people need to be well acquainted with our Lord and Saviour, to have a vital Christian experience and know the presence of God's saving grace. It is a great thing to have burning hearts, as the disciples had when they walked with Jesus.

REV. C. H. SCHUTT, D.D.

"Then, too, we need a revival in the sense that man is lost without a Saviour. God gives us a deeper sense of the reality of sin. Sin is just as real and damning as it ever was. The wages of sin is death, not only physically but spiritually.

"We need an unwavering conviction and belief that Jesus made a complete atonement for sin, and to trust the all-sufficiency of Jesus Christ to save sinners. God does not will that any should perish. He gave His own Son, that whosoever believe and trust in Him shall have everlasting life."

Revivals Awaken People

Dr. Schutt said that dependence on the Holy Spirit to sustain was a factor that Christian people should keep in mind. "Oh, that God would send an overpowering sense of His presence to preachers and leaders today," said the speaker. "Revivals usually begin with God's people and then spread out in the community and round about.

"Things that hinder Christians from leading others to Christ are inconsistencies in their lives, lack of interest in their fellowmen, unforgiving spirits. If we realize what sin is, blighting life for now and eternity, we will turn to God in earnest and persevering prayer."

Eastwood and family assembled in the Orange Hall at Springbrook on Wednesdya evening and presented them with a gateleg table, chairs, an end table and a silver sugar bowl and cream pitcher, prior to their moving to Whitby next week. Their daughters, Helen and Ruth, were presented with bedroom lamps. Mr. Allan McComb acted as chairman for the occasion and an address was read by Mr. W. J. Barlow expressing the regret of everyone in the loss of such a prominent family from the community, and wishing them every success and happiness in their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood and the girls replied briefly, thanking their many friends for their kind remarks and for the beautiful gifts. At this time Mrs. Eastwood was also presented with a cake plate and crystal salt and pepper shakers as a remembrance from the Springbrook Women's Institute by Mrs. Frank Cosbey, president, and Mrs. John McKeown. In making the presentation Mrs. Cosbey regretted that the Institute was losing one of its most valued members and wished Mrs. Eastwood happiness in her new home to which Mrs. Eastwood graciously responded. The chairman also called upon Earl Cranston, Noble Grand of Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 429 and Past Grand J. F. Baker, who presented Mr. Eastwood with an Oddfellows emblem ring. Mr. Baker explained that Mr. Eastwood was a Past Grand of the lodge, a member of the Degree team, and several times a member of the District Deputy's installation team. Taken completely by surprise, Mr. Eastwood thanked the lodge for the beautiful gift of remembrance.

Other speakers were Rev. J. M. Brownlie, rector of St. Mark's Church, Rev. Paul Christensen, pastor Springbrook United Church, Mr. Lindsay Mumby, Ex. County Warden Geo. E. Thompson and W. J. Barlow, clerk of Rawdon Municipal Council.

Mr. Brownlie regretted exceedingly that he was losing from the parish a good church family but was sure that they would be successful in their new home. He said friends will often think of them, and he had no doubt they would often think of their friends here. He concluded with the beautiful quotation, "God gave us memories that we might have roses in December."

Mr. Christensen expressed his regret in losing such good friends and neighbors. He stated he knew the country near Whitby and is positive the Eastwoods will make many friends in their new home.

Mr. Mumby, speaking on behalf of the community, stated the Eastwood family have been good neighbors in every way, and they will be greatly missed. He also spoke of Mr. Eastwood being a veteran of World War number one and had won the D.C.M. in that conflict.

In expressing his regret Mr. Thompson mentioned the readiness of Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood to join at all times in community welfare work, and of the splendid work done by Mrs. Eastwood duing the last war as ward chairman of the Rawdon branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Mr. Barlow spoke of happy associations with Mr. Eastwood who sat beside him as a councillor for three years in the Rawdon council, but gave up his political career on account of his health.

Prior to the presentations a musical program was given by local talent. Phil Beauderie, Delbert McComb, Miss Winant and Mr. Winant contributed an orchestra number. Mrs. Geo. Williams accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Wellman a vocal solo, J. F. Baker, accompanied by Rev. Christensen, a vocal solo, Kenny Bain, accompanied by J. F. Baker, several Scotch songs, and piano solos by Misses Mary McInroy, Rose Mary Webb and Marq Elizabeth Meiklejohn.

Refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour enjoyed by all.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Married at 15, She Now Regrets It

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old and have been married since I was 15. I loved my husband very much when I married him, but can't seem to find any room in my heart for him now. Everything would have been all right if he had let me have a little freedom. But he will not go anywhere himself, and he won't let me go anywhere without him.

Lately I met a handsome young man of 23, and I have really fallen in love with him, after being out with him four or five times. He is a single man and I don't think he thinks anything of me at all, as he already has a girl friend. But I will never be able to put him out of my mind. Would you advise me to leave my husband and try to win this man's love, or stay with my husband and never be satisfied because I will always be thinking of the other man?

"Broken-Hearted"

Dear "Broken-Hearted":

I sympathize very much indeed with your unhappy situation. This sort of thing is very likely to happen when a girl marries as young as you did.

However, leaving your husband and pursuing a man who, you admit yourself, shows no interest in you, is certainly not the answer to your problem. To ignore all the other reasons why such a move would be extremely foolish, let me just mention take care of you, or are you prepared to support yourself if you left your husband and found yourself unable to interest this second man in making you his wife?

You are certainly going to get into worse trouble than you are in now if you go out with other men as you have been with this one. Your best solution, at this time, is to be so nice to your husband and make him so happy that, when you ask him to take you out for a good time, he will not have the heart to refuse you.

College Students Want to Marry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About two years ago I met a man with whom I later fell in love. We both attend the same college where he is a sophomore and I am a freshman. He is making very good marks and is well-liked by all his instructors. He doesn't have a lot of money, but he realizes that money is not the basis of a happy life. He is a hard worker and an honest man and is my idea of the ideal husband.

Recently we became engaged. His parents think we should get married as soon as we want to. My parents said that we could live at my home during summer vacations and that they would continue to pay for my education after I got married. However, my father doesn't like the idea of my getting married while I am going to college, although he likes this man very much and thinks he would make me a good husband.

Do you think we should wait until we graduated? Isn't it true that married veterans make good marks and give their best to their studies because they know they have a responsibility to meet?

"Worried"

Dear "Worried":

Since you and this boy have known each other long enough to feel sure you want to marry, and since your parents are in sympathy with the idea, it seems to me the basis on which to make the decision whether to marry now or wait is purely an economic one. If your parents are willing to help you, and you feel that you will be able to swing things financially, I don't see why you should not have the same chance to make a go of such a marriage as hundreds of other young people in these post-war days. Of course you realize that both of you still have quite a while to go before being able to earn any money yourselves. But if you look ahead and make sound plans that take all this into consideration, it seems fair enough for you to go ahead. What you say about married veterans taking their college work seriously may be true, and your young man sounds as though he were one of those who would. I hope you will be able to work out your plans successfully.

He Has Sense; His Girl Hasn't

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a fellow 17 years old and going out with a girl of the same age whom I have known ever since I wore knee pants. She wants to get married in less than a year, but I have no money and every time I try to explain this she starts a big argument. I have got enough trouble of my own without having that, too.

Every night I see her she finds fault with something I did that night, and we never are together without an argument. She won't make any attempt to help me have a penny to get married. I wanted to build a home before I got married, but she thinks we should build it afterwards. I think of our security, but she wants to rush into everything.

I am so disgusted I feel like joining the service to get away from both her and my family, but I love her too much to bear the thought of losing her. Please tell me what to do.

"Disgusted"

Dear "Disgusted":

I am not at all sure that it wouldn't be a very smart move for you to join the service for a year or so. It may give both you and your girl an opportunity to get a little perspective on your relationship. Certainly, at this time, your girl friend is far from being mature enough to make anybody a good wife, and I do not think there is a doubt that, if you were to marry very soon, you would be in trouble, in one way or another, shortly afterward.

My advice to you is to take a firm stand and tell this girl that if she is so irresponsible that she cannot see how foolish and reckless it would be for two people as young as you are and as totally unequipped for responsibility to marry hastily, that you have a different idea of things and you are not going to allow yourself to be pushed into marriage against your better judgment. If she doesn't come around to your way of thinking and agree, it would be wise to wait awhile, you had better make up your mind to let her go.

Fashioned of silk crepe it is cut on high-waisted lines as are so many of the newer, smarter nightgowns.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Beware of Hard Mouth Lines

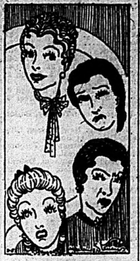
Unless a woman's lips are handpainted, she feels that she is out of the pulchritude picture. Let her keep in mind the fact that the rosy glow gives accent to such poses as the lips assume. It calls attention to the character of the mouth. When she gets mad, pulls down her chin, clicks her teeth together, tenses the muscles surrounding the lips, she is forgetting her facial manners. Not only that, she will eventually have a different face; it will not be an improvement upon the original model.

Pretty mouths, like some pretty girls, can make themselves unattractive. Plain women can assume a radiance that is akin to beauty, and mouths than are nothing to brag about as to contour become lovely when they smile. The forces that bring about these changes have to do with one's emotional life. If one is sweet, responsive and friendly, the possibilities of loveliness are manifold.

If a bright, charming girl permits her facial muscles to droop and loses animation, she can look as stupid as any Dumb Dora. You have seen that happen. Eyes show boredom, lips are parted and relaxed. For the moment the pretty one has forgotten to wear her company face.

"If the eyes can be veiled, the mouth cannot," writes Doctor Charlotte C. West, in her interesting book, "Ageless Youth." "We must sink or swim by the expression which our nature, our character, stamps with relentless certainty day by day upon this feature. Patient, petulant, weak, serious, frivolous, callous, kind, cruel, self-reliant, hard, selfish, gentle, mirthful, dependable—all these characteristics and more are revealed by the expression of the mouth.

"Note the lines of the mouth of a sweet-tempered, optimistic woman and compare them with one who is self-willing and fault-finding. One possesses shapely lips, upturned at the corners; — the other's mouth is habitually set in an ugly expression.



Pretty mouths can make themselves unattractive.

"The extent to which the mouth changes in the course of years, the certainty with which it is molded in accordance with the underlying nature, is really startling."

Habits of thought and feeling not only mold faces, but also have an effect upon the figure and upon health itself. The woman who permits herself to indulge in morbid reflections is slowing up the circulatory streams, retarding the normal processes of digestion, with the result that her complexion loses tone and coloring. It is a vicious circle.

Woman Committed Not an Indian Say Brothers

Timmins, March 13 (CP)— Mrs. Clara Irene St. Cyr, committed to stand trial for murder in the axe slaying of her husband, is not an Indian, her two brothers said in a statement issued here yesterday.

When police arrested the 32-year-old woman who came to his northern gold-mining town in the early '30s, they said she was part Iroquois Indian. Her brothers, however, said she was born Clara Irene Rice, daughter of Israel Rice, American born of English descent, and Mary Ann Stewart, born in Kingston, of Scottish descent.

Jack Dalton, Sr., a proprietor of a bus line, here has donated $1,000 to be placed in a joint account to be administered by the Children's Aid Society for clothing, care and education of the six young children of Mrs. St. Cyr, charged with the murder of her 34-year-old laborer husband, Jerome, in the darkened bedroom of a dingy tarpaper shack last Thursday.

Now in Haileybury jail the sandy-haired woman will face trial at the Spring Assizes in Cochrane.

Maple Leafs Regain Top Slot In National Hockey League With Two Weekend Victories

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The teams from Canada were the only ones that scored double victories in the National Hockey League over the weekend, and with only one more week's play left the results were vital.

Two victories for the Toronto Maple Leafs put them into the league leadership, two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings in the race for the N.H.L. title. But Detroit has three games left, Toronto only two, before the league play closes March 21.

Two victories for the Montreal Canadiens left them still hanging on to a mathematical chance of getting into the Stanley Cup playoffs. But it's a very, very slim chance, and Canadiens will be eliminated just as soon as New York Rangers gain only one point.

Saturday Toronto beat Boston Bruins 5-2 and Montreal beat New York 3-2. Sunday Montreal came back with another victory over Rangers by 6-3, and Toronto blanked Chicago Black Hawks 3-0. Hawks are out of the playoffs. The third game Sunday saw Boston hand Detroit a costly defeat 5-1, on the Red Wings, own ice.

Only eight games are left on the roster. Boston is at New York Tuesday. New York is at Chicago and Detroit is at Boston, Wednesday. Then on Saturday Chicago is at Canadiens and Detroit at Toronto, and the final games Sunday have Toronto at Detroit, Canadiens at Boston and Chicago at Rangers.

Sylvanus Apps, veteran centre of the Leafs, who has announced definitely that this is his last season in the N.H.L., was the star of the piece as Leafs whipped Bruins at Toronto, Saturday. He scored two goals, with Bill Ezinicki, Ted Kennedy and Joey Klukay getting the others. Bruins scorers were Milt Schmidt and Johnny Pierson.

At Chicago, Sunday, the fabulous fat man, Walter (Turk) Broda, who has turned in a brilliant game in the Toronto nets the night before, earned his fifth shutout of the season. Ted Kennedy scored in the first period, Harry Watson in the second and Ezinicki in the third. Assists on goals by Watson and Ezinicki were given to Apps, who now has two games left in which to score the three goals he still needs to reach the magic 200-goal mark.

Detroit Wings, who may be hitting the slump from which Toronto has just recovered, scored the first goal against Boston last night, but it was the only goal they did score. Don Morrison's counter was equalled by Pete Babando before the first period was over. Woody Dumart scored Boston's second rather luckily, when Goalie Harry Lumley cleared his shot only to see the puck bounce back in off Gord Howe's leg.

Anyway, Murray Henderson made it 3-1 for Boston and in the last frame Babando scored his second goal and young Ed Sandford added another to put Boston ahead 5-1 at the final bell. There were only five minor penalties throughout as Wings gave the hometown crowd one of the poorest displays of the season.

The Canadiens refused to consider their position hopeless as far as the Stanley Cup playoffs are concerned, and for the time being they've still got a chance. But they've got to win both remaining games, and New York has to lose three in a row, to permit Canadiens to get into the post-season fray. Such would be brought about by Canadiens tying New York on points, in points, in which case Canadiens would take the fourth and last playoff spot away from New York by virtue of having more winning games than New York.

Canadiens fired the opening goal in both victories over the Rangers. At Montreal, Saturday Bobby Fillion scored the only goal of the middle period and Elmer Lach scored in the third. Rangers tied it up on goals by Edgar Laprade and Frankie Eddolls. Then Kenny Reardon got the game-winning counter with less than four minutes to go.

At New York last night Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored four goals, two of them in the last minute of play as Rangers yanked goalie Jim Henry to send six forwards up. Rookie Floyd Curry and Glen Harmon got the other Canadien counters. Rene Trudell, Ed Kullman and Don Raleight were the New York goal getters.

Larry Kwong, of Trail, B.C., who has been performing for the amateur New York Rovers, became the first Chinese in N.H.L. play when he got in the game for New York at Montreal, where a wild third period brought Canadiens' Murph Chamberlain a match misconduct penalty for pushing Referee Bill Chadwick.

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 15—(CP)—No matter where Montreal Canadiens finish in the National Hockey League final standing there is consolation for them in the way they have pushed Toronto Maple Leafs around.

After last Thursday night's 3-1 win over Toronto Coach Dick Irwin of Canadiens was jubilant and, speaking to Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson, he said:

"Well, at any rate we win the professional hockey championship of Canada. We took the series from the Leafs (Stanley Cup holders) and that makes us champions of something."

Irwin, after watching the Habitants flying in something like their old style, gave out a bit on just why his team didn't fare so well. It traces back to tie Blake's broken leg.

"If we'd had a real left wing for the Punch Line all season we'd be right up there with the leaders," said Dick. "There's nothing much the matter with the rest of the club but we were weak on the left side. Blake had slipped but he was still a battler and when he broke his leg it created a gap that we never properly filled."

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll reports on a conversation with Jack Adams in which the round top man of Detroit Red Wings was asked if a hockey player could throw a game anl escape detection.

Jack Replied:

"A goalkeeper might be able to get away with it. There is so much jamming inside the blue line that he might let a puck get by him that he could heave stopped and nobody would be any the wiser."

Bush, Stefaniew Equal AHL Marks

Philadelphia, March 15. (CP)—Two American Hockey League records were equalled Saturday night as Philadelphia Rockets defeated Indianapolis Capitals 4-1, before 3,500 fans.

Eddie Bush and Wally Stefaniew, in assisting Phil Hergesheimer on a second-goal period, equalled league marks. Stefaniew's assist, his 68th, matched the record held by Philadelphia's present coach, Wally Kilrea. The latter set the record during the 1942-43 season with Hershey Bears.

Bush's assist—his 40th—equalled the performance set for defencemen by Ernie Dickens at Pittsburgh last year.

HORSE AND MOOSE PALS

Wistaria, B.C. — (CP) — A saddle horse and a moose have occupied the same corral in this Skeena district settlement. Miss Jackie Brown said that when she went to feed her horse, she found the moose there. It circled the enclosure a few times, then leaped the fence and disappeared.

Cleveland Sets New Record With 24 Straight Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons, the American Hockey League's hottest team, broke a seven-year professional hockey record for the number of games without a defeat as they came up with a victory and a tie over the weekend.

It brought the Barons' undefeated string to 24 straight, breaking the professional mark set by Boston Bruins at 23 in 1941. On Saturday, they edged Buffalo 2-1 and tied the same team 3-3 Sunday. The three points picked up by the league leading Barons, clinched first place in the western circuit.

The third-place Pittsburgh Hornets split two weekend contests, dropping New Haven 3-1 after losing 5-1 to Hershey on Saturday. The eastern section leaders, Providence, Reds, stopped St. Louis Flyers 3-1 last night after the Flyers had edged Springfield 4-2 the night before. In the only other games played Indianapolis defeated Washington 9-2 last night after losing 4-1 to Philadelphia on Saturday. The Barons, who haven't been beaten since Jan. 24, came from behind a 3-0 deficit to earn a stalemate with Bisons. Len Haldeson, Fred Hunt and Murdo McKay had given Buffalo their early lead by Hy Buller, Bobby Solinger and Bobby Carse came back to score for Barons.

Saturday, Roger Gagne and Church Russell banged in one goal each in the first period and the Clevelanders coasted the rest of the way. Joe Bell netted Buffalo's only goal.

Bill Benson and Jackie Hamilton were the scorers in Pittsburgh against New Haven while Jackie Gordie picked up Ramblers' lone tally. Saturday, Hershey pushed Hornets all over the rink to win 5-1. Armand Gaudreault paced the Bears with two goals while Frank Mario, Jack McGill and Sylvic Bettio added one each. Fleming Mackell scored Pittsburgh's only goal.

At St. Louis, Ray Laplante, Pete Kapusta and Eddie Prokop were the Providence goal-getters while Ernie Trigg scored for St. Louis

Eddie Olson led the St. Louis scorers with a brace of goals at Springfield while Trigg and Bill McComb picked up one apiece. Eldy Kobussen and Alan Kuntz tallied for Springfield.

Eddie Bruneteau and Nels Podolsky rapped in two goals each to pace Indianapolis in their convincing triumph over Washington. The other cap goals were scored by Pat Lundy, Gerry Couture, Tony Licari, Enio Sclisizzi and Dan Summers. Ken Shultz ahd Jack Riley hit the mark for Lions.

Steve Wochy sparked in two goals Saturday to lead Philadelphia in their victory over Indianapolis. Phil Hergesheimer and Wally Stefaniew also hit the mark for Rockets while Baldy Mackay notched Caps' lone point.

No games are scheduled tonight.

Close Race For First Place In U.S. Hockey Loop

(By The Associated Press)

Kansas City and Omaha still have a chance to knock Minneapolis Millers out of first place in the United States Hockey League's northern division as the season enters its final week.

Two weekend defeats put St. Paul out of the leadership race, but the Saints can still land in second place—with luck.

Kansas City defeated Minneapolis Saturday 4-3, but missed a chance to gain a first-place tie with the Millers last night when Minneapolis edged the Pla-Mors 3-2 and stepped out to a four-point lead.

Omaha shut out St. Paul 6-0, to stay one point behind Kansas City. The Saints, in fourth place, trail Omaha by one point.

Meanwhile, Houston trounced Tulsa twice 8-4 and 6-3, to clinch the southern division title, while Fort Worth's Rangers assured themselves of second place by taking Dallas twice 4-2 and 6-1.

Senators, Falls Split Weekend Hockey Tilts

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Senators and Shawinigan Falls Cataracts split two week end tilts in their best-of-seven Quebec Senior Hockey League semi-finals with Ottawa taking the Saturday match 5-2 and Shawinigan rebounding Sunday for a 3-2 victory.

Lachine Rapides shaded Victoriaville Tigers 4-2 Sunday to tie their best-of-seven Provincial Hockey League semi-finals at two games apiece. Victoriaville edged Lachine 4-3 Saturday in the third match of the series. The first game of the series, won by Tigers 5-4 a week ago, was awarded to Lachine Saturday when the league upheld their protest that the third overtime period in which Lachine scored first only to have Tigers come back with two markers, should have been sudden death, the first goal giving Lachine the game.

Sherbrooke St. Francis eliminated St. Hyacinthe Gallos from further P. H. L. competition by taking a 5-2 victory Sunday for their fourth straight win in their best-of-seven semi-finals.

Jack Irvine led the Senators Saturday with two goals while Jack McLean, Emile Dagenais and Frank Mathers added the others. Ralph Buchanan and Al Webster counted for Shawinigan. Buchanan, Jack Carthy and Hal Dewey fired Cataracts' Sunday goals while Conny Tudin and Emile Dagenais counted for Ottawa.

In the Sunday game Bob Broderick, Fernand Majeau, Roch Desmarais and Paul Gardner scored for Lachine while Eddie Vigneau and Roger Roy counted for Victoriaville. In the Saturday game, Kelly Burnett, Roger Roberge and Eddie Vigneau were the Victoriaville marksmen while Bobby Morin scored twice and Hub Bourgie one for Rapides.

Adjutor Cote, Sherbrooke's flashy wingman, was the big gun in his team's victory over St. Hyacinthe by firing three goals while Tony Demers and Bernie Vinet got the others. Gerry Gravel and Tiny Tamminen nicked the St. Hyacinthe markers.

Two Toronto Refs Bring Objection

Kingston, March 15. (Special)—An oddity occurred here on Saturday night when two Toronto referees, Jack McEachren and Andy Bellemer, reported for duty in the O.H.A. Junior "B" playoff game between Toronto Byers and Kingston Vics.

The Kingston management raised objection to this arrangement and by agreement "Yip" Radley replaced Bellemer and acted as linesman, while Bellemer had an evening's rest.

Peterboro Wins Mixed Bonspiel

Lindsay, March 15. (CP)—A mixed rink skipped by Fred Stenson of Peterborough, has won the district mixed bonspiel. Twenty-four rinks from Lakefield, Peterborough, Bobcaygeon, Haliburton, Beaverton and Lindsay competed.

Training Camp Notes

New York, March 15 —(AP)—New York Yankees are burning up the Grapefruit League while Boston Red Sox, picked by many baseball experts as favorites to win the American League pennant, are stumbling along.

Yesterday at St. Petersburg, Fla., the Yankees met the Red Sox for the first time and took them into camp 5-2, in 10 innings with Joe DiMaggio's three-run homer breaking up the game.

It was the first time that Joe McCarthy, former Yankee boss and new Red Sox mentor, masterminded against his old club.

The Yankees have won seven games without a loss, limiting the opposition to 12 runs while scoring 32.

Notes From Other Camps:

Los Angeles — Vern Olsen, Chicago Cub discard, is expected to start for New York Giants today against his former mates. Olsen has been working out with the Giants along with Thornton Lee, 41-year-old Chicago White Sox lefthander who also is being given a chance for mound berth with the New Yorkers.

Los Angeles, March 15 —(AP)—Arm and leg miseries have seven members of the Chicago Cub squad on the shelf and manager Charlie Grimm is becoming alarmed over the injuries.

Out of action are Hank Borowy, Don Johnson, Phil Cavarretta, Peanuts Lowrey, rookie Lloyd Lowe, Bill Nicholson and Clarence Maddern.

St. Petersburg — St. Louis Cardinals can win the National League pennant if Stan Musial and Howie Pollet return to their 1946 form and Enos Slaughter escapes injury, manager Eddie Dyer predicted today.

Waterloo Sparks Defeat Our Merchants Midgets 10-0 To Win Ontario Championship

By GEO. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Waterloo, Ont.—A hard-fighting courageous band of puckchasers wearing the blue of Belleville went down to defeat here on Saturday night before the more experienced Waterloo Sparks by a 10-0 score in the second game of their goals-to-count series for the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Midget "B" championship. Sparks defeated the Belleville squad 8-3 in the first games of the series and won the round and title 18-3.

The Belleville kids "ganged" the smart victors after the game was over, shaking hands, with them, hugging them, and cheering them in their first Ontario hockey title.

The Dr. Leon Hipwell trophy, a handsome silver mug, was presented to the victorious Sparks immediately following the game, by the donor, who is vice president of the OMHA. With Dr. Hipwell at the colorful ceremonies were Secetary Jack Christie, Toronto, and members of the OMHA executive. The trophy was received by Paul Oberle, starry centre player and captain of the Sparks, who in turn handed it over to Coach "Sparky" Weller, Flying Dutchman seniors star, after whom the newly crowned kid champions are named.

Attendance Record Set

Twelve hundred fans, a new record for Waterloo insofar as midget attendance are concerned, saw a plucky Belleville team clearly outplay and outshoot the starry homesters in the first period. Piatkowski in the Waterloo nets covered himself with glory as he turned back drive after drive and shot after shot of the speedy Belleville forwards. The visitors should have led at the end of the period by a 3-1 score. Barrett got the lone goal of the session at the six-minute mark when he fired home Bolduc's pass from close in.

From then on the hard-fighting Belleville squad battled in a lost cause. The smooth-working combination plays of the Sparks began to click and Mader, Oberle, Hoffarth and Hass, starry front line players of the homesters moved in efficiently to score neat counters. The locals fired home four goals in the second period to take a five-goal lead into the final heat.

Tired from a 195-mile ride the Belleville team fought back gallantly in the third period, but could not stem the tide of the Waterloo attack. Hass, brilliant centre player for the homesters flung home the rubber seven seconds after play was resumed in the third period and a minute later made the count 7-0 after Hoffarth had tobied him a pass following a rink-length rush.

Score 5 In Third

Oberle, Mader and Dorsch, scored later in the period to bring the final score to 10-0. The Belleville Merchants battled gamely on a lost cause, and missed scores on several occasions. The Waterloo goalie was outstanding and kicked out what looked like sure goals as the desperate visitors tore in to the last period attack.

The game was rugged with twenty-one penalties, all minors, and some of them very cheap, handed out by Referee Alex. Ferrenhrath of Kitchener.

"Duke" Doran suffered an injury to his left foot during the third period when he was boarded by a Waterloo player. He retired for repairs and did not return to the ice.

The Waterloo management and teams were loud in their praises of the Belleville squad, and following the game proved delightful hosts to their young guests.

Hoffarth, Oberle, Mader, Hass, Bolduc were outstanding for the winners with Piatkowski, their goalie turning in a sensational performance. Green, Milligan, Brown, Gilmour, Carey, Strahan and Doran went well for the Belleville team, with every member doing his best to whittle down the victor's lead.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Barclay; defence, Green, Milligan; centre, Brown; wings, Strahan, Gilmour; subs, Hurst, Jones, Barrett, Carey, Doran, O'Brien, Schreider.

Waterloo — Goal, Piatkowski; defence, Allenson, Tuckwood; centre, Hass; wings, Mader, Hoffarth; subs, Barrett, Selling, Oberle, Bolduc, Dorsch, Bulhman (g).

Summary:

1st Period

1—Waterloo, Barrett (Bolduc) 6.37
Penalties — Tuckwood, Milligan, Bolduc, Oberle.

2nd Period

2—Waterloo, Hoffarth (Tuckwood) 13.26
3—Waterloo, Bolduc (Oberle, Dorsch) 15.56

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Tampa, Fla., March 15. (AP)—Cincinnati Reds' big inducement to young ball players is a belief in holding farm operations to a minimum in order to give the athletes a quick chance at the majors. . . "That's a talking point in signing young players," says assistant-president Gabe Paul. "We may have to send them back to the minors, but they gat their shot." . . . Just by way of illustration, Ewell Blackwell pitched in two games for the Reds in his first pro season and had only one year in the minors before he returned to stay; Grady Hatton stepped right out of the army into the Cincinnati lineup.

Progressive Punishment

New York Yankees had a string of 2 innings of exhibition ball without allowing a run when they faced the Reds Saturday. . . Before the game manager Bucky Harris, with mock solemnity, warned his pitchers: "The first man who allows a run goes to Newark; two runs he goes to Kansas City; three to Norfolk, four to Binghamton and five he's out of baseball". . . . Starter Spec Shea qualified for Binghamton in one inning—and you'll see him in a Yank uniform all season.

Copper Cliff Protests Game With Porcupine

(By The Canadian Press)

There now is an unofficial junior hockey championship of Northern Ontario, unofficial because one of the finalist clubs, Copper Cliff Redmen, has entered a protest to the Northern Ontario Hockey Association executive over their game Saturday with Porcupine Combines which the Combines won 7-2.

The Redmen state they were not notified prior to the start of the game that a straw vote of the N.O.H.A. executive cut the best-of-seven final series to a best-of-five affair. Combines took the series 3-2. As far as Copper Cliff is concerned, the series will continue Tuesday at their home ice.

The Combines have issued no definite statement as to whether they will make the trip or wait for the N.O.H.A. executive's final decision.

McIntyre Macmen went one up in their best-of-five senior finals by taking a 5-2 decision from Sault Greyhounds as the series got under way at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sunday.

The Porcupine crew whipped into an early lead, were tied 1-1 at the end of the initial frame, and then broke out with a flurry of goals in the second and third periods to take an easy victory.

Scoring was well distributed among the winners with Campbell, Montigny, Domenico, Pirie, Kovich, Mineault and McGinn all getting one goal. Rubic and Byers were the two Copper Cliff scorers.

McIntyre led all the way in taking the first tilt of the senior finals. The first period ended at 3-0, the second at 4-1 and then each team added one in the third.

Orlando was the big gun for Macmen by firing two goals while Baker, Stewart and Hepworth each added one. Mayer and Kucher scored for the Greyhounds.

Ontario Hockey Association finalists swing into action again tonight with Hamilton Tigers at Kitchener - Waterloo for the fourth match of their best-of-seven senior finals and Windsor Spitfires at Barrie Flyers for the fourth game of their best-of-seven junior finals. Both Hamilton and Windsor lead their respective series 2-1.

Preston Wins Ontario Title

Preston, Ont., March 15 —(CP)—Preston Riversides won the Ontario Minor Hockey Association 1948 crown here Saturday by defeating Peterborough 7-3 in the seventh game of their total-the second game of their total-goal series. Preston took the round 12-7.

The Prestonians were presented with the Morrison trophy, emblematic of the provincial title following the game. The presentation was made by the donor, A. A. Morrison of St. Catharines, O.M.H.A. past president. This is the second time Preston has won the provincial championship. They won it in 1940.

You Can't Cuss Referee In Waterloo Arena

(By The Canadian Press)

Using profanity in a free-for-all at Waterloo Arena by goalie Clive Woolner, of the Bridgeport senior hockey team, an Ontario Rural Hockey Association entry, cost him $5 and costs. Woolner settled out of court. A team mate, George Gastmeier, is scheduled to appear in court at Kitchener Tuesday on a charge of assaulting a police officer.

A drastic shuffle in the United States' big money golf tournaments — now a $600,000-a-year business, was proposed yesterday by George Schneiter, chairman of the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Bureau. The new set-up would allow more people to "see good golf," lighten the nerve strain on players like Sam Snead who has intimated he is ready to quit competition, and open the door to promising young players who can't stand the expense of battling it out with veterans.

Instead $10,000 tournaments week after week, the pro clan would play in only a few — say 10 —events during a season. They would carry a minimum purse of $20,000. Between tournaments top players would compete in exhibition matches, permitting the public to "see golf at its best." But working no strain on the participants.

Charles W. Leslie, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, told the Association's annual meeting at Montreal Saturday that Canada's court groups must concentrate on development of young talent. "In my view there is but one course to follow, and that is to concentrate on the development of players not yet 18," he said. It was reported that the Davis Cup match between Canada and Mexico would be held in Canada, probably in Montreal because of current economic conditions in Mexico.

Frank Hogg, chairman of the Canadian Boxing Federation said Saturday he will "look into" claims by Hubert Gagnier, dethroned Canadian Featherweight champion that Gagnier fought "under severe duress" against Fernando Gagnon. Gagnon defeated Gagnier March 1 at Quebec. Hogan said he is particularly interested in Gagnier's statements that there was pressure exercised by "Federation authority" in Hogan's absence.

Veteran Gordon Richards, heavily favored to repeat as Britain's champion jockey for the 21st time in 24 years. Broke on top again Saturday as the 1948 flat racing season opened. He rode two opening-day winners.

Don Evans of San Bernardino Calif., driving a British Norton Saturday, won the American Motorcycle Association's National 100 Mile Amateur championship race. Evans' elapsed time was one hour 18 minutes, 28.69 seconds for an average speed of 76.59 miles an hour. A.M.A. officials said it was the fastest 100 miles run in amateur competition.

Varsity Seconds last night outclassed the basketball team of Sir George Williams College of Montreal 72-30 at Toronto and became unofficial Dominion Intermediate Intercollegiate champions.

Otto Beyer of Briggsville, Wis., set a world record last week by landing a five-pound, six-ounce bonefish with a thread-RDLU The fish was registered as a world's record for light tackle with the International Game Fish Association.

How better cast iron gives jobs to Canadians

The ancient Egyptians spoke of iron as the precious metal. It was used for making swords, armor and ornaments. As early as 332 B.C. iron was being cast into various forms.

In modern times, various industries began extensive research on the effects of adding Nickel to cast iron, realizing what vast improvements had been imparted to steel by adding Nickel. In this research, International Nickel took a very active part.

Over a period of years, it was discovered that by adding Nickel sometimes with other alloying elements, cast irons could be produced which were definitely stronger, tougher, and more uniform in texture, more resistant to wear and rust.

The facts uncovered in this research work were carefully collected by International Nickel and broadcast freely to foundries, manufacturers of machinery and other potential users.

Thirty years ago the commercial use of Nickel in cast iron was unknown. Today many thousands of tons of Canadian Nickel are used for this purpose.

The production of this Canadian Nickel means jobs for hundreds of Canadians in the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries. The use of Nickel cast iron has led to great expansion in cast iron foundries, thus giving employment to still more men. Thus does research develop better products and create more employment.

Placing Nickel anodes in the electrolytic tanks at the Nickel refinery.

"The Romance of Nickel" a 60-page book fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We are talking about squeeze plays. To prepare for a squeeze play, look first for two promotion cards. That is, look for two seeming losers that may be promoted into winners.

What next should you look for in planning a squeeze? Reduction cards. What are reduction cards? They are the cards that must be played to reduce all hands to the squeeze position.

In other words, reduction cards are merely the cards that must be played to each trick. Only they must be played out for the purpose of reducing each hand to as few remaining cards as possible.

How few remaining cards should there be before the squeeze play may be effective? Usually three. That is, ten cards must be reduced before the squeeze operates. Not always, but most often.

We are discussing this deal:

NORTH
♠8 7 6 4
♥A K 9
♦K 3
♣8 6 4 2

WEST
♠10 3 2
♥Q J 10 8 5
♦A Q J 6 4
♣None

EAST
♠None
♥7 6
♦10 9 8 7 5 2
♣10 9 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 9 5
♥4 3 2
♦None
♣A K Q J

South is declarer at a grand slam in spades. Opening lead from west is heart queen. Nine of hearts and king of diamonds in dummy are promotion cards as threats.

To develop them, a squeeze situation must be created. To reach the best squeeze position, all hands must be reduced to three cards apiece. The cards played out for that purpose are reduction cards.

Can this be done here? Yes. Dummy can win trick one with heart king. South could take five trumps and four clubs. These ten reducers leave a balance of three cards in each hand.

South would then have left a small trump and two small hearts.

West would keep diamond ace and jack-ten of hearts to protect both red suits.

Here is where dummy is rewarded for having two promoters; heart nine and diamond king. Because south now leads the last trump and west is squeezed out of a heart or diamond. He's gotta go.

McKenley Set New Canadian 300-Yard Record

Hamilton, Ont., March 15—(CP)—Herb McKenley, lanky runner from Jamaica, established a new Canadian record for 300 yards at the 23rd annual track meet of the 91st Highlanders Saturday night.

McKenley, running in the colors of Shore A. C. of New Jersey was clocked in 32.2, compared with the old Canadian record of 32.8 seconds.

He also started in the 600 but was taken ill and forced to retire after completing 200 yards.

In his record breaking event the big fellow got his opposition at the outset from Johnny Nelson of New York University and H. Miacco, also of N. Y. U., but after training for a short distance he took command and was some 15 yards in front at the finish.

Big disappointment came with the running of the special mile which Bill Hulse of New York A. C. captured in handy fashion. Hulse, after trailing Berger and Ellis, both of New York, took command just before the third quarter opened and was never in trouble after that.

Hulse was timed in 4:9.3.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Buddy O'Connor heads into the final week still holding a slim one-point lead in the National League scoring race over the fast-closing Elmer Lach of Canadiens. The New York centre ace picked up two assists on the weekend to raise his total to 57 points, while Lach collected one goal and two assists and now has 56 points. Trailing the leaders in third spot are Chicago's top marksmen, Gaye Stewart, Bun Poile and Doug Bentley, each with 54 points. All three went scoreless as Hawks were blanked in their only contest.

The leaders:

TrappedUnderCar Motorist Dies

Alliston, Ont., March 15—(CP)—Peter McCabe, 26, of nearby Athlone, was fatally injured Saturday night when trapped under his automobile which skidded on an icy road and over - turned. His 12-year-old son, Jimmy, saved himself and a companion, Ronald Horne, eight, by kicking out the heavy windshield.

Jerome Horne, father of Ronald and Harry Feheley, a visitor at the Horne home, summoned by the terrified boys, spent an hour trying to lift the car off McCabe but by the time they freed him he was dead.

McCabe's older brother, Mathey, was killed last September when struck down by a truck just 200 yards from the spot where the car overturned.

Novelties Are Feature Of Sportsmen's Show

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 15 —(CP)— It's best to leave your inferiority complexes at home when you travel to the first Canadian National Sportsmen's Show — the extravaganza of the outdoors which got off to a sparkling start indoors at the Coliseum here Saturday.

You'll see a horse that does a dance step and sits down in a chair, a seal that takes a shower, balances various objects, including a life raft, on its nose while swimming and three zanies in weird bathing suits who demonstrate how not to dive from a high board.

But don't, as this reporter did, let the amazing skill of the experts make you brood over your bobbles of the preceding summer. For instance, watching the diving clowns gave me a pretty fair idea of how I looked when I tried that back flip last summer—I only hope their landings were not as hard.

Then take the exhibition of bait casting, put on in the 60,000-gallon tank fringed with evergreens, they've set up in the Coliseum's show ring.

Watching the experts nonchalantly flicking a cigaret out of a man's mouth as he perched on the side of the tank some 40 feet away and afterward plop the bait in the middle of a floating, foot-wide target, made me despondent. I remembered that six-foot patch of open water I overshot on the Otonabee River last August—and the climb up the tree it took to retrieve the bait.

Besides the vaudeville acts the show includes exhibits and demonstrations of all types of sports equipment, an Indian village, a huge exhibit of wildlife and an Eskimo family, complete with igloo, and Sharkey, the trained seal would steal an act from Barrymore especially when he joins the crowd's applause of himself by flapping his flippers.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By SHAUN MCQUILLAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 12—(CP)—Boxing promoter Jack Solomons, one of Britain's busiest men, was shocked when he was ordered to report for work under the Labor government's "spiv" order which directs idlers to jobs.

His general manager, 34-year-old Jimmy Burns, has the same instructions.

Solomons, fingering a multi-colored tie presented to him by heavyweight Joe Baksi, said: "It must be my spiv tie. I think I'll wrap it up and send it along to the ministry for registration."

The King of Sock, as he is sometimes called, is a fishmonger and managing director of a book-making business besides his boxing activities.

"I never work less than 15 hours a day," he said. "Often I am working in the early hours of the morning arranging fights."

The registration order, was explained by an employee who said he classified Solomons and Burns as "directors (non-active)" when making a staff list for the ministry.

Miss Mabel Bryant, one of Britain's greatest all-round sportswomen, who was awarded 63 England hockey caps, and was described as "the W.G. Grace of women's cricket," died aged 63.

She once scored 224 not out, and took all 10 wickets for 18 runs in a match at Eastbourne, and when 50 she scored 91 not out at Port Sunlight, Cheshire.

Miss Byrant, who also excelled at tennis, lacrosse, fencing and swimming, was for 25 years sport instructress at Liverpool Physical Training College.

Soccer transfer fees reached a new high when Sunderland paid Newcastle United £20,050 ($80,200) for international Len Shackleton, topping by £50 the price paid by Notts County for Tommy Lawton, international centre-forward.

Said Frank Butler, London Daily Express columnist;

"At first glance the price for Shackleton is fantastic, because Len—or any footballer you care to name—is not worth £20,050.

"But . . . how much is Shackleton really costing Sunderland? If the Roker Park club end the season with a net profit of £20,050 on the balance sheet, the inspector of taxes is due for nine shillings 20,000 times, which leaves only £11,000."

But £20,050 in 1948 is a far cry from 1894 when Blackburn Rovers protesed to the Football League because Woolwich Arsenal had not paid a £15 transfer fee for a player named Stevenson.

Shackleton's share in the deal was —£10 signing-on fee and £200 as his accrued portion of the transfer cost.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and I said, Hay pop, what's some good reasons for drinking coca?

Oh, it gives you something to do with your hands and face, and helps the coco industry, pop said, and I said, G, maybe I'll put that in.

In what, for Peet sake? pop said, and I said, It's a contest on the radio for school kids. All you have to do is finish a sentence about Sent Bernard coco, and the one that sends in the best answer wins a St. Bernard dog, I said.

What, a live one? pop said, and I said, Sure, pop. The start of the sentence is, "I am a public school student and I like Sent Bernard coco because," and all I have to do is finish it with more werds. So jimminy, pop, it's a cintch, because the sentence is half wrote for me alreddy, I said.

Yee gods, it would be just my luck to have the exhawsted judges, pick your name blindly out of the barrel and send you the massive beast, pop said. Have you any idea what a Sent Bernard dog is? It's half the size of a horse, it takes 3 strides to cross the room and nocks down 3 objects at each stride, and if it steps on your foot it fractures your ankle. Why dont you wait for a contest where you can win a dwarf canary? And anyway, we dont use Sent Bernard coco, so you cant really say you like it for any reason, he said.

Sure I can, pop, I like any coco that's libel to get me a Sent Bernard dog, I said. Anyways, it'll probably only be a puppy at ferst, I said, and pop said, A Sent Bernard puppy is as big as a pony and chews up 2 slippers at every sitting. I hearby offer a grand cash award for finishing the sentence, "I dont try to win Sent Bernard dogs because," and by gollies you win it and here it is, he said.

Meening a dime and making me feel partly lucky.

YOU WOMEN WHO SUFFER HOT FLASHES then FEEL CHILLY—

Here's Good News!

Are you between the ages of 38 and 52 and going through that trying functional 'middle-age' period peculiar to women? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel clammy, so nervous, irritable, weak? Then do try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms! It's famous for this!

Many wise 'middle-age' women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against this distress.

Pinkham's Compound contains no opiates—no habit-forming drugs.

It helps nature (you know what we mean!). This great medicine also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Stephen is right, Jeff. It wouldn't be wise for me to leave. Besides, I'll probably have to find another place to live soon. I won't go into that now. Remember our joint bank account? But if you really want me to go, if you'll be unhappy if I stay, I'll leave with you. You must be satisfied."

He knew she wanted to stay, that she was wise and sensible. His anger subsided a little. Stephen felt immensely relieved.

Jeff said, "All right. Maybe I was rash and selfish. At least you're in Suzanne's department, not here. There's nothing more to say, is there?"

"I hate to see you and Stephen."

"There's nothing we can do about that," Jeff said sharply. "Let's go Lyle."

Stephen said, "Goodbye, Lyle. Goodbye Jeff."

She answered him but Jeff didn't say anything.

She went to the dressing-room for her brown felt hat and brown sport coat and met Jeff at the elevator. They went to a restaurant.

His hand closed over hers.

"Don't worry, honey."

She was trying very hard not to ask, "Why did you? How could you?" And yet she did not want to hear the ugly details. It was futile to glance back. Jeff had made a mistake, one mistake. Surely she should and must forgive it. Stephen had been unreasonably severe. She thought, "Jeff needs me now. I won't nag or scold I won't hold this one thing against him. Besides. I'm so glad to be with him again."

Jeff said, "Tell me you love me," She must not know that he was frightened and nervous. Where did you go to look for a job? From college he had stepped into the position under Stephen and he had felt safe and secure and almost smug when he'd heard other young men speak of long, despondent months of unemployment and the incredibly low salaries offered.

"I love you," she said and smiled.

"I'm not worried. Lyle, you haven't asked...."

"I don't want to hear it. Let's not talk about it."

He put her hand to his lips. "That bank account will grow, I promise you. In leaps and bounds when I get a job. Now tell me why you may have to find another place to live."

She told him about Bonnie and Michael.

Stephen sent for Suzanne to come to his office.

"And she was going to leave if he'd insisted," he added after he had told her the whole story. "From what she said they must have a joint bank account."

"You care very much what happens to those two, don't you, Stephen?"

He nodded and smiled. "Yes, too much. But why should I? Jeff let me down badly."

"You care what happens to Lyle. As a girl or as an artist?"

"Both." He was intent again. "She has all the ingredients to make a beautiful life, Suzanne. She has faith and courage. I'd hate to see her brightness dulled and her love dragged through unpleasantness. I hope Jeff makes good. I'll be the first to congratulate him if he does."

"You've lost two friends."

He looked at her steadily. "Just one really, and that's Lyle. Jeff is your friend for only as long as you can be of use to him."

She smiled. Then she said, "Stephen, you'll deny this vehemently. You may even laugh. But you're in love with Lyle. You've been falling in love with her since the first time you saw her. Once I told you you had never been in love because no girl had even been unattainable. Lyle is. She loves Jeff."

There was a cynicism in his expected chuckle. "So you think Lyle is the lady in the tower who needs to be rescued? Thanks, no. You're wrong for once, Suzanne. I'm not in love with her."

"I told you you'd deny it vehemently."

"Get your hat and coat. We're going to dinner. This has been some day!"

Although Jeff did not find a position the first week after his dismissal, there was nothing in attitude to indicate discouragement. But Lyle, meeting him every day for luncheon and dinner, did not know that Jeff, well aware that most of his charm lay in his gayety, could tolerate neither sympathy nor sadness. Obviously, and she was glad for it, his confidence had not been shaken. But it was a superficial self-assurance because he could not bear not to be well thought of. The thought of his friends saying, "Jeff's out of work, did you know? Looks shabby. Had to sell his car and give up his apartment," cut sharply through his pride and tormented him.

The Jeff who was welcomed with open arms at parties, who was lavish with money, whom men liked and to whom girls were instantly attracted—that was the Jeff he had been with whom he was pleased and of whom he was proud. But the present Jeff, who had to wear a false smile and feign assurance and who did not have a job in sight filled him with loathing.

Lyle came out of the store at noon and walked to the hotel where Jeff waited for her. She felt very tired. Last night she had worked late on the drawing for Mrs. Nash. Michael had not called. Nor had there been any mail from Bonnie. And no longer did she ask Jeff if he had good news.

At luncheon Jeff said, "I had an interview with a chap this morning. It looks as if something might come from it. If I weren't so selective...." Lies....Lies....

Lyle said, "Keep on being selective. Do you—do you need money, Jeff? I've the bank book with me." She opened her bag and took it out. "You take it."

Jeff made a wry smile, examining the figures. "Our worldly wealth is staggering, isn't it?"

"Great oaks from little...."

"You're sweet and wonderful," he said. He was ashamed for his lies about the prospect of getting a job and now frightened at the weeks that would lengthen into leaden months with the figures in the bank book steadily lessening. His resentment toward Stephen had grown. If only he could show him! And he would! To Lyle he said, "It'll be a case of dire necessity if I touch this money. And I'll never touch any of it that belongs to you."

"To us. It doesn't belong to either you or me but to us."

Stephen was on the crowded elevator when Lyle stepped on. Since she could not completely ignore his smile, she smiled back faintly and turned her back and faced front. Suddenly she hated him for what he had done to Jeff! "He might have given him another chance! We all make mistakes!"

Stephen felt the slight snub. She thought him an ogre, of course. She thought his treatment of Jeff unjust, that he, Stephen, was inflated with importance and power. "It's funny," he thought, "the turn of mind people take when they love unselfishly. Lyle blames me and despises me for what Jeff did in Chicago! That doesn't make much sense."

And Stephen was annoyed that he cared what Lyle thought of him!—In the past week he had called himself to sharp attention several times when his thoughts drifted to Lyle and Jeff. Why was he so concerned? Why bother to wonder about them? And now, looking at Lyle's clear-cut profile beneath the upturned brown felt hat, his irritation was doubled, realizing that her slight to him had hurt him. This girl, slim and auburn-haired with whom he had had but few moments alone, this girl who loved Jeff fiercely and loyally and blindly, had the power to hurt him. Stephen Tennant! It was ludicrous. But it was true. It was true....

Suzanne called Lyle to her office.

"Since you've had so much bad news recently, I'm glad I'm the one who is bringing you good news. You're going to get an increase." How Lyle brightened! She nodded. "Yes, I know about Jeff, my dear. I'm sorry. But since I'm Stephen's friend and Jeff's and yours, I don't think it's wise to discuss what happened that day. But I am interested in knowing whether or not Jeff has been placed."

"Not yet. You see, he won't take just anything."

Innocent child, Suzanne thought. She was afraid Jeff would be glad of—just anything.

"Of course. I understand. How is your work for Mrs. Nash coming along? I'd like to see it."

Before Lyle left, she had invited Suzanne to the apartment that evening.

Dining with Jeff, she told him of her increase in salary—and was sorry the moment the words fell from her lips.

"That's great," he said and moved uneasily and flicked the ashes from his cigarette. "You deserve it. But don't you get the point? It's Steve's way of showing me up more. It's to make me feel small that you're going ahead and I'm still out of a job. There's another point, too. He wants to make you into a big success. He wants to point to you with pride and say he discovered you."

Telling him that Suzanne was coming to the apartment, she left him outside a theatre and walked home. Home....Once it had been home....when she had stood on the threshold of the living-room and laughed at little Bonnie and big Michael playing with Mike on the floor....when everything in the apartment had been in order, and when dinner was ready to be served.

Tonight, coming in, she went directly to the window and put it up and let out the stale air of a room unlived in. There was no mail. She took a quick shower and put on the green house coat Bonnie had given her on her birthday.

Suzanne came and Lyle took her into her bedroom to see the nearly finished picture for Mrs. Nash. It was a scene in a stadium grandstand, showing what the well-dressed college girl and young matron should wear to a football game. It was vivid and lifelike and gay.

Lyle said, "I'm going to do a different one each month. There'll be one for Christmas. An indoor scene with evening clothes probably. Then a cruise scene, then Easter, and the races. It's been fun."

They went back to the living-room. And, after they had been talking quite some time, Lyle said "I think I told you that I live here with Michael and Bonnie Hill. Bonnie and I went to school together in Baltimore, art school. They have a baby." Then pausing, while Suzanne looked at her gravely she said, "They've separated. There'll probably be a divorce."

"Oh, no!"

"Yes, I'm afraid it's hopeless. I shouldn't have mentioned it at all but I'm certain Bonnie will want a job and I thought perhaps you could help her. This has shaken me, too. I'm devoted to both of them."

Suzanne did not pry for details. "If she must, send her to me." She sighed, thinking, "Is love always a failure? Is it always a disappointment? That's the only comfort I have that if Walter and I had married, it wouldn't have lasted. But that isn't after all, any comfort. For a while at least I should have been completely happy, completely a woman and not a machine." Seven years and still her memories were achingly acute. Now Lyle thought little of the places she had been with Jeff, the things he had said, the foolish, funny, serious, endearing things. You did not call upon the past and live again in it until you knew there were to be no new memories to add to the ones you had....

When she left, Lyle put on a paint-smeared smock and went to work. Such understanding as Suzanne had, she thought, could only be the result of a deep and rich experience. For days now her thoughts had flown into various channels, remaining briefly in one and then flying to another. Jeff, Michael and Bonnie, and Stephen. The latter—friend or foe? Suddenly their lives were as if being stirred by a stick and all were groping and floundering for escape. Swept away suddenly were the enchanted weeks.... "When I touched the stars," she thought.

The sound of a key in the door brought her quickly from her room to the living-room. Michael—come home? She breathed a prayer.

But it was Bonnie with sleeping Mike in her arms. Not Michael but Bonnie who had come back to wreckage and ruin.

Lyle said, "Bonnie, darling," and relieved her of Mike and took him into the bedroom. He opened his eyes while she was taking off his coat and leggings but he closed them again. Covering him, bending down to kiss his flushed face, she left him and went back to the living-room, blinking away tears and thinking, "I can't let Bonnie know how my heart is aching."

Bonnie had taken off her hat and coat. Her brown hair was disheveled, her dress wrinkled. Her breathing was short. The train journey with Mike, restless and sleepy, had exhausted her, Lyle knew.

Lyle said, "I'll make you some coffee and fix you something to eat," and went to the kitchen and was back in a short time with a tray. She sat opposite Bonnie, dreading what she knew she must hear. The comparison of tonight, Bonnie's standing in the hall with the heavy child in her arms, and the night a few years ago when she had cried, "I'm going to marry Michael! Don't tell anybody but we're going to elope! I'll have to marry the man to get rid of him!" Music in her voice....

At last Bonnie said, pouring all the strength and courage she had into her voice, "Michael wrote me." She bit into her lip to keep it from trembling so.

"Why don't you go to bed now and not talk and try to sleep?" Lyle suggested.

"Sleep?" A hoarse, broken little laugh. Then, "No. I can't sleep and even if I could, it's like running away. I can't run away from myself or what has happened. I can't cry all the time and feel sorry for myself. This has to be faced and straightened out. How is Jeff?"

"He's fine." Not yet would she tell her what had happened to Jeff. How like Bonnie to interrupt her own thoughts and ask for another.

"You've kept everything very nicely," she said, looking around the room.

"Not very. I haven't had much time."

Then Bonnie rested her head on the back of the divan. "In his letter Michael tried to be kind to me. He's a man caught between two fires and he's miserably unhappy. He's going to provide for Mike but I won't take anything for myself. That's wrong, probably. Probably I should make him pay and—like it. That's what my father said. But I've a silly pride about taking money from a man who doesn't want me and who's willing to pay just because he feels it's his duty."

Lyle asked, "Do you love him, after this?"

"Yes," Bonnie said without hesitancy. "Love will take more punishment than anything in the world, Lyle, and still come out with its head up. I've read accounts in the papers of men arrested for cruelty to their wives and those same wives begging that their husbands be released. And you can't explain it except to say that those women love their men. Marriage is such a terribly strong bond. Once I asked you if I had failed. You said I hadn't in any way. But I did. I failed because I was too unselfish, because I didn't demand enough of Michael!"

"Can one ever be too unselfish, Bonnie?"

"Yes. You're too unselfish when your generosity is taken advantage of and taken for granted. The more you give the more you are expected to give. Oh, I haven't gone to the other side completely," she said, smiling a little. "But there is a medium ground where the giving and taking is equal.

"Michael always had his way about everything. That's the way I thought it should be. Everything was made easy and comfortable for him. I didn't buy clothes so that he could be well dressed at his office. He has to be a well-dresed young man but I shouldn't have neglected myself as I have I've become old-fashioned, outdated.

"Here at home I shielded him from every annoyance. I never let him know when creditors came and I kept them off until the next month. Sometimes when the food budget ran low, I wouldn't ask him for money and wouldn't eat very much for a few days. I wouldn't let him send me flowers on my birthday because I thought the money could be put to a more practical use. I never made him feel the responsibility of Mike and our home and me—enough! I wanted to spare him. I gave too much and didn't ask for enough.

"And so while I've been away I've been sitting in judgment not only on Michael but on myself. I made the fatal mistake of a woman in love. I gave too much!" She smiled again. "You find that hard to understand, Lyle, because you are as I am. Don't misunderstand me. I said the giving and taking should be equal. I put into our marriage more than Michael did and it's my fault. And since my roots are deeper and stronger than his, the pulling up hurts more...."

Mike awakened and gave a feeble, sleepy cry. But when Lyle looked in at him, he was asleep again.

Bonnie shook her head slowly and sighed. "I—I can't let myself think very much about the—the past, I don't dare. I've got to build a wall around my heart or I—I couldn't go on. I can't let myself be soft and sentimental." Her eyes filled. "I'm the mother of a son who has to be raised and sent to school." She covered her face with her hands. "It's so easy to talk courage but so hard, so hard to live it!" After a moment she said, "But I must."

Lyle said, "I'll do anything I can to help. I think Suzanne Gibson will be able to place you in a position. She knows so many people."

"That's fine. And I'll get a nurse for Mike. He—he won't understand that, will he, my not being here to feed him and bathe him? And Michael not coming home.."

ELECTRICITY!

YOU CAN SAVE ELECTRICITY

The tremendous post-war growth of Ontario's industries has resulted in unprecedented demands for hydro-electric power. To keep these industries producing, every one of us must cut down our use of electricity. You can save power by turning off all lights in rooms not in use . . . by switching off electric stoves and other appliances as soon as you are finished with them. Use electrically heated water sparingly . . . do not use electric heaters or grates. Save all the electricity you can . . . in your home, your office, your shop . . . and prove your "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

750 Netherlanders Leave for Canada

Rotterdam, March 15 (AP)—A party of 750 Netherlanders, all of them farmers and farmes' families left Sat., for Halifax aboard the 8,000-ton ship Kota Inten.

They are the first of some 10,000 to emigrate to Canada from this country in 1948 and an estimated 20,000 in 1949. There were 200 children less than 12 years old in the party which included families with up to 12 children and also a few war brides.

The trip from Rotterdam to Canada was payable in guilders, but the emigrants were only allowed $100 Canadian on which to start their new existence.

The Kota Inten, which is scheduled to make the trip in about nine days is carrying the first of some 13 shipments this year. The Netherlands shipping directorate has put the ship at the disposal of the Netherlands Foundation for Emigration.

The foundation is a pre-war institution, but its boom only began after the war. The foundation occupies a 14-room mansion in the centre of The Hague, employing 76 persons.

Stirling Council Notes

Stirling — (Special) — The regular session of the village council met last week with Reeve H. J. Wells presiding and Councillors Brooks and Bradshaw in attendance. Communications were tabled from the Central Mortgage and Housing Co., regarding the supplying of culverts for the approaches to the new wartime houses from Inspector R. E. Macklem re high school area, and from Brunner Mond Co. regarding an order for ten tons of calcium chloride for use on village streets.

Owing to the resignation of Wm. Chambers as caretaker of the village dam, Russell Woodbeck was given the appointment at a salary of $75.

Reeve Wells reported that the village auxiliary pump which has been operating in the Stirling Creamery was undergoing repair.

He also reported receipt of a cheque of $227.25 from the County of Hastings being half of the maintenance of sanatorium patients in the village in 1947. The Provincial Government road subsidy amounting to $1,153 had also been received, stated the reeve,

FOXBORO AND DISTRICT FILM COUNCIL

An interesting and lively discussion took place in Wallbridge Public School on Wednesday evening last when the Foxboro and District Film Council held their March meeting.

The different groups were very much alive to the value of reforestation and it was the opinion of all that more good would accrue from the education angle if land near the schools were planted with trees. However if forests were the ultimate aim then a county forest project was the answer.

It was decided that township forests could be planted in both Sidney and Thurlow townships, the standard bearer of the latter township challenging the former as to the finished product.

A committee was appointed to interview the township councils as to the purchase of land for such a project. Mr. Roy Sills offered his woodlot to be used as an experiment in woodlot management.

A discussion on where to plant trees led to the conclusion that land suitable for ordinary crops should not be used but only "waste" and be planted to trees suitable to the soil.

Reforestation is absolutely necessary in agriculture. Perhaps the best reason for this is that trees tend to hold moisture and prevent erosion.

The April meeting will be held on April 14th in Turner's School, where the discussion will be led by Ronald Longwell.

Tweed

Council Thanked For Co-operation

Tweed (Special) — At a recent meting of the Muncipal Council a communication was received from the Department of Planning and Development, thanking Reeve McCarey and members of the council for the fine co-operation ni connection winth industrial reports during the past year.

William Kinlin of Tweed Insurance Agency addressed the council regarding the liability insurance policy for the corporation. He detailed the protection to the village and explained what the council might face in the event of a lawsuit on the part of person injured. In view of the fact that this particular policy has been has been handled by Miss A. M. Rayburn, the decision was to leave it with her.

Wants Better Service

Mr. Wm. Marsh, C.P.R. telegraph operator interviewed the council, pointing out that he felt the licenced taxis should be obligated to meet all C.P.R. night trains. Sometimes C.P.R. employees have to remain on duty two or three hours extra, particularly on Saturday nights, when passengers are stranded in the waiting from without taxi service.

Mr. Marsh said that taxis are not giving the service to night passengers to which they are entitled.

Mr. Felix Rashotte spoke to the council regarding the acquisition of a village lot on which he proposes to erect a large garage and two apartments.

After some discussion Reeve McCarey and councillor Trudeau were named to investigate the sale of the property.

Councillor T. C. Graham chairman of the Fire Committee said the brigade had requested the purchase of fog nozzles. They are an excellent apparatus for use when the smoke is heavy and the fire-fighters are unable to detect the source of the blaze. One nozzle has been purchased and the fire-fighters tried it out and are highly pleased with it.

She saw carriages in the making. The works superintendent, A. E. Peters, is explaining how fittings are finished.

Maniac Fires At Catholic Students, One Boy Killed

By BEVERLY R. YOUNG

New York, March 16 (AP)—A two-gun maniac, imbued with a wild urge to "kill Catholics," fired a fusilade of shots into a crowd of 400 screaming Roman Catholic school students yesterday killing one boy and wounding six others.

"They killed my son, they killed my son," the slayer, identified by police as Serbian-born Marko L. Markovich, 64, cried brokenly after his capture.

The attack, which plunged the busy Columbus Circle into an uproar, took place shortly before 3 p.m. outside an armory where Roman Catholic students were rehearsing for tomorrow's St. Patrick's Day parade.

Brandishing two revolvers, the fanatic rushed into the terror-struck crowd and opened fire. Thomas Brady, 16, slumped to the sidewalk, dead, his head pillowed on a textbook, "Christianity and Civilization," he had been carrying.

Three other teen-age students crumpled to the street, critically wounded. A trio of others were nicked by the spray of bullets.

Detectives quoted Markovitch as saying that as he approached the armory he asked who the boys were and was told "schoolboys from a Catholic church."

"At the word Catholic I went mad," Markovitch was quoted as saying. "I started firing bullets."

Assistant District Attorney Henry Whitney said the unemployed welder blamed the death of his 13-year-old son on "foul play of Catholics, Italians and politicians." He did not elaborate. Police said the child actually died of natural causes four years ago.

Markovitch became so obsessed by the idea, Whitney related, that he had a 156-page book printed in Slavic. It contained a picture of the dead son and explained, Markovitch said, how Catholics "killed my boy." A copy of the paper-covered book was found on the man.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, March 16 (CP)—Synopsis: The mild and showery weather which is general through Southern Ontario this morning will be followed by cloudy and cooler weather, moving in from the northwest once the storm centre has passed. At present the centre is over southern Lake Huron and by Wednesday morning will be over Western Quebec. Decidedly cold air covers the Prairies and has pushed east into the James Bay region. By Wednesday morning this colder air will have spread south to the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions and lower temperatures can be expected in all sections of the province Wednesday.

16-Nation Union On Marshall Plan Is Taking Shape

(By CARL HARTMAN

Paris, March 16 (AP)—A 16-country Marshall plan union began taking shape today as high-ranking delegates wound up preliminary speech-making phases of their conference.

Six of 14 foreign ministers attending the western Europe meeting spoke yesterday. The other eight probably will be heard today. They are the ministers from Belgium, Austria, Eire, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal and Sweden. Out of the mass of data the 14 foreign ministers and two ambassadors seem to have outlined four concrete projects.

1. A plan for a treaty on mutual economic aid and the use to be made of Marshall plan funds.

2. The idea of an organization which, as Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin described it, "cannot and will not cease when the pressure of present needs diminishes."

3. A proposal that Germany be included in the reconstruction effort.

4. A set of reports showing what Europe wants of the Marshall plan, based on American reports of what is available.

Position of Italy

Delegates already have discounted the American statement that Italy would get no Marshall plan aid if it goes Communist in next month's election. They assumed that a Communist-led Italy, like other Communist-led states, would keep out the plan. Italian Communist leaders have said as much.

L'Humanite, French Communist newspaper, stressed Communist opposition to the plan: "The political and military character of the Marshall plan and the Brussels pact is no longer denied by the American party."

SOFT COAL STRIKE SEEN ENGULFING MOST OF INDUSTRY

Possibly Government May Try to Mediate

Pittsburgh, March 16 (AP) — The mushrooming soft coal walkout today appeared likely to engulf most of the industry in the United States within the next 24 hours.

Already 280,000 workers, more than half of the soft coal miners in the United States, had laid down their tools in support of John L. Lewis' demand for $100 monthly pensions.

All 23,000 members of the Independent United Mine Workers had quit their jobs in Illinois and large quotas had stopped work in 11 other states.

In Washington, mediation officials hastily explored ways to stop the walkout, but were undecided what to do. The strongest possibility seemed that the government would try to mediate as long as there seemed hope of a solution.

"Able and Willing" Clause

Even should President Truman seek another injunction against Lewis, there was some question whether the court could find anything to restrain. Lewis' contract, signed by the industry last July 8, provided only that miners should work as long as they were "able and willing."

The Taft-Hartley Act provides machinery for keeping vital industries going in a national emergency but it would take some time to get its provision into action.

Meanwhile, the number of miners idle continued to swell. In West Virginia, 64,000 out of 100,000 had walked out of the pits. The Williamson field in south western Virginia, employing 14,000 was shut down tight. J. J. Ardigo, secretary of the Williamson Operators Association, said he had no idea when the men would go back, and added:

"As long as the men are able but not willing, they won't work. Maybe when the workers are willing, the companies won't be willing and able."

In Pennsylvania, 39,000 out of 96,000 had quit.

Says Agreement Dishonored

The walkouts came after Lewis sent letters to his locals last Friday telling them operators "have dishonored the 1947 wage agreement and defaulted under its provisions affecting the welfare board."

Lewis wants the money paid out of a welfare fund made up from a 10-cents-a-ton royalty on coal paid by the operators. The operators contend the proposed pensions are "too expensive." The welfare fund now contains $30,000,000.

The current mine contract does not expire until June 30.

At Cincinnati, R. E. Howe, President of Appalachian Coals, Inc., estimated the country's stockpile of coal at 34 days' supply for industrial consumers, four days for domestic users.

Pursuing Rabbit, Shepherd Dog Breaks Man's Leg

Alamosa, Colo., March 16—(AP)—A dog broke a man's leg yesterday and all because of a tricky rabbit.

Anton Nielsen, 61, an Alamosa farmer, was walking across a field with his German shepherd dog.

Up hopped the rabbit.

The dog gave chase and when the rabbit zig-zagged between the farmer's legs, the big dog tried to follow. There was too much dog for clearance and one of Nielsen's legs was snapped by the impact.

The dog wasn't hurt.

Neither was the rabbit.

Monty's Informality in Dress Sharply Criticized by British M.P.

London, March 16 (Reuters) — Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery, chief of the Imperial General Staff, was criticized in the House of Commons last night for his informality in dress.

Col. Gomme Duncan, Conservative, urged War Minister Shinwell, "to persuade the field marshall to go about dressed as a field marshal and not in dress which is not laid down in any regulations of the regular army."

Shinwell replied that he regarded the field marshal's dress as "most picturesque and attractive."

Duncan retorted that the dress was entirely outside the regulations, and asked:

"Is it right that the private soldier and officer should have to comply with the regulation and not the chief of the Imperial General Staff?"

Shinwell said that he would have to look into the precise regulation, adding: "If the chief of the Imperial General staff is to be castigated — well, we shall do it in private."

Montgomery has, on most public occasions, worn battledress with his famous black beret.

Would Limit Non-Resident Sportsmen to Preserve Ontario's Game and Fish

Toronto, March 16—(CP)—Unless some restriction is placed on hunters and fishermen from the United States a large part of Ontario's game will be wiped out, the Legislature committee on fish and game was told today.

Rev. C. J. Jones, speaking for a delegation from Renfrew, Arnprior and Pembroke, made the assertion. He said drastic measures are necessary to limit non-resident licence issue.

There was considerable abuse of the bag limit. Father Jones suggested that all non-resident licences should be suspended and that the following increased fees put into effect: moose $150; deer $75; bear $25; small game $10, and fishing $10 a person and $15 a family. Present fishing fees are $8 and $10.

Father Jones said that in the last 25 years he had noticed a definite decrease in fish and game in his district and that unless drastic action is taken toward propagation and conservation it would be necessary to go to a museum to see a speckled trout in 25 years.

J. S. Wilson, who said he operated a resort between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, said it was not a question of tourists taking too many fish from the lakes.

He said the answer to the question is a government program to eliminate whitefish and herring from northern lakes and thus give game fish like bass and pickerel a chance to breed.

With such a program, he said, many northern lakes which now do not produce more than 100 pickerel a year that gain maturity, would supply enough to restock all Ontario lakes.

H. E. Chauvin, secretary of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association, said there are seven states in the U. S. where non-residents are barred from hunting.

"I know we need American money in Canada," he said, "but we also want a chance to fish and hunt in Ontario ourselves."

H. V. Sutton of Windsor, president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, said we must regulate game before it leaves the country."

He said there were many cases of deer being shot in Canada by Americans, taken back to the U. S. and then shipped to New York or Boston where they were sold to restaurants for $400.

Today's meeting of the Legislature fish and game Committee, under chairmanship of J. A. Pringle (PC - Addington), dealt almost completely with game laws.

Clive Thompson of the Ontario Federation of Naturalists addressed a plea to the committee for legislation to protect birds of prey.

In many instances, he said, birds like hawks, are the farmer's best friend. They kill rats and mice which might otherwise overrun a farm.

In general, predatory birds constituted a beneficial aid in keeping the stock of other animals high.

In 40 states of the U. S. Mr. Thompson said, some measure of protection is given to predatory birds.

A general resolution from the Anglers and Hunters Federation recommended that non-resident deer and hunting licence be increased to $50.

Resolutions from the Northern Ontario Fish and Game Protective Federation were presented by Secretary S. Morgan.

One suggested that the government prohibit the passage of any hunting party by air travel beyond points accessible by highway, railway or registered passenger boat.

He said such animals as moose have little chance of survival now that aircraft can reach places formerly inaccessible.

Other resolutions suggested:

Allowance of game wardens sufficient mileage for performance of their duties; return to opening of duck season in Northern Ontario to Sept. 15 instead of present Sept. 27; and Federal government legislation to prohibit carrying of firearms by tourists in closed seasons.

Newspaper Defends Right To Criticize Duff Findings

Toronto, March 16 (CP)— In a front page editorial today the Toronto Globe and Mail described as "dishonest and indefensible" any attempt to relate the finding of the 1942 Hong Kong Royal Commission inquiry to the prestige of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The newspaper replied in its editorial to a statement issued at Ottawa Sunday night by Justice Minister Ilsley criticizing a March 12 editorial because it said the findings of Commissioner Sir Lyman P. Duff, then Chief Justice of Canada, "were false on the four points of issue."

"This newspaper is well aware of the great talents and intellectual distinction of Sir Lyman Duff, and of his wide reputation as a jurist," the editorial said. "While he sat as a royal commission, however, he temporarily suspended his function and status as Chief Justice, and any attempt to relate his findings on the Hong Kong issue to the prestige of the Supreme Court of Canada is dishonest and indefensible. His report is in no sense a court judgment, and is absolutely subject to criticism, debate and rejection by anyone who can recognize facts.

"Whatever the duties and responsibilities of the judiciary in the Democratic system, they are, nevertheless, not superior to those of newspapers. Newspapers are protectors of the people's rights against encroachment and violation of power-drunk politicians. They would be failing in their trust if they did not expose the blunders and failures, the mischief and irresponsibility of governments, as they see them.

"In this issue, Mr. Ilsley must accept his share of the blame. As a ranking member of the cabinet, he knew the facts which were suppressed for so long and acquiesced in their suppression He knew that tragedy and waste of young Canadian lives resulted from uncorrected policies which continued with his consent. He cannot have forgotten the occasion when his fellow Maritimer and Minister of National Defence, Col. Ralston, returned from Europe and told the cabinet what it must do to stop that waste and was fired. For his part in that grave responsibility, the Minister of Justice will have to make terms with his conscience..."

Legislature Gives Barbara Ann Hearty Welcome

Toronto, March 16 (CP)— Barbara Ann Scott was given a thumping ovation when she was introduced to the Ontario Legislature today by Premier Drew.

A corsage of orchids was presented to the pretty world champion figure skater.

The Premier said every member of the Legislature should take pride in the fact that Barbara Ann was a native of Ontario. He added, however, that the province would not claim the distinguished Canadian.

"We are happy to share pride in her achievements with the rest of Canada."

Level Crossing Accidents Kill 182, Injure 638

Ottawa, March 16 (CP)—Stop! Look! Listen!

Failure to act on the traditional warning at level crossings last year killed 182 persons and injured 638, the Board of Transport Commissioners noted in its annual report today.

The commissioners said, however, that only 75 of the level crossing accidents occurred at spots where the tracks are protected by warning devices. The bulk—367—happened at unprotected crossings.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL TO CONTROL JAPANESE IN BC

Forbidden for Year Living Near Coast

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 16 (CP) — The Commons yesterday approved a one-year extension of wartime Orders-in-Council which authorize the government to control the movement of Japanese within the boundaries of British Columbia.

Signifying extension to April 1, 1949, the Chamber voted 73 to 23 against a C.C.F. motion which would have produced the automatic expiration of the orders at the end of this month.

This division, an informal standing vote, capped a three-hour debate in which C.C.F. members called for the abandoning of the restrictive measures and Labor Minister Mitchell, who implements policy on the Japanese, gave assurance that the orders would not be extended beyond the new 1949 expiry date.

Oppose C.C.F. Move

Opposing the C.C.F. move, Liberal and Progressive Conservative members from the B.C. coastal areas joined in suggesting that continued prohibition of the Japanese from B.C. was best for the Japanese themselves.

The debate developed as the House moved into committee to study the 27 orders which make up the backbone of the government bill to extend emergency controls, such as those over prices and domestic rentals, for another year. The measure received second reading.

A C.C.F. attempt to tansfer from the government to parliament the power to abolish the Prices Board produced a formal division in which the Chamber voted 116 to 31 to reject a motion.

Baby Suffering From Hangover After Treatment

Champaign, Ill., March 16 (AP)—A baby who swallowed a rat poison which has no known antidote, was out of danger today and suffering only from a hangover.

The child, 14-month-old William Rice, Jr., was found Saturday afternoon in a closet with the brown liquid 1080 poison, developed by the United States Army, smeared over his hands and face.

The attending physician, who asked that her name be withheld, said the administered phenobarbital to slow down heart action, and started giving the child whiskey when his pulse reached 150 and he showed signs of convulsions. The whiskey treatment was continued Sunday.

See Signs of Wide-Open Race For Liberal National Leadership

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 16 (CP)—Race for leadership at the Liberal National Convention here in August today shows signs of becoming a competitive, wide-open contest—rather than one fixed ahead of time.

Two months ago — when Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced he intended to step down — it appeared that the mantle would fall, without much argument, on the shoulders of External Affairs Minister St. Laurent.

Even such political battle as Agriculture Minister Gardiner at first did nothing to stop the boom for the 66-year-old French speaking lawyer from Quebec City who has only been in politics since the end of 1941.

But the situation seems to be changing rapidly.

Parliamentarians close to Mr. Gardiner indicate that he will likely be among the contenders. Some leading Liberals in various parts of Canada are being sounded out quietly as to whether or not they would back the 64-year-old veteran-farmer-politician from Saskatchewan.

Although the next 4 1-2 months can radically alter the race, the current signs point to Mr. Gardiner giving Mr. St. Laurent a close run.

With the earlier cut-and-dried St. Laurent situation loosening up, the younger cabinet ministers — Finance Minister Abbott, Health Minister Martin and Defence Minister Claxton —are having second thoughts.

One or all of the three may be in there when nominations are called.

Justice Minister Ilsley also seems to be showing an inclination which might lead him to seek the top party position.

U.S., Russia, France Agree Peace Threatened

U.N. May be Asked to Use Force to Restore Order

New York, March 16 — (AP)—The United States, Russia and France agreed in principle today that a threat of peace exists in Palestine.

The big powers did not reach a final agreement on recommendations to the United States Security Council, however, because China had some reservations on the wording of a proposed resolution.

Chinese delegate T. F. Tsiang, this month's president of the council, was authorized to report to the council at Lake Success that no agreement had been completed by the big powers.

Want More Time

He also was asked to tell the Council the four big powers wanted more time to try to reach a unanimous agreement.

Representative of the four big powers planned to meet in the offices of Secretary-General Trygve Lie at Lake Success immediately after the council meeting.

The measure of agreement reached this forenoon was significant. If the council finds a threat to peace actually exists the U.N. then would be in a position to use force to restore order in Palestine.

The United Nations Palestine Commission in its second monthly report meanwhile predicted strife, bloodshed and chaos in the Holy Land this spring.

The five-power commission charged with carrying out partition of the Holy Land sounded this warning in its second monthly report to the Security Council, released here and at Lake Success.

The document was circulated to delegates as the big powers staked their hopes for peace in Palestine on Jewish and Arab acceptance of truce proposals. After ten days of apparent fruitless consultations ,the big powers yesterday appealed to both sides to lay down their arms pending new efforts to solve the Holy Land's troubles.

Conditions Worsening

Conditions are steadily deteriorating in Palestine, the commission report said, leaving little hope for an orderly transfer of authority to the U.N. when Britain gives up her mandate May 15.

The report said the refusal of Britain, as mandatory power, to co-operate in implementing parition prevented co-ordination. It added that present conditions in the Holy Land fully supported the commission's earlier appeal for international armed force.

"Unless security is restored in Palestine, implementation of the (partition) resolution of the General Assembly will not be possible," the report said.

"...when the mandate is terminated Palestine is likely to suffer secverely from administrative chaos and widespread strife and bloodshed."

The commission also said it would be unable to meet the April 1 deadline for establishing provisional councils of government.

MUST CONTRIBUTE TO SCHOOL UPKEEP UNDER NEW BILL

Persons Benefiting from Education Must Pay Share, New Bill Provides.

Toronto, March 16 —(CP) — Legislation designed to assure that all people who receive the benefits of education in Ontario will be required to contribute to school upkeep will be placed before the legislature this week.

Premier Drew forecast the measure yesterday while discussing eight government bills dealing with various phases of education.

Most of the bills he said, pave the way for the new education legislation which will cover taxation for persons living on crown lands, such as Wartime Housing areas, who do not at present contribute directly to education costs.

Disclosure of the pending bill highlighted a session which saw two Labor-Progressive bills defeated in a recorded vote, and the second visit to the legislature by Barbara Ann Scott.

Barbara Ann Scott Greeted

Desk-pounding from the floor of the Chamber and applause from the gallery greeted the pretty figure skating queen as she entered the House with Premier Drew.

A sprig of white feather, flown from Scotland especially for the occasion, was presented to Barbara Ann who said she would do all she could to live up to the words of praise which came from the Premier, Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, and W. J. Grummett, C.C.F. leader.

The C. C. F. supported a Labor-Progressive bill to extend the municipal franchise to all persons now eligible to vote in provincial elections. It was defeated 60 to 9. The second Labor-Progressive bill, to reduce voting age to 18, drew support of five of the six Liberals in the House at the time. Aurel Belanger (Lib.-Prescott) voted with the government to help defeat the measure 51 to 14.

Hobby Display Features Many Notable Items

The Corby Public Library held the first of its handicraft exhibits last night. The exhibit is located on the second floor of the library.

The exhibit features the hobbies and collections of city and district residents who have loaned their works to the library for display. This exhibit is being held by the library in an effort to encourage further active participation in the hobbies and crafts.

Among the outstanding items on display were: stamps of the world and an envelope collection which included stationery from most of the prominent hotels on Canada. Mrs. L. Reddick, Picton, has a collection of buttons, numbering over 3,000 and each one different. Lionel Blaker has a set of figurines, animal and human, whittled from wood. A fine example of the possible achievements in pottery can be seen in the display of work done by Benedicta Hewton, Glen Miller.

One of the exceptional items on display is a working steam model of the Hudson type locomotive which is capable of drawing ten or more persons. This model was machined by P. Gelsthorpe who also has woodcraft speimens and other models on display. An attractive display of weaving and crochet work done by the ladies is one of the exhibit's big figures. Miss Leona Riggs has some very attractive landscape oils on display. Miss M. Parks has a very unusual and attractive showing of glassware, most of which has a historic background. A hand carved Indian ivory table with 2,000 pieces of ivory is a feature of the collection of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Salvage, Trenton. Mr. Ferguson has an excellent display of plastic accessories which show the possibilities of the new material.

The exhibits mentioned are only a few of the interesting displays to be seen at the library tonight and tomorrow night. The exhibit opens at seven o'clock.

The memorial will be a dual one — the establishment of a lectureship to be known as The Archbishop Owen Memorial Lecture, which will be delivered every two or three years, on the general subject of the Church in relation to present day problems, by eminent speakers from the British Isles and elsewhere; and two scholarships, to be awarded each year to students in any of gical colleges, with preference to those ready to serve on graduation, in one of the Churchs' missionary areas.

Police Blotter

Harry Brodie, Grier Street, was deprived the use of his auto for a brief period Tuesday evening when the vehicle was stolen from in front of his residence. Police were notified of the disappearance of the car but the owner later recovered the vehicle where it had been abandoned on Strahan St. A motor rug was missing from the car when it was recovered.

Proprietor of the Fralick Radio store on Bridge Street reported the theft of a $90 mantel model radio. The radio apparently had been taken from the store some time on Saturday although the theft was not reported until today.

Two young girls living in the Station Street district complained to police that their clothes had been ruined when splashed with muddy water by a passing motor car. The girls unfortunately did not note the licence of the vehicle.

Concluding the two day session will be a general discussion of problems relating to the cheesemaking industry.

ROTARY

Removal of Fear and Want in World Great Problem Facing Democracies

If the United States and Canada see to it that the standard of living of peoples in Europe, Asia and Africa is raised to a decent level, and they are given production means of maintaining it, there will be no danger of a third world war, Mr. John Goodison, president and general manager of the Goodison Industries Ltd., Sarnia, told the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday.

The fundamental causes of all wars have been traced to nations' demands for better standard of living, food and clothing, the speaker said. So-called isms and ideologies are but symptoms of the war disease brought to a head by want, or a fear of want. The fall of Rome, the French and American revolutions are historical evidence of this.

The great danger facing the democratic capitalistic nations of the United States and Canada is that they have more goods per capita than the rest of the world. It is their job to see that people regarded as being below them, such as those of Europe, Asia and Africa get a standard of living which will prevent them from bursting at the seams and descending on this hemisphere, the speaker said.

Have Facilities

"We are living in a golden gadget era. Yet we have the facilities for giving the peoples of the world what Russia is promising them and can't give them."

"We are facing an international situation like that of the 1930's Mr. Goodison said. "The United States and Canada are like the man who sits in a poker game for several hours, wins nothing and loses nothing and starts all over again. The people in Europe want the necessities and luxuries that our plant can give them, and our future depends on men like us, the business man and manufacturer, to figure out ways and means whereby the people of Europe, Asia and Africa can get what they want."

Great Britain and France also need everything, and the job will be a severe test for the United States and Canada to pull through and save civilization. "The actual problem is that the world is tired, and hungry; it needs food and shelter and it is our job to see that it gets it. That is the object of the Marshall plan."

"We are faced with another dynamic problem in Russia," Mr. Goodison went on. "Communism has all the earmarks of a fanatical religious movement, that is willing to sacrifice everything to gain its ends. It is the control by a highly-trained, well-organized fanatical minority, over a non-organized mass majority."

Short Changed His People

"Stalin," Mr. Goodison said, "was afraid of the colossal sums being made by his workers a short time ago, and feared they were getting capitalistic ideas. He re-arranged the Russian finances, taking away great shares of the workers' savings, so he could maintain dictatorial control over the masses."

If the democratic nations can hurdle the standard of living problem, and see to it that the masses of the world get what they need a third war will not break out, he said. "The nations will see that we are trying to help them and will not revolt against, as is the aim of Communism."

"If we can do this," he concluded, "the United States and Canada will lead the world to a higher civilization and save our children from the horrors of a third world conflict."

Mr. Goodison was introduced by Rotarian Art Bateman with club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Dr. Jack Marshall.

Guests at the luncheon included the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario, Kingston; Fred Burford, A. R. Hill, Picton, G. Ross, B. Smithrim, P. Salter, Trenton, R. Prothier, Toronto, and E. Anderson, John Bateman, Don. Stanton, Jack Trudeau, Harold Myers, Clarence Whiteman, Morley Ward and Lorne McDougall of the city.

MUST REPAIR LIONS' CAGE

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — Board of Control could cut parks department estimates all they wanted but Commissioner Walter Love felt they should stop when they came to an estimate of $4,450 needed to repair the lions' cage in Riverdale Zoo here. Love said the lions might break thru the floor and run loose.

Will Establish Insemination Unit In Belleville Area

Result of action taken at a recent meeting of district cattle breeders held in Brighton the central part of Eastern Ontario is expected soon to have an artificial insemination unit. It is agreed that every effort should be made to provide service by June 1st.

The unit will be a federation of local units organized in the counties bordering on Lake Ontario and lying between Durham and Frontenac.

Ten local units were represented at the Brighton meeting—one from Durham, two in Northumberland, three in Hastings, two in Prince Edward and one Lennox and one in Frontenac. The representatives from these locals reported an enrolment of 629 members owning 6,573 cows. It was the opinion of these men that many other farmers were awaiting a report of definite action before signing contracts.

Officers Named

In view of the response to the preliminary canvass taken throughout certain sections of the counties it was decided to proceed with the establishment of the unit. Fred Hubbs, Prince Edward country, was elected president while Lindsay Anderson, of Campbellford, is vice-president, and A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative of Hastings was appointed secretary-treasurer until a permanent secretary can be located.

The directors agreed that headquarters of the unit would be in the Belleville area and a committee of Seldon Homan, Corbyville; James Broad of Belleville and Dave Hollinger of Stirling, was named to locate a suitable site. Fred Hubbs, Lindsay Anderson and E. A. Summers of the Department of Agriculture, Bowmanville, were appointed to act as a bull buying committee. Other committees were assigned such tasks as locating a caretaker, chief technician and equipment required.

In Operation June 1

Barring unforeseen developments it is considered that the unit should be in operation by June 1st. For the time being only Holstein bulls will be maintained.

In accepting the position of president, Mr. Hubbs stated that it should be the aim of the Association to purchase the best bulls possible, and if this was done the Association could do more to improve the Holstein cattle of the area than anything that has been before attempted.

POLICE COURT

Charges preferred under the Liquor Control Act predominated the city police court this morning as upwards of a dozen residents who had imbibed too well stood charged with being intoxicated in a public place, two of them for being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle.

The drunks were all apprehended over the weekend and as result of charges appeared in court today.

Few of the offenders were able to pay the assessed fines and the first offenders will accordingly spend the next ten days in the county jail while two charged with second offence were given one month in lieu of payment of their fines. The two motorists who faced drunk driving charges were given the customary seven days in jail.

CHIEF'S OBSERVATION

Port Credit, March 16 — (CP)— Conviction of James Craig, 18, of Toronto, on a careless driving charge brought a sage observation from Police Chief Joseph Nelson. After testimony revealed that there was no suggestion Craig or his lady passenger had been drinking the chief said, — "Love is often more dangerous than liquor."

Approach of Spring Arouses Fishermen

In spring a man's fancy turns to—fishing. Few in number are the men who do not find peace of mind and immense satisfaction in the art of casting or just fishing in a tranquil lake or stream.

Some anglers of the district have been getting their tackle in order for the coming open season on the game fish for which the district is noted. Reels are being oiled up, lines tested and replaced flies tied, and all the rest of it that goes with the sport of game fishing.

The hardware merchants are also preparing for the season. They are replenishing their stocks of equipment and getting out merchandise ready to meet the demands of a sports-loving clientele.

Hardware Merchants Featuring Equipment For Syrup Season

A sure indication that spring is rapidly approaching is the appearance of accessories for gathering maple sap to make syrup and sugar.

The local hardware merchants are preparing their stocks of spiles, buckets, strainers and the rest of it that goes with this work. Their clientele are the farmers who have maple groves in their wood-lots and who make an annual practice of gathering the sap as it rises in the trees and then boiling it down.

It is a common sight, however, to see the maple trees in the city with little buckets dangling on the end of a spile. These are placed by residents who dabble in the practice in hopes of getting a taste of Nature's spring sweetness.

Declining Supply Main Cause Rise '47 Butter Price

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 16 (CP) — The Commons Price Committee had evidence today that natural supply-and-demand forces accounted for last year's jump in butter prices that caused reimposition of ceilings this winter.

As the committee launched an investigation into butter prices yesterday, Kenneth Taylor, Prices Board Chairman, said there was no evidence that hoarding or market-rigging had caused increases totalling about 17 cents a pound between last August and September. He saw no indication of large-scale black marketing.

He also declared the present wholesale ceiling of 67 1-4 cents at Montreal—about 17 cents up from last July's decontrol price—was regarded as a "fair compromise" between the interests of consumers and producers.

Mr. Taylor and J. F. Singleton, dairy commissioner, said active bidding by butter buyers, in the face of a declining supply, largely accounted for last summer's leap in prices.

Outlook Now Satisfactory

price for cheese under the new general outlook for butter supplies now was satisfactory. There might be local shortages here and there in the next few weeks, but these would not develop on a large scale before spring production came in.

Mr. Taylor said the butter ceiling was about in balance with the price for cheese under the new United Kingdom food contract. The 67-cent butter ceiling gives butter a slight edge in order to divert enough production into butter to avoid chronic winter shortages of past year.

Benefit From Increase

Ottawa (CP)—Farmers, creameries and wholesalers behefitted from last year's sharp jumps in butter prices, Dairy Commissioner J. F. Singleton told the Commons Price Committee today.

Mr. Singleton was questioned on this point by committee counsel Fabio Monet as the committee spent its second day in its inquiry into high butter prices.

The commissioner said farmers had benefitted both insofar as increased production gave them greater returns and, to a certain extent, in higher prices for butterfat. However, he could not say if prices of butterfat kept pace with those of butter.

Others who cashed in on the rise, he said, were those holding stocks of butter. These would be wholesalers and some creameries.

Three Maynooth Residents Ill From Food Poisoning

Bancroft (Special)—Believed to have resulted from eating porridge held over from the previous day's cooking, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Goodwin and son Karl of Maynooth are ill from ptomaine poisoning.

Most seriously ill is Mrs. Goodwin who was rushed to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital where she is now a patient while Mr. Goodwin and son Karl are in a less serious condition at home.

Illness of the three persons was discovered by Donald Goodwin who after being away over the weekend returned home Monday noon to find his parents and brother ill at their home. Mrs. Jack Hall, Reg. N., of Maynooth, was called in and assisted until the arrival of Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft.

WOULD LIMIT

Homesteading of Crown woodlands should not be permitted until competent examination has shown that the hand is suitable for successful farming, it was suggested in a resolution from North Bay-Sudbury-Sault Ste. Marie zone of the Anglers and Hunters Federation.

Brief Outlined

The brief, presented by Joseph MacNab of Sudbury, also recommended:

Government advertising of scenic beauty rather than merely destruction of wild life; prohibition of the use of aircraft for actual hunting; accompaniment of non-resident hunters by licenced guide; placing onus of proving innocence on hunter who was found in possession of beaver carcass without legal authority; prohibition of shooting of female deer; that guides be prohibited from carrying firearms; establishment of a game preserve up to 1,000 square miles in the area north of Lake Wanapitei, including the upper waters of the Wanapitei and Sturgeon rivers.

It was also suggested that minimum physical requirements be assured, regarding eyesight, before a gun licence is issued.

Kenneth Hanson of Hestor Falls, presented a brief from the Northern Ontario Outfitters Association, suggesting that a large percentage of revenue from hunting and fishing licences be allotted to the territoles in which they are collected. The money would be applied to fish and game conservation and propagation.

Other resolutions recommended. That big game hunting within a half mile of all provincial highways be prohibited; that boundaries of all game preserves in Northern Ontario be reposted; that a more efficient way of tagging big game be adopted—preferably one like the metal self locking seal used in Minnesota, legalization of hunting wolves from the air from December to March with special licence.

MUST CONTRIBUTE

At present the Premier said, there are many districts in the province — such as Wartime Housing — where the occupants do not pay direct taxation to the municipality.

In some cases a grant is given yearly to the city or town by the Dominion government in lieu of taxes. In other cases there is no agreement and thus persons living on these lands are not contributing in any way to municipal taxation.

Cost of Education

One bill in line with this policy provides the government with authority to fix a method of calculating the cost of education for pupils residing on crown land. It also provides that the pupils may be charged a fee or that the province can enter into an agreement with the Federal government for payment of a fixed amount in lieu of the fee.

A Publics Schools Act amendment provides that were pupils live on land exempt from taxation and their parents do not pay school taxes, fees shall be paid monthly to the school board by the parents or guardians.

Two questions of procedure were brought up by members of the Labor-Progressive party.

J. B. Salsberg (L.P.P. — Toronto St. Andrew) took issue with a ruling of last Friday when he could not get a seconder for a bill while the House was in Committee. He quoted parliamentary regulations that no seconder is necessary for matters introduced in committee.

The speaker agreed Mr. Salsberg was right. The member said he brought the point up to remove any possibility of it becoming a precedent for future rulings.

Later A. A. MasLeod (L.P.P.— Toronto Bellwoods) declared that Labor-Progressive bills were not called in order as required in Rule 31 of regulations governing procedure.

The speaker said it has been the practice of many years for the leader of the House to decide in what order bills may be called. It had been practice long enough to give it the "authority of a rule."

Mr. MacLeod said it was "grossly unfair" that a member, after giving study to the regulations as laid down, should be confronted with a rule based on precedent about which he knew nothing.

Shirking Obligations of Citizenship Weakness of Democracy Kinsmen Told

Citizenship requirements of a democratic country and the responsibilities which citizens must take if the spread of Communism is to be offset were outlined to members of the local Kinsmen Club at their regular dinner meeting held Monday evening.

As guest speaker of the evening J. Malcolm Robb, local barrister, told his listeners that all citizens have a great responsibility in the "doing" or "lack of doing" in their country. It was only through apathy or neglect of democratic citizens that Communism entrenched itself in a country.

Referring to Canada as a country with an enemy at her shores and a trojan horse within, the speaker noted operational tactics of the Communist party and stated that 12 major trade unions in this country were now dominated by Communists. In event of war this could mean sabotage of the country's productive effort.

Too Little Being Done

Prospects of even a successful war against Russia were declared by Mr. Robb to be terrifying. The Democracies could not hope to police a country with 300 millions and yet Canadians were doing little to prevent war or even check the spread of Communism.

By way of illustration the speaker pointed to the current economic condition of France. Canada has extended to this country a credit of 300 millions of dollars but by maintenance of high tariffs gave her no opportunity to repay this loan in trade. As result the French living standard was lowered and conditions made ripe for the spread of Communism in that country.

"What possible use is it to extend credit to a country when the evils of a high tariff are keeping that country destitute?" asked Mr. Robb.

Continuing the speaker pointed out that the same principle applied in sending aid to starving children in Europe. If the same effort was put into the removal of the cause for the destitute children then there would be no need for appeals to relieve suffering in Europe.

Deplores Tariff Barriers

Turning to Canadian economics Mr. Robb pointed to the importance of tariff barriers yet declared that three years following the war the Canadian tariff board still had not met since 1939. And yet a tariff board was supposed to advise parliament on tariffs and on sales tax.

"I am not blaming any one political party for this state of affairs," he said. "One good man in the House of Commons can bring things to light. There are too few good men in the House and the fault is at the doors of the electors."

Under present prices two thirds of the Canadian workers were stated to be earning something less than was necessary for them and their families to live, yet through lowering or removal of heavy taxes and tariffs nothing was being done to reduce the cost of food and clothing.

With butter at 70 cents per pound, oleomargarine was still banned when this article of equal food value could be sold for little more than 30 cents. The import of margarine would not destroy the butter market as was indicated in New York State where butter now sells for 90 cents per pound. Heavy duties were also imposed on cloth, the tariffs being maintained because of certain pressure groups who could not see the general picture.

Aid Communists

"These conditions exist and we as the people permit them" went on the speaker. "By our own apathy we are doing more than the Communists to drive people in the lower wage brackets to support the Isms."

To correct such conditions it was not necessary for business men to offer themselves for parliament but much could be done by attending public meetings and asking intelligent questions.

"It is the worst sign of Democracy that in the city the size of Belleville we can have seven service clubs and yet only a dozen or so turn out to a political meeting," concluded the speaker.

President Art Cruji presided over the meeting, while Kin Jack McNabb introduced the speaker with Kin Ernie Colborne expressing appreciation.

DIES DAY BEFORE HE WAS TO APPEAR IN COURT

Kitchener, March 16 — (CP) — John Patrick Short, 47, of nearby Linwood village, who was to appear yesterday on a charge of breaking and entering, died in hospital Sunday of an infected leg injury, said by police to have been sustained when he jumped from a second storey window Nov. 5 to avoid capture.

Britain and Communism

Britain will have no persons, who are members of the Communist party, engaged on any work vital to the security of the state. This announcement made by the Prime Minister, Mr. Attlee, in the British Commons on Monday indicates the undoubted feeling of a large part of the world in respect to Communism. This decision applies also to members of Fascist organizations as well as any persons "associated with the Communist party in such a way as to raise legitimate doubts as to his or her reliability."

The Prime Minister with British fairness declared that it was not suggested that "in matters affecting the security of the state, all those who adhered to the Communist party would allow themselves to forget their primary loyalty to the state" but he added that there is no way of distinguishing those who would not forget their loyalty to the state from those who if opportunity offered would be prepared to endanger the security of the state in the interests of another power.

Britain will find alternative employment on non-secret government work for those deemed to be unsuitable for secret work.

Communism's apparent expansionist aims of which the Red coup in the seizure of the Czechoslovakian government by the minority Communist group was the latest and startling example have been brought to the surface and democracy guards itself in view of the avowed Communist doctrine of the overthrow of constituted authority by force against the will of the people.

The successful conclusion of the organization of the five Western European Powers, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, France and Britain for a union indicates how Communism's aggressiveness will cause a united attitude on the part of the democratic powers.

Canada recently passed legislation keeping out of this country Communists wishing to enter.

The step taken by the British Government in the light of recent events came as little or no surprise.

St. Patrick's Day

St. Patrick's Day comes again and Irishmen and the descendants of Irishmen and their friends of other racial origin who are legion prepare to celebrate the day in the Irish way. Whether at home in the Emerald Isle or in lands beyond the seas Irishmen and those of Irish origin never forget to mark this time in a fitting manner. Wednesday is St. Patrick's Day — the very words are music — and the symbol of the shamrock will again enliven Irish hearts and recall to Irish minds the legendary figure of one of the most colorful saints of history.

It is not to be wondered at that the spirit of the Irish is so loyal to everything pertaining to the land of their birth or of their ancestors. Irish culture which was marked in early centuries of the Christian era as well as in the latest days is something to be proud of and Irish folk never forget it. The legends of the Emerald Isle, associated with the life of the people through the centuries, their music, their art, endure and the Irish spirit lives not only in Ireland but in numberless communities in the world, especially in North America and in British nations about the world.

The Irish spirit has given the world a treasury of wit, of song, of the other arts, and a type of manhood and womanhood of which any motherland should be proud. In all ages this fine expression of the Irish spirit has been prominent and will be, there can be no doubt, until the end of time.

This is a season of joy especially in Irish circles for about this festival is gathered in miniature so much of the history of the people of that treasured island. This is just the setting for the anniversary of St. Patrick, whose influence has been left on the history of the island and upon the lives of irishmen of every degree and on world history.

Mention of the life of St. Patrick who has been so indissolubly linked with Ireland is apt at this place. The date of his birth and even the date of his death, are disputed by scholars. But, it's agreed he lived in the fifth century and died at Abbey Saul in County Down — in the year 460, some say, while others maintain it was 493. The place of his birth is pretty much a mystery. Historians have conjured him variously as a native of Ireland, England, Wales and France. There are those who assert that the Apostle of Ireland was really a Scotsman, born at Kilpatrick, near Dumbarton.

In any case there's little dispute that he had a long and adventurous life. Kidnapped at the age of 16 from his father's farm by a band of pirates, he was sold into slavery to a petty chieftain. Six years later he escaped, journeyed to France, and became a monk, first at Tours and later at Lerins, one of the most celebrated monasteries in Europe.

In the year 432 he went to Rome; and some time after was sent by Pope Celestine to preach in Ireland. According to his Irish biographers, Patrick founded 365 churches and baptized with his own hand 12,000 persons.

There can be little doubt he was a persuasive missionary. It was while preaching at Tara that St. Patrick made the shamrock immortal. When a Druid priest challenged the mystery of the Trinity, Patrick, stooping to the emerald sod, picked up a shamrock and held it high to prove that three could combine in one and one in three.

After 20 years of missionary travels, he fixed his see at Armagh about the year 454. His relics were preserved at Downpatrick, near the Abbey Saul, down to the period of the Reformation; and the district about Downpatrick is venerated by Irishmen to this day.

Such was the life of Patricius Magonus Sucatus Calpurnius — St. Patrick to you.

Old Style Fences

Passing of the snake fence which at one time was familiar in every part of the country has come to the attention of the Ontario Historical Society which has reprinted an editorial from the Hanover Post on the disappearance of the rail and stump fences. Owen Sound Sun-Times comments on this disappearance as a loss that is greatly felt and points out the fact that while there are remaining a few rail fences in Owen Sound area, there isn't a single stump fence "unless it was so well disguised by the passing years that we didn't recognize it. There are a few of the "snake" fences still around but they are disappearing too.

"One relic of the pioneers' efforts which still can be seen in several parts of this district are the old field stone fences, laboriously put together by the men who cleared the land. Many of them were beautifully made. It would do a person good to stop and examine one of these, for they were built by men who took pride in their work. This pride required a careful, lasting job, even though it was only a fence surrounding a newly cleared field.

"It is a pity though that the old rail fences had to go. They had a beauty all their own."

SYNTHETIC BLOOD PLASMA

Artificial blood plasma made from the action of bacteria on sugar is now being made in England, says United Kingdom News. This plasma, known as dextron, is at present undergoing exhaustive tests at the Lister Institute, in London, and the final results will not be known for at least 6 to 9 months. It is believed, however, that it may prove to be safer than natural blood for transfusion. Besides being cheap and easy to make, the new synthetic solution will have the advantage of simple storage; it can be kept in powder form until wanted, when it needs only to be quickly mixed and heated.

A SPENDTHRIFT TALKS

I know they will say that I tossed it away,
And I ought to have saved when I could,
But the best money buys is the light in their eyes,
Which by misers is not understood.

I know 'twill be said I'd no sense in my head;
That my heart ran away with my brain;
But, I let the cash go for what thrift won't bestow—
And I'd do it all over again.

I knew what was meant by the phrase: "Four per cent"
And that two and two always make four.
I could have bought stocks, instead of new frocks,
But I valued their love so much more.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When was the first income tax law passed?

Basing taxes on income instead of property was practised to some extent by the ancients. Plutarch says that Octavius Caesar, when preparing for the final contest with Mark Antony, compelled freemen in Italy to pay one fourth of their income in taxes.

Income taxes were levied by some Italian city-states during the Middle Ages, and such taxes were occasionally imposed in both France and England before the 19th century.

As early as 1646 the Colony of Massachusetts Bay levied a "faculty tax," a form of income tax, under which laborers, artisans and tradesmen were required to pay taxes according to their earnings. It was called a faculty tax because the assessments were based on a person's income or ability to pay instead of on his property. Faculty taxes were levied later by most of the other English Colonies.

The Federal Constitution as originally adopted provided that "No capitation, or other direct, tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration herein before directed to be taken," and that "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States . . . according to their respective numbers."

Despite these provisions denying the Federal Government the power to impose direct taxes irrespective of apportionment among the several States, the necessity for money to carry on the Civil War led Congress to pass the act of August 55, 1861, which imposed a tax of three percent on all incomes over $800 a year. But the appointment of assessors and collectors under this act was postponed "until after the second Tuesday of February, 1862," to give Congress time to study the subject further.

On July 1, 1862, an act was approved imposing a tax of five percent on all annual incomes over $600 and under $10,000, and a tax of five percent on all annual incomes over $10,000. Later the tax on incomes over $10,000 was raised to ten percent. In one year this act brought the Treasury $73,000,000. One New York merchant paid in one cheque an income tax of $400,000 on a $4,000,000 income. Even Lincoln paid an income tax on his salary as President.

This income tax law was abandoned as of 1872 and it was not until 1894 that Congress passed another income tax law. The income tax law of 1894 was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in 1895 on the ground that it was a direct tax and subject to apportionment among the States.

In 1909 Congress proposed the 16th Amendment to the Constitution, which became effective February 23, 1913, and which reads: "The Congress shall have power to lay and connect taxes on incomes, from whatever source, derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

The first income tax law after the adoption of the 16th Amendment was approved October 3, 1913.

Remove Stigma Of Illegitimacy On Certificates

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — The Ontario Legislature took steps yesterday to assure that the stigma of illegitimacy will not follow a child through its lifetime.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar introduced a bill revising the Vital Statistics Act in which it will not be necessary any longer to show illegitimacy on birth certificates.

Under the provisions the certificates will show the names of the child's parents. If adopted, only the adopted name of the child will appear.

Another change in the Act is that registration will not be evidence to contradict the presumption that a child is legitimate if born to a common law wife.

Illegitimacy or adoption will still be shown on certified copies of birth certificates in the hands of the department but these will be obtainable only on court order from the Registrar-General.

Another provision of the bill is that in future death certificates will not show cause of death.

The Tourist Camp Regulations Act which requires posting of ratecards in bedrooms of tourist camps, exempts tourist camps operated by charitable organizations from regulations of the Act.

Appeal Against Sentence Dismissed

Toronto, March 16. (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday dismissed an appeal by Clarence Washer, 35, of Kingston, Ont., against a 15-year-prison term for manslaughter arising from the shotgun death of his landlord, Michael Kazma, last Fall.

No reasons were given for the judgment.

Washer, originally charged with murder, pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced at Kingston by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

W. B. Common, for the Attorney-General's department, opposed the appeal. He said there was a "good deal of drinking" at the Washer home before the shooting. Washer at his trial said he left the house with the shotgun, tripped over some lumber and shot Kazma accidentally.

RADIANT HEAT IS COMFORTABLE

Before you encourage people to steam up their cold-walled houses until the paper peels off, you should investigate the effects of humidity and radiation (writes an amiable reader — I know she is because her closing line is "Good bowling to you, you barnacle.")

The a.r. then gives a concise and, for all I know, scientific explanation of the three ways of transmitting heat, namely, (1) conduction, through contact; (2) convection, through air currents (even steam or hot water radiators radiate but little heat, transmit heat mostly by convection—warming the air); and (3) radiation, as by the sun's rays.

The lady comma no rhetorical question comma describes experiments in which a group of people reported whether they felt more or less comfortable — in rooms heated in various ways, and all of them agreed that rooms with warmed or heated walls, ceiling were more comfortable than rooms heated in the ordinary ways. As the lady concludes, all this boils down to the idea that when houses have radiant heating people will be more comfortable with air temperatures considerably lower than indoor temperatures are kept in this country in the winter time.

Warmth from an open fire is radiant heat — it warms objects, furniture, walls, ceiling, floor, your own body or the proximal surfaces thereof, without greatly increasing the air temperature of the room as measured by thermometer.

In England where such heating is still generally employed people probably get as much comfort from their firesides as people in this country get from their steam heated apartments or hot air furnaces.

The dream of homes with heated floors, wall and ceilings, instead of steam radiators (so-called), hot air registers, ducts, fans or blasts, inadequately vented and therefore dangerous gas heaters, is a pleasant dream, like the wonderful gadgets we were promised for the post-war world, remember? From here it looks as though this ideal method of heating houses will become popular when doorknobs and handles on toilet facilities are replaced with pedipulators. That, I expect, will be fifty or a hundred years hence.

Meanwhile, whatever method of artificial heating we use in homes, stores, offices, schoolrooms, worsh[illegible], greater comfort may be provided at lower air temperatures by keeping the relative humidity at a reasonable level. Whether the heat room is heated by radiator, register, stove or open fireplace, evaporation of at least a gallon of water a day in each heated room will make everybody more comfortable and certainly will not make the wall paper peel or the windows fog if there is proper ventilation.

How to keep the relative humidity at a reasonable level I have just told you evaporate not less than a gallon of water a day in each heated room in the house.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Twins

Would it be possible for identical twins of the same sex to be born to a couple neither of whom have any knowledge of twins in their families as far back as three generations?

(Mrs. A. H. L.)

Answer—There is no means of predicting whether a couple may or may not have twins, fraternal or identical. Such multiple births seem to occur more frequently in some families, but then, so do politicians.

Brittle Nails

Four months ago I began taking your Iodin Ration. My fingernails were awfully broken and split and I couldn't seem to get them to grow. Now they are long and beautiful, no more broken or split nails. (Mrs. F. J.)

Answer—Brittle nails and dry, prematurely graying, excessively falling hair, and sallow or waxy complexion are common manifestations of iodine deficiency. On written request (no clipping please) I'll mail you Instructions for Taking an Iodin Ration, if you provide stamped self addressed envelope.

Myotonia

Quinine treatment, as suggested in your pamphlet, is the only thing that has loosened the muscles and prevented cramps in belly, back and chest in my husband's case—diagnosed as myotonia of Thomsen's disease. Please send information to our physician here. (Mrs. R. M.)

Answer—I'm sorry, I have no further information than that given —in the pamphlet—which I'll be glad to send if the physician asks for it.

Solution of Eire's Economic Problems Will Get First Attention by Costello

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, March 16 (CP)—John A. Costello's new coalition government is pledged to put the solution of economic problems ahead of everything.

"The average citizen is primarily concerned with the problems of making ends meet," said the prime minister in a broadcast a few days after he broke Eamon De Valera's 16 years in office.

"These economic considerations must take priority over all political and constitutional matters. Indeel, it may well be that our success in solving these problems may make easier the solution of political and constitutional difficulties."

All groups in the coalition are in "complete agreement" on economic matters, he said. Each party would maintain its individual entity, but even on political political questions "points of difference if any, will be much fewer than was expected."

Partition Problem

Even with the emphasis of economics, however, Costello could not omit a reference to partition, the division of Ireland into 26-county republican Eire and six-county northern Ireland, owing allegiance to the King.

"Chief of the fundamental objectives upon which there is complete agreement is our determination to assert the right of the Irish nation to complete territorial unity and to absolute freedom" he said.

"This is a matter upon which there is complete agreement among all the members of my government. I wish to declare that this fundamental objective will in no way be abandoned, waived or abated so long as I remain at the head of the government."

Political Future

Even Le Valera's Fianna Fail party, largest individual party in the Dail, acknowledges that Costello's administration is likely to remain in office for a considerable time.

"It is foolish to expect that the government will dissolve quickly through internal dissensions," said Sean Lemass, former minister for Industry and Commerce.

Costello has announced that his government will not regard defeat in a "snap" vote as necessar-
"This should not be regarded ily involving its resignation.
as a sign of weakness on the part of the government, but a sign that it wants to act democratically," he saidd. "The opposition should drop any idea of playing party politics or trying to ambush the government by snap divisions."

Preparation for Opening Of Navigation Begins

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 16 — (CP) — Preparation for opening the 1948 Great Lakes shipping season started in several lake ports yesterday, while some officials here expect vessels to begin moving the first week of April.

Early yesterday, the ice-cutter Mesquite left here for Lake Erie to join the ice-breaker Mackinaw on port-clearing operations. At Port Arthur, ice-breaking operations will begin Thursday morning.

Registration of Lakehead sailors indicated a surplus of hands.

Kingston's harbor master, William Peters, warned yesterday that ice will be cleared today.

Wellington on the Lake

THE EMERALD ISLE

There's an island, green and glowing,
Far across the ocean's foam,
'Tis to her fond hearts are turning
Whereso'er their footsteps roam;
For old Erin loves her children,
Watches from her sea-girt shore,
Hoping for their safe returning
When their pilgrimage is o'er.

Green her vales and meads and mountains,
Blue the skies that o'er them shine,
Blue her lake's bright waters gleaming
With a glory, grand, sublime;
Blue the Irish eyes where laughter
Blends so easily with tears,
Sad her songs with minor music
Echoing downward through the years.

Tara's Hall no more resounding
With the tuneful harp and song,
May no longer notes of discord
O'er the Emerald Isle prolong!
Come again, O good St. Patrick
Bring to Erin sweet release,
Breathe once more the gospel message
Then old Ireland will have peace.

—Helen B. Anderson.

St. Patrick's Day

No question concerning St. Patrick has been more widely discussed than that of his birthplace. Although Scotland claims to be the birthplace of St. Patrick, our thoughts at this season, turn to Ireland, the country to which he brought the gospel message, and where, plusking a Shamrock he explained the great dictrine of the Blessed Trinity. He preached, we are told, throughout the length and breath of Erin founding many churches.

He died on March 17, but no one seems to know the exact year of his death. He was buried in Armagh but his spirit today lives in every corner of the earth where his children are scattered. So it is little wonder that the thoughts of Irish Canadians should turn at this season to the Emerald Isle, the land of their birth.

Gen. Meyers Given Prison Term

Washington, March 16 — (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Bennett E. Meyers Monday was sentenced to twenty months to five years in prison.

A federal jury convicted him last Friday on three counts of inducing a former business associate to lie under oath to a Senate committee.

Judge Alexander Holtoff, when imposing sentence, said the 52-year-old retired general was guilty of a "very grave and serious offence." The maximum sentence he could have imposed was 30 years.

The formal accusation against Meyers was "subornation to perjury." He was charged with persuading Bleriot Lamarre to lie to United States Senate investigators and cover up Meyers' wartime operation of a plane party company from which the government alleged Meyers received more than $150,000. Lamarre was the president of the company, but later said he was only a "dummy" for Meyers.

Heavy Ice Will Delay Opening of Navigation

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 16 — (CP) — Twenty-inch-thick ice in the St. Mary's River will delay the opening of navigation on the upper Great Lakes three weeks, the Sault Ste. Marie Marine Bureau said yesterday.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw will move into the river March 25 in an attempt to clear a path through ice-fields, which are said to be windrowed in the upper St. Mary's River.

The U. S. Coast - Guard cutter Mesquite left here Saturday morning to join the Mackinaw in Lake Erie, but due to heavy ice, the Mesquite was not expected to reach Lake Huron until Monday.

R. T. Kenny, of Rockport, Ont., won fifth prize in the lake trout division with a 37-pound-10-ounce entry from Lake Superior .

Pete Morin of Montreal Royals was crowned scoring champion of the Quebec Senior hockey league, according to final statistics released last night. The lightweight Wingham finished wth 91 points and a 13-point edge of Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan of Shawnigan Falls Cataracts. Morin accumulated 34 goals and 57 assists while Buchanan got 43 goals and 34 assists.

Kelly Burnett of Victoriaville Tigers captured the provincial hockey league scoring title for the second straight year when he racked up a total of 93 points on 30 goals and 63 assists to shade Herbie Carnegie, Sherbrooke's Negro flash, by three points. Carnegie had 34 goals and 38 assists.

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, who guided University of Michigan to the apex of football glory, today ended his coaching career. Even as he announced his retirement from the football bench, the 49-year-old mentor named as his immediate successor Benny G. Oosterbaan, his backfield assistant .Crisler will remain the university's athletic director.

Promoter Jack Allen said last night he is trying to obtain either Clayton Kenny of Ottawa or Don Blair of Kingston for the five-round bout headlining his amateur boxing show at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday night. Alan McFater will be on the other corner. Kenny and Blair, in their only meeting, fought a five-round draw at Ottawa.

Carl Liscombe of Providence Reds enters the final week of play today boasting a 10-point edge in the individual American hockey league scoring race. The sharp-shooting left winger has collected 107 points on 46 goals and 61 assists. Cliff Simpson of Indianapolis is second with 97 ponts and Harvey Fraser of Providence third with 90 markers.

Marmora Wins Fifth Game To Take TVL Title

Marmora (Special) — In the fifth game of the finals series of the Trent Valley League, Marmora decisively defeated Norwood by the score of 9-1 at Madoc on Friday evening and Gus Leonard, their captain received the Bata Cup on behalf of his team from Tony Staujanek of Batawa.

The defeated finalists joined in the resounding cheers at Marmora's deserved win. Prior to the game, Koski, the home goalie, received a bad cut over the eye when practising which required three stitches to close. Instead of weakening in goal, he played what was doubtless the best game of his career and nullified good efforts of Norwood to score over and over again.

A minute's silence was observed in memory of Fred Ingram, former player for Stirling and Campbellford. The game was of a clean description, both teams giving of their best with the odds going against the losers who fought gamely to the last.

By virtue of securing the league championship Marmora now enters the OHA semi - finals being matched against Bloomfield for their opening games.

THEFT OF $500,000 IN REVENUE STAMPS REPORTED IN SPAIN

Madrid, March 16 — (AP) — Police announced the arrest of a dozen persons in connection with reported thefts of $500,000 worth of revenue stamps from the National mint over a period of five years.

HOUSE APPROVES

Justice Minister Ilsley, moving the control legislation, said the government's decontrol policy has not reached a stage where all controls can be abandoned now or before the end of this year. Most members would recognize this.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said no one could oppose domestic rent controls but felt there were others which might be attacked when the measure reached committee stage.

Mr. Mitchell, seeking extension of the Japanese orders, reported that as a result of his department's relocation program, only 6,291 Japanese now were living in British Columbia compared with a total of 21,975 in January, 1942. A total of 4,067 Japanese had been repatriated to Japan on a voluntary basis, leaving Canada's Japanese population at 20,788.

Well Received

The Japanese who had been relocated had been "well received" and were "well regarded" in their new communities. The progress made reflected "great credit on the Japanese themselves."

Giving assurance that there would be no further extension of the order beyond April 1, 1949, he said:

"The government is of the opinion that the control over movement of Japanese into British Columbia from elsewhere in British Columbia should be retained for another year to afford additional time to ensure stability of re-settlement elsewhere in Canada.

"While my information is that the very great majority of persons of the Japanese race have no desire to return to the coastal areas of British Columbia, nevertheless the precipitated return of even a limited number at this time would possibly resurrect racial issues and animosities which have existed over many years but which will, I firmly believe, fully disappear within a very few years."

David Croll (L — Toronto Spadina) joined the C. C. F. group in criticizing the legislation and said the excuse for it had disappeared when the war ended. He hoped Canada never again would be "guilty" of "official discrimination against a minority."

Mr. Mitchell told Mr. Croll he liked to hear "these purists talk but you can't always be a purist" because the "first" obligation of a government was the safety of the state. The policy had been "reasonable, fair and humane."

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V. C (PC — Nanaimo), supporting the government said many of the things that had happened in B.C. were not easily forgotten, although the wounds were healing. The Japanese themselves felt it would be unwise to return to the coast.

16-NATION UNION

Tass, the Soviet News Agency, said: "Journalistic circles emphasize that the Paris conference will be used by Bevin and Bidault to draw into a military bloc several other countries besides Britain, France and the Benelux countries."

Most of the foreign ministers will leave for home tomorrow. The "work group" of officials will stay for weeks, however, to hammer out details of the projected accord.

Foreign Minister Bidault of France came down to cases on what the charter should do.

Precise Principles

"To be fruitful," he said, "that accord must incorporate precise principles concerning the development of production, its harmonization and the concerted exploitation of pooled resources, following a rational division that will not hurt national independence. "The moderation of customs tariffs, when a customs union is not immediately possible the international organization of available manpower, the specialization of industries and their complementary organization can and must enter notably into the goals sought in such a common accord."

This union would overlap a series of other blocs which have developed in non-Communist Europe. It would also differ from them in purpose.

Overlapping of Other Blocs

They are:

1. A Scandinavian group including Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Finland. Thai bloc is based on high living standards, common economic interests and common fear of Russia.
2. Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands, well on their way to a benelux economic union.
3. A revived "cordial understanding" between Britain and France based largely on common democratic ideals and problems of common defence.
4. A new combination of the benelux group, Britain and France in the Brussels agreement not yet made public, on mutual defence and economic co-operation.
5. A French - Italian customs union due to be signed March 20.
6. A Spanish - Portuguese "Iberian bloc," characterized by similar governments, interest in Latin America, common religious and culutral backgrounds.

Spain is not one of the 16 countries in the plan, but Portugal is. Whether the latter will propose Spanish admittance is not known.

Buddy O'Connor, Lach, Battle Neck-and-Neck In Stretch Run For N.H.L. Scoring Crown

Montreal, March 16 —(CP) — Buddy O'Connor of New York and Montreal's Elmer Lach go into the final week of the regular schedule running neck-and-neck in the tightest race in years for the National Hockey League scoring crown.

Official statistics released today show O'Connor leading Lach by one point, 57 to 56, with three Chicago marksmen, Gaye Stewart, Norman (Bud) Poile and Doug Bentley right on their heels with 54 points.

A terrific late season surge by Lach including four points during the last week, has gradually whittled down O'Connor's lead which the Ranger playmaking ace has held for 11 consecutive weeks.

Although he has been finding the pace pretty tough of late, lightweight Buddy has everything in his favor in the run down the stretch. Besides his point advantage, he has three games left to play while Lach has only two contests remaining.

Stewart, Poile and Doug Bentley also have three games to go.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit still tops the circuit's goal-getters with 32 counters with Lach running second with 28. Doug Bentley's 35 assists are tops in that column.

Biggest gainer of the week was Canadiens' Maurice (Rocket) Richard, who at this time last year was battling with Max Bentley for the scoring crown which he lost to Max on the last night of the schedule. The Rocket broke out of his scoring slump with a bang to rack up four goals and three assists in Montreal's last three games, and moved up the ladder into 8th place with an even 50 points on 25 goals and 25 assists.

Overshadowed by the scoring duel but with the outcome just as much in doubt, goalies Turk Broda of Toronto and young Harry Lumley of Detroit are waging a nip-and-tuck battle for the Vezina Trophy which goes to the netminder who has played in the most games for the team having the fewest goals scored against it.

Toronto and Detroit have had the same number of goals scored against them — 138. But Toronto has only two games left to play while the Wings have three fixtures remaining, which gives Broda an edge.

While the Vezina is actually a team trophy, fat Turk also sports the best goals-against average. He has allowed 138 goals in 58 games for a 2.37 per game average.

With 137 goals denting the twine behind his in 57 games, Lumley has a 2.40 percentage.

The 138th Detroit goal was let in by Tom McGratton who replaced Lumley in the third period of a game Nov. 9.

Bill Barilko appears a cinch to walk off with League badman honors. Bouncing Bill has spent 145 minutes in the penalty coop with Canadiens' Kenny Reardon having 129.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BY GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Waterloo, Ont.—(Held over from yesterday) Secretary Jack Christie, of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Dr. Leon Hipwell, Toronto, and other members of the association executive, were loud in their praises of the Belleville Merchants Midgets following their game with the champion Waterloo Sparks here on Saturday... "Grand little bunch of fighting kids," they opined. "Never saw a team with so much guts, fire and what it takes to make champions"... The Merchants mobbed their starry conquerors on the ice after the final whistle blew and there was plenty of handshakes, back-slapping, and the occasional kiss between the kids...Folks back home especially the poppas and mammas of this Belleville crew should be mighty proud of the kids... They battled the classy Waterloo team to the last ditch and went down fighting with all colors flying...They had a clear edge on the Waterloo team in the first period and nearly skated them into the ice... Piatkowsky, Waterloo goalie was nothing short of phenomenal as he threw back wave after wave of flying Belleville attackers, and plenty of pucks.

Our kidlets should have had three goals at least in that first period...Then the smooth passing attacks of the homesters started to click, and led by Hoffarth, and Oberle, they began to fire hime the pellet.. Davey Jones, who carried a cigar in his hip pocket, hurled his 95 pounds at a husky Waterloo defenceman, received a clip on the noggin, gave one in return and drew a penalty... ...Later Davy wrapped himself around half a cow which adorned a plate thirty inches across, and hidden under a mound of mushrooms...The kid finished up on the floor, but came up fighting with nothing left of the steak but a bone... The kids are second to none as dispensers of grub...They'll tackle anything from a pig's knuckle to spiced turkey. On the trip to Kitchener they got rid of a bushel of apples, dozens of chocalate bars, and kept demanding "When do we eat?"

Donnie Kennedy, half-pint mascot of the team, was the life of the party...The l'il guy kept the team in stitches with his droll humor and antics, and he thoroughly enjoyed every minute of the long ride there and back...And what he did to a steak is one for the book...Secretary Jack Christie at a post-game confab in the Walper House informed Coach Cy Barriage that the Merchant's Midgets would not be re-classified as an "A" team next year. Waterloo will go up by virtue of their championship victory... Plenty of hockey in this man's town on Saturday...OMHA officials witnessed no less than five games during the day and evening...They start to play championship games and playdowns here as early as seven a.m...Smaller rink than the Belleville Arena...Its made of wood, and a lighted cigarette will get you two hours in the local hoosegow if a limb of the law spots you...Neat press box too, glassed in with loudspeaker facilities from the pen box, scoring box and the front office...They do everything but write the story for you...Grand bunch of fellows, very hospitable and give the stranger within their gates a swell time, win lose or draw...But don't mention Waterloo to a Kitchener bloke, or vice versa...They love each other with all the passion of a couple of cats slung over a barbed wire fence tails lashed together.

Roamed the Kitchener market at 8 ayem Saturday...Never saw so much food in our young lives...Stolid German burghers and fraus from the rich surrounding farmlands, offer you anything from a piglet's tail to farm sausage as big as a horses thigh...Pigs feet, hocks, sauerkraut, 101 varieties of sausage, and head cheese, fudge, pork ribs, beef, hams, etc., the place was loaded with it...And the smiling fraus offer you a sample of their cooked meats and sausage...Once around the market (its bigger than the Belleville Arena) and you've had a meal of samples...They sell pigs tails, with a generous portion of the pig attached...You roast 'em, and cover 'em with ginger ale before they are done...Delicious...

"Duke" Doran twisted a bone in an ankle in the third period and was unable to return to the ice...Nothing serious, but quite painful...Hamilton Lions Club is holding a football clinic on March 31 through April 2nd with such pigskin luminaries as Frank Gnup, Hamilton Wildcats, Larry Sullivan former Notre Dame star, Fred Veale, McMaster University and Seymour Wilson in instructors roles...Every phase of training, conditioning and coaching will be covered in the clinic which has been endorsed by the Ontario Department of Health, city officials and scores of schools throughout the province...Ten bucks gets you the benefit of the three-day clinic ...Mayor Woodley of Gananoque blows off a lot of steam over the fact that Arthurs, Lindsay hockey player who was given a misconduct penalty in the game against Gananoque last week, was erroneously reported as coming from Gananoque...He suggests this reporter had no interest in the game other than drawing his pay; made a caustic remark anent the "intelligence" of the scribe, and flatteringly suggest that the poor bloke had money on the Lindsay team and "hated to loose it"...Tsk, Tsk, Tsk...And he adds we evidently wanted to slam the Gananoque team... More Ho-hums and mad laughter.

As a proof that Kent Peterson, 23-year-old lefthander starting his sophomore season with the Reds, has the necessary poise and coolness under fire to make the major league grade, Manager Johnny Neun relates this anecdote:

Peterson made his debut against big league opposition in a game with the Red Sox last spring. The bases were loaded and Ted Williams was swinging menacingly at the plate when Peterson was summoned from the bullpen.

Neun met the southpaw on the mound and inquired, "Know who the hitter is?"

"Yes, sir," responded Pete, unawed.

"Strike him out then, son."

Which is precisely what the youngster did—and on three pitches, too.

Hamilton Tigers One Game Away From Ont. Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers were only 1 game away from another Senior A Ontario Hockey Association championship today after taking advantage of the breaks to beat Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-1.

The victory last night at Waterloo gave the unpredictable veterans a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven final series for the loop title.

Meanwhile, a revived Barrie Flyers team bounded back into the Junior A O.H.A. finals by swamping Windsor Spitfires 10-0 at Barrie and tying up their best-of-seven series 2-2.

In the north, the Senior Northern Ontario Hockey Association finals also were tied up, with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds beating Timmins McIntyre Macmen 6-4 in the second game of their best-of-five competition.

In the game at Waterloo the Dutchmen carried the play for most of the way but Hamilton took advantage of scrambles and counted once in each period. Scorers were Johnny Conick, Bobby Laurent and Frank Liscombe. Doug Verity banged in the Kitchener goal in the second frame when Hamilton was a man short.

Four Barrie players counted two goals apiece in the junior game with Frenchy Mayer leading the barrage with three assists as well. Other doubles were counted by Rusty Aiken, Paul Meger and Jerry Reid while Fred Favero and Whit Mousseau got singles.

Flyers had complete control of the game throughout and after the first period it seemed just a question of how many.

Allan Brownlee, McIntyre's second-string goalie, was a tower of strength in the northern game. He halted 45 shots while the Sault's netminder trapped only 18 all evening.

Charging Shep Mayer, one of the Greyhounds recruits from Michigan Sault Indians of the Michigan - Ontario - Wisconsin League, starred for the Sault with two goals. Other counters were notched by Husky Hodgson, Ronny Lay, Zeppy Zago and Terry Biocchi. Doran counted 2 for Timmins and the other goals were by Hepworth and Baker.

The teams move to Schumacher Friday for the first battle.

In other Ontario games last night Toronto Byers evened their Junior B O.H.A. semi-final with Kingston Vics with a decisive 6-2 victory, giving each a win and a tie in the best-of-three series.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

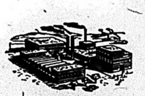
Through their Eyes

... CANADA is the most desired of countries. It represents hope and opportunity. It is where they want to be.

The dream of millions overseas is a reality for us.

"To see ourselves as others see us" strengthens our realization of our country's new importance in the modern world. The Canada that emerged from the war is a far greater country than we ever thought possible — a country of vastly increased and varied productivity — with a million more employed than before the war — with a new wealth of interesting careers awaiting those alive to the opportunities around them.

125,000 APPLICATIONS were on file in Ontario House, London, when Ontario began its immigration plan. It has been estimated that at least 80% of the displaced persons in Germany want to emigrate to Canada.



SIGNIFICANT, too, is the number of new plants established here by foreign firms. Specially interesting are those built up by wartime refugees, of whom about 3,500 entered Canada. They established at least 56 new industries employing over 6,000.

CANADA is increasingly attractive for visitors too! More tourists than ever came to us in 1947 — making an ever-growing contribution to continued Canadian progress and prosperity.

LOUIS FISCHL; escaping from Czechoslovakia, came to Canada in 1938 — began manufacturing kid gloves in an old renovated Ontario factory. Canadians joined his original handful of skilled Czech workers to learn the new art. Today thousands of pairs of finest Canadian high-fashion gloves, in leather and in fabrics, are being produced both in Prescott, Ont. and St. Tite, Que., their new branch.

LOUIS FISCHL says: "When I knew I was finished with Europe and had to begin a new life at 50, Canada was the country to which I was most anxious to come. Here there is a future. Here is everything needed for industry; vast resources

Toronto Byers Defeat Kingston To Even Series

Oshawa, March 16. (CP) — Toronto Byers evened their Junior B Ontario Hockey Association semi-final series with Kingston Vics by a smashing 6-2 victory here last night.

The win leaves each team with a win and a tie in the best-of-three series.

The Byers squad completely dominated play throughout the game and dazzled the Vics with the skill and ease of their passing.

The Byers took a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period. Edwards, Keeble and Gault were the scorers for Byers while Joyce from Flint provided the lone Kingston counter.

The second period saw Byers return to a defensive style of play which still give them possession of the puck for most of the frame. Pankoski drilled this same puck in off the goalie's skate to make it 4-1.

The last period showed rough play and although Kingston were heavier they just failed to connect with the scientific Byers boys.

Toronto notched two more goals before the end of the game to Vics one and this left the final at 6-2.

Toronto—Goal, May; defence, Weatherill, Hall; centre, Watt; wings, Keeble, Hawkshaw. Subs—Gee, Pankoski, Gault, Hinde, Edwards, Fidler, Machin.

Kingston—Goal, Stone; defence, Graves, Woodman; centre, Flint; wings, Joyce, Aitken. Subs—Dugan, McKeown, Danby, Reynolds, Dunn.

Stirling, Port Dalhousie Clash Here Fri. Night

Stirling's starry Midget "C" hockey team will meet the Port Dalhousie youngsters in the first game of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Ontario championship in Memorial Arena here on Friday night, O.M.H.A. Secretary Jack Christie, announced today. The second game of the series will be played in Port Dalhousie or St. Catharines on Saturday, March 27th.

Manager Ross Hermiston of the Stirling team said today that all efforts will be made to play a best-of-three series instead of a goals-to-count two-game round.

Ontario Minor Hockey Association regulations call for a goals-to-count round in all championship series unless the rival managers agree to play a best-of-three group.

Reserved seat tickets for the game here Friday will be on sale at Bill Cook's Cigar Store, Belleville, and Ross Hermiston's Drug Store in Stirling.

Halifax, March 15—(CP)—The Maritime senior hockey circuits admit that they aren't as strong as other top amateur leagues in the country, but when a Maritime junior team can regularly knock the stuffing out of the senior clubs, it really hurts their prestige.

Alex (Halifax Herald) Nickerson called the game in which Halifax St. Marys took the Halifax championship from Crescents, late of the Big Four Maritime Senior League, a win "in characteristic fashion."

However, he made note that: "The Irish did not have everybody in the rink behind them. It seems that there are hundreds—nay thousands — of Haligonians who believe there is something essentially wrong with a hockey set-up wherein a junior club can defeat most of the senior clubs in the province and climax that season, before moving on to the Memorial Cup playdowns, by taking the city senior championships."

On the eve of St. Mary's playoff trip to Moncton, Nick voiced a growing premonition.

"Despite the amazing record of the Irish against senior competition, this bureau does not believe that they will take the measure of the Hawks. We look for a Moncton victory tonight. But, if the juniors win then they should be nominated by the Big Four to represent them in the Maritime senior finals against Sydney Millionaires."

But Don (Moncton Transcript) Fay gave the 12-4 melee several epithets less charitable than a failure to "take Hawks' measure."

Declared Don: " . . . Hawks certainly took the wind out of the sails of St. Mary's Juniors when they administered a 12-4 trouncing to the Haligonians. Hawks had it over the visitors like a tent.

"The thorough trimming should do the juniors a lot of good. The decisive lacing showed that the Nova Scotia juniors will have to pull up their bootstraps when they hit the Memorial Cup trail.

"The Halifax Juniors are a good team, but not in the class of Moncton Hawks who could have emerged with a greater score."

Juniors will be juniors, it seems — whether they like the idea or not.

Houston's Agar Within Sight USHL Record

Minneapolis, March 16 — (AP) — George Agar of Houston Huskies has five games left to set a scoring record for the United States Hockey League.

Agar raised his total to 99 points last night at Houston as the Huskies and Tulsa Oilers played to a 5-5 overtime tie. Butch McDonald of Kansas City established the old mark two years ago.

The high-scoring Houston centre was credited with an assist on Houston's opening goal in the first period and with another in the extra session. That game was the league's only contest last night.

Agar has scored 37 goals and 62 assists for his 99 total. Gino Rozzini, St. Paul, the No. 2 scorer, has 22 goals and 59 assists for a total of 81.

Training Camp Notes

New York, March 16 —(AP)— New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers, 1947 World Series foes, top the American and National League respectively in the "Grapefruit" League.

Both sport perfect records, with the Yanks the more impressive. The Yanks have won eight games while the Dodgers have won all their five starts. The Dodgers, however, have yet to engage a Major League club while all of the Yanks' victories were against big league competition.

Terry Moore, veteran centrefielder of St. Louis Cardinals, may be able to rest more often this season now that his understudy, Chuck Diering, is showing signs of becoming a hitter.

Diering, who can run and threw with the best of them, had trouble hitting National League pitching last season, his first in the Majors.

Two rookie hurlers, John Hall and Chriss Van Cuyk, are impressing Brooklyn Manager Leo Durocher.

Hall won 18 games for Mobile of the Southern Association last year while Van Cuyk, a brother of pitcher Johnny Van Cuyk, also with the Dodgers, posted 25-2 mark for Cambridge of the Eastern Shore League.

Veteran Mark Christman is making a strong bid for the shortstop spot in the Washington Senators' starting lineup. His competition, Johnny Sullivan, shows signs of being a better hitter than Christman, but manager Joe Kuhel likes Christman's edge in fielding.

St. Mikes Buzzers Take 2-Game Lead

Toronto, March 16 — (CP) — St. Michael's College Buzzers trounced Welland Wildcats 7-2 here last night to take a two-game lead in their best-of-five Ontario Hockey Association junior B playoff. Third game will be played at Welland tomorrow night.

Bill McDonagh and Craig Robertson snared two goals apiece while Art Holmes, Holland and Rocco Volpe tallied once for the Irish scores.

Andy Lajoie and Ray Reeves counted for Welland.

MEN OF VISION
HEARNE 1771

In 1771 Samuel Hearne, fur trader and explorer, blazed the first overland trail from Hudson Bay to the Arctic Ocean. Returning by Copper Mountain and Great Slave Lake, he opened up a vast territory to trade. Appointed Governor of Fort Prince of Wales, he later established a new fort on the site now occupied by Churchill.

In 1771 HEARNE said:
"Encourage a spirit of industry"

In 1622 CALVERT said:
"Promote industry and public benefit"

CALVERT, Man of Vision of the 17th century, said to his New World settlers: "Work earnestly for the benefit of all... enlarge our trade."

In the early 1600's Calvert foresaw prosperity and growth through united effort. "Be partners," he urged. "Seek to advance... encourage the building of this country."

Famous English Statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, Calvert's ideals of unity have been shared by all men of vision through the generations since Calvert's time three hundred years ago. Today, let each of us be a man of vision and "encourage a spirit of industry."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To learn a squeeze play is quite a chore. That is why I keep going over the details again and again. You may not need so much repetition. But most of your friends do.

To decide if a squeeze is possible, what two qualities do you first look for? One item is two promotion cards. The other is reduction cards, usually ten of them.

Promoters are seeming losers with a chance of being developed into winners. Although you need two promoters as threats, only one of them is intended to become a winner.

Reducers are cards played for the purpose of reducing all hands to a few cards. Usually this is done by taking ten tricks before the squeeze situation arises.

When you find you have the promoters and reducers, what is the next quality to help work the squeeze? An entry to the hand that is opposite to the squeezer.

What is any entry? It is some card with which a hand can make a trick when partner is able to lead for that purpose. It is a card that enables a player to enter a hand.

We are still working on this deal:

NORTH
♠8 7 6 4
♥A K 9
♦K 3
♣8 6 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠10 3 2	♠None
♥Q J 10 8 5	♥7 6
♦A Q J 6 4	♦10 9 8 7 5 2
♣None	♣10 9 7 5 3

SOUTH
♠A K Q J 9 5
♥4 3 2
♦None
♣A K Q J

South is declarer at a grand slam bid of seven spades. West lead heart queen. South must find some way of taking 13 tricks.

The north heart nine and diamond king are two promotion cards. Heart king, five trumps, four clubs are ten reduction cards. This will leave three cards in each hand.

South then has left a final trump to lead as a squeeze card. Does north still have an entry? Yes. A heart lead from south can be won by north with the ace of hearts.

The careless gentry forget their entry.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 16 (AP)—In this town where most films are accompanied by a noisome fanfare, it's news when one is made under a publicity blackout.

The picture is "Mr. Joseph Young of Africa" which John Ford, Merian Cooper and Ernest Schoedsack have been filming for almost three months under the quietest of conditions.

No free lunches have been dangled before reporters to lure them out to see the shooting. None of its performers has fainted on the set so they could get the picture's title in the papers.

The man behind all this secrecy is Willis O'Brien, who created the "King Kong" ape in 1933. For seven years, he has been making a mechanical jungle menagerie for "Mr. Young."

O'Brien animals are not freaks; they are exact replicas of real beasts. What's more, they are twice as versatile. Animated by a secret process, they can do things that real beasts can't be trained to do. And they have a wider range of facial expressions. For example, the fake lion can unleash a roar that would make MGM's Leo cringe with fear.

O'Brien piece de resistance is a nine-foot human giant that makes several appearances in the film. It's just as faked as the animals.

The producers invoked closed-set rules to preserve the secrets of these costly inventions. The story begins in Africa, where an wild animals for American entertainment acts. The party returns to the United States with a large collection of beasts, plus the nine-foot giant. Then things begin to expedition has been set to capture happen. I won't spoil the surprises.

The picture has Terry Moore, Ben Johnson, Robert Armstrong andd Frank McHugh in the cast and has been budgeted at $2,000,000. It's estimated that a third of that went for experimentation and creation of the animals. Those are pretty expensive toys.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Clearwater, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Ben Chapman, who comes close to being the most quotable manager in baseball, is a firm adherent to Herb Pennock's theory that a pitcher's greatest handicap is "fear of the bast.". The Phillies pilot was holding forth on that subject yesterday and using Del Ennis, who was taking batting practice, as an example . . . "All a pitcher has to do is get it in there and he has the advantage," Ben argued. "A good hitter bats about .333. That's one base hit out of every three times he hits one—and yet those pitchers keep trying to miss the plate . . . Whew, look at that one" . . . Ennis had poled a long drive over the fence, but his next one was a dribbler to the infield . . . "You see," Ben continued. "He hit six; one was a home run; one you could call a base hit; the other four were outs. That's why I tell my pitchers never to be afraid of the batters. Still, last year before I'd go to bed, I would pick my starter—and then I'd have to pick three relief pitchers."

Lively Enough

Babe Ruth, who is touring the training camps and cutting up a few touches with old friends, was lunching with Phillies' officials yesterday when someone suggested that the Babe should be hitting 'em now, when the ball is livelier than ever . . . "Lively ball," growled Ruth. "Why, I hit just as far back in 1916 as I did when I was at my peak."

Tampa Bay Topics

Bucky Harris is chuckling over the way Bobby Brown "left off with a hit and opened up with one." . . . Bobby, who set a world series pinch-hitting record last fall, began his spring chores Sunday when he was sent in as pinch-hitter for the Yanks' reserver team against the Braves and he cleaned the bags with another blow . . . The Cardinals' Eddie Dyer is so high on Tom Glaviano as a utility infielder that he's willing to trade a couple of others who haven't caught on after a few trials . . Wish Egan, Detroit Tiger head scout, is No. 1 booster for pitcher Bill Pierce. "He's the nicest, sweetest kid on the team," says Wish —and that covers both Bill's personality and his ball playing.

Fireman Dill Has Exciting Time On Hospital Trip

Baltimore, March 16 (AP) — Fireman Carl Dill just couldn't pass up a good fire—even though it was his day off and he was taking his wife to the hospital to have a baby.

On their way to keep a date with the stork, the Dills spotted an automobile on fire. Fireman Dill turned to Mrs. Dill.

"Go ahead, dear," she said. "Put out the fire."

And Dill did just that, but he had to turn to his wife again—this time for a bottle-opener.

The only thing he could find to fight the fire with were six bottles of beer in the burning car.

The beer, warmed by the fire, sprayed across the flames like a foam extinguisher. When the fire engines arrived, the blaze was out and the Dills continued on to the hospital.

AT THE CAPITOL — Romance reaches dramatic proportions in Paramount's Technicolor production, "The Virginian," which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre, with Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy and Sonny Tufts in the starring roles. Here lovely Barbara Britton pleads with McCrea, the Virginian, not to seek a showdown with Donlevy, who plays Trampas, the cattle-rustler. On the same program, James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, star in "City for Conquest."

Ma was singing and huming out loud to herself, and pop said, I know why you're in sutch fine spirrits, my dear. You must of looked in a mirrer and noticed that you look 10 years younger, he said.

Goodness sutch an exaggeration, ma said. I'm feeling quite as well as I could expect to feel, considering that I'm in comparatively perfect health, touch wood, but even a super woman can hardly be expected to look 10 years younger at a moment's notice, she said, and pop said, What I really meant was, you look 10 years younger than you'd be looking if you had known, and I take full credit for not telling you.

Telling me what? ma said. If I had known what, for land sakes? she said, and pop said, Well, it's all over and done with now, so I can safely tell you and bask in your gratitude. One morning a few weeks ago, I glanced at the date on my newspaper and noticed that it was Friday the 13th. Naturally, it was just another date in my life, but I realized that if you ever found it out you would be certain ttat some terrible bad luck was going to befall you, and you'd spend sutch an agonizing day worrying about it that your appearance would age permanently by 10 years. And that, my dear, thanks to me, is why you look 10 years younger, pop said.

William Potts I never heard of anything so callous and inconsiderate in my life, ma said, and pop said, I beg your pardon, please?

Why, it's just a miracle that I didn't walk unsuspectingly under a ladder or open an umberella in the house, or some other gassly thing, ma said, and pop said, But for Peet sake how do you know you didn't?

Because if I had I wouldn't be here the picture of health to tell the tail, and there you sit like a statue of ignorant innocense, expecting praise, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods, I pleed gilty, but I dont believe in capitol punishment, so pliease sentence me to life imprisonment in your custody.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

Two Mongolians Thought China Province of U.S.

New York, March 16 — (CP) The New York Times said Monday in a dispatch from Peiping, China, that two outer Mongolians who arrived there last week learned to their bewilderment that China is not a province of the United States.

The two men — a Capt. Nawajamsa and a Lieut. Tobodrakchi, believed to be the first of their people to have entered Nationalist China since the end of the war, came here to seek United States aid for their people.

In the Mongolian People's Republic, which has been almost completely isolated from the rest of the world for the last 25 years, they had heard that China was virtually American soil.

They charged that their country was dominated by Russians with nearly 25,000 of the 1,000,000 population held as political prisoners. All men between 16 and 40 were being conscripted.

Grabs Pilotless Plane by Tail

Cleveland, March 16 — (AP) — Albert Drottar, 27-year-old mechanic, halted a pilotless plane at Cleveland airport Sunday after it seriously injured a tool company engineer. He grabbed it by the tail.

Edward Heller, 59, chief engineer of the Ohio Tool Co., received deep cuts in his left side when the four-passenger plane moved forward after he swung the propeller.

Witnesses said he forgot to turn off the ignition.

Drottar saw the plane hutrling toward a gasoline truck and parked aircraft. Drottar grabbed hold of its tail and eventuolly manager to open the door.

Then he cut the ignition.

Resuscitation Expert Fails to Save Son

Detroit, March 16 — (AP) — Robert C. Gasco is the resuscitation expert of suburban Berkley's fire department.

A call for hely sent him racing to his own home Sunday to find his three-year-old son, Roger, strangling on a penny balloon.

The efforts of both Gasco and a physician, however, were fruitless.

"I've handled hundreds of such cases and this is the first one I've lost," said the heart - broken father.

28 GERMANS GOING HOME

Tokyo, March 16 — (AP)—Five former German diplomats and 23 other Germans are going home—under Allied headquarters' orders. Classified as "objectionable German Nationals subject to forcible repatriation," they will be sent to Frankfurt by plane shortly. They include Karl Balster, Consul at Kobe; Erich Boltze, counsellor, and Han Ulrich Von Marchthaler, first secretary of the Embassy here.

HANDFUL OF STARS

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

that's one of the things I don't dare think about. I could have stayed in Baltimore. They were very kind, too kind. But with them I could never forget that I'm a deserted wife. It was the easiest way, staying there, living on what Michael paid me. But it was giving up. I won't give up. I won't let Mike have a mother who stopped living and laughing, who sat and folded her hands and—gave up! Talking courage again that is to say and so hard to live. . . ."

"And you won't see Michael?"

"Never see him again nor speak of him—if I can help it. He'll never be happy, Lyle. Michael isn't cruel or thoughtless. He'll never be happy and he'll never be able to run away from what he has done to Mike and me. I'm not going to raise Mike to hate his father. You hear of so many divorces these days. They're so common. Do you suppose they are all as bad as this? I imagine that most of them are."

"I'll speak to Suzanne tomorrow."

"And I'll call an agency tomorrow about a nurse. If any one had told me six months ago that it would be like this, I'd have said. 'I can't stand it. I'll either go mad or kill myself.' And here I am talking quietly, not even crying any more, and making plans and even thinking I'll have to have some decent clothes. You go on even if you have to go on with your heart cracked from end to end." She smiled. "You're tired, too. And it's very late. I want to hear all about you and Jeff. But not tonight."

She went to the bedroom door and opened it. Then Lyle saw her stand still, as if frozen.

"Lyle, I—I wonder if you would mind sleeping in my room tonight. Mike won't disturb you."

And Lyle knew she had seen something that belonged to Michael. . . .

"Of course I don't mind. But don't be shocked when you see my room. I've been working in there nights. Special outside work—not for the store. That's one of the things I have to tell you."

"Really?"

But Bonnie, picking up her bag and going to Lyle's room, wasn't listening. She was thinking of Michael's brown leather slippers still under the bed and a photograph of him on the dressing table. . . .

Lyle closed the door of Bonnie's bedroom and moved around the room quietly so as not to awaken Mike and gathered all the things Michael had failed to take with him and put them on a chair. Inside she felt hot. Tears burned her eyes, tears for Bonnie who had no tears left. In the morning she would put Michael's things in a bag and take it to the hotel he had mentioned.

Later, her hands clasped over her head, she thought, "Never this with Jeff and me, never."

Within a week Bonnie was working and stout, middle-aged Mrs. Ryan was installed as housekeeper and nurse. Fortunately Mike accepted the new regime with little rebellion and grew fond of the good-natured Mrs Ryan who had had four babies of her own long ago. The beautiful order in which Bonnie had lived, her apartment and child and clothes scrupulously clean, was restored once more.

Lyle knew what it cost Bonnie to leave Mike the first morning in Mrs. Ryan's arms, knew that Bonnie was thinking, "Suppose his food isn't just right and he gets sick. . . .Suppose the water for his bath is too hot . . . . Suppose she doesn't take him out for sunshine and air as she promised. . . .But saying nothing, her eyes lowered as she pulled on her new gloves, she had walked beside Lyle to the elevator and had ridden downtown with her, still saying nothing. And it was her quiet bravery and her determination not to burden any one with her hurt that stirred both pity and admiration in Lyle.

Lyle had left Michael's belongings at the hotel where he was living. She did not ask to see him. But several days later he called her at the store and said, "Since Bonnie won't see me, I'll have to ask you to take her a message. In her letter from Baltimore she mentioned a certain amount of money for the baby. It isn't enough. Tell her she'll receive a check the first of every month. ."

When he hesitated, she knew he was debating whether or not to ask about her and Mike. Obviously deciding against it, he said quite humbly, "I received my things. I suppose you brought them. Thanks, Lyle. I wish you and Jeff all kinds of luck if I don't see you again. And if I'm needed for any reason, you know where I am. Good-bye."

These were trying days in which she divided herself into the hard-working artist, the friend of Bonnie, and the fiancee of Jeff. Still Jeff's search for work had availed nothing. And each day Lyle noted a layer of his good spirits vanishing, with bitterness and discouragement rearing their ugly heads. It was she and not Jeff who said the sweet, tender things now.

One day at luncheon he said. "Steve has a pretty good idea where I'd go to look for a job. He isn't too good to blackmail me. ."

"I'm sure Stephen wouldn't do that."

His eyes darkened the way they did when he was angry. "So he's a god to you, too, is he?"

Lyle said gently, "No, Jeff. But such a thing would be beneath him." She opened her brown bag and took out several bills. "I don't like to carry this around with me. You have the bank book. Will you put it in the bank?"

After he had stuffed the money in his wallet, he picked up his fork and began to eat. Suddenly Lyle felt heat rushing from her throat to the top of her head. Jeff was not putting the money she had been giving him in the bank! He was living on it! She knew — she knew as surely as she was looking at him now, as surely as if he had told her.

Lyle thought, "Why doesn't he tell me he's using it? It doesn't matter—if he needs it. It's ours, not his or mine. We are engaged to be married. We shouldn't have secrets from each other. But he's so proud he won't tell me and he thinks he'll make up for it when he's working and I'll never know."

What little gayety they had these evenings she gave to them, suggesting the restaurants where they had dined and danced during their first happy weeks, knowing that her money paid for those evenings and even for the gasoline that went into the car. Sitting beside him as they drove into the country the bitterly cold nights following Thanksgiving, she knew that Jeff, silent, was thinking of himself.

One night she slipped her hand into his and smiled at him.

"I love you, Jeff."

If he heard her, he paid no attention. She did not say it again. But the next instant the road was blurred through her tears. She tried to understand his attitude. This, she assured herself confidently, was an interlude that would pass. This was a severe, trying test in which their love would not, could not fail.

Then one snowy afternoon a summons came from Stephen.

Hamilton, March 16 —(CP) People attending a Grimsby concert on Saturday evening had a hearty laugh at the expense of Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario Minister of Health.

The pink-cheeked, white-haired minister, who was guest speaker, had just finished telling his listeners that his department was going to spend $222,000,000 for the welfare of Ontario people this year. The voice of a young child, heard throughout the hall, called out. "He looks just like Santa Claus."

HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING AERO ENGINE AND AIRFRAME MECHANICS

ONTARIO'S products are desired and purchased by people all over the world and the capacity to produce such goods largely determines the economic welfare of every man, woman and child within her borders. Because the sale of every article produced in Ontario brings valuable dollars into this Province, we all are more assured of job security . . . and we and our children can have more of the better things in life. To produce such goods in sufficient quantities, skilled labour is vital. That is why every single one of us should be glad that war veterans are constantly being trained to provide the skilled hands so needed by industry. Veterans receive ON THE JOB training under expert instructors in our Ontario factories.

This training, provided through the co-operation of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the Federal Department of Labour and the Ontario Department of Education, starts veterans off on the road to skilled craftsmanship. Taught to use their hands in general aero engine and airframe work, both on military and civilian aircraft, these veterans may qualify for a Department of Transport license, authorizing them to declare aircraft airworthy. In aircraft manufacturing plants and on flying fields throughout Ontario, these newly-skilled veterans will have the opportunity to apply their talents and training. Their efforts will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and will contribute to the welfare and happiness of all her citizens.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

AERO ENGINE MECHANICS

H. Parry, 25, of Oshawa, Ontario, a Canadian Army veteran, is shown making an adjustment to the engine of a Cub Trainer. Students work on various types of aircraft ranging from the Cub Trainer to multiple engine military aircraft. Many veterans, trained as ground crew specialists during the war, have chosen to take post-war training in this occupation for which they are particularly suited. For them the transition to peace-time employment has been easier.

All-Star Cast In Crippled Kiddies Show

Believed to be the greatest all star-cast to perform together under one roof in Canada, "Timmy's All Star Easter Party" will be held in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Sunday, March 21st, in aid of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children's Easter Seal Campaign. Headlining the show will be Marjorie Lawrence, outstanding Metropolitan Opera Star. . . herself a cripple. . . who is coming to Toronto especially for the show.

A partial list of the Canadian performers to take part inclures Foster Hewitt; Mart Kenney and Orchestra; Norma Locke; Roy Roberts; The Commodores; Gregory Clark and Jim Frise; Stan Francis and Cy Mack; John Fisher; Ken Soble; at least five top Dick Jockeys; Wayne and Shuster, Gabby, Herb May, Georgie Dey; Conductors Lucio Agostini and Samuel Hersenhoren to name but a few. Two of Canada's top production men, Rai Purdy and Jackie Rae will co-operate to produce the show.

At least thirty radio stations throughout the Province will carry the show between 4 and 5 p.m. that Sunday, which is to help boost the sales of Easter Seals.

Almost 100 service clubs situated all over Ontario will sell the Easter Seals during March to help supply services such as hospitalization; transportation; clinics; appliance supplies; camping; home nursing and other aids to Ontario's crippled children.

Honorable Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare, also a former polio victim, will be on hand to participate in the proceedings. The show is named from "Timmy" a symbolic name given to a little crippled Hamilton boy chosen as typical of what the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and local service clubs have done to improve conditions for over 49,000 crippled children since 1922.

Bert L. Baulch, Field Secretary of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and one of Canada's foremost philatelists explains to "Timmy" a crippled boy—symbolic of the work done by those engaged in alleviating crippling conditions, the story of how Easter Seals have bettered the lot of Crippled Children in the United States and how the Ontario Society borrowed the idea, designed a Canadian stamp last year to raise $136,000 which has given a strong support to service clubs who work in conjunction with the Society in supplying clinical treatment; hospitalization; field nursing service on instruction, surveys and organization of clinics: and operation of two special camps to give about 350 crippled children special summer cure. Local service clubs will supply their own areas with the Easter Seals and donations should be sent to them, but any donations addressed to "Timmy," Toronto, Ontario, will be credited to the local area.

SUCCESSFUL PLAY

Roslin. (Special.)—On Thursday evening the Anglican Church Hall was the setting for the play, "Jumping Jewels", a mystery comedy in a prologue and three acts presented by the Roslin Young People's Union, to a capacity audience. The characters had been well chosen and showed remarkable dramatic ability.

Mr. Donald Chisholm, president of the Y.P.U., welcomed those present and called on Mr. Harold Hart, director for the play, who introduced the cast as follows:

Alan Scott, proprietor of 'House in-the-Hollow', Mr. Laurison Montgomery.

Ethel Scott, his wife, Mrs. John Fargey.

Lucy, their daughter, Mrs. Joe Chisholm.

Fanny, their maid, Miss Shirley Morgan.

Ritchie Griswold, (in love with Lucy), Mr. Don Sills.

Diana, his sister, Mrs. Earl Gray.

William Griswold, their father, Mr. Connell Leslie.

Guests at 'House-in-the-Hollow' Burke Stacey,—Mr. Donald Bates, Miss Parsons—Miss Mary Bates, Stanley Castle—Mr. Harold Meeks and Linda Rodgers—Mrs. Donald Chisholm.

Patrick O'Leary, the village taxi driver, Mr. Earl Gray.

The scene for the play is, the lobby of the 'House-in-the-Hollow', a roadside hostlery for tourists located just outside a small town on the highway. The house was originally a fine old family dwelling, and the Scotts, who use it as a tourist hotel are the descendants of the first owners. The theme of the play centres around a pearl necklace which has been stolen and the purchase of a family portrait, with many amusing and mysterious situations arising.

A recitation "The Yarn of the Nancy Bell" by Mr. Harold Hart and a piano solo by Mrs. Earl Gray were contributed between the acts.

Point Traverse

Fishermen Busy, SeeBreak-upSoon, Trees Are Tapped

Point Traverse, March 16— Chances of an early break-up of ice in South Bay is believed by fishermen to be not to far off. However, fishermen will have to wait for a stiff west wind this month to see a general break up, but with the ice spread pretty evenly over the bay, early melting will be a great help.

The local fishing colony has become a hive of activity, as local fishermen are preparing their gear and putting their boats in shape for an early launching. Much ice has been blasted inside the mouth of the harbor, and a "down lake" wind would clear the floe ice out from the mainland.

Fishermen who placed nets in open waters off here on Feb. 28th have been unable to reach them owing to ice conditions which exist in South Bay at the present time.

EUROPEAN SITUATION 'CRITICAL' SAYS TRUMAN

Five Nations Sign Mutual Aid Pact

50-Year Treaty For Protection Against Aggression

Permanent Consultative Council Will be Set Up

Brussels, March 17 —(Reuters)— A 50-year treaty of economic co-operation and military aid was signed here today by representatives of five Western European countries — Belgium, France, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and Britain. Other states may accede to it on agreed conditions.

The terms were made public in all five capitals.

Designed "to fortify and preserve the principles of democracy, personal freedom and political liberty, the rule of law and constitutional traditions," the treaty provides that if an armed attack in Europe should be made on any one party to the treaty, the others will, in accordance with Article 51 of the United Nations Charter, afford all military and other aid and assistance.

All such measures shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and be terminated as soon as the council has taken the necessary measures to maintain or restore international peace and security, the treaty emphasizes.

A permanent consultative council will be set up and at the request of any party to the treaty shall be immediately called for consultation between the parties should Germany again adopt an aggressive policy; or with regard to any situation constituting a threat to peace in any area; or with regard to any danger to economic stability.

Faith in Human Rights

The preamble to the treaty declares that the five powers are "resolved to reaffirm their faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the other ideals proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations;

"To fortify and preserve the principles of democracy, personal freedom and political liberty, the rule of law and constitutional traditions, all of which are their common heritage;

"To strengthen, with these aims in view, the economic, social and cultural ties by which they are already united;

"To co-operate loyally and to co-ordinate their efforts to create in Western Europe a firm basis of European economic recovery;

"To afford assistance to each other, in accordance with the charter of the United Nations, in maintaining international peace and security and in resisting a policy of aggression;

"To take such steps as may be held to be necessary in the event of renewal by Germany of a policy of aggression;

"To associate progressively in the pursuance of these aims other states inspired by the same ideals and animated by the same determination."

They accordingly desire "to conclude a treaty for collaboration in economic, social and cultural matters and for collective self-defence."

Terms Outlined

The first three of the treaty's 10 articles deal with economic and cultural matters. They provide that the work of other economic organizations to which the

Officials Hear Truman Speech With Grave Faces

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 17 — (CP) — Canadian reaction to President Truman's call for universal military training in the United States is likely to be towards a strengthening of the Canadian forces, now totalling only 34,000.

This was the general opinion of many members of parliament after listening today to the broadcast of the president's sombre address to Congress.

But there was not the slightest suggestion that either the government or the Progressive Conservative opposition would advocate compulsory military training in Canada. Cabinet ministers ducked this question when asked for comment.

Senator William Duff (L—Nova Scotia) gave the most outspoken comment on President Truman's plan for compulsory military training, saying:

"Sure, that is good. We can't let those Russians get away with this."

A few minutes before Mr. Truman spoke, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, most of his cabinet and a score of Liberal private members went to hear the broadcast.

With grave faces they listened to the speech. It made a sharp impact on everyone present and opposition members, listening in other parts of the parliament buildings, were also deeply impressed with the seriousness of the European situation, as outlined by Mr. Truman.

40 Persons Rescued From Probable Death When Rivers Overflow Banks

(By The Canadian Press)

Thrilling rescues saved about 40 persons from probable death yesterday and early today as spring flood waters took their toll in Ontario and Quebec.

Rescue parties worked tirelessly throughout the night as two treacherous water bodies, the Etobicoke Creek in Ontario, and the Chateauguay River in Quebec flooded vast areas almost without warning.

The sudden turn of events caused riverside residents in both provinces concern, and in Ontario a close watch was kept on impending ice breakups in the Thames, Grand, Nith and Conestogo Rivers.

More than 100 families were trapped in Toronto suburban Long Branch as the worst flood in the history of Etobicoke Creek brought lifesaving crews from neighboring communities. Ladders, lifeboats, motorboats, punts, breeches buoys and ordinary ropes were used in performing 33 spectacular rescues.

As flood waters covered a lowland area located between the Chateauguay basin and the village of Chateauguay, 20 miles from Montreal, a near tragedy was averted as a boat capsized in an effort to rescue a doctor whose car became surrounded with ice and water. Other residents of the area succeeded in manoeuvring boats through the ice to effect the rescue.

At Galt the Grand River was a placid stream, having dropped 5 feet during the night. It was the tamest break-up within memory of the oldest residents and one of the few times in the last 50 years that water did not enter riverside cellars.

A low section of highway 24 to Brantford, inundated during the night, was clear this morning.

HOUSE COMPLETES STUDY OF NEED FOR CONTROLS

Rentals, Housing Are Also Debated

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 17 — (CP) — Except for a few loose ends, the Commons yesterday completed study of 27 wartime controls the government wants continued for another year.

Consideration of the controls, to remain in effect until April 1, 1939, produced a rumbling debate on rentals, price control, construction priorities, housing and sugar purchasing.

The debate took place during the committee stage of the enabling bill, which will empower the government to continue the orders into 1949. They may, however, be revoked in the meantime if the government feels they no longer are necessary.

The Chamber also resumed debate on second reading of a government bill to amend the Wheat Act to increase the initial wheat payment, empower the Wheat Board to take over marketing of barley and oats and establish a pension scheme for employees of the Board.

Revenue Minister McCann disclosed that interest paid on the refundable portion of 1942 income tax now being distributed will be taxable as part of 1948 income. The refundable portion itself will be tax-free.

Good Progress Reported

Defence Minister Claxton reported "good progress" on bringing Canada's armed forces to peacetime strength.

Reconstruction Minister Howe said Canada, with 200,000 houses completed since the end of the war, is doing as well as any other country in the field of home construction. More than 50,000 houses were built in 1945, 67,000 in 1946 and 77,000 in 1947. Carried over from last year are 45,000 uncompleted houses.

He reported, too, that there is no bottleneck of building materials but there is a shortage of whether there was any sign of a dropping off in the cost of housing. Costs of materials were levelling off, but costs of labor were increasing.

No one could say, he went on, bricklayers and plumbers.

U.K.s Vast Secret Hdqtrs. Of Wartime Seen for First Time, Will Become National Museum

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 17 —(CP)— Newspaper men for the first time today were permitted to inspect the secret wartime underground headquarters of the war cabinet and the wartime chiefs of staff.

The stone-walled rooms, situated 50 feet below the ground and level with the bed of the River Thames, cover six acres of space under Whitehall.

There are 150 rooms in this underground retreat and it was from one of them, a small council chamber reinforced with four feet of concrete and buttressed with iron girders, that Neville Chamberlain, then Britain's prime minister, made his declaration of war broadcast on Sept. 3, 1939. The underground headquarters are to be preserved as a national museum.

The famous war cabinet and map rooms, air conditioned and centrally heated, have been left just as they were when the war ended. Lord Ismay, who as Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay was wartime military adviser to the cabinet, held a press conference in the main council chamber.

The atmosphere was redolent of Battle of Britain days. Each of the 24 seats, packed in a tight square, still bore the namecard of a member of the war cabinet. In front of Winston Churchill's green leather chair stood a large yellowing card inscribed:

"Please understand that there is no depression in this House and that we are not interested in the possibility of defeat. They do not exist—Victoria R.I."

Lord Ismay told jocularly of one occasion when a cabinet member accidentally brushed against the switch cutting off the air conditioning. "Mr. Churchill of course was smoking one of his famous cigars and the air got so stifling some of the cabinet members began to pass out."

In the nearby operations room newspaper men inspected great wall maps dotted with colored pins and wools showing the positions of ships and enemy submarines on the day the war ended.

The map room still is equipped with a white telephone which communicated directly with the Prime Minister. Green phones provided a connection with the war office and red phones with the admiralty.

Lifting of Controls on Housing Accommodation Urged in Brief

Ottawa, March 17 (CP)—Lifting of all controls on housing accommodation was urged in a brief presented to Finance Minister Abbott today by the Canadian Federation of Property Owners Associations.

The Federation urged setting of a definite date, approximately six months from now for the control removal.

W. J. LeClair, president of the Federation, emphasized the organization was not seeking rent increases nor merely the lifting of restrictions on termination of tenancies. This would be "merely a palliative. The real remedy is the lifting of all restrictions.'

The brief claimed the success of decontrol in commercial housing accommodation should be "ample justification for the government at the present time to fix a definite date for decontrol of housing accommodation."

Continuation of rental restrictions was contributing to inflation rather than prevent it, it added.

The following points were also made:

1. According to surveys covering all Canada, there were 4.25 persons per unit of housing accommodation in 1947, as against 5.5 persons per unit in 1939, and the so-called housing shortage seemed to be caused more by maldistribution than by actual shortage.

2. A recent survey had shown that even in urban areas, the average figures were 4.26 persons per unit in 1947, as against 4.32 in 1939.

3. The official price index last Feb. 2, listed rent at 119.9, while food stood at 186.1, clothing at 165.1 and retail prices at 170.

4. Average wage index for 1946 was 163 (on the basis 1935-39 equals 100) and the estimated figure for 1947 would be "at least 170."

ETOBICOKE FLOOD WATERS SUBSIDE, DAMAGE HEAVY

Brampton Business District Flooded

By VIC MORRIS JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 17 (CP)—Ice-choked flood waters of Etobicoke Creek receded from five to six feet today and weary rescue workers probed the flat area of suburban Long Branch in search of persons who may have been overlooked in a dramatic all-night rescue operation.

Only two families remained in the area, containing flimsy summer cottages, and they have refused all offers of aid to evacuate their homes.

Three cottages were uprooted from their foundations and swept into Lake Ontario yesterday when the flash flood followed a sudden thaw and heavy rains, covering the half-mile square area at the mouth of the stream with raging waters.

Today's rescue workers of firemen, lifesavers and police waded through mud-caked homes in their endless search for possible missing persons. Officials have been unable to record those rescued or believed living in the area yesterday.

Big Danger Passes

Long Branch police said the "immediate danger has passed," but that the waters could be expected to rise about a foot today.

Tuesday night some 25 persons were brought from their water-surrounded homes as workers battled darkness and huge chunks of ice in life boats. Rescues were completed by use of launches, breeches buoys and ropes and ladders.

Councillor James Wallace of Long Branch said today 115 cottages in the flooded area suffered "considerable damage that will run into thousands of dollars."

The 30-mile river which winds in a southeasterly direction some seven miles west of Toronto backs up annually at this time creating a minor flood. But yesterday's overflow was described by veteran residents of the 25-year-old summer resort as the "worst in the history of Long Branch." At Brampton, damage was heavy as water flooded the business district.

Congress of Leading Europeans To Study Plan for U.S. of Europe

By RONALD PRESTON

London, March 17 —(Reuters) —A "Congress of Europe" of more than 800 "most distinguished and most representative Europeans in politics, labor, the church, industry and agriculture" will meet at The Hague from May 7 to 10 to discuss what can be done to help achieve their common ideal of an United States of Europe.

Among those invited are Winston Churchill, British Conservative leader; Edouard Herriot, President of the French National Assembly; and Paul Van Zeeland, former prime minister of Belgium.

Invitations to send delegates are being sent out by the International Committee for the Coordination of European Unity Movements to Britain, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and Italy. Several other European countries will be represented by delegates of the Union of European Federalists.

Delegates will attempt to coordinate the different viewpoints on how this unity is to be achieved and what should be done to spread the gospel of "one Europe."

The five sponsoring organizations of the congress are the United Europe Movement, founded by Churchill, with sections in Britain, France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland; the Union of European Federalists covering 10 European countries; the Independent League for European (Economic) Co-operation; the United Socialist States of Europe; and the All-Party Group of European Union.

These organizations formed an international Co-ordination committee last month in response to criticism that there were "too many different United Europe movements and too little contact between them." This committee is drawing up a draft of political, cultural and economic proposals for The Hague conference.

Calls for Draft Law and Universal Military Training

Swift Action Urged In Economic Help for Europe

Washington, March 17—(AP)—President Truman told Congress today the situation in Europe is "critical" and asked a temporary draft law and universal military training.

The President also urged swift Congressional action on the Marshall program of economic help for Europe.

Truman went before a joint session of Congress in person to present a grim picture of world affairs and a major report on his foreign policy.

"The recent developments in Europe," he said, "present this nation with the fundamental issues of vital importance."

He pointed then to the just-completed five-power Western European pact for common defence against attack and said:

"This development deserves our full support. I am confident that the United States will, by appropriate means, extend to the free nations the support which the situation requires.

"I am sure that the determination of the free countries of Europe to protect themselves will be matched by an equal determination on our part to help them to do so."

Blames Russia

Then, plainly speaking of Russia, Truman said:

"The situation in the world today, is not primarily the result of the natural difficulties which follow a great war. It is chiefly due to the fact that one nation has not only refused to co-operate in the establishment of a just and honorable peace, but — even worse — has actively sought to prevent it."

The European pact Truman mentioned was announced officially less than an hour before he spoke. In it, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg pledged each other military aid if one should be attacked.

The 50-year treaty sets up a "consultative council" to meet immediately "to consult with regard to any situation which might constitute a threat to peace."

The treaty leaves the way open for other countries to join. It says the five countries "may, by agreement, invite any other state" to agree to its terms.

Truman said there are times when it is "far wiser to act than to hesitate" — even though action always involves risk.

He said his recommendations at this time for action represent "the most urgent steps towards securing the peace and preventing the war."

The president stressed that the United States will continue to support the United Nations and will try every possible method of reaching international accord.

Must Not Confuse Issue

"At the same time, we must not be confused about the central issue which confronts the world today.

"The time has come when the free men and women of the world must face the threat to their liberty squarely and courageously."

CALLS FOR DRAFT—Page 3

Highlights From Truman's Speech

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Highlights from President Truman's foreign policy speech:

There is an increasing threat to countries which are striving to maintain a form of government which grants freedom to its citizens.

Since the close of hostilities, Russia and her agents have destroyed the independence and democratic character of a whole series of countries in eastern and central Europe. "This ruthless course of action, and the clear decision to extend it to the remaining free countries of Europe, has brought about the critical situation in Europe today.

The free countries of Europe realise that economic recovery, if it is to succeed, must be afforded some measure of protection against internal and external agression.

Truman's recommendations, in brief:

1. Speedy congressional action on the European recovery program.

2. Prompt enactment of universal military training legislation.

3. Temporary re-enactment of selective service legislation to keep United States armed forces at their authorised strength.

Believes Four Czechs Trailed Her on Way To Meet Czech

London, March 17 — (AP) — Mrs. Marcia Davenport, American novelist, said today she believed she had been trailed by four Czechs when she went to an airport yesterday to meet a former employee of Jan Masaryk.

Mrs. Davenport lived in Prague for a number of years and came here March 7 after the communists took over. She wrote "Valley of Decision" and "East Side, West Side."

The writer said she complained to police.

London newspapers displayed the story prominently.

City and District News

SURFACE WATER FLOODS CELLARS

Overloaded sewage facilities, due to the rainstorm and melting snows yesterday, were for a large part responsible for the flooding of many cellars and properties in the city.

One cause to his nuisance was the excessive surface water being drained into the sanitation sewers which could not hold the overload and consequently 'backed up' and flooded a number of cellars.

Properties below the street level were inundated by the surface water. Motorists travelling between Belleville and Trenton found that Highway No. 2 was flooded in some places to a depth of five inches.

Police Blotter

Cash amounting to approximately $25 was taken Tuesday night from the cash register at the auto accessory store owned by J. K. Onderdonk, Front St. The thief or thieves entered the premises by way of a back window and after taking the contents of the cash register left without disturbing the store stock.

A Catharine Street resident suffered a minor injury to her knee Tuesday afternoon when in crossing Pinnacle Street, at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge, she walked into the side of a passing car.

The motorist was proceeding west on Bridge Street and had made a left turn onto Pinnacle, when the woman stopped in front of the car. The woman admitted to police she had been watching a gang of nearby workmen when she inadvertently stepped in front of the car.

E.F. Rutherford Heads Builders' Guild in District

Complete organization of the newly-formed Belleville District Builders' Guild, was effected at a well-attended inaugural meeting held in the Hotel Quinte here last night.

Forty-five members, representative of the district which includes centres within a 25-mile radius of the city, elected their first slate of officers, and saw an interesting motion picture featuring "Apprenticeship" with Mr. Musgrave, guidance instructor of Belleville Collegiate Institute as narrator and commentator.

First president of the Guild is Mr. Edgar F. Rutherford, with Jack Sills, of the A. A. Sills Company named vice president. Temporary secretary treasurer is Jack White of the Rutherford Company and the five directors of the official slate of eight, named at the meeting are, Jack Howe, Howe and Hagerman; Harry Rollins, Houston Lumber Co.; Jack Both, Diamond Construction Company; A. C. Walker, Cabinet and Carpenter Service, and Fred Elgie, F. Elgie Company, all of the city.

The remaining three directors will be named in the immediate future, and will be drawn from centres outside the city.

The first organization of its kind to be formed in this district, the Guild expects to attract to its membership 200 representatives of the building, masons, carpenter, bricklayer, and other recognized trades. Its constitution is such, an official said today, as to fully protect the public as well as labor and the contractor.

The Guild will hold monthly meetings in the immediate future. Its temporary office is located at 24 Alexander Street.

Wm. Dougherty Opening Paint, Wallpaper Shop

After eight years as manager of the local Martin-Senour store on Front Street, Mr. William Dougherty will open his own paint and wallpaper store at a new location.

The new store "Dougherty's Colour Centre" is located at 247 Front Street, and will carry all lines of Martin Senour finishes and Sunworthy wallpaper made by Boxer and Watson-Foster. A complete line of tools and accessories pertaining to the paint and wallpaper trade, will also be carried, as well as graphic art supplies.

A native of Belleville, Mr. Dougherty has been associated with Martin Senour line for the past 20 years. He opened the local Martin Senour store eight years ago and prior to that time was with Smith Hardware.

All lines of merchandise carried at the former Martin Senour store will be stocked by "Dougherty's Colour Centre," the only change being that the new store will cater particularly to the retail trade.

With store fittings and accessories placed with an eye towards attractive display as well as for efficiency in service, the new store is certain to meet with the approval of old as well as new customers. As far as possible it will be the custom of the store to permit customers to make their own choice of wallpapers without the direction of store personnel.

Owner and manager of the new store is Mr. Dougherty while as assistants will be Mrs. Betty Balyx who has been with Martin Senour for some years, and Bob Strachan, formerly with Fred Symons.

Rotarians Asked To Subscribe To Foundation Fund

Members of the Rotary Club of this city will be asked to contribute to the Rotary Foundation Fund ($2,000,000) which was established a year ago to the memory of the late Paul Harris, founder of Rotary. Approximately $850,000 of this amount has already been contributed by clubs all over the world.

Past president of Rotary International form the committee which is administering the fund, and which has set up a standard of average of $10 per member per club, having in mind that of the 293,000 members of Rotary Clubs throughout the world, upwards of 200,000 might conceivably be in a position to donate individually to the Rotary Foundation, thus honoring the memory of its founder.

The committee does not expect that Rotarians will be assessed by their clubs, nor be subjected to undue pressure to contribute. It feels strongly that each donation should be gladly given as a personal appreciation of what Rotary means and has contributed to the personality of the individual Rotarian. This memorial to Paul Harris is envisioned primarily as one created by heart-gifts of grateful Rotarians.

The committee has proposed four objectives for the Foundation. These objectives, approved by the Rotary Foundation Trustees include—Rotary Foundation Fellowships for advanced study; the extension of institutes of international understanding in countries where they have not been developed; the fostering of any tangible and effective projects which have as their purpose the furthering of better understanding and friendly relations between peoples of different nations; and the providing of emergency relief for Rotarians and their families wherever war or other disaster has brought general destitution and suffering.

President Alex. Nathan of the Rotary Club of Belleville has presented the Foundation appeal to members of the service club here and it is expected it will join the many clubs throughout the world which have contributed 100 per cent to the Fund.

Upwards of 450 clubs, twenty-two of them Canadian have already subscribed their full quota, while hundreds of other clubs have partially completed their canvass but will not report until they have reached or exceeded their objective.

Youth Paddles Canoe Over Flooded Street

You can have your robins, woodchucks, caterpillars, crocuses and other bromidic harbingers of Spring.

But for originality in announcing the approach of the long-awaited vernal season, the palm goes to a teen-aged boy who resides on Catherine Street, or thereabouts.

Last night, surface water gushed over the streets in that part of the city to a depth of from six to eight inches. Cellars were flooded. Residents were confined to their homes, unless they were possessors of rubber boots.

The young man in question, however, had other ideas of transportation. Securing the family canoe from its winter habitat the ingenious youngster grabbed paddles, and his troubles were over.

He paddled his craft along the water-covered sidewalk, with the pavement six inches below the keel of the canoe. His appearance was the signal for a concerted rush to the sidewalk-ferry by the kids of the neighborhood, and the youthful skipper was kept busy until dark acceding to requests of his pals for rides in the craft.

Call for Young Men to Enter Presbyterian Ministry Sounded, Moderator Praises Rural Churches

The great need for additional young men to enter the ministry of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was stressed to members of St. Andrews' Men's Club Tuesday evening when at their final dinner meeting of the season they were addressed by the Right Rev. Chas. H. MacDonald, D.D., Moderator of the General Assembly.

Accomplishing a two-fold purpose during his brief stay in the city, the Moderator found time to meet members of the congregation, while at the same time he visited with his married daughter, Mrs. J. Brisbin, who last autumn took up residence in the city with her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Brisbin are members of St. Andrew's Church congregation.

Speaking briefly to the Men's Club the Moderator told his listeners that his appointment last summer as Moderator of the General Assembly had given him the opportunity of realizing a long cherished wish to visit many of the smaller churches throughout Canada.

Enthusiasm of Country Churches

The enthusiasm of the congregations in many of the outlying country churches was noted by Dr. MacDonald who referred to one church which he had visited in the Maritimes where members drove seven and eight miles to church with a horse and buggy but still had almost 100 per cent attendance. He compared this record with city churches where members drive in cars and still allow a brief rain shower to keep them from church.

There were many outlying settlements in Canada which were asking for the Presbyterian Church to send ministers but this was prevented through the lack of young men offering themselves for the ministry. One hundred additional ministers were needed in Canada, he said.

Dedication of Lives to Christ

What the Church needed most was young people who would give their lives to the work of Christ, stated the Moderator. He paid tribute to the type of young men graduating from colleges. "They are not looking for big churches, or for large salaries. They are asking only for the opportunity to preach the riches of Christ."

The need for greater financial support of foreign missions was noted by the Moderator. Fifteen young people in the Church during the past year had volunteered themselves for foreign missions. All would be sent but it would tax the Church foreign mission funds to do so. Givings of the Church members were not increasing correspondingly with the need of the missions, he said.

Deeper Prayer Life

Giving money was not the greatest thing in a church. But if this were done the member would have a greater interest in the church. Members were called to a deeper prayer life; "Then the Presbyterian Church in Canada would go forward," concluded Dr. MacDonald.

Club member Mr. I. L. Moore introduced the Moderator with appreciation being expressed by Mr. Archie Cameron.

Mayor D. L. Storey tendered the city's welcome to the Moderator and to several of the city's Protestant clergy who were present at the meeting.

Club president Jim MacKenzie presided, expressing appreciation to the members of the various women's organizations in the church who during the winter season had provided dinners for the club members. Alex Cunningham acted as song leader with Clifford Templar as piano accompanist.

Quarter Century Service Marked By Kiwanis Club

A quarter century of service club work in this city was observed by the local Kiwanis Club here this week when charter members of the club still living in Belleville were guests of the club at their regular weekly luncheon.

Ten of the 25 charter members of the club attended the luncheon and were introduced to the meeting. A number of these are still members of the local club, which now has a membership of approximately 125. First president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was Tom Collister, former local bank manager who the same year was transferred. George Griffin, finished the year as head of the club and remained for several terms as the club president.

The ten charter members who were guests of the club luncheon Tuesday were "Duke" Smith, Harry Bryant, Allan Schryver, Dr. S. Cronk; George Lee, Ernest Finkle, Jack McIntosh, Charles L. Hyde, David Davidson and Ernest Dickens. Current president of the club is Ted Schwab.

A birthday cake bearing 25 candles assisted the local club members observe their anniversity, while congratulations from Kiwanis International were read at the meeting.

Welfare work for which the Kiwanis club is noted includes the summer camp at Roblin Lake where local children are given ten days camp free of charge. The club is also interested in V.O.N. work and is currently sponsoring handicraft classes at the Kiwanis Centre.

Return Control 'Gas' Hour Sale To Municipalities

Toronto, March 17. (CP)—Labor Minister Daley said in the Ontario Legislature yesterday that the government will proceed with its bill to return control of gasoline sale hours to the municipalities.

There will be no public hearings on the matter, he declared, asserting that the matter had been investigated thoroughly. Mr. Daley made the statement after reading a telegram from the gasoline section of the Retail Merchants Association asking that the bill to transfer control be referred to a committee and hearings be held.

There could be no point to hearings, the minister said. The measure was simply returning to municipalities a duty that had been their for years.

The bill to transfer control of sale hours has been given first reading. It applies particularly to the cities of Brantford, Windsor, Toronto and Ottawa, where at present operating hours are regulated by the province.

Hitchhiker Takes Advantage Of Kindly Airman

That it doesn't always pay to go out of the way to do a good turn for another party was learned this week by LAC Norman Ward, No. 6 R.D., Trenton, who as result of being a Good Samaritan lost his wallet, together with other personal articles.

Over the weekend LAC Ward drove his wife to Toronto and on the return trip early Monday morning picked up a soldier hitchhiker. Arriving home at four o'clock in the morning the obliging airman let the soldier hitchhiker out of his car with the offer that if another ride could not be obtained he could stay the remainder of the night with him at the cottage. Half an hour later the soldier rapped on the cottage door, was admitted and slept with the airman.

Come morning the airman got ready for work and left a note for his sleeping guest to make sure the door was locked when he left.

But at mid-morning the airman remembered he had left his wallet under the pillow of his bed. Hurrying back to the cottage the airman found the front door open and the soldier, together with his wallet and other personal articles missing.

Tuesday Ward went to Kingston and identified the hitchhiking soldier in a pay parade. The soldier was arrested and on him, police say, were found several of the personal articles belonging to the airman. But the wallet and money are still missing.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 17. (CP) — Stocks made a good recovery on the Toronto Stock Exchange today in a rebound from yesterday's sharp losses although today's volume was not as heavy. Golds came back most of the way but industrials showed less progress while base metals and western oils were narrower still.

The exchange's noon index showed industrials up $1.79 at $150.92, golds $2.49 at $94.36, Base Metals .68 at $78.35, Western Oils .32 at $29.00. Volume for the first three hours was 1,014,000 shares, about 398,000 less than yesterday's similar period.

The price range in the junior gold producers widened to gains as high as '35 cents with several issues ahead 10 cents and more. Fact-Finding Bd. Starts Work On Packing Strike

Chicago, March 17. (AP)—The day-old wage strike of 100,000 C.I.O. meat packing workers across the United States came under the official scrutiny of a presidential fact-finding board today.

President Truman, whose earlier pleas to delay the walkout were rejected by union officials, named the board yesterday. It was the first procedure under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act designed to end strikes judged to imperil the country's health and safety.

The meat strike, which halved meat production in the United States, may provide a major test of the new labor law.

The three-man board planned its first meting in Chicago today to begin investigating the wage dispute which led to the work stoppage in about 140 major and independent packing plants.

The striking union, United Packinghouse Workers of America, (C.I.O.) promised Truman "every possible co-operation "with the fact-finding board. Similar co-operation was promised by one of the major packing companies.

500 U.K. Seamen Being Brought By Air to Ontario

Sarnia, March 17. (CP)—Capt. R. Scott Misener, president and general manager of Sarnia and Colonial Steamships Limited revealed here today a plan to bring 500 seamen from Britain by April 15, under the Ontario Air Immigration scheme.

He declared his line had decided upon the new policy in conjunction with the Dominion Marine Association to offset the shortage of merchant seamen in Canada.

Interviewed today before departing for his headquarters at Port Colborne, Capt. Misener stated "I'm stopping off at Toronto to see Premier Drew and to discuss with him the question of flying over the British seamen we require."

"We hope that Premier Drew hasn't any objectons to our plan," he added, "we can certainly guarantee every man we bring over a job under the same conditions of pay and employment granted to Canadian seamen.

"The Britons will be expected to pay for their passage to this country like other immigrants who have come to Canada under the Ontario air plan," Capt. Misener declared, but the Dominion Marine Association will look after them when they arrive here."

Vancouver Man Begins Study Of Braund Methods

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, March 17 — (CP) — Harold A. Evans, 39-year-old decorating contractor of Vancouver, today began studying under John Braund the 78-year-old Australian layman's methods of treating cancer.

Evans, himself a cancer sufferer, arrived by air from Canada March 4 to undergo treatment by Braund after Canadian doctors pronounced his case incurable. Braund claims to have discovered a cure for the disease. His methods are currently under study by a New South Wales government commission.

Evans said in an interview at Braund's home today that he would return to Canada within three months to treat cancer sufferers in the Dominion and teach others how to cure the disease.

Mrs. Anne Northam and Mrs. Ruth McIntyre, also of Vancouver, said today their treatment still is in the early stages and it is too soon for them to express an opinion as to whether they are getting any benefit from the Braund treatment.

The panel of doctors set up by the New South Wales government to investigate the worth of Braund's methods expects to be in a position to announce their findings "within a few weeks." Meanwhile Braund is collecting subscriptions from his patients to set up a private clinic.

Approval Given To Peterborough To Annex Area

Toronto, March 17. (CP)—After considerable discussion the Ontario Legislature Committee on Private Bills today gave approval to the request from Peterborough that the city be allowed to annex 325 acres of North Monaghan Township.

Mr. Fair claimed that the objective of the annexation was that the city would have a larger area to assess and tax in order to help pay for the city's expansion program which includes a new city and sewage disposal system.

He contended that all the people will get for several years will be higher taxes since the land in the annexed district was too low and wet for trunk sewers.

Mayor W. G. Ovens of Peterborough, told the committee the city has already drawn up plans to service the area and has spent $15,000 for town planning which includes the part of Monaghan Township in question. The city, he declared, has concluded that the only way to develop an area was to take in a whole school section.

The helicopter will be used to search for weak spots in the Lake Erie ice.

Educational Facilities, Teachers Seen Great Need in India

Field Secretary for the Y.M.C.A., Alfred S. Morris, was guest speaker at the regular weekly Kiwanis luncheon meeting held at the Kiwanis Centre Tuesday noon. Recently returned from India where he spent two years, Mr. Morris gave first hand impressions of conditions in that country.

With 320 millions of its people without education there was great need in India for additional educational facilities, including teachers and buildings, according to the speaker. Currently school teachers in India hired by the Indian government and not by the missions, receive the equivalent of approximately $8 per month. Yet a family servant will receive about $12 per month.

"Indians are not particularly interested in education," stated Mr. Morris. "They are interested more in simply getting enough to eat. However, I take my hat off to the teachers of India who in spite of his meagre salary and lack of facilities has a true sense of service to his country."

Strife Among Sects

The speaker told of the religious life in India and of the constant strife among the various religious sects. He told of a train journey taken from the interior of India to Delhi during which he had seen strife in which it was reported the equivalent of the population of the city of Belleville, brutally massacred in what amounted to outright warfare among the various religious sects.

He termed this as a "sorting out process" in which the Moslems sought out the Sikhs and Hindu refugees and killed them by way of reprisal: This had been following the partition of India in which the Sikhs had considered they had received a raw deal.

Indian leaders had not seemed too greatly perturbed about the mass slayings, they apparently being reconciled to the fact that there will be a great loss of life before conditions are stabilized under home rule.

'Have Not' Countries

In conclusion the speaker said that Canadians should consider themselves fortunate in that they lived in what he termed as a "have" nation. People living in the "have not" countries were in a terrible plight.

There was needed greater coordination of effort in doing things for the "have not" nations, it was stated.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian J. Bothwell with club appreciation being expressed by W. McCreary. President Ted Schwab was in the chair.

Sure, Mike McCool Was a Great Man, He Was, Says Local Irish Veteran

Ould St. Patrick, the broth of a bhoy who watches over the destinies of the Emerald Isle and its colorful sons and daughters, was paid annual tribute today by many city Irishmen and colleens who sported the Green in dress, neckties, or the pretty Shamrock in coat lapels.

But the legendary figure, who 'tis said, drove the snakes out of Ireland away back when, has no connections with the weather man. For the "Sivinteenth of Ireland" dawned today on a city and district mantled with dirty-grey snow, and sand-encrusted sidewalks with a divil a bit of green grass in sight.

But that fact did not deter the faithful Pats and Mikes, the Noras and the Kathleens from sporting the famous green of the natal day of their favorite saint. In office and shop, in factory and store, the pretty greenery was in evidence.

Green Ties Popular

Various shades of the color were noted in the habiliments of the well-dressed Irishmen, especially in the cravat department.

And resplendent in his Irish glory, was the old descendant of Brian Boru who daily takes up his stand in a well-known downtown tobacco shop and will talk Ireland with representatives of any other nationality on earth.

The grey-thatched war veteran who "fit wid the Irish Fusiliers in two grand scraps, be gob, 'wan of thim the First Great War, and the second wid me late departed mother-in-law" was in his Hibernian glory this morning.

A huge Paddy-green bow tie slashed his paler-green striped shirt-front. In his lapel was a generous boutonniere of Shamrocks. In his mouth, at times, was a typical Irish corncob pipe, and on the tip of his tongue were many colorful reminiscences of the gallant deeds of the sons of Erin, much told, but appropriate of the day.

The Great McCools

He needed little urging.

"So yez want to talk about spoorts?" he said, a wide grin beaming on his rugged Irish features.

"And did yez iver hear of the McCools? Thim was the greatest guys that iver wore the Green of Ould Ireland. Shotputters, they wuz, too. Why Paddy McCool, who heaved a fifty-pound shot clean across the Shannon River, wuz the runt of the family. The bhoys wuz all siven-footers, and could pitch a shot two miles like yez would throw a baseball fifty feet."

"Well, I rimimber," the loquacious one went on, "me ould granddaddy tellin' of ould Mike McCool. Mike was jist turned 93, and wuz ingaging in his favorite spoort of trunnin' a 100-pound shot over the village church in Kilkenny. Sure, and he had heaved that shot some fifty toimes when he looks up and sees his son Michael, Jr., who had jist arrived from America."

"Well, me bhoy, Mike sez, "and where did yez come from?"

The boy replied from the States, and asked his ould man what he wuz doin.

"Trunnin' the shot," he replied, "to keep me muscles in good shape. And wid that, the ould bhoy picked up the thing and heaved it over the roof. A minute or so later, the shot hurled back and landed some fifty feet behoind the ould man and his son."

Stunt Surprises Son

"The bhoy's eyes opened wide in amazement. "And who might be athrowing the shot back at yez," he asked.

"Ould Mike grinned from ear to ear. 'For shame, ye spalpeen, to ask a quistion like that. It's your ould granpappy who is cilibratin' his 110th birthday today."

The elderly war-vet a twinkle in his Irish eyes, glanced up at his friend. 'Yez may not believe that, but it's the truth," he said.

He reached out a gnarled finger and tapped his friend on the chest.

"And yez are too young to rimimber another great Irish athlete. If your mimory is queer, I'll tell yez. Do yez rimimber Mike McTague, the great Irish middleweight. Well, they was a felly by the name of Battling Siki, a colored man, who took on Mike in Dublin on the sivinteenth of March siviral years ago. Now that's about as foolish a trick as he could play. Did yez ever figure out what would happen to an Englishman, a Scotchman, a Frenchman, a Yankee, or a Roossian, if he happened to lick a bhoy by the name of McTague in Dublin on the Sivinteenth?"

"Well, it didn't happen to Siki —but plenty did."

And the old Irishman, his flamboyant tie waving in the breeze, Shamrocks colorful against a faded blue coat, went to seek other receptive sources for his fund of Irish anecdotes.

Blast Ice Jam To Prevent Flood

Meaford, March 17 — (CP) — Blasting operations were started in the harbor of this Georgian Bay town today in an attempt to clear an ice jam which threatens to flood the area.

Ice in the harbor is about 18 inches thick and extends from the mouth of the Bighead River for more than a mile upstream.

Yesterday Frank Garvey sustained several hundreds of dollars damage when minor flood waters filled the basement of his grocery store here.

Cooler weather last night cut the volume of water and eased flooding danger.

Hydro crews were forced to cut high tension wires yesterday when cakes of ice along the north bank of the river snapped power poles.

Saloons were traditionally closed, but a few Irishmen with an early thirst slipped across the border into Ulster for a St. Patrick's Day drop.

Says $700 Offered To Kill Husband In Love Triangle

Montreal, March 17 (CP) —Armand LaFleur, truck driver, testified in court yesterday he had turned down a $700 offer to kill one of the principals in a love triangle because he feared if he ran his truck over the prospective victim he would lose his driver's licence.

LaFleur gave his startling evidence at the preliminary hearing of Camille Caron, charged with counselling and offering $700 to LaFleur to do away with Eugene Bedard. Caron was ordered to stand trial and bail was refused.

LaFleur said he knew Caron was in love with Bedard's wife. Caron had offered an added inducement—"you will be free to marry the daughter and I can marry the mother." LaFleur admitted he was in love with Jacqueline Bedard, the daughter.

"First Caron suggested I knock down Bedard with my truck on the street," said LaFleur. "Next he showed me two firearms, one a .32 calibre automatic and the other a .38 calibre revolver. I didn't like the look of either."

Rescuers First Persons She Saw In 18 Hours

Toronto, March 17 —(CP)— "Thank God you've come" cried 63-year-old Mrs. Helen Puddester early today as rescue workers evacuated her from a suburban Long Branch cottage where swollen waters of the Etobicoke creek threatened over 50 cottage dwellers.

Relating a night of terror she said rescuers were the first persons she had seen in 18 hours.

"When they cut off the power and telephone lines yesterday I lost all contact with the outside world."

Huddled beside a fire with clothes pegs for fuel, Mrs. Puddester said she had suffered two heart attacks during the night while perched on a five-foot table.

Attention to the woman's plight was drawn after a bystander noticed movement in the two-storey frame cottage. Nearby homes had been evacuated earlier.

CALLS FOR DRAFT

And developments have reached the point, Truman said, at which America's position should be made unmistakeably clear.

He then spoke of the high purposes of the United Nations Charter, and added:

"We cannot, however, close our eyes to the harsh fact that through obstruction and even defiance on the part of one nation, this great dream has not yet become a full reality."

Therefore, he said, supplementary measures are necessary for the United States—universal training, temporary revival of the draft, and swift action on the European recovery program.

"Time is now of critical importance," Truman said of the European Aid Plan.

The Senate has approved European aid to be started with $5,300,000,000 for the first year. The House has not yet acted.

In urging universal training, the President said the United States must remain strong enough to support European countries threatened with Communist control and police state rule "so long as Communism threatens the very existence of democracy."

Build up Army Strength

Universal training is the "only feasible means by which the civilian components of our armed force can be built up to the strength required if we are to be prepared for emergencies."

The ability of the United States to mobilize trained men in large numbers in an emergency, he said, could head off future conflict and help restore world stability.

Adoption of universal training in the United States would supply "unmistakeable evidence to all the world of our determination to back the will to peace with the strength for peace."

Temporary use of the draft, the President said, is needed to keep the armed forces at their proper strength.

He said these forces now lack the necessary men and have been unable to get them through enlistments.

Hence, selective service is needed until universal training can be established solidly. Then it can be ended and regular forces maintained on a voluntary basis.

"We must be prepared to pay the price of war."

Truman recited the course of events abroad before heading into his recommendations.

Reds Obstruct Peace

Skipping the usual niceties of diplomatic language, he rapped at Russia directly and by name.

He said agreements had been worked out in world conferences which would have permitted a just peace. But he said they have been "persistently ignored and violated by one nation."

One country, he said, has "persistently obstructed the work of the United Nations by constant abuse of the veto."

Then he said:

"But that is not all. Since the close of hostilities, the Soviet Union and its agents have destroyed the independence and democratic character of a whole series of nations in eastern and central Europe.

"It is this ruthless course of action, and the clear design to extend it to the remaining free nations of Europe, that has brought about the critical situation in Europe today.

"The tragic death of the Republic of Czechoslovakia has sent a shock throughout the civilized world. Now pressure is being brought to bear on Finland, to the hazard of the entire Scandinavian peninsula.

"Greece is under direct military attack from rebels actively supported by her Communist-dominated neighbors. In Italy, a determined and aggressive effort is being made by a Communist minority to take control of that country.

"The methods vary, but the pattern is all too clear."

In the economic field, Mr. Truman said that Russia and her satellites have declared violent hostility to the European Recovery program and are "aggressively attempting to wreck it."

They regard it, he said as a major obstacle to their subjugating Europe.

Quick Action Needed

Truman said he is encouraged by plans for quick House action on the European Aid plan.

"I hope that no single day will be needlessly lost."

At the same time, Truman said that never in his history has "unity among our people" at home been so vital.

"Unity of purpose, unity of effort and unity of spirit are essential to accomplish the task before us...

"The world situation is too critical, and the responsibilities of this country are too vast, to permit party struggles to weaken our influence for maintaining peace.

"The American people have the right to assume that political considerations will not affect our working together."

Truman may have more to say about foreign policy in another address tonight when he speaks at a St. Patrick's Day dinner in New York.

Even before Mr. Truman's address, Republican party House leaders had pledged in effect that the United States would build up its military power, but had said nothing about revising a draft.

Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep.-Mass.) after a meeting of the Republican's House command, issued a statement last night saying:

"We must have the strongest navy on the seas. We must make ourselves absolutely supreme in the air and under the seas."

Martin said "the constant advance of the Iron Curtain across Europe has created a grave crisis in our international relations."

Say 50 of Czech Origin Wish To Return Home

Windsor, March 17 (CP)—Since the Russian coup in Czechoslovakia approximately 50 persons of Czech origin—many naturalized Canadians—have applied for passports to leave their homes in southwestern Ontario and return to their homeland.

The Windsor Star in a news-page story today said it had received this information from an "unimpeachible" source.

The source said all of these Czechs reside in southwestern Ontario west of the line between Wallaceburg and Chatham. A good number are in this city.

Many Hungarians of this area, also, have made application with the Hungarian minister at Ottawa for visa to return to their homeland.

Most of these, however, wanted the passports only for visiting purposes as this year Hungary is celebrating the centennial of its independence.

The situation regarding other nationals now resident in this area was not touched on by the source who confined his information to the situation pertaining to the certain groups of Czechs and Hungarians at the present time.

M.P. Group Told Security Only Issue Involved

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, March 17. (Reuters) — Uneasiness that the government's comb-out of Communists and Fascists from Civil Service Security Departments might involve political discrimination was expressed by a number of rank-and-file members of parliament at a meeting of the 400-strong parliamentary Labor party today, it was reliably understood.

A statement issued after the meeting merely stated that a discussion had taken place "on recent events in Czechoslovakia and on the prime minister's recent statement on Civil Service (Communists and Fascists)."

Herbert Morrison, who as leader of the House of Commons, is the parliamentary "party boss", is understood to have given the meeting a full explanation of the government's attitude and the reasons which prompted its action. He also gave categorical assurances of the government's intention to stick to the one issue involved—the need to see that security departments were protected.

A small group of members is trying to collect 50 signatures to an amendment to be moved in parliament contesting certain aspects of the government's action in launching the investigation.

Brave Scout Dies, Recently Awarded Cornwall Badge

Montreal, March 17 — (CP)—A brave 15-year-old scout whose valiant fight for life was acknowledged just a week ago by Viscount Alexander died of dread leukemia yesterday in hospital.

Peter Bullock of the Ste. Anne De Bellevue Boy Scout troops, must have known for some time he would never get better. But his courage and cheerfulness under suffering brought him two great tributes.

Last March 6 he was awarded the Cornwall Badge, the Boy Scouts' equivalent of the Victoria Cross. Then came the visit by the Governor General who told Peter: "Just a visit of one friend to another; just one scout dropping in to say 'hello' to another scout."

Clinic for Drivers

In the modern world with its pronounced scientific attitude because science and invention have played so great a role in changing the surroundings and ways of human beings, it is not surprising that the question of motor accidents will be studied, as disease is studied, in a clinic. This had to come because motor infractions and accidents seem things that could be avoided in a very large degree.

A fact-finding clinic is to be conducted in Hartford by the Centre for Safety Education of New York University, says the New York Times, pointing out that "this clinic will have for its patients 100 chronic violators of Connescticut traffic rules. If the patients co-operate with the clinic, special consideration will be given them when their cases for recent traffic violations come up. On the other side of the picture, 100 drivers who have had perfect records in operating their vehicles will be invited to take examinations."

Ten separate tests will cover both mental attitudes and physical qualifications for driving. Some years ago a test was held in the smae state and "showed that 20 per cent of its drivers were responsible for more than 80 per cent of its accidents."

The comment of the Times is that "safety experts are agreed that few elements are more important than the attitude of the driver towards his own privilege and the rights of others. If these clinics help to show the reason for faulty attitudes, they will serve a fine safety purpose."

There is a worldwide comradeship of nations where the safety on the roads is under study. A finding or step which has proven of benefit at once becomes a matter of world knowledge and application. That is as it should be for there is seemingly so much yet to be done to bring in that millenium in which motor driving will be safe for those who in this age might be the innocent victims of automobile accidents, as well as for those who cause accidents, in short, to bring in a driving world in which traffic accidents will be missing or extremely rare. At least such is the hope of everyone driving the highways and streets.

Forest Wealth

Forests have been coming into greater and greater promnience as the source of national wealth and importance as a result of their value as shown in the two World Wars. Canada and the United States have been giving no little attention to the preservation of the forest wealth and the annual forest increase. Setting out of young plantations has been undertaken with the knowledge that they will grow into a source of great wealth.

In the British Isles also much attention has been given to the woodlands. Now her forests and woodlands are to be managed for the benefit of the nation. A scheme was recently published by the Forestry Commission whereby owners can make over to the state their plantations by deed of agreement. In return they receive financial assistance equal to twenty-five per cent of the expenditure until the woodlands become self-supporting. This will insure that Britain's two million acres of privately owned forests shall be maintained in such a way as to make the largest possible contribution to the country's timber supplies.

Britain gave freely of her forest riches in the last war.

Echoes From Moon

A flicker of blue light on a screen, and a rattle of morse in a loud speaker, told three scientists at Hornsby, near Sydney, that they had succeeded in bouncing a radio signal off the moon.

The experiment — the first successful attempt in Australia — was carried out by the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research.

It was explained that the experiments were not directed at finding out anything special about the moon. They were part of a planned research program to find out more about propagation of radio waves.

Signals were relayed by landline from the radio-physics laboratory's propagation station at Hornsby to Radio Australia, a short-wave station at Shepparton, Victoria.

Radio Australia, using radar on a frequency of 17.8 million vibrations a second, transmitted the signals 238,000 miles to the moon.

Two and a half seconds later the scientists heard back the signal they had sent out, weak, but unmistakable.

For half an hour the signals were sent out, and the echoes came back successfully.

The visible signals were photographed as they appeared on the screen of a Cathode Ray tube. The strengths of the echoes were variable.

"We are anxious to find out whether this is caused by the signals going through the ionosphere or by conditions on the moon's surface," said Mr. Kerr. — Australian News Letter.

Maginot Line to Pasture

Beating swords into plowshares as a symbol of peace would appear to be perfectly exemplified in current practice by the decision of the French Government to let as pasture the land on which the Maginot Line is built. Actually no such conclusion can be drawn. The only valid assumption is that France has finally recognized the hideous dangers, intellectual as well as physical, that may derive from the concept of a Maginot Line.

When first proposed, the theory of an "impregnable" fortification protecting the exposed borders of France from its ancient enemy appeared at least superficially sound. Vast sums were voted by the between-wars Assembly for the fortifications. And, as great underground bastion on bastion crowned the achievement, France huddled behind its concrete, literally and philosophically.

But it was not uncharacteristic of the type of mind that thought in terms of static warfare in the Thirties that the Line was never fully completed. As conceived it would have extended to the Channel, enclosing Belgium, too, in its protection. But the Belgian Government of the day preferred to put its faith in its guaranteed neutrality. The Maginot Line stopped at the Fernch frontier; and was readily and quickly flanked in 1940.

For five bitter years German Occupation taught the French the positive danger of putting their faith in concrete alone. The lesson is now learned. It is now generally recognized that warfare is no longer static; that, on the contrary, it will probably increase in speed and in mobility. And the Maginot Line appropriately returns to pasture, while France is at last freed from the national fetish that so nearly destroyed it. —Montreal Gazette.

Railways

It is noteworthy that there is one mile of rail for every 290 Canadians as against one mile in the United States for every 590 people, remarks The Sydney Post-Record. This should put the Canadian railways at a relative handicap, not serving the same density of population as those in the States and therefore not having the same volume of revenue. Nevertheless, in the science of transportation, long and short haul and in progress, the two great systems compare favorably with the best in the country to the south. Perhaps not in de luxe trains of the streamlined superspeed type, but in comfort, courtesy, consideration for passenger traffic, the Canadian service is something of which to be proud.

THIS LAND OF OURS

The more I hear, the more I read
Of any tyrant and his creed,
And how all foes he overpowers,
The more I love this land of ours.

Here, song and laughter fill the air,
And few are driven to despair.
Here, families unite in grace,
For hunger isn't commonplace.

Here, no one walks the street in dread
That spies have heard what he has said.
Here, none by brutal threats is cowed.
Here, all to worship are allowed.

The more I learn of lands afar,
Where deep in misery thousands are,
And hope for youth no longer flowers,
The more I love this land of ours.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How tall was Abraham Lincoln?

Abraham Lincoln was about six feet, four inches in height and has been the tallest President. He reached his full height at 17.

In a brief autobiography that he wrote in 1859 upon the suggestion of Jesse W. Fell, Lincoln said:

"If any personal description is thought desirable, I am in height six feet four inches, nearly; lean in flesh, weighing on an average, one hundred and eighty pounds."

The records of the Black Hawk War, in which Lincoln served as a captain, gave his height as six feet four and a half inches.

Henry C. Whitney, who travelled with Lincoln on the circuit in Illinois and often slept with him, wrote: "He was six feet and four inches in height, his legs and arms were disproportionately long, his feet and hands were abnormally large, he was awkward in his gait and actions."

Legend says that when a friend bantered him upon the length of his legs, Lincoln observed that he was so tall his legs had to be long to reach the ground.

Lincoln, even after he was President, was fond of having other tall men measure heights with him.

When travelling Lincoln had considerable difficulty in finding a bed long enough to sleep in with comfort.

In December, 1864, Mrs. Lincoln bought for him and had set up in the White House an eight-foot bed with canopy and curtains.

HE WITH GLASS ARM SHOULD NOT THROW SNOWBALLS

Walking in the English garden in Munich one day about Christmas time I spied a young couple petting—wrote the professor. On a mischievous impulse I gathered a snowball and tossed it at them. My arm hurt excrutiatingly and fell to my side as though paralyzed, but soon the pain was gone and so was the couple. Three days later, however, my arm began to hurt a good deal. Hot packs and other remedies gave little relief and I could get no sleep. I sent for Dr. ———, on the teaching staff of the University.

The doctor lifted my arm to horizontal (I couldn't lift it myself), pressed on the nerve in front and said no, not neuritis; then in the rear, no, not arthritis; then he pressed his finger directly below the tip of the shoulder and the pain was acute. Bursitis, he said. Glass arm, I said. The doctor had never heard of glass arm; I had never heard of bursitis.

The doctor told me my unaccustomed effort to throw the snowball had probably ruptured some fibres of the surpraspinatus muscle, and possibly the sac of the subacromial bursa. The sac or bursa, he said, contains oil that lubricates the shoulder—or something to that effect—I'm only a layman and I'm not sure I have the terms right. Anyway, in two weeks my arm was out of the sling, well, but weak. The doctor did advise against heat—just keep the arm in sling and against body, he said, for heat causes the oil to continue pouring from the sac. ... (Signed———)

A bursa is a sac or pad, containing a few drops of serum, watery fluid like that which keeps the joint surfaces moist. There is no oil or lubrication—the pad or sac merely serves as a bearing over which tendon slides with little friction.

Subdeltoid or subacromial bursitis, shoulder bursitis, is the usual condition known as "glass arm", but in some cases "glass arm" is due to injury to the long tendon of the biceps muscle which passes close to the burna under the point or tip of shoulder. Baseball pitchers, tennis players and golfers are subject to this trouble—I don't recall seeing a lawn bowler with it, but from the way my dollar-a-year chemistry adviser runs 'em I wouldn't be at all surprised...

The rest treatment the doctor prescribed for the professor is good treatment in the first stage of bursitis. Heat, too, if moist heat (hot applications) or dry heat (heating pad, toasting before radiant heater or under infra red lamp) gives relief. Deep heat (diathemy) gave me the greatest relief when I had a glass arm. Don't laugh if I tell you I got mine by working a windshield wiper by hand much of the time during two rainy days while driving across country. Automatic gadgets had been introduced but, my hired girl swears, I just wouldn't have one of them on my car—I suppose I took the same attitude that some drivers now take towards the new- fangled fluid drive—they prefer to do their own gear shifting as always.

I want to warn all victims of glass arm to beware of three things. First, don't get the notion that "taking cold" in the arm or shoulder or neck has anything to do with the trouble. Second, if anybody suggests rheumatiz hit him a kick in the teeth. Third don't sever relations with your physician until you have recovered full use of arm and shoulder. With few exceptions it is a reflection on your spirit and intelligence to accept even partial crippling as your permanent lot, after busitis. Remember that when everything has been done that can be done with passive manipulation (by physician or physical therapist under physician's direction) and active manipulation (by yourself), if use of shoulder and arm is still short of what it should be, surgery may complete the cure.

Russian Wheat Offerings Made To West Europe

Washington, March 17 (AP) — Congress today was told that Russia is offering large amounts of wheat to western European countries, possibly for "political purposes."

N. E. Dodd, Undersecretary of Agriculture told of the Russian move in testimony released by the House Appropriations Committee. He said it is "complicating the situation very much."

Dodd cited a Russian deal to ship 700,000 tons of grain to Britain in return for heavy machinery. He added:

"The Russians also offered to enter into negotiations with other western European countries for wheat in amounts larger than we have in sight at the present time."

While admittedly lacking definite information, Dodd suggested Russia might be denying grain to its own people in order to trade it abroad.

Letter to the Editor

Worries About Debris

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer

Once again all citizens living or carrying on a business in the lower part of our city are wondering just what Madam Moira River will do for us in the way of a flood demonstration.

While at the moment the possibility of trouble from this source seems remote, any old timer will tell us that a few days of heavy rain could soon change the picture.

With nearly half the west side of our river bed obstructed with debris left by the contracting concern after installation of the new water main for our utilities and the natural flow of the river diverted to the much narrowed channel a big rain could cause a great deal of trouble.

The writer has wondered just why the city fathers have allowed the river bed to be left in this hazardous condition.

We all remember too vividly the suffering of all householders in the area west of the river mouth and south of Bridge Street in our last flood.

Russian Isolation Policy Follows Pattern Japs Devised 300 Years Ago

By RELMAN MORIN

Washington, March 17. (AP)—Josef Stalin didn't invent the iron curtain.

The real inventor was another strong man, named Iyemitsu, who did the same things to Japan 300 years ago that Stalin is doing to Russia today.

Last Dec. 16 the Supreme Soviet issued a decree, the net effect of which was to order that all communications with foreigners should be through the foreign ministry. It covered every type of conversation or communication.

Japanese Were First

The Japanese thought of that one a long time ago.

They banned virtually all foreigners from the country. Those remaining were confined to a small island off Nagasaki and never permitted on the mainland.

By decree, there was to be no conversation between a foreigner and a Japanese except through the official interpreters. The old Japanese law said that "all such conversations are to be reported immediately to the local authorities, who will transmit them to the Daimyo."

In modern Russia only those non-Russian books that serve a propaganda purpose ever reach the ordinary reader. In medieval Japan only those scientific works on medicine, armaments, etc., that were useful in learning western techniques were permitted.

Couldn't Leave

No Japanese, in that day was permitted to leave Japan under penalty of death. In practice no Soviet citizen leaves except on an official mission. A few have escaped, but they did it by concealing their intentions and with the full knowledge of the risks involved.

Through their wives and families, who usually remain behind, the Soviet government has a pretty good guarantee of the loyalty of the Russians who go abroad. In precisely the same way Iyemitsu decreed that the wives and families of his officials were to be left in his capital for the period each year when the officials were allowed to be away from it.

There is a parallel, too, in marriage.

The Soviet issued a decree last year; forbidding marriages between Russians and foreigners. The Japanese counterpart, issued in 1615, said: "Marriages are not to be contracted at private convenience . . . .to form cliques by means of matrimonial connection is a source of pernicious stratagem."

As a result of the earlier dictator, Japan became the "hermit kingdom" and fell far behind the rest of the world.

British Horses Train to Meet French "Invasion"

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Newmarket, Suffolk, England, March 17 — (CP) — More than 1,000 highly-rated thoroughbreds are in training at this horse-mad town, headquarters of the national effort to repulse what most fans expect to be the biggest French invasion yet of British race courses.

Jack Jarvis, veteran trainer to Lord Rosebery, chief steward of the Jockey Club, says he is confident the Frenchmen will be turned back but across the channel most of the big stables have their sights set on the major British races for 1948.

Last year French-trained animals ran off with £63,188 ($252,752) in British stake money — including victories in three of the five classics and several of the wealthier Royal Ascot events. That was nearly double what they captured in 1946.

This year the Gallic grab for guineas will be intensified. Devaluation of the franc is the reason. Since the ratio of francs to pounds was set at 864 instead of 480, a British stake has demonstrably nearly doubled in value to a French victor.

All the important French stables — notably that of BBaron G. De Waldner whose Pearl Diver won the 1947 Derby and M. Boussac whose Arbar ran Sayajirao to a head in the St. Leger and later took the King George VI Stakes at Ascot — have candidates primed for the 1948 attack.

Prodding the lush turf of Newmarket Heath with his cane while his first string of 42 race-horses worked out over the springy, rolling ground, Jarvis told a reporter: "British horses will do better this year."

"Quality and breeding of British horses is still the world's highest" but "our horses are still not getting enough of the right kind of food."

The work will take 10 years to complete.

15-Year Term For Robbery

Toronto, March 17 — (CP) — David Nolan of Toronto was sentenced yesterday to 15 years on a charge of robbery, arising from the theft of a safe last month from an east-end hotel.

Nolan was captured after three others fled with the safe. Shortly before his arrest he had been freed after serving a 10-year sentence in Kingston penitentiary.

During the trial, the 32-year-old man testified he had not been armed although he believed one of his accomplices had a gun.

Nolan and his companions held the watchman at gun point and wheeled the safe from the hotel office. It was later recovered on an east suburban road. None of the money was missing.

Britain Withdraws Last of Quota For This Month

By SYDNEY CAMPBELL
(Reuters Financial Editor)

London, March 17 (Reuters) — Britain last week drew the last $9,000,900 which she is entitled to draw this month from her $1,250,000,000 Canadian loan, it was learned today.

As $6,000,000 had been drawn the previous week, last week's withdrawal completed the quota of $15,000,000 for this month and of $45,000,000 for the current quarter.

Quotas for subsequent quarters have not been disclosed.

In January and February the drawing were spread over the month.

About $242,000,000 of the Canadian loan remains, but further withdrawals will require a new agreement between Britain and Canada, since the agreement last December provided only for the $45,000,000 during this quarter due to Canada's own dollar shortage.

The official tabulation of Britain's reserves at the beginning of 1948 set at about £680,000,000 ($2,720,000,000) excluded the balance of the Canadian loan, except the $45,000,000 quota for the current quarter.

It has been generally understood that Canada's ability to release more of the loan in the next quarter and subsequently, will depend on how far Marshall aid can indirectly relieve Canada's dollar shortage, particularly by off-shore purchases.

Girl Tortured, Beaten When Held Prisoner

Cincinnati, March 17 — (AP)—Barbara Sevedge, 22, is in hospital today recovering from a beating police described as the "most brutal and savage" they had ever encountered.

Harold E. Boehm, 32, faced charges of rape, maiming and sodomy, filed by Mrs. Wanda Sarver, the girl's sister.

Mrs. Sarver said her sister had failed to come home for two weeks and she believed Boehm had held the girl prisoner. She trailed the man to his room and then called police.

Police said the girl was nearly nude and in a semi-conscious condition when found. Her face was battered, her lips swollen and her eyes closed. There were cuts and bruises on her body and burns, apparently from cigarets, on her feet, police said.

The initials B. S. and H. B. were carved into her left ear near the shoulder, apparently with a penknife.

The girl said she had been beaten with the buckle end of a belt. A bloody belt and buckle were found in the room.

O.E.S. No. 55 Sponsors Successful St. Patrick Tea

Mrs. Russell Smith and Mrs. Robert Orne were conveners for a very successful St. Patrick Tea, yesterday afternoon, in the Oddfellows' Hall, Front Street, under the auspices of the O.E.S. No. 55, when the traditional Irish green of St. Patrick was prominently used in decorations and refreshments. Receiving the guests were Mrs. A. D. McLean, W.M., and Mrs. B. Adams.

Mrs. K. Onderdonk was in charge of the tea room, where the tea table, occupying the central floor space, was covered with an ecru lace cloth, the centre piece being of white and tinted carnations in a large crystal bowl. Triple silver candelabra holding tall white tapers were placed above the twin silver tea services, and guests were served at a number of small tables, arranged in a semi-circle, each with its snowy linen cover centred with a white taper in a green holder.

Pouring the tea were Past Matrons Mrs. G. Cornish, Mrs. W. Taylor, Mrs. J. Barlow and Mrs. Frank Moon, W.M. of Minerva Chapter; while the guests were served by Mesdames G. Baker, I. R. Slavin, L. Grills, E. Adams, W. Ironside, R. Clapp, E. Barlow and R. Berry.

Replenishing the plates and teapots were Past Worthy Matrons Mesdames A. Nayler, E. Liddle, W. J. Harrison, H. Brown, A. McGlashon, and G. Shaw.

Nearby Mrs. R. D. Adams and Mrs. C. McMullen were in charge of a large angel cake with pale green icing. A table where aprons and novelties were offered for sale had a white cover with touches of green, and was centred with a white Hyacinth plant. Mrs. F. R. Morden. P.W.M., was the convener and Mrs. H. Pitt co-convener.

The ever popular home cooking table was similarly decorated and offered a large assortment of the homemaker's culinary art products, including pies, tarts, buns, cakes, cookies, biscuits and home canned fruits and pickles. Mrs. H. Elvidge and Mrs. Fred Scott were convening this table.

Mrs. W. Wonnacott was the holder of the ticket winning the angel cake.

Treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. F. Patterson and Mrs. S. Westover, who report the proceeds very gratifying to the ladies interested in the success of this venture.
